(10) The British people, together with the United States, constitute the lost (?) ten tribes of Israel today, and are God's chosen covenant people, which explains the great world empire and power of these people. Some say that England is Ephraim and the United States is Manassah.

(11) They interpret the stone cut out without hand referred to in the book of Daniel as being the British Empire instead of Christ, and go as far as to say that the empire today is the kingdom of God on earth.

These are the main claims and tenets of British-Israelism. Of course, with such a vast program there are other secondary details, which could hardly be mentioned in a brief summary such as this.

Without attempting to deal with all the corollaries of this system, I will attempt to prove their main propositions to be anti-Scriptural. But first let me say that their writings and arguments are filled with such statements as, "no doubt," "in all probability," "tradition says," "legend," "myth," "doubtless," "that we may guess," "can there be any doubt," "may we not infer," "there were probably," "it is not hard to believe," "we venture to think" etc. The whole system seems to be a bit of wishful thinking.

"ISRAEL" AND THE "JEW"

The first important claim of this cult is that "Israel and the "Jew," are always spoken of and considered as two separate peoples, as well as nations, from the separation after Solomon to the present time. This may surprise most students of the Bible upon hearing it for the first time. The obvious meaning of both Old and New Testaments is against such a teaching; yet is dogmatically declared by all the apostles of this new movement. Notice one quotation from one of their writers (Rev. Seth Gordon, President Emeritus of Tulsa University, in "Prophecies and Fundamentals"). He says on page 354 of this book, "I was thoroughly convinced that here were 'three classes of people in the world: the Gentile, the Jew, and the Israelite.' In history and prophecy, in theory and in fact, these three are separate and distinct races." These advocates of British-Israelism cause a great deal of confusion throughout the Old Testament by applying every Scripture where the name "Israel" occurs to the nine or 10 tribes of the northern kingdom. This, of course, quite easily can be proven untrue. There are many places where the word "Israel" did refer to the division, but also many more where it obviously does not refer to this division but to the whole 12 tribes.

For example, the British-Israelites claim that only Jews returned from the Babylonian captivity; yet in the book of Ezra this remnant is called "Jews" only eight times but called "Israel" no less than 40 times. In the book of Nehemiah they are called "Jews" II times and "Israel" 22 times. Another significant fact in this connection is that British-Israelites claim that the Jews returned to Palestine, while the ten lost (?) tribes remained in the Persian Empire. In the book of Esther, written subsequently to the partial restoration under Zerrubbabel and Joshua, these people are called "Jews" 45 times and not once mentioned as "Israel." In addition to these facts, the post-exilic prophets speak of them as one nation. Malachi, for example, prophesies to Israel or Jacob, and distinctly refers to the people in the land almost a century after Ezra.

Josephus, the Jewish historian, might be cited here also in proof of the same thing, but we must pass on to the New Testament. Here we find that the same people referred to as "Jews" 174 times are also called, "Israel" no less than 75 times. Paul is a fine example of this. He said, "I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus" (Acts 21:39). Yet he also said, "I also am an Israelite" (Rom. 11:1). Another shining example is Rom. 9:4-5. Paul here says that his kinsmen according to the flesh were Israelites but continues to say, "of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came." Even the British-Israelites' adherents admit that Christ's earthly ancestors came from Judah and were called Jews.

These references from the Old and New Testament are sufficient to disprove this claim, which is one of the most vital tenets of British-Israelism.

THE "LOST" TEN TRIBES

Another equally important claim of this cult is that the 10 northern tribes were lost. They claim that the northern tribes were entirely lost in the Assyrian captivity and that at most, only a very few isolated individuals came back with those who returned after the Babylonian capticity. Now we do not admit for a moment that such is the case, as we shall soon see; but even if it were true, the present Jewish nation would still be composed of members from all 12 tribes. With the gross idolatry which immediately engulfed the northern kingdom, it would only be natural to expect that many of the godly inhabitants of those tribes would rebel against this and resort to the kingdom of Judah, where Jehovah was still at least outwardly worshipped. We are not left to mere supposition, for at least three different passages in the Word of God tell us that on three different occasions just such a thing happened. In II Chronicles 11:13, 16, 17 we read,

> "And the priests and Levites that were in ALL Israel resorted unto him (Rehoboam) out of all their coasts . . . And after them out of ALL the tribes of Israel such as set their hearts to seek the Lord God of Israel came to Jerusalem to sacrifice to the Lord God of their father. So they strengthened the kingdom of Judah.'

Again, in the reign of Asa, king of Judah, we read in II Chron. 15:9:

> "And he (Asa) gathered all Judah and Benjamin, and the strangers with them out of Ephraim and Manasseh, and out of Simeon: for they fell to him OUT OF ISRAEL IN ABUNDANCE, when they saw that the Lord his God was with him."

The third notice of such a migration from the northern tribes to the kingdom of Judah is found in II Chron. 30. The whole chapter deals with this subject,

YOU ARE BEING WATCHED!

"The eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good."

but we can quote only a few verses here. In 11 we read,

"Nevertheless divers of Asher and Manasser and of Zebulon humbled themselves, and came to Jerusalem."

The tribe of Issachar is added to this list in v. 18. That these who came out of Israel remained in the southern kingdom of Judah is shown in v. 25, which we quote,

"And all the congregation of Judah, with the priests and the Levites, and all the congregation that came out of Israel, and the strangers that came out of the land of Israel, and that DWELT in Judah, rejoiced."

This verse is very significant as it shows the three main waves of migration from Israel to Judah. As we have seen, first the Levites came, then others out of all Israel under Asa's reign, and last were the more recently arrived "strangers" out of Israel. In other words, in Hezekiah's day all those who had come down to Judah in previous centuries still remained, and these made no small multitude of people. Thus, even if the northern tribes which went into captivity were lost yet the Jews which were in the southern kingdom were a truly representative group of all 12 tribes. They were always considered so after the captivity of Babylon.

However, we do not admit for a moment that the tribes of the northern kingdom were lost. As pointed out in a previous paragraph, the books of Ezra and Nehemiah mention Israelites as well as Jews returning from the captivity. In addition to this, Josephus tells us just where the majority of the 10 tribes were located in his day so that they were not lost. There is abundant evidence also from the New Testament that Jesus and his disciples ministered unto all 12 tribes of Israel. He sent His disciples to preach to the "lost sheep of the house of Irael." He also told the Syrophenician woman that he wes "not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. 15:24). The British-Israelites tell us that this proves that the tribes were lost; but it is evident that Jesus meant "lost" spiritually, not geographically. Jesus said virtually the same thing when He visited Zacchaeus. It would hardly be argued that Zacchaeus was "lost" geographically when perched on the limb of the sycamore tree! We might also mention Peter's congregation on the day of Pentecost and the recipients of the books of James and I Peter, in proof of the same contention.

OTHER CLAIMS

These two claims of British-Israelism are the two major stones in the arch by which they attempt to bridge at least 1000 years of history and build a fabulous, imaginary structure. The other claims can be dealt with in the same fashion, if space permitted, and could be shown to be similarly false. However, we must rest the case by merely adding that the whole program is out of harmony with sound Biblical dispensational teaching, and that it robs the nation of Israel of the promises of a glorious millennial kingdom, and similarly seeks to rob Christ, their coming King, of much of His glory. A couple of examples will suffice.

In Joseph Wild's book, "The Ten Lost Tribes," pages 196-197, he clearly states that Messiah's throne of righteousness and peace is to be identical with the throne of England, and the English people are "the saints of the Most High," to whom all the kingdoms of the world shall soon be given. Another quotation from another author in one of their publications called, "The Banner of Israel," reads as follows: "During their wanderings in the desert His presence was manifested by the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night . . . The same Lord still watches over the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel in England and if a gigantic panoramic view of England could be taken from an elevation above the center of the island at midnight, a temporal pillar of fire would be as remarkable from the blazing furnaces, the gas, the steam-engines, as the pillar of cloud and smoke arising from the same sources in the daytime, marking the chief position and prosperity of Israel." The Shekinah glory of God is made out to be the glow of British furnaces and steam-engines.

We close this part of the discussion by citing one more rather amusing proof, which is typical of dozens of others which time and space forbid. Quoting again from Dr. Gordon's book, "Bible Studies," page 317, we have the following: "In Judges the 12th chapter we have an account of two nations getting mixed up, the one with the other. And the time came when it was necessary to know who was a Gileadite and who was an Ephraimite. So a test was put upon them. They were told to say 'Shibboleth'. When they were brought before the commander of the day, about one-half of them said, 'Sibboleth'. They left out the 'h'. 'For they could not frame to pronounce it aright'. Do you know any people across the water that cannot handle the 'h'? That is characteristic of the English people This is conclusive evidence to my mind that the English people are descendants of the Ephraimites."

THE EFFECTS OF THE TEACHING

In conclusion, let us consider for a moment the effect of the teaching of this strange movement or cult. First, it distorts and disarranges the entire prophetical picture; second, it abrogates dispensational truth in the Bible; third, it seeks to rob the true Israel of God, of her promises, distinction, and future glory, fourth, it fosters national pride on the part of the British people; fifth, it abrogates the dispensation of grace and seeks favor for a select few under the law; and last, it robs the Bible of its solemn warnings for the future for both individuals and nations.

The seriousness of the teachings of British-Israelism can hardly be overstressed at present. Recently, I talked to a man who said that he had formerly been a member of a Christian church. He now belongs to a new church founded wholly upon the tenets of British-Israelism. If and when Britain and the United States win the present world war, the movement of British-Israelism is almost certain to spread like wild fire among our churches. Therefore, we should be prepared as ministers of the true gospel of Christ to combat such heresy.

Pure Patriotism

By MILES TABER

Patriotism is defined as love of one's country. Manifestly, there is a spirit abroad in the world today, commonly called patriotism, which is not pure. It may be known by its fruits: lust for power, aggression, exploitation and oppression. It can only serve its country by destroying others. Over against this false patriotism, we who know Christ should demonstrate a pure patriotism. But wherein lies the difference?

The difference is not in the country loved. There is false patriotism in America and Britain, as well as in Germany, Italy and Japan. And there still remains a pure patroitism in some German, Italian and Japanese hearts.

Clearly, the difference must be in the kind of love. The New Testament recognizes two kinds of love, and uses different Greek words to denote them. The first is natural affection, the second is Christian love. The first is common to all men, the second is possible only to the Christian (I John 4:7). The first is selfish, grasping, cruel; the second is an interest in the welfare of the one loved. The first seeks material and temporary advantage, the second seeks the spiritual and eternal good of the one loved. The first is a blind emotion; the second is a deliberate choice, an act of the will.

Now we need only to apply these two kinds of love in the field of patriotism to see the difference between the two kinds of patriotism, false and pure.

Since the second kind of love is possible only to the Christian, then he alone is a patriot in the highest sense. So far from being a slacker, the real child of God is the only one who has a love like God's love for his country, and he is the only one in a position to render that spiritual service which is the supreme need of every nation under God's heaven.

Natural affection is selfish, so false patriotism is selfish. Christian love seeks the welfare of the one loved, so pure patriotism seeks the true welfare of one's country. At no point is the contrast more clear. Much that is called patriotism is merely a looking out for one's own interests. We ask, what will happen to us if we don't win this war? The answer is so bad that we decide it is best to make some sacrifices now to avoid that alternative. Our actions are prompted by that same greed and selfishness, found in every human heart, which activates the dictators of the world. But Christian love for one's country seeks to make that country what, under God, it ought to be, not by dominating others, but by serving them.

A false patriotism is concerned primarily with material and temporal things, colonies, raw materials, markets, and natives who can be exploited. Christian patriotism is concerned with making one's nation strong within, "physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight," and with helping that nation to make the most of its spiritual heritage. Since the one thing that really and ultimately exalts a nation is righteousness, Christian patriotism concentrates on this, its peculiar field. Greed can build empires, but only righteousness can make them last.

Since natural affection is an emotion, depending on the attractiveness of its object, false patriotism is an uncertain thing. The nation may become so vile that it is no longer loved. But the durability of Christian patriotism is founded on the rock of a deliberate choice of the will. The Christian will go on loving his country, and trying to make it what it ought to be, no matter what it has become. Paul loved his own nation deeply, even when that nation was fast ripening for judgment. Their sin seemed only to increase the love in this great patriot's heart for them. And the abounding iniquity in America today is only a challenge to Christian patriotism.

Two more remarks must be added, both of which are seen so clearly in Paul's own terse statement of his attitude toward his nation, found in Rom. 9:3. "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsman according to the flesh."

There is no limit to the Christian's willingness to sacrifice and suffer personal loss for his country. That is because he loves as God loves—and gives, without counting the cost. Paul says in effect, if it were possible, if it were right, I would be willing to be treated as one separated from Christ forever, if by doing that I could serve my country. Here is the true "supreme sacrifice" which only a Christian like Paul could fully understand. Brethren, let there be no hiding from danger or loss of income under the guise of religious conviction; let there be no "chiseling" in tires and gas because a kind government recognizes that a part of our regular work is essential. Our country is passing through its darkest hour. Sacrifices are called for. Let Christian patriots lead in making them.

But Paul did not say that he did wish to be accursed from Christ for his nation's sake, he said he could wish it. He was willing to make that sacrifice, but he knew that that was a sacrifice contrary to God's will for him. The only limits to the sacrifices that a Christian should make, and the services he should render, are the limits placed by God's revealed will. The Christian's willingness is without limit, his actual service is limited only by God. For every sacrifice he does not make, when called upon, he must have a "thus saith the Lord."

Pure patriotism, then, is Christian patriotism, loving our country as God loves us, and has taught us to love. It is seeking the highest moral and spiritual welfare of our country to the end, regardless of its condition at the time. It is a willingness to make personal sacrifices absolutely without limit, yet to be limited in practice by the revealed will of God. May God help us all to find the path in these dark days, the path of love for our beloved America, and of obedience to our heavenly Father.

HOW CAN I PLEASE GOD?

By PAUL E. DICK, pastor, Winchester, Va.

In I Samuel 8, we find the nation of Israel demanding a king to rule over them like the other nations had. Previous to this time Samuel had been the judge of Israel. The fact that Samuel was getting old and well up in years led him to appoint his two sons as judges over Israel. The nation of Israel would by no means consent to these two sons ruling over them, because they walked not in their father's ways, but turned aside after lucre, and took bribes, and perverted judgment. The elders of the nation came and petitioned Samuel to give them a king that they might be like other nations. However, the real reason for wanting a king was that they might worship idols. This request displeased Samuel, who, being a man of God, prayed and asked the Lord what to do. The Lord spoke to Samuel, telling him to "hearken unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee: For they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me."

Rev. Dick

The Lord gave a vivid description to Samuel of the man who was to rule over all Israel. The man appointed would not be beneficial to Israel, but nevertheless they said, "We will have a king over us." Saul was the one appointed as king. In I Sam. 9:2 we read that Saul was "a choice young man, and a goodly: and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people."

A CHOICE YOUNG MAN

Now back to our thought, "How can I please God?" If ever a man could please God in the flesh, Saul was that man. He was a choice young man. The nation was proud to choose Saul because he was the best: yes, in our world of sports the best that can be found are chosen to represent their teams.

GOODLY AND NOT A GOODLIER PERSON

Not only was he a choice young man, but a goodly, and not a goodlier person was to found in all Israel! There was a reason for God allowing such a man to be Israel's king. God in His omniscience realized Israel would later say, "You didn't treat us fair," etc.; so God gave them the best in the land. He was a goodly person.

In Ps. 45:2 we read "Thou art fairer than all the children of men." God gave us the best in the person of Jesus Christ. Never can we say to God, "You haven't given me an opportunity." His best was given for us. If we reject Him, then we have no further accusation to make against God. Abraham was the "friend of God," but there was a spot on him. Peter was a lovable character and gave us two books, but he was not perfect. Many other characters in Scripture are examples of God's grace, but none are without spot. The Lord Christ is fairer than all the sons of men. In Him is no sin, no fault.

You see, radio friends, God gave Israel the best person in the land to rule over them, but this does not necessarily say that he pleased God.

HIGHER THAN ANY OF THE PEOPLE

Saul was higher than any of the people from his shoulders and upward. The people were proud of him, the biggest and best in all the land. Little wonder that the nation rejected a theocracy in favor of a king!

SAUL WAS HUMBLE

In I Sam. we find that Saul was humble. He was from the smallest tribe of Israel. How many Christian people are humble enough today to give God all the glory due Him? We boast of our accomplishments and forget that it is God working through us. Paul said in Eph. 3:21 "Unto Him be the glory;" and when we depart therefrom we are not pleasing God. If ever a man in the flesh could please God, it was Saul. But we read in Rom. 8:8, "So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God." There you have it my friends. You, too, may be pleasing everyone around you because you are partaking of the things of the flesh, but remember that God says, "They that are in the flesh cannot please God." Pleasing God should be our highest aim. Paul said, "For do I now persuade men, or God? Or do I seek to please men? For if I yet pleased men I should not be the servant of Christ" (Gal. 1:10).

EARLY LIFE OF SAUL

Saul's early life gives a description of the unsaved man. First of all, Saul was sent out to seek something he couldn't find. It was not until after he met the man of God, Samuel, that he found his father's animals. Are you, too, seeking something that you cannot find? Maybe you are looking for a home, happiness, peace, joy, and possibly salvation; but these will never be found without the Man of God, The Lord Jesus Christ. In Matt. 6:33 we read, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

In Saul's early life he was:

1. Seeking lost and unclean animals when God wanted him to be king. How many people today are seeking lost and unclean things as a means of salvation? Partaking in lusts of the flesh has never provided salvation. You may enjoy the pleasures of sin, and stumble around in ungodliness seeking something that is worthless, but remember God wants you for His kingdom.

2. Saul lived a short distance from the man of God; yet he never knew him. Many today are like that. People today are living in sight of churches that preach the gospel, a short distance from the Man of God, the Lord Jesus Christ; yet they do not seek Him and pour out their hearts to Him! "He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not. But as many as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name" (Jn. 1:10-12). The day of grace will soon be over. Whose fault will it be that you are not a Christian? Why not openly confess Him as your personal Savior, and you, too, will become a child of God.

3. Saul discovered someone was praying for him. It was Samuel to whom God had spoken concerning Saul. In Jn. 10:16 we read, "And other sheep I have, which are not of the fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd." Eph. 1:4: "According as He hath chosen us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before Him in love." Romans 5:8: "But God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Someone is praying for you, praying that you may accept the Lord Jesus Christ as your personal Savior. Years ago I never realized I would be in the ministry, but someone was praying for me. Thank God we still have a few left who are interested in the souls of men and women!

4. When God wished to crown Saul, he was hiding among the stuff. Today God would be willing to crown many with the helmet of salvation, but human nature would rather hide among the sinful pleasures of this world. If salvation is not in your possession, it is not because God has not made it possible. "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast."

Saul had his enemies, the same as other people. The Ammonites meant a loss of vision, which was external. The Philistines meant a loss of the sword, which was internal. The sword is an emblem of the Bible and Christian service. When we give place to self, or compromise with a worldly church system, we lose the cutting edge of the sword. Saul couldn't wait seven days for Samuel, and as a result God said, "Saul, thou hast done foolishly; thou hast not kept the commandment of the Lord thy God, which He commanded thee: for now would the Lord have established thy kingdom upon Israel forever, but now thy kingdom shall not continue."

Yes, friends, the secret is at the cross. Saul's conscience could wait seven days for Samuel, but it took faith to wait until the end. Now the question: if Saul could not please God in the flesh, who are we that we can please Him in the flesh?

How can I please God? Heb. 11:6 "But without faith it is impossible to please God." Saul was a choice and goodly young man; yet he could not please God. You, too, may be the most respected person in your town; but if you are living in the flesh, and if you are without faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as your personal Savior, then God is not pleased with your life. It was Jesus who said to Nicodemous, one of the most learned and respected men of Israel "Ye must be born again."

Radio friends, this day is your life: (1) an inn thronged with busy traffic? (2) a library which is being steadily filled with increasing stores of knowledge? (3) a counting house dedicated to money making? (4) a pleasure house used for no higher purpose than pleasure seeking?

God grant that we may please Him by having faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and by living in the Spirit.

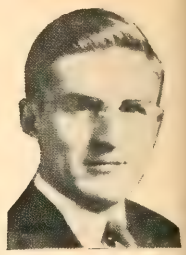
THINK IT OVER

By God's help little men can do big things; and without His help even big men can do but little.

From A Tither..

(Please don't read this if money talk bothers you.)

What would you think of a Bible School superintendent who might proclaim loudly through the church bulletin each Sunday, the need of every church member attending the Bible School, and yet seldom attend himself?



Or what would you think of a pastor who constantly admonished his people to bring their tithes and offerings to the church each Sunday, "upon the first day of the week"—yet he himself very seldom brought his, reasoning that his time was given in the Lord's service, therefore he was not obligated to have any part in giving of his tithes and offerings through the church? He preached and expected others to do what he is not willing to do himself!

God's word says, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house. . . ." Does that mean that we should tithe, and then put the tithe into the bank, or some tin can, pitcher, glass, drawer, or sock, or even use it for any other cause, worthy as it might be, that we might choose above that of God's storehouse? The storehouse is the church —"mine house" (Mal. 3:10).

I know a preacher who has been educating his children in college from God's tithe. In other words, that father has taken God's money and has been misappropriating Another's funds! If those funds were the property of some bank, have you any idea where he would be now?

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

How to Grow in the Christian Life

By REV. NORMAN UPHOUSE

Pastor North Riverdale Brethren Church, Dayton, Ohio.

(Lk. 9:23) And he said unto all, If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me.

INTRODUCTION:

The command of the text is based upon the great principle of the imitation of Christ. I take it that Christian growth is living after Jesus, not that we enter the Christian life in this manner, but that we grow in grace unto perfection. Could we attain perfection at any time apart from Christlikeness, then the Jesus way of living would not be necessary, and Christianity would lose an outstanding peculiarity.

The ultimate aim of the text, viewed in its broadest or narrowest sense, is Christlikeness. As astonishing as it may seem to a world that sneers at Christ, and to psychologists who stumble over the new birth, the Christian life is an evidence of a complete transformation. It certainly is complimentary to Jesus that every transformed life is a standing testimony to His integrity.

The great primary fact lying back of the text is that God became strangely inconceivably connected with pain—that He in Whose nature is inherent happiness, by some mysterious process entered the regions of suffering, crossed the whole diameter of existence, to find Himself incapable of moral pollution; yet was apparently subdued by the apparent conquerer sin and was clad in the weeds of the servant death.

From His words that we know; and positive life and death proceeds conditions of discipleship, presupposing an unquestionable identification with Christ.

SELF DENIAL

Self-denial means to lose sight of oneself. This is asking a big thing, especially since some are puffed up. But unless the Holy Spirit is so disposed to break down the stubborn will of man, and man unconditionally yields himself, he is retarded in his Christian growth and fails on the very first step of Christian conduct, which is obedience.

Confession of sin and acknowledgement of Christ are noble and have special significance, but we are asked to yield to His sweet and holy will. To crown our Savior as King of kings and Lord of lords, demands a dethronement of self will. Violence is being done to the Scriptures when professing Christians say that they will read and hear preaching of the Word, but choose to follow their better judgments. There is but one position, and that is that God's will be done. I reckon that many unkind words would never have found expression, and many unkind deeds never found action, had God's will been done.

"Just as He wills, so let it be,
Whose hand shall mark my path for me;
Just what I need, His eye can see;
Just as my Father wills."

Think of the self-surrendering Christ. In Gethsemane, he said, "Not my will;" and sweat appeared as it were great drops of blood. On the cross, he hurled the same back into the face of evil and the dark abyss. All that we may be asked to give up, He gave up. There is not one crisis of conduct that He did not meet triumphantly. "All the way, before He's trod, and now the flock proceeds."

"I will" is the final statement that bridges the gulf between the mortal and immortal. The believer who says, "I will," to God in all the scenes of life—at work or at play, in love or in truth, for beauty's sake or for the sake of duty, in words of ambition or in words of service, or in the victor's shout of faith—will become the possessor of the fulness of life which is the fulness of God!

"Would you live for Jesus and be always pure and good?
Would you walk with him within the narrow road?
Would you have him bear your burden, carry all your load?
Let him have his way with you."

CROSSBEARING

After one hard announcement comes another. We are apt to wonder, "What occasion can there be for our crossbearing?" Yet the staggering question is, "What did Jesus have to do with crosses?" As for redemption, His death stands alone. As for suffering for righteousness' sake, it is the highest instance of a universal law, according to which all who live a godly life must suffer hardships. Plato had a glimpse of the law when he wrote, "The just will be scourged, racked, bound; will have his eyes put out; and after suffering many ills will be crucified." Jesus choose the most effectual method of keeping this truth prominent before the mind of his followers, when he announced the first doctrine of His own death.

In effect, He declared that only such as were willing to be crucified with Him should be saved by His death. There is a sentence inscribed on the door of a certain school, "Let no man who is unwilling to deny himself and take up his cross, enter." Our crossbearing today is influenced by our willingness to be crucified with Him, the reality of which is history.

In discipleship, the cross signifies all the trouble that comes to those who earnestly endeavor to live after Jesus. Not only did our Lord die by the unjust, but for them. His appointed cup was filled with all possible ingredients of shame and pain, mingled with bitterness. And not a few of the most honored servants have come near in the manner and measure with their afflictions. But the hardships of the Christian host are ordinarily less severe. Jesus stands at the head with a great cross; the martyrs approach it, while we are at infinite distances with lesser crosses.

While our daily cross-bearing is remote from what it might be, let us take care not to manufacture crosses, as the monks did. It was when Christianity was in its infancy, and through a reformation, that fidelity actually meant death for all too many. Those days are much lost sight of in peaceful times, but still the principle is here.

"I walked one day along a country road,
And there a stranger journeyed too,
Bent low beneath the burden of his load:
It was a cross, a cross I knew.
I cried, "Lord Jesus," and He spoke my name;
I saw His hands all bruised and torn;
I stopped to kiss away the marks of shame,
The shame for me that he had borne.
"O let me bear Thy cross, dear Lord," I cried,
And, lo, a cross for me appeared,
The one forgotten, I had cast aside,
The one, so long, that I had feared,
My cross I'll carry till the crown appears,
The way I journeyed soon will end,
Where God himself shall wipe away all tears,
And friend hold fellowship with friend.

FOLLOWING JESUS

Jesus left a model that we should follow in His steps. He told the disciples how He would go, and that they should come after him. The first tone shattered the air: "I must go;" but the second was gentle, "If any man will come after Me."

Following Jesus in a world that has rejected Him and remains unchanged up to the present time, means that we must share in His rejection and in every varied circumstance of his earthly life.

The stature in Eph. 4:22 expresses the idea in terms of growth. Christ is the standard, not in size or age but in moral character. We grow in grace until we become like Him. The measure of the fulness means the full measure, that we should advance in piety and knowledge as to become like Him, which thing will be realized when we are saved in conformity to His will at His second appearing. "Beloved, now are we the children of God, and it is not yet made manifest what we shall be. We know that if He shall be manifested, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him even as He is (I Jno. 3:2).

The battlefields of Europe are dotted with white crosses as daisies dot our meadows. They tell a grim visaged war story. They tell of the choice youth that fell before the formidable war machinery. They tell of the selfish aims of greedy capitalists, and they tell of the countless broken hearts in every clime.

One day three visitors arrived in France in a special car: a preacher, a business man and a woman, and of course the driver. The car stopped and the preacher and woman left. Then the business man said to the driver, "I can't see anything of interest here, let's move on to the place of the great battle where numerous crosses are." The driver pointed to the poor woman who had stopped by a tree and had fallen to the ground, bathing the soft velvet carpet with her tears. "There," he said, "lies her husband and son—all that she had to love. I tell you, she has interest here."

You may be like the business man and have no interest in discipleship, no interest in the cross; but when Jesus becomes real, then I tell you your interest will center around the cross.

Why is it that some people are so contemplative, so apt in self denial and crossbearing? It's because they choose to follow the Jesus way of living and dying.

Bible Vitamins

By MRS. KATIE I. CRAIG

On every hand, over the radio and elsewhere, we are hearing a great deal, these days, about vitamins. We must have vitamin this, and vitamin that, in order to keep our bodies physically fit. Bread is being enriched with vitamins; programs over the air are telling which kinds of fruits and vegetables have the most vitamins; there are advertisements telling us that vitamins can be had in tablet form—all this for the building up and for the maintenance of our physical bodies.

If these vitamins are so important and so necessary in keeping up our physical bodies, how much more important it is that we be supplied with Bible vitamins for our spiritual welfare.

So far as I know, there is no mention made of Bible vitamins. In Gal. 5:22-23 we read of spiritual vitamins, although these two words are not mentioned. The spiritual part of man needs these vitamins of love, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness and temperance. We need all these vitamins to help us to be the kind of persons Christ would have us to be. If we have really been born again, we should have these vitamins already abounding in us.

Vitamin love: we will love Jesus; our brethren; yes, and sinners also—not the things that they do, but their souls. Christ died to save us from our sins.

Vitamin joy: we will have that gladness or happiness in our hearts. There are many ways and degrees of expressing it; but if it abounds in our hearts, it will naturally overflow in some form or another.

Vitamin peace: that state of quietness and contentment. We are reconciled to God, or brought back in harmony with God.

Vitamin long-suffering: we will patiently bear injuries or offenses for a long time; we will not be provoked easily.

Vitamin gentleness: we will be refined in our manners, not rough, but mild and tender—a quiet disposition.

Vitamin goodness: we will possess desirable qualities, such as being useful, virtuous, and pious.

Vitamin faith: that substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. We must believe in God, in the Scriptures, and in the person and work of Christ. It is trusting and being loyal to Him.

Vitamin meekness: the state of not being haughty or resentful; to be mild of temper, unassuming and humble.

Vitamin temperance. Temperance is divided into two parts: (1) the habitual moderation of the appetites; (2) of passions. We should exercise control over our eating, both in quantity of food and kind of food. Certain kinds of food may not agree with us; then we should be careful and choose what agrees with us, and should not over-indulge in the food which tastes so good. This is also true of drink. A Christian will not only be temperate pertaining to alcoholic beverages, but will abstain from them entirely. Passion is a state of mind when powerfully acted upon; a controlling emotion, whether of love, anger, or worldly desires. One can also have a passion for dress, music, etc., as passion is the result of any feeling or emotion completely mastering the mind. We are warned to be temperate in all these things.

Now we have these nine Bible vitamins itemized. We believe that we should study them, and as Christians, we should feast upon these Bible vitamins; for they are very essential in building up and maintaining our spiritual life, and we are in no danger of consuming too many of them.

I AM THE SUNDAY EVENING SERVICE

"I am being assailed on every hand today. My enemies are many. I am being beseiged by mighty forces. I am fighting for my very existance. In many churches I have been thrown out, dismissed, expelled, driven out permanently. In others I am dying a slow and painful death. My worst enemies are those of my own house, the members of the churches. The war has added new foes to my life and service. Who are my enemies? I will name just a few:

.1 Enemy Wanderlust. So many folks today have become religious wanderlusts. A wanderlust is one controlled by "an impulse toward wandering". So many folks today are like the Athenians who "spent their time in nothing else but either to tell, or to hear some new thing". So they go a-wandering here and there, hither and thither, seeking some new voice. I, the Sunday evening service, suffer because of their irregularity or habitual absence.

2. Enemy Oncer. There are many folks today who seem to believe that if they have attended one service on the Lord's Day, the morning, that they have discharged their duty for the day. I have no criticism of those who, because of age or ill health do not feel it best for them to venture out after dark; but many who absent themselves from the evening service have no justifiable reason for their absence. Every absence not justifiable is a vote to drive me out of the church.

3. Enemy Entertainer. Some people have formed the habit of entertaining their guests on Sunday evening. Some have the habit of making their calls on that night. Thus social entertainment is taking its toll from my audience.

4. Enemy Indifference. I guess that this is the worst enemy of all—just plain indifference, just plain carelessness. The words themselves tell the story —indifference and carelessness to Christ and His church.

My Only Hope

My only hope for my continued existance and ministry is in those who are and will be "steadfast, immovable. always abounding in the work of the Lord". The faithfuls! The regulars! The stand-bys! I believe that they will keep me alive until the Lord comes. Praise the Lord for these! Will you be one?"

? ? ? THREE GREAT QUESTIONS

How Would You Answer Them?

1. Did you invite someone to church today?

2. Have you spoken to another about Christ the past week?

3. Do you rob God by holding back the tithe? (Mal. 3:10).

Co-operation

Two donkeys, so the story goes,
Were tethered each to each,
When, lo, they neared two cocks of hay
That seemed within their reach.

Each sought his own; the rope grew taut,
As though each would apply
His utmost strength to take his share
Or know the reason why.

They pulled and scraped and pawed and kicked
As though indeed insane.
But not by such fool stunts could they
One single bite obtain.

Till, wearied, turning face to face,
They talked the matter o'er
And mutually agreed that they Would thus behave no more.

At peace, they soon one cock devoured,
And ate the other too.
How good the joint refreshment seemed
None but the donkeys knew.

Ye humans, crude and stubborn willed,
Respect the common tether.
Be wise, confer, agree, co-work
And take your joys together.

Someone said to a young Christian: "Converted! that's all moonshine!"

Said the young Christian: "I thank you for the illustration; the moon borrows its light from the sun; and we borrow ours from the Sun of righteousness."—D. L. Moody.

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

NEW ARRIVALS IN OUR BROTHERHOOD: A third Elias is in the land of the living. He took up his residence with Rev. and Mrs. White in Lynwood, Calif., around May 20. Another "he-man" by the name of Danny Hammers made his arrival very welcome at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Tom Hammers of our Tracy, Calif., church

June is a great month in the lives of the members of the WHITTIER, CALIF., church. It will be known as Loyalty Month and Tithe Month. Special emphasis will be laid on faithfulness in attendance and faithfulness in prayer. Tithing includes not only money, but tires, time, and talent in this special month.

Any church group or family group is welcome to the use of a fine barbecue in the rear yard of Bro. Charles Ashman. This recreation place has been dedicated to the work of the Lord in Christian fellowship for the members of the WHITTIER church.

"Expect to hear great things from Compton under God, they will be accomplished." We are happy to hear that Bro. Ralph Colburn has accepted the pastorate of this home mission church. Let's hear the great things soon! May the Lord richly bless this work.

"Singing through the hymn-book" has been a special feature of the prayer meetings in the church of WAYNESBORO, PA., were R. D. Crees is pastor. This is a good idea for all of us to get better acquainted with our hymnal.

The mid-week prayer meeting in CLEVELAND, O., has grown to the extent that it can no longer be held in the Prayer Room. This Home Mission church is really doing things for the Lord. Let us pray with them that they may soon outgrow the church auditorium.

June 7, six brethren were baptized after the Sunday evening message, reports Dr. J. C. Beal. Now they are in the midst of Daily Vacation Bible School with an enrollment near the 100 mark. It is great to note that the interest in the work in WATERLOO, IA., is growing.

It has been a privilege for the LAVERNE, CALIF., Brethren Church to have the Sheldons in their congregation during this past year. We now understand that they will be returning to the East soon to make preparations for their return to the field.

Bro. Paul Bauman has been acting as "Professor Quiz" on the new Christian Endeavor Hour, which comes over station KPAS, Pasadena, every Saturday evening, 7:15-7:45 o'clock. In case you would like to listen in—as all good C.E.'rs should—turn in on your dial to 1110 Saturday night.

Bro. H. O. Mayer and family are now in JUNIATA, PA., where Bro. Mayer is serving during the summer months. At a recent service 30 members stepped out and made decisions of dedication. Bro. Mayer was told afterward that it was "the first thing of that kind that has ever taken place in the history of the church." Bro. Mayer is in a difficult field, but, as he says, "Our God Whom we serve is able."

$3245.76 is a cause for rejoicing! It is not only the largest offering in the history of the Second Brethren Church of LOS ANGELES, CALIF., but it also represents an increase of $1333.43 over last year. This foreign missionary offering is the largest offering in the history of Brethren foreign missions that has ever been given by any single church with the exception of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif. But the best thing about this offering is not its amount, but rather the fact that there is coming into the fellowship of that church a young couple, who have dedicated their lives to the African mission field, and who, the Lord willing, will join the many others who have gone forth to the fields of service, both in the homeland and across the sea.

BRO. ROBERT D. CULVER of Ankenytown, O., recently completed a week of meetings at the First Fundamentals Church, in Bremen, Ind., of which Rev. Irwin Weyhe, a middler in Grace Seminary, is pastor.

The NORTHWESTERN BRETHREN CAMP ASS'N has been busy preparing Clear Lake Camp in the Snoqualmie National Forest for their young people's camps in July. The government has granted them a permanent permit for this beautiful site in pine and fir timber, where there is ice cold spring water, and excellent facilities for boating, fishing, hiking, and many other attractions. Improvements have been made on the camp, which was first opened last year.

DR. PAUL R. BAUMAN has tendered his resignation to the Second Brethren Church of Los Angeles, having accepted a position as full time professor at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. His resignation takes effect as soon as another pastor can be procured, which it is hoped can be arranged by Sept. 1. Bro. Bauman has been teaching Archaeology and Old Testament in the Bible Institute for the past two years.

A Jester once asked a man while he was walking along, "Where is the road to hell?" The man, a little deaf, misunderstood him and answered, "Keep right on the way you are going and you will get there."

Only a few months left to attain our goal of 5,000 subscribers to The Brethren Missionary Herald. Do you know that it would take only about 1,200 new subscribers to accomplish this goal this year? Our actual subscription list now stands at 3,378. If all expirations would be renewed now, these would help considerably towards our goal. Send your new subscription or renewal now.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

PORTIS BRETHREN CHURCH

When one enjoys the reports from other churches probably he should report more often. It has been our pleasure here, during the past year, to enjoy the fellowship and services of a number of the Brethren. Bro. Orville D. Jobson and family were with us and spoke at the church. They were on their way to California. This church always welcomes our foreign missions representatives and raises an offering for their expenses. We were pleased and profited with his visit.

Some weeks after last National Fellowship Conference, Bro. Leo Polman was with us for a two weeks evangelistic meeting. That meeting was reported, we believe, some time since. The results of that meeting are yet felt in our midst. Later, as the Polman family were on their way to the Pacific coast, they stopped off with us over the week end. The music, messages and fellowship were enjoyed very much.

During the week of May 24-30 Bro. Herman A Hoyt was with us in Bible Conference. It was a busy time among the farmers, and there were not as many present at the meetings as would like to have come. We had representative audiences each night, and a very pleasant and profitable time together.

This church has been strengthened and encouraged through the ministry of each of those whom the Lord has seen fit to send our way.

In many ways, this our eighth year with this congregation has been one of the most blessed of them all. Souls have been saved, believers strengthened, and the work carried forward. Not least is the fact that the home missions offering was larger, the foreign missions offering larger, and at the end of each quarter all bills paid and money left in the treasury. May the Lord bless each church and each worker. May He lead each into the field where His workers may be most effective for Him.

— Geo. E. Cone, pastor.

NO ATHEISTS IN FOX HOLES

Lieut. Col. Warren J. Clear, who left Corregidor shortly before its fall, in a recent NBC broadcast describing a particular bombing said, "There was a sergeant in the fox hole, and he squeezed to one side to make room for me. Then all hell broke loose and I wasn't surprised to find myself praying. The sergeant was praying too, and almost as loud as I was.

"When the attack was over, I turned to him and said, 'Sergeant, I noticed you were praying.'

" 'Yes, sir, I was,' returned the other. 'There are no atheists in fox holes.' "

MEDITATIONS ON CHRISTIAN LIVING

"O taste and see that Jehovah is good." Ps. 34:8.

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, and peace. Since the Spirit's indwelling can be limited in no way by circumstances other than our own heart condition, it follows also that the expression of His nature, love, and joy, and peace, is likewise independent of circumstances. We always blame discontent and unhappiness on poverty, bad luck, ill health, mistreatment and the conduct of others; when in reality the trouble lies with us. We need the Spirit in our hearts to fill us with the oil of gladness; and when His brightness illuminates our hearts, we will realize that circumstances and rest of spirit can be independent.

Therefore, if we are distressed by jealousy, envy, malice, resentment, unhappiness, or melancholy; if we are restless, unsatisfied, troubled and worried; or, if in any other way we fall short of God's desire for us, which is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness and self control, we can go to our Father "Who hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places in Christ;" and if we pray to him patiently and trustfully, seeking to have our lack met out of the riches of the personality of Christ, He will delight, because He is a gracious and a merciful God, to put into our hearts His love, and His joy, and His peace. And, though circumstances may be against us, they cannot dim the light of His Spirit; but rather, they cause our rest of heart to shine brilliantly, set off by adversity.

Russian Events and Prophecy

By LOUIS S. BAUMAN, D.D.

Russia has come boldly into the picture since Dr. Bauman's "Light On Bible Prophecy" started on its meteoric career, in which many thousands of copies have been published. Following the same line in his treatment of Russia, Dr. Bauman, according to his own words, "sticks to the Word of God, no matter though its prophecies may at the time seem to man impossible of fulfillment." In his new study he answers such questions as: In the prophecy of Ezekiel is Russia the nation in view? If so, who are the allies? Is the great northern conference now in formation? He also treats such subjects as Gog and Magog Prepared for Battle, The Cause of the Conflict, Forces God will Use to Overthrow Gog, Gog's Doom, The Bonepile in Palestine, The End of Communism, etc. A book every Christian should read and ponder today.

The book will soon be off the press, and all orders will be filled immediately. ONE DAY A WEEK FOR GOD

One day a week for God,
To Whom we owe all days;
One holy day to honor Him
In worship, prayer and praise.

One day a week for God—
'Tis needful for your soul
That Christ might touch the wounds of sin
And say to you, "Be whole."

One day a week for God—
Your body, too, needs rest,
Without relief from labour's strain
No man can do his best.

One day a week for God—
The nation needs the day.
The powers of darkness will prevail
Unless the people pray.

One day a week for God—
Only one in seven,
That every other day may be
A little more like heaven.

O, how sweet the name!
Yesterday, today, forever
He always is the same!

HELP ME TO CEASE MY DREAMING

Help me to cease my dreaming
And live today for Thee,
O Savior, Who hath promised
To ever walk with me.

Help me to now be faithful,
Nor let the moments fly
Unheeded, while I'm dreaming
Of things for which I sigh.

Help me, O Lord, to serve Thee
Today, ere fades the light;
So many now are passing
From earth to death's dark night!

Help me to cease my dreaming
And live today for Thee.
I trust Thee with my future;
O, live today through me!

—Angie Garber.

Don't Complain about the wickedness of your neighbors, or of the troubles you have to bear, or of the meanness of Hitler, nor yet of length and dryness of the pastor's sermons UNLESS YOU ARE DOING SOME DEFINITE PRAYING FOR GOD'S BLESSING UPON THEM ALL.

PRESENCE

About, above me, evermore,
Christ's gentle presence broods,
He shares with me my silence,
He fills my solitudes.

His face, His form, I can not see,
No spoken word can hear,
But with some finer sense of soul
Do I perceive Him near.

Oh, how my heart within me burns!
What ecstasy is mine
That He thus vouchsafes unto me
His comradeship divine!

Are not these joys too sweet to last?
May He not soon depart?
"Lo! I am with you—all the days,"
He answereth my heart.

GROW IN GRACE

God's command: "Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ" (2 Pet. 3:18).

How to Grow in Grace

1. Confess Christ with mouth before men every opportunity you get (Matt. 10:32,33; Rom. 10:9).

2. Be baptized and partake regularly of the Lord's supper (Acts 2:38-42; Luke 22:19; I Cor. 11:26).

3. Study the Word daily (I Pet. 2:2; Acts 20:32; Acts 17:11).

4. Pray daily and every time you are tempted (Luke 11:9-13; Lk. 22:40; I Thess. 5:17).

5. Put away out of your life every sin and everything that you have doubts about, and obey every word of Christ (I Jn. 1:7; Rom. 14:23; Jn. 14:23).

6. Seek the society of Christians (Eph. 4:11-16; Acts 2:32-47; Heb. 10:24, 45).

7. Go to work for Christ (Matt. 25:14-29).

8. When you fall into sin, don't be discouraged, but confess it at once, believe it is forgiven and get up and go on (I Jn. 1:8; Phil. 3:13, 14).

Earnestly desiring to grow in grace, according to God's command, I purpose to openly confess Christ, to observe all His words, to study a portion of His Word daily, to pray regularly, to seek the society of His people, and to seek each day some work that I can do for His sake.

Time for the Great  Bell to Ring Again

By Dr. L. S. Bauman, Editor

This picture of the old Liberty Bell is very fitting for this Foreign Missionary Number of The Brethren Missionary Herald, as the publication date falls on July 4. It is the 177th anniversary of the ringing of this old bell that true to its encircling prophecy, rang on that day to "proclaim liberty throughout all the land and unto the inhabitants thereof"—Lev. XXV, 10.

The old bell needs to ring again, even though its side be wounded and its tone be not as sweet as it was 177 years ago. This time—"to proclaim liberty throughout the entire world and unto all the inhabitants thereof." If ever such a proclamation is in order, it is now.

The Editor of this magazine is of old Dunker extraction. He still believes in the doctrine of non-resistance in the true interpretation of that doctrine as it is set forth in the Word of God. He still believes that within the will of God it is for those who have been born again to "let the dead bury their dead" while they "go and preach the kingdom of God" (Luke 9:60). The Editor is not a pacifist. He believes that the Word of God teaches that under certain circumstances war is justifiable. Otherwise, it would never have been written on any king or nation that "he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil" (Rom. 13:4).

However, we are frank to say in the face of the awful outrages being inflicted upon humanity by a monster who is driven by an innate blood-lust, as is Adolf Hitler, that if ever even a born again child could claim justification for taking the sword, that hour is now. Men who bear the sword may be needed in the world of men. Assuredly men who bear the Word of God are needed when we are face to face with death and despair on every hand.

The crown of the old Liberty Bell is wreathed with the Word of God. We offer no apologies for presenting it in our magazine today. One hour of real liberty is worth an eternity of serfdom, especially under a monster such as Adolf Hitler has proven himself to be. Little, if any, better are the Japanese war lords. Moreover, we have no hesitancy in including the name of Josef Stalin. In the Boston Gazette on the 3rd day af October, 1788, there was written an "Appeal" by Mr. Josiah Quincy, Jr., which might well have been written for the present hour:

> "If there was ever a time, this is the hour for Americans to rouse themselves and exert every ability. Their all is at hazard, and the die of fate spins doubtful! In vain do we talk of magnanimity and heroism. In vain do we trace a descent from the worthies of the earth, if we inherit not the spirit of our ancestors. Who is he, who boasteth of his patriotism? Has he vanquished luxury and subdued the worldly pride of his heart? Is he not yet drinking of the poisonous draught and rolling the sweet morsel under his tongue? He, who cannot conquer the little vanity of his heart, and deny the delicacy of a debauched palate, let him lay his hand upon his mouth and his mouth in the dust.
> Now is the time for this people to summon every aid, human and divine; to exhibit every moral virtue and call forth every Christian grace. The wisdom of the serpent, the innocence of the dove, and the intrepidity of the lion, with the blessing of God, will yet save us from the jaws of destruction.
> Oh, my countrymen! What will our children say, when they read the history of these times, should they find we tamely gave away without one noble struggle, the most invaluable of earthly blessings? As they drag the galling chain, will they not execrate us? If we have any respect for things sacred; any regard to the dearest treasures on earth; if we have one tender sentiment for posterity; if we would not be despised by the whole world—let us in the most open, solemn manner, and with determined fortitude, swear we will die, if we cannot live free men!"

Nevertheless, let us all, as the children of God, remember that apart from Jesus Christ there is no freedom for the children of men. It is written: "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36). Once again, we repeat, it is the supreme business of all serious-minded, liberty-loving, peoples of the earth "to know Jesus Christ and to make Him known!"

PRAISE YE THE LORD!

As the copy for this issue of The Brethren Missionary Herald leaves our office for the printer, the Easter Offering has reached the total of $60,060.33, which is far above any previous high water mark. The total for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1941, as it sums up to date is almost $69,000. This is the largest offering by far that we have ever received in the Brethren Church for foreign missions. In fact, we doubt if a similar cash sum was ever received in the history of our denomination within any single year for any cause whatsoever. We are inclined to doubt whether a larger sum was ever received in cash and pledges combined. Assuredly the Lord is looking with favor upon the foreign missionary work of the Brethren Church.

Of course this may be an exceptional year. However, we have had some exceptional expenses, due to a very heavy loss of about $8,000 in the sinking of the steamship Zamzam with six of our missionaries and two children aboard. But, since not a single life was lost, the financial loss can be forgotten. The Lord has abundantly provided for the loss "and then some!" The Board cannot lay its plans for the future basing them upon this income. We wish we might. There may be some lean years ahead, as all the business world knows. We hope that, in the years ahead, we shall never fall below that figure; and, if we don't, we will have to be asking the Lord for more missionaries rather than more money. The fact of the matter is, that just now offerings of flesh and blood are more needed than anything else. No matter what the future may be, our offering this year justifies us in adding materially to our missionary staff. For this we praise the Lord and take courage.

THE EASTER OFFERING REPORT

We are very sorry that we are unable to publish the complete Easter Offering report in this issue as we fully expected to do. Could we have had one more week of time, it could have been done. But as it is, the complete report will now have to be held over for our August issue. We have had two secretaries at work in our office compiling this report. However, nearly $60,000, all coming in within several weeks, to be acknowledged, properly segrated into so many various funds, entered upon our books, with both secretaries new at the job and with the "boss" necessarily absent from the office a part of the time—well, it just didn't get done. However, we are presenting in this issue a report of the total amount given by each individual church, showing the total Easter Offering. The detailed report as to individual or organization gifts will be in our next issue, together with the Treasurer's annual report. May we say here that it would have been possible to have printed the complete report in this issue had those who are in charge of making up the reports in our local churches been a bit more careful in making out the reports. An enormous amount of work is caused every year by numerous errors in reports from local chrches which have to be straightened out by correspondence before we can proceed to tabulate said reports.

WE TAKE! GOD UNDERTAKES! JOBSONS SAFE IN AFRICA!

While missionary statesmen and missionaries themselves in our sister denominations have been telling us of the seeming impossibility of getting missionaries across the dangerous seas in this time of world stress, the Lord has marvelously undertaken for us. We are but an insignificant denomination as far as numbers and money go, and yet the Lord seems to have undertaken for us proportionately in a more wonderful way than any other society we know. Last September, when the government was clamping down on giving passports to American citizens for travel to foreign lands, and when steamship companies were loath to take civilians, especially women, on board, three of our lady missionaries at home on furlough secured passports and returned to Africa. After bombarding the "citadels" for four months of the present year, reservations and passports were secured for Brother and Sister Jobson. A cable just received (June 21) informs us that they are now safe at Matadi, on the lower Congo. We have also received word from the Passport Division in Washington that the passports for Brother and Sister Williams are awaiting them in New York. They have secured passage and will be off probably ere this editorial is in print. We have also received what amounts to practically a promise from the State Department that passports will be given to Brother and Sister Garner E. Hoyt. Reservations likewise have been promised them by a steamship company, and probably ere another thirty days rolls around they too will be out upon the high seas—off for Africa. Brother and Sister Williams and Brother and Sister Hoyt are new missionaries. Thus the Lord Who gave us the funds is also providing the way for these new recruits to the work. Verily God has answered prayer. Keep on praying for the early return of the Sickels, the Sheldons, Miss Snyder, and others—others—others. Never forget that "to know Christ and to make Him known" is the supreme business of the Church. In the fulfilling of this mission, we shall be blessed!

A SERMON FROM A STORY!

And this story is not fiction! The pastor of this Church is afflicted with two hobbies. First, from a child he has had a mania for gathering old and rare coins. His collection is rarely seen, inasmuch as he keeps it in a safety deposit box in the bank. Secondly, a more profitable hobby is keeping in memory, or on record, the birthdays of his friends and relatives, and sending them cards on their birthdays. Nor is this a merely formal transaction that he goes through by having his secretary or some other person get the cards, make the selection and the connection, while he does nothing but sign. When he sends out a card, he thinks of the person, and then personally selects a card which is a genuine expression of his regard—a truly personal message. Then he has a few choice verses which he uses in connection with the signature of himself, or of himself and wife. (Parenthetically, he had better say that once in a while, some more familiar friend or relative gets a card that isn't exactly on "expression of regard," inasmuch as the pastor has a "funny bone" which the Lord Himself placed in his "make-up" and which he sometimes uses.)

But, now for the story. Last Sunday morning, a good sister came to the pastor and wanted to know what he meant by the verse he indicated on the birthday card she had just received. Not recalling for the moment just which verse he had placed on her card, the pastor readily assured her that whatever the verse said, it was a real expression of his heart. "Well," she said, "I have been trying to figure out just what you meant by it!" Seeing that she wasn't particularly happy over it he asked her which verse it was. She said it was "John 2:4." Not recalling just what that verse might be, he instantly assured her that that was not one of the verses he uses. He said: "The verse must have been III John 2:4." She said, "No! It was John 2:4!" When he asked what that verse says, she replied: "Woman, what have I to do with thee?" The pastor immediately assured her that there was a mistake—she must have misread the verse—that it was III John 2:4 which he often uses in sending birthday cards to his members, and which reads:

> "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth. For I rejoiced greatly, when the brethren came and testified of the truth that is in thee, even as thou walkest in truth. I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth."

Then the pastor told her to go home and look at that card again. She did. Last Wednesday night she admitted at the prayer meeting that the pastor had not made the fatal error, but that the "III" was rather mixed up with his "flourishes" and that it was overlooked!

One friendship was saved! And that is something! What a gulf between those two verses! How little has the pastor dreamed of the danger to which he has been exposing himself in the use of that passage—and he likes it so much. He wonders if some others have made a similar mistake! He wonders if this may account for several faithful members to which he could truly and sincerely send "III John 2:4" several years ago; but, now—!! Any way, some to whom he could once write "III John 2:4," seem now to say: "Preacher, what have I to do with thee?"

But what really saved this friendship? The fact that this sister followed the advice of her Lord: "If thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother" (Matt. 18:1). How easy it would have been for her to have quit coming to hear the pastor preach, or to have anything more to do with him, because of a seemingly cruel, unkind, and unjustified thrust! And the pastor might never have been "the wiser." How often have such cruel misunderstandings or misinterpretations of words or actions separated otherwise the best of friends. If only we all would make it a rule to go to the one seemingly offending and talk it over, and try to understand, how the clouds might disappear and the sun shine forth gloriouly once more!

A true friend is one of the rarest possessions any man on this earth can have! If you have one, God grant that no evil suspicion or cruel misunderstanding shall cause the loss of the jewel. Anyhow, be assured, that one pastor shall never forget the relation (or, un-relation) of those two passages of Scripture, and will be sure hereafter that his "flourishes" shall not hide the "III."—From the Calendar of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Cal., June 21, 1942.

Premillennialism Or Amillennialism

—WHICH IS SCRIPTURAL? WHICH IS NOT OF GOD?

By WALTER W. STRONG

(Written out of my love and concern for certain ones who have been ensnared by Amillennialism as taught by Satan-inspired professors.—W. W. S.)

What do these two beliefs involve? For the sake of those who may not be sure, it seems well to state at the outset that the Premillennial belief, briefly, is that the Lord Jesus Christ will return and rule the entire earth with His saints for 1,000 years prior to the great white throne judgment, as well as afterward. This is clearly shown in Zech. 14, and Rev. 19-22, as well as in other Scriptures.

While Amillennialism (No-millennium-ism) is the belief, born of "interpreting" these and other Scriptures, that there will be no millennium or other period between our Lord's return to the earth and the great white throne judgment, and, consequently, no millennial reign over the earth; but that the eternal state will be ushered in immediately following the Lord's return and said judgment. These beliefs are presented in more detail hereinafter.

This subject is dealt with, in the conviction that the hour is near when it will be of especial importance to know and to be guided by the correct answer as to which of these beliefs is true.

If Amillenialism were only a queer, harmless belief, without any clear Scripture to nullify it, and free from any far-reaching implications, it properly might be disregarded by its opponents, or laughed off on the ground that most of us at one time or another have done some queer thinking. But such a course will not do in this case. The doctrine of Amillennialism is of a character which requires that it be forced and thoroughly examined. If it is as unscriptural as now appears, then it is exceedingly important to establish that fact before it is too late, for the sake, and if possible to the satisfaction, of its adherents, especially because it is in opposition to the final warning in God's Word, in Rev. 22:19.

The foundation Scripture of Premillennialism (though by no means the only clear Scripture supporting it) is Rev. 20, which is so simply, clearly and understandably written that even an average eighth grade child readily may understand it.

Typical of the attitude of the Amillennialists toward Rev. 20, the celebrated Amillennialist, Abraham Kuyper, in his treatise on "Chiliasm" (the Greek derived equivalent of Premillenialism) says: "If we take it for granted now, that these 1,000 years are to be taken literally, that these 1,000 years are still in the future, and that this resurrection was meant to be a bodily resurrection, why then we may say that, at least as far as Rev. 20 is concerned, the question is concerned, the question is settled. Then we must admit that Rev. 20:1-7 is a confession of Chiliasm with all that it contains."

It is now submitted that this, in other words, is to say that, taken as it reads, Rev. 20 is a confession of Premillennialism with all that it contains; for, in quite sufficiently clear terms, Rev. 20 does express exactly those things. Since God has spoken of the 1,000 years in each of six of these seven verses, it would appear past the slightest doubt that He intended to convey the meaning of exactly 1,000 years. One mention of it would be enough; six certainly demand belief; and if such mention of a thing is not to be taken literally, then it would seem that nothing in the Bible must be believed just as it reads.

That the 1,000 years are still future is definitely known from the fact that the resurrection preceding them has not yet taken place; and that the resurrection will be a bodily one is certain from the fact that there is no other kind of resurrection of the dead. The word "lived", in v. 4, very clearly indicates that those whose souls John saw were given bodies. But after Kuyper makes the statement above quoted, he, in an Origenesque manner, proceeds to "interpret" Rev. 20 to mean something atsonishingly different from that which its clear words state, incidentally doing away with the 1,000 years between our Lord's return to the earth and the great white throne judgment, in order to make Rev. 20 agree with some equally arbitrary "interpreting" of certain passages in the gospels and elsewhere, which will be referred to later.

What Are Premillennialism and Amillennialism?

Now, in order that we may face our original question intelligently and without misunderstanding, let us recount in detail these opposing beliefs.

Premillennialism may be said to be the belief that, prior to the revealing of the Antichrist (2 Thess. 2:7, 8) and the commencement of the tribulation period (the seventieth "week" of Daniel 9:27), the true church ("that which restrains . . . be made "incorruptible" (I Cor. 15:51-57) and caught away from the earth ("taken out of the way") (2 Thess. 2:7), to meet the Lord in the air ever to be with the Lord (I Thess. 4:13-18); that near the close of the tribulation period the saints will be gathered together from one end of heaven to the other (Matt. 24:31), and will come with the Lord back to the earth, where Jesus, as the Word of God, will destroy the forces of the Antichrist (Rev. 19:11-21). Then, with the devil confined in the bottomless pit for 1,000 years (Rev. 20:1, 2), the judgment of the nations, in preparation for Christ's millennial reign, will take place (Matt. 25:31-46); after which, with the "children of Israel", the Jews (saved through the sight of Christ's pierced hands—Zech. 12, 13; Rom. 11:26) returned to the land that God gave to their fathers (Jer. 30:1-3; Ezek. 37:21. 22), the Lord will set up His Messianic kingdom, the "kingdom of heaven". With the saints assisting Him (Ps. 149; Rev. 5:10; 20:4), our Lord will reign as "King of kings and Lord of lords" over the earth, and cause its affairs to be run in complete accord with His will. At the conclusion of 1,000 years, (which will be but the first 1,000 years of the endless kingdom Christ will have established), and after the devil shall be loosed and shall gather a host to battle, and his adherents are destroyed by fire from heaven before accomplishing their purpose (Rev. 20:7-15), the "rest of the dead" will be raised. Then will occur the great white throne judgment and the final judgment of the unsaved, and also the glorious events of Rev. 21, 22.

Amillennialism (No-millennium-ism) may be described as the belief that Rev. 20 must not be understood as teaching literally all that it states, but that it should be interpreted in the light of other Scriptures (which will be referred to later), which, it is claimed by the Amillennialists, show that there is not to be a millennium between the return of the Lord and the great white throne judgment; but that that judgment is to occur immediately following the Lord's return to the earth. Amillennialists also believe that the Jewish people are not to be restored as a nation and established in the land which God gave to their fathers, but that today the true church of Christ is the true, spiritual Israel; and, as such, is heir to all unfulfilled promises to the children of Israel! Amillennialists also declare their belief that the holy city of Rev. 21 is not an actual place; but are silent when challenged to explain the meaning of the holy city's parts as described in said chapter.

Why Amillennialists Deny a Millennium

The reason given by Amillennialists for their position that Rev. 20 must not be taken literally is, that (as they assert), Matt. 13:24-30, 35-43, Matt. 25:31-46, and John 5:28, 29, all show that there is to be a very different order of events from that which the Premillennialists believe in; and that the final judgment is to take place immediately following Christ's return. Therefore, the Amillennialists say, there will not and cannot be 1,000 years or any other length of reign between Christ's return and the final judgment; and Rev. 20 must be "interpreted" so as to be in accord with the Matt. and John passages last above mentioned, which they proceed to "interpret" also.

Now, let us examine the position of the Amillennialists with regard to Matt. 13:24-30, 35-43. Matt. 25:31-46, and John 5:28,29, all show that there is to be a very different order of events from that which the Premillennialists believe in; and that the final judgment is to take place immediately following Christ's return. Therefore, the Amillennialists say, there will not and cannot be 1000 or any other length of years' reign between Christ's return and the final judgment; and Rev. 20 must be "interpreted" so as to be in accord with the Matt. and John passages last above mentioned, which they proceed to "interpret" also.

Now, let us examine the position of the Amillennialists with regard to Matt. 13:24-30, 36-43. Here we have the parable of the tares, in which it is taught that at the end of this age, the Son of man "shall gather out of His kingdom all things that offend and them which do iniquity and shall cast them into a furnace of fire". The Amillennialists claim that that proceeding is the great white throne judgment; and that, as nothing is here said about Christ's reigning on the earth before it takes place, the belief that there is to be 1,000 years, or other period, when Christ will reign on the earth prior to the final judgment is, they say, in error. They assert that the establishment of the kingdom is to come after that judgment, according to the parable of the tares.

The Parable of the Tares—What Does It Teach?

In considering this parable, it should be remembered that a parable involves an allegorical or figurative method of imparting teaching, and that when a parable concerns future matters, it is not to be taken as the equivalent of direct prophecy.

In this parabel, Jesus said that "the Son of man shall send forth His angels, and they shall gather out of His kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire;" and that "then the righteous shall shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father". But just preceding this, Jesus said: "The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one; the enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world (this age); and the reapers are the angels."

In considering this parable, it should not be overlooked that the utterances of Jesus' as recorded in the gospels are very largely enigmatic, and, therefore, hard, if not impossible, to understand fully—a fact which constitutes one of the great mysteries of the Scriptures. The parables of Matt. 13 contain much that is peculiarly baffling, and Christ chose to explain only parts of two of them. That they all, however, concern Christ's Messianic kingdom (though eminent scholars disagree as to this) appears clear to th writer. That the "kingdom of heaven" is not compos of the saints of the true church, the members of t body of Christ, readily may be seen by turning Matt. 8:11, 12 for its light on the identity of "t children of the kingdom," mentioned in v. 38 of t parable of the tares. Matt. 8:11, 12 reads: "And I s unto you that many shall come from the east and t west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isa and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven. But the chi dren of the kingdom shall be cast into outer dar ness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth

In the original Greek, the identical wording is us for "children of the kingdom" (showing that the sam kind of persons is being referred to) in both Ma 8:12 and Matt. 13:38, some of which, according Matt. 8:12, are to be "cast into outer darkness". B that no members of the body of Christ are to be ca into outer darkness, no Bible student will be likely deny.

Then, who are "the children of the kingdom"? Do it not seem clear that they are the Jews, Christ brethren in the flesh, who will not have accepted Hi by faith; and, therefore, will not be members of H body? It appears evident that in the parable of t tares, we have a view of conditions and events im mediately preceding the establishment of the Me sianic kingdom, incident to which very appropriate will be a separating out and disposal of unworthy an objectionable persons and conditions. These perso who are cast into outer darkness possibly (if n probably) are those obscurely referred to in Ro 9:6: "For they are not all Israel which are of Israel and those referred to in Jude 8:13. That there will b in that day of Israel's triumph, some or many who wi falsely claim to be entitled to share in that triumpl and who will be excluded from so sharing, it appea in order to believe.

The Judgment of the Nations (Matt. 25:31-46).

Regarding the Amillennialists' interpretation Matt. 25:31-46, (which they say is one of the passage that makes it impossible to believe Rev. 20 as it reads they assert that here we have another account of th

Fourth of July

From a Letter of John Adams to his wife.

"I am inclined to believe that this day will be celebrated by generations to come as the great anniversary of the nation. It should be kept as the day of deliverance by solemn thanksgiving to the Almighty. It should be kept with pomp, to the sound of cannon and of bells, with games, with bonfires and illuminations from one end of the continent to the other, forever.

You will think me carried away by my enthusiasm; but no. I take into account, perfectly, the pains, the blood, the treasure we shall have to expend to maintain the declaration, to defend and uphold these States; but through all these shadows I perceive rays of ravishing light and joy. I feel that posterity will rejoice over this event with songs of triumph, even though we should have cause to repent of it, which will not be, I trust in God."

final judgment; and that as this judgment is here again shown to take place immediately following the return of the Lord. This proves they say, that there is not to be a millennial reign by the Lord prior to the final judgment; and therefore, that Rev. 20 must be interpreted and must not be understood as teaching that there is to be such a millennial reign.

To discern the truth concerning this passage, one should note two things particularly:

(1) If the judgment of Matt. 25:31-46 were the final judgment, some mention of the resurrection which is immediately to precede it (see Rev. 20:12-13) surely would have been made; and,

(2) While, at the final judgment, all of the sins of the wicked are to be taken into account (see Rev. 20:12), the basis of the judgment of the "goats" is their failure to minister in six certain ways to Christ's "brethren," the Jews.

The judgment of the nations of Matt. 25:31-46 appears quite clearly to be the same judgment which is referred to in Joel 3:2, of which we read: "I will gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with (execute judgment upon) them there for my people and for my heritage Israel." Note that in Joel 3:14 is the statement: "for the day of the Lord the millennium is near (or is about to begin) in the valley of decision." Very evidentally, it would appear, we have in Matt. 13:46-43, Matt. 25:31-46, and Joel 3, simply different aspects of the judgments which the Lord Jesus Christ will bring upon the world in preparation for the establishment of His Messianic kingdom at the threshold of the day of the Lord—the millennium. Therefore, it would appear that the interpretation of the Amillennialists, which would make the judgment of Matt. 25:31-46 the final judgment, is wholly mistaken and untenable.

Regarding John 5:28, 29

The Amillennialists assert that, as John 5:28, 29 shows the resurrection of all the dead, both saved and unsaved, is to take place in a single "hour", (which they evidently consider to be an hour of 60 minutes); and, therefore, (they say) it cannot be that, as Rev. 20:5 indicates, there are to be 1,000 years between the resurrection of the saints (the first resurrection) and the resurrection of "the rest of the dead". But to see the error of this position, one needs but to refer back to John 5:28 (which is on the same subject), where Jesus is recorded as saying: "The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live." Note that, since the "hour" then was, and already has proved to be almost 2,000 years in length (for the promised resurrections are still future and the "hour" obviously is still continuing), this "hour" cannot be an hour of solar time, but clearly is a period of great length amply long to embrace both resurrections, with 1,000 years between, as stated in Rev. 20. Again the Amillennialist's reasoning is seen to be in grave error.

The above mentioned "interpretations" of the Amillennialists are typical of their attempts to justify their strange position, and form probably the best (or, rather, the least irrational part) of their argument. Why anyone, on such grounds, and in the face of the clear, definite recitals of Rev. 20, should be disposed to try to prove or to believe that the Premillenial belief is not true, it is impossible for this writer to understand, except that they have become convinced that their interpretation of the aforesaid Matthew and John passages is correct, and they must strive by some means to get Rev. 20 and Premillennialism out of their way.

A careful examination of the argument of the Amillennialists discloses the fact that it consists of a more or less cleverly woven tissue of false assumptions and assertions, which they put forward as valid premises, and upon which they proceed blandly to erect their amazing structure of doctrine, declaring out of their false reasoning that the clear words of Rev. 20 (and also of Zech. 14) cannot mean what they say, but teach something entirely different. Lacking so much as a verse of clear Scripture to support them, the Amillennialists have to depend upon involved, circuitous argument, which, though lacking merit, is so phrased in the language of scholars that it easily may confuse, if not mislead, those not well founded in the Scriptures concerned. (And, as is well known, all too few of the saints are given to doing as did the Bereans—seeing from the Scriptures whether the things they are told are so.) Reading their devious presentations makes one wonder if the Amillennialists think in their secret hearts that God poorly expressed Himself, and sorely needs their help to make clear what He desired to say and failed.

The Book of the Revelation is the one book in the Bible which contains at its opening a promise of blessing to those who read and who hear it, (which must infer that the book is susceptible of understanding by all who believe and study it), and at its close carries a warning neither to add to nor take away from its message. If the Amillennialists would but believe and humbly study this enthralling book, and cease spending so much time in talking about what other men have had to say about it, perhaps they soon would realize that their present position is a false and a foolish one.

One would think that all who regard the Bible as God's Word would be very careful, in the light of the aforesaid promise and warning, to accept the Revelation and to believe it, instead of "interpreting" and twisting it into teaching something other than that which it says and would recognize that God must expect such clear declarations as those of Rev. 20 (this third chapter from the end of the Bible) to be accepted as controlling and final on the subjects concerned, including particularly the millennial reign of Christ over the earth.

Was Amillennialism Held by the Early Church?

Amillennialists assert that their view is not new, but that it was held by the leaders of the early Christian church, and that Premillennialism was held to by only a few obscure individuals. However, of this they appear unable to offer any convincing evidence. They are forced by the undeniable record of history to admit that the Premillennial view was held widely during the 100 years from 150 to 250 A.D. And not only this, but the voluble Amillennialists seem to lack any proof that the early church ever adhered to Amillennialism, and their sole reason for alleging that Amillennialism was the prevailing belief of the early church is the entirely negative one that the recognized church leaders of those days did not declare for Premillennialism in their known writings!

The writer submits that, since the early Christians must have believed without mental reservation what the clearly written Scriptures declare, they must have believed that there is going to be a 1,000-year period of righteous rule of the earth by the Lord between the time of His return and the resurrection of the wicked dead, just as Rev. 20 so clearly states. And it is submitted also that since to consult many "recognized church leaders" of today as to what devout Christians now believe would be a rather poor means of learning the full truth, just so the stand of the "recognized church leaders" of olden times should not be taken as binding upon us in deciding what the Bible-believing members of that day believed. Most church leaders of today have little or nothing to say regarding the return of Jesus Christ; but, their silence does not change the fact that He will come, or the belief of a multitude in that fact.

THINK IT OVER

You will never win the world for Christ with your spare cash.

While the opinions of men, in comparison with the declarations of God's Word, are of small importance and should not be cited as being more than that, it is interesting to note as against the negative assertions of the Amillennialists, the following statement by Edward Gibbon, the renowned historian, with respect to the Premillennial belief in the early church:

> "The assurance of a millennium was carefully inculcated by a succession of fathers from Justin Martyr and Irenaeus, who conversed with the immediate disciples of the apostles, down to Lactantius, who was preceptor to the son of Constantine. Though it might not be universally received, it appears to have been the reigning sentiment of the orthodox believers."—P. 547, Vol. I, Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.

On the same subject, Johann Lorenz Von Mosheim, the celebrated author of "The History of the Christian Church", indicates that the opinion prevailed in the early church that Christ is to come and reign 1,000 years before the final judgment, and that this belief had met with no opposition previous to the time of Origen, the commencement of the third century. On Page 185 of Book I of his said work, Mosheim says:

> "That the Savior is to reign 1,000 years among men before the end of the world had been believed by many in the preceding (the 2d) century, without offense to any. In this (the 3d) century the millenarian doctrine fell into disrepute through the influence especially of Origen, who strenuously opposed it, because it contravened some of his opinions."

Writing of Origen, in Page 180 of said work, Mosheim says:

> "He taught that the words in many parts of the Bible convey no meaning at all; and in some places, where he acknowledged there was some meaning in the words, he maintained that under the things there expressed, there was contained a hidden and concealed sense which was much to be preferred to the literal meaning of the words. And this hidden sense it is that he searches after in his commentaries, ingeniously indeed but perversely, and generally to the entire neglect and contempt of the literal meaning."

It would appear from what Mosheim here says, with regard to Origen's method of interpreting Scripture, that the Amillennialists must have adopted a somewhat similar course in their "interpreting" of the Scriptures which stand immovably in the way of their queer doctrine.

The Reason for This Article

As has been clearly shown, Amillennialism depends for its foundation upon the denial of some of the clearest and most easily understood Scripture, and upon the arbitrary and unwarranted interpretation of unclear Scripture. And while Amillennialists generally may be sound with respect to the fundamental doctrines, such as the deity of Christ, of His virgin birth, and of His vicarious atonement, it is submitted that, with Amillennialism tolerated in a church pulpit, the danger constantly will exist of the injection of Amillennial reasoning into their preaching and exposition by Amillennial-minded ministers, with the result of opening the door, even without their desiring it, for their hearers (if not for themselves) to tend to disregard the actual Bible wording; and, by "interpreting" it, to declare that Scripture teaches whatever one may come to desire to say that it teaches.

In Rev. 22:18, 19, God has placed His final warning. That it is of great importance cannot well be doubted. It must be meant for all persons who, God foresaw, would accept the Bible as God's Word; but who, for reasons of their own, would "interpret" Rev. 20 insteal of accepting it as it states, and believing it. Regardless of their sincerity, the warning definitely stands, and God is no respector of persons.

The conviction long has gripped this writer that the Amillennialists, taking from Revelation 20, as they do, the millennial reign of Christ over the earth (to say nothing of their taking from Revelation 21 the holy city as a place—evidently the place which our Lord said He would prepare for His own) and particularly those who teach, and endeavor to persuade others to accept, the Amillennial view, and continue therein, certainly will be among those upon whom the penalty of Revelation 22:19 will fall. This conviction today is deep and moving; so much so that there is nothing that this writer would not gladly do to help those who have espoused this satanically-inspired doctrine to awake to its true nature.

While the said penalty for holding to Amillennialism will, of course, not involve the loss of eternal life (as some have thought it might from the words in the King James version, "book of life," but which the Revised Version shows to be in fact "tree of life") that the penalty will be a grievous one cannot well be doubted. From the text it appears that it will involve the loss of one's otherwise obtainable allotment among the mansions in the unimaginably glorious holy city of God, and of one's share of the fruits of the tree of life. (See Rev. 22:2.)

To spare the great deprivation that otherwise will be as certain to result to them as that God's Word is true, this article has been written with the fervent desire to win Amillennialists from their dangerous and untenable position, as well as to save others from espousing Amillennialism. It is the writer's earnest prayer that it may so result before it is too late.

"How can you reconcile these two admissions: 'I am a Christian' and 'I am not interested in missions'?"

Where There Is No Vision the People Perish

By Elder Claude H. Pearson, San Pedro, Calif.

Perhaps there never was a time in the history of our great commonwealth that the praying and Bible-instructed people of God were any more concerned than they are at the present hour. Notice, I say, the praying and Bible-instructed people of God. Our nation is in dire spiritual need. Everywhere, every hour of the day, we see America's finest youth going off from homes, churches and companions, into military training. This training will be excellent in discipline for them, but along with it they are being prepared to face not only the latest scientific mechanism of destruction-instruments that will send thousands of men into eternity—but they also face the great enemy of man's soul: the world, the flesh, and the devil.

Elder Pearson

The sad thing is that most of these boys do not realize their lack of preparation for such a spiritual foe. They are ignorant of the strength of their enemy and also ignorant of the strength of our great Captain, Who can and would give victory, but they do not know Him. The enemy has gone on ahead and sown tares (false doctrines) all around them. Wild beasts lie in ambush to attack soul and body. Overhead are the crows cawing their noises of no uncertain sound. Buzzards soar over the half-dead and dying carcasses of those fallen and falling, while the woodpeckers peck away and bore holes into their tiny thin-skinned barks already full of doubts.

Oh for men, men surrendered to the Lord, sane and sensible, with a vision and burden for their comrades! What can you and I do for these, our boys, the choicest of American youth?

Our government is supplying chaplains to look after spiritual welfare, but there are so many demands on their time, we feel they are handicapped. The government has to be cautious of saboteurs who would creep in under the garb of helpers, then do a lot of damage; so it is hard for civilians to get much contact with the men, especially in the camps.

What can we do? Personally, we feel that prayer, consecrated correspondence, and fellowship centers (parlors), with as much as possible a home-like atmosphere, is one way to help. We have established such a parlor in San Pedro at Fort MacArthur. It is located just two doors from the hospital, and right outside one of the main entrances to the Military Fortress, and also within the restricted area. Men can come in without getting special passes. Each week we are having new boys come in and use the parlor, talk over their problems, and study the Word. One dear fellow has been in almost every night for prayer and instruction on how to win men for Christ. Others have become established and know what they believe and why they believe it.

Many of our boys have been raised in professedly Christian homes, in church, Sunday School, etc., but they haven't grasped their opportunities while there, and even now are not conscious of their own need and the value of a lost soul. We are making no apology when we ask the Brethren to pray and take real concern about this. We feel that we Brethren ought to concentrate on some definite enterprise or effort for the service men.

One organization has already partially invited us to come under their wing; but after 12 full years in the life of faith, shipwrecked on God, and then too with doctrinal convictions rooted in The Brethren Church, we feel we cannot unite with them.

Bro. Bauman has suggested that we write this article. Beloved, we feel to help train and instruct key men is the most effective method. If we could get one man in every battery, he in turn will reach others. Our Lord spent His time training the few. We need your prayers.

If you have any relatives in military service, we will be glad to write them and send them choice literature; but be sure you send us complete address: battery, or ship division, etc.

Let the Brethren people pray and take this thing seriously. God bless you. Address us: 624 38th Street, San Pedro, Calif.

Here is one soldier's testimony: "I was in deep despair and struggling to find peace of mind and soul. Friends at the Christian Fellowship Center enabled me to find Jesus as the living Christ revealed in the living Word of God."

WHY?

Why should I give for the heathen,
Dying without the true light,
Which brought me out of my darkness
And banished forever my night?

Why should I pray for the heathen,
That He, Who alone is the Way,
Might visit them with His salvation
And turn them from darkness to day?

Why should I go to the heathen
To tell them of His dying love,
To tell them that He Who is risen
Is coming again from above?

He came from the mansions of glory;
He cared for me dead in my sin;
He prayed for me, then went to Calv'ry
Because I was precious to Him!

Is such love not power constraining
To tell of a Savior from sin?
Of all that I am, have, or hope for,
Is there aught that's too precious for him?

Then why should I not tell the story?
Why stay when He bids me to go?
Why hoard my poor perishing treasure,
Or waste it on mere worldly show?

Today is the day of salvation.
Tomorrow the harvest is past.
Oh, be not "ashamed" at His coming!
"Approved" stand before Him at last.

Works, Wine and Wool

By R. I. HUMBRED, Martinsburg, Pa.

God has ordained that harvest follow sowing; that reward be given for labor; that a man reap what he has sown. God is no exception to this rule, for we are His workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works. That is, He redeemed us, expecting us to bring forth "good works".

God also desires wine. It takes grapes to produce wine, so He planted a vineyard. Christ is the vine and we are the branches; and every branch that brings forth fruit, He purges it that it may bring forth more fruit. God is interested in "fruit" and "more fruit".

Christ is also a Shepherd, and is interested in wool; for wool is the profit from sheep raising. There are three aspects to Christ's work as Shepherd.

1. As the good Shepherd, He gives His life for the sheep. He also gives life to the sheep.

2. As the great Shepherd, He arose from the dead and is now interested in perfecting His sheep. That is, He is feeding them and perfecting them so they will become fat and produce a perfect fleece of wool.

3. As the chief Shepherd, He will come again and inspect the wool and reward both the undershepherd and the flock according to the wool produced.

The Good Shepherd

"I am the good Shepherd; the good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. I am come that they might have life" (John 10:10, 11).

The first thing in the wool business is sheep life. You may hang a fleece on a fence post, but a post does not produce wool. It takes sheep life to produce wool. A post may look like a sheep from a distance; and indeed there are many in the church that look like sheep, but are merely posts with the wool of church membership tied about them.

The good Shepherd gives life to the sheep. They now have sheep life, and it is natural for them to produce wool.

The Great Shepherd

"Now the God of peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep —make you perfect in every good work to do his will" (Heb. 13:20, 21).

My father used to buy a carload of sheep in the fall, and turn them in the cornfield to fatten and get them ready for market. And so with the great Shepherd: He is feeding His sheep and leading them on to perfection, so that in the last day He can present them to Himself with out spot or blemish (Eph. 5:27).

There are several things that can prevent a perfect fleece of wool. A sheep may slip through the fence and get into a patch of thorns, and its wool will be torn and ragged. Or it may jump the fence and get into a patch of burs. It is thus with Christ's sheep. Ofttimes they jump the fence and get their wool so full of burs that their life is rendered almost useless.

Another thing to hinder the production of good wool is ticks. Now ticks are lice. It doesn't take much to feed a tick—just a very small portion of blood—but good rich blood is what makes wool; and every drop of blood that is lost means just that much less wool, and hundreds of ticks may render the sheep utterly unprofitable.

It is thus with many of God's sheep. They have ticks. True, they are just little things, but these little things are what drain the pocketbook and make it impossible for the sheep to give $100 to foreign missions.

One of these little enemies is called "the lust of the eye", and another is "the lust of the flesh"; and the little drops that satisfy their cravings so impoverish the sheep that they become unprofitable.

They enter a super-market grocery store. The shelves are lined with bright boxes and cans that appeal to the lust of the eye. A closer examination brings into operation the lust of the flesh, and several packages are purchased. These may contain food; but a more simple diet would be healthier and cost much less. Thus a dime here and a quarter there is spent to please the little ticks that suck the life out of the pocketbook and make the Christian so useless.

Watch the Eats

The great Shepherd has given ample warning of the latter day rage on eating. "As it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man. They did eat, they drank" (Luke 17:27). "And take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting (over-eating)—and so that day came upon you unawares" (Luke 21:34).

If the wool from the Brethren flock will total $50,000 for foreign missions in 1942, no doubt another $500,000 will be used to feed the unnecessary ticks of the food store and tobacco trade.

True, it is only a dime here and a dollar there; but if those little blood suckers could only be caged, they would enable many of Christ's sheep to give $100 to foreign missions this year. The missionary society has anticipated this need and has provided little "louse" catchers; and anyone who has difficulty in holding these little wastes can secure a barrel. Thus when he denies himself the pleasure of fulfilling the lust of the flesh, he can put the profit in the barrel.

The Chief Shepherd

"The elders—I exhort—feed the flock of God—and when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away" (I Pet. 5:4).

The chief Shepherd will reward the undershepherds that are faithful to their trust. Let them preach Christ, warning every man (what not to do), and teaching every man in all wisdom (what to do), that they may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus (Col. 1:28).

And it is up to the sheep to "obey" their shepherds "and submit yourselves: for they watch for your souls, as they that must give an account (sometime the pastors must lead their sheep in for inspection), that they may do it with joy (in seeing their sheep all perfect), and not with grief in seeing their sheep suffer loss): for that is unprofitable for you" (Heb. 13:17). That is, the undershepherd will be given a crown of glory if he is faithful. Also, the sheep will be rewarded according to the amount and condition of their wool. If their wool is poor, it will be unprofitable for them, for they will suffer loss of reward.

Alone at the Beautiful Gate????

Verily it was no idle dream that led James Gribble to look forward to the time when he could stand at the pearly gates and see the redeemed of Africa come sweeping through the gates into glory.

If we are coming up for trial, and could know just what is in the mind of the judge, we would try to make things acceptable to him. Soon we will stand before the great Judge; and if we can only get word from Him as to the standards of His judgments, we will do well to order our lives according.

"And I (the judge himself) say unto you, make to yourselves (for your own profit) friends by means of the mammon of unrighteousness (use your money to lead people to the Lord); that, when it shall fail (when you die), they (the souls you have saved) may receive you into the eternal tabernacles" (Luke 16:9 R.V.) How sad to be "alone at the beautiful gate."

May 10,000 years hence find 10,000 members of the Brethren church rejoicing with unbounded joy because they gave a liberal offering to foreign missions in 1942.

From A Tither..

(Please don't read this if money talk bothers you.)

A Salvation Army officer tells of an old Maori woman who had won the name of "Warrior Brown" by her fighting qualities when in drink or enraged. She was converted and gave her testimony at the open-air meeting, whereupon some foolish person hit her with a potato, a nasty blow. A week before, the cowardly insulter would have needed to have made himself scarce for his trouble; but what a change!

"Warrior" picked up the potato without a word and put it in her pocket. No more was heard of the incident until the harvest festival came around; and then "Warrior" brought a little sack of potatoes, and explained that she had cut up and planted the insulting potato, and was now presenting to the Lord its increase!

Non-Combatant Service for Brethren Churches

Because of the many inquiries coming to us concerning the nature and privilege of non-combatant service under military, we present the definition of noncombatant training and service as declared by Franklin D. Roosevelt, President, Dec. 6, 1940.

The Executive Order reads as follows:—

I. By virtue of authority contained in section 5 (g) of the Selective Service Training and Service Act of 1940, approved September 16, 1940, whereby it is provided:

"Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to require any person to be subject to combatant training and service in the land or naval forces of the United States who, by reason of religious training and belief, is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form. Any such person claiming such exemption from combatant training and service because of such conscientious objections whose claim is sustained by the local board shall, if he is inducted into the land and naval forces under this Act, be assigned to noncombatant service as defined by the President, or shall if he is found to be conscientiously opposed to participation in such noncombatant service, in lieu of such induction, be assigned to work of national importance under civilian direction! . . . "

I hereby declare that the following military service is noncombatant service:

(1) Service in any unit which is unarmed at all times.

(2) Service in the Medical Department wherever performed.

(3) Service in any unit or installation the primary function of which does not require the use of arms in combat, provided the individual's assignment within such unit or installation does not require him to bear arms or to be trained in their use.

I further declare that noncombatant training consists of training in all military subjects except marksmanship, combat firing, target practices, and those subjects relating to the employment of weapons.

II. Persons inducted in the military service under the above act whose claim to exemption from combatant training and service because of conscientious objection has been sustained will receive noncombatant training and be assigned to noncombatant military service as defined in paragraph one.

Pondo Sees the Light

CHAPTER 4

A continued story written for our boys and girls by Miss Mary Emmert, missionary in Africa.

PONDO SEES A WHITE MAN

A distant relative had come to visit Koly from his mother's village. He had brought a chicken along as a present, for of course, there must be an exchange of gifts according to custom. But what made his visit even more welcome was the account he had brought with him. Having been sent on an errand to the government post, he was able to tell many things he had learned about the white man.

"I just saw him once," he told Koly,, "but that was enough. It scared me to see his skin so white. His face was like the palms of your hands, and even the backs of his hands are white. He had reddish hair. It was terrible! It was just like seeing a devil. If I had not been a grown man, I should have run."

For long hours they discussed the strange new man who had come to their country. What he ate, what he wore, and what he had in his house were all front page news for this African reporter. The neighbors had joined the camp-fire and the conversation, each adding his bit.

"They say he doesn't eat white ants, nor locusts, nor caterpillars," said one.

"No, nor rats, nor dried fish, nor snakes," said another.

"Then what does he eat?" Koly asked.

"He will eat fresh fish, chickens and eggs, and certain animals. He has some goats from which he gets milk. Think of a grown man drinking milk!" Koly's cousin added disgustedly. "But as far as taboos are concerned, it seems to me that he has more taboos than we do."

"I hear that he has salt to eat at every meal," a neighbor remarked.

"Is it salt like we make from the ashes of marsh weeds?" asked Nana.

"No, it is very white. He says it comes from the big water that is full of salt."

"I hear that the white man, himself, came here in the big water like a fish."

"Yes," said another, "and when he wants something new, all he has to do, they say, is to speak to a fish in the water, who goes with the message. After a long while the fish comes back with whatever the man sent for."

Pondo, who was already a good sized lad, was a very interested listener to this conversation. He had often heard of the white man, and shuddered at the very thoughts of such a strange being. Suppose he should meet one all by himself some day! What would he ever do?

"How long has it been since the white man came to our country?" one of the men wanted to know.

"We first heard of this one at Babar the year that Pondo was born," Koly said. "Of course, we all know that there are many more of them beyond in the city of Bangui. How long they have been there no one knows."

They all looked speculatively at Pondo. No one could say how old he was, for it was too difficult to keep track of ages after the first two or three summers. Perhaps he had seen seven or eight hunting seasons. At least, the answer was accepted as definite.

"Why did we ever start paying taxes to that man?" asked one of the younger men. "We shall soon be his slaves."

"It started the year that Sambey lost his fight with Babar," was the answer. "Babar was already paying tribute to the white man at Bangui. So when Sambey had to take a chicken to Babar, he was really taking it to the white man, too."

"Yes, but why did Babar ever take presents to the white man in the first place?"

"Because he thought it was wiser to make friends with him, of course. The white man gave Babar many gifts. That is why he is such a great man today. Could he have bought 30 wives without help? And how did he gain the victory over Sambey in our war with him, if it were not because of magic he had received from his new friend?"

"Do you mean that the white man has powerful magic?" ventured Pondo.

"Why, of course, silly!" spoke up his father. "How do you suppose that one stranger would dare to come and live in our midst if he did not have very strong medicine?"

"Medicine! I should say he has!" answered the visitor. "He sent my brother to tell Gangou to give up his fighting and pay tribute before the next moon died, or else he would go and get him. My brother told the white man that he was afraid to take such a message to Gongou, as he was a very bad man and had very powerful medicine."

"What did the white man say to that?"

"Why, he said, 'See! my medicine is very powerful, too!' And can you believe it? He took his teeth right out of his mouth and put them back in again. My brother saw it with his own eyes. Then he gave him a queer flat stone that was holding down his papers on his table. It was a very shiny stone: you could see through just like water. He told him to put it tightly under his arm like this, and to hold it there when he went to see Gangou. 'You go and deliver the message to Gangou,' he said. 'He will not hurt you as long as you keep this charm under your arm pit.'"

"And how did it turn out?"

"Just as the white man said. Gangou never touched my brother, and what is more, he sent a present back to the white man. I tell you he has strong magic!"

They were all very much impressed, and especially Pondo. So, several weeks later, when the news was tapped out on the drum from the neighboring village that the white man had passed by on his way to Sambey's village, he was much excited. He was curious to see such a strange new creature, but he was also terror-stricken before the unknown and the frightful being of whom they had heard so much. He and his little friends with one mad impulse ran for the bush. Most of the women, too, and even many of the men, disappeared from the village as if by magic. Silently they fled in all directions, and were soon swallowed up by the tall grass and bushes which surrounded the village clearing.

An hour later, Pondo and a half dozen of his comrades crept back to a friendly bush where they could see without being seen. Everything looked peaceful, except that several strangers were sitting around one of the houses not far from Sambey's, and there was a carrying chair attached to two long bamboo poles leaning up against the house.

"Let us go and take a look at him," suggested Pondo. Quietly they slipped out of their hiding place. Their bare feet made no noise on the dusty ground. They neard his voice once, and turned and ran back to the edge of the village. Then they gathered new courage and crept back to the doorway, as if attracted by a strong magnet.

After several false starts, the foremost of them became bold enough to peek into the open door; then all took a look. Just then the white government official raised his eyes from his papers, and looked absentmindedly toward the door. All he saw was the white soles of some small feet rapidly disappearing around the hut.

"Oh my mother!" gasped Pondo when he finally stopped running in the vicinity of the stream, where they all sank down exhausted.

"Did you see those long red whiskers?" panted Kombilly, one of Pondo's best friends. "We've seen a devil; that's no man!"

Back in the village, the white man was telling Sambey through an interpreter: "We want to make a road through here. I shall send you an overseer or guard, as we call him, and your people are to make the road as he tells you."

The outside world was gradually penetrating into the farthest and most hidden nooks of Central Africa. Once the road was built, civilization with all its curses and blessings would sweep into the grass land like a prairie fire, producing great havoc and yet preparing the way for the tender grass to spring up.

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

A Daily Vacation Bible School, the first ever held by the First Brethren Church in CLEVELAND, OHIO, opened June 29, for a two-weeks' session. Over sixty children were enrolled, two-thirds of whom came from families outside the church membership, thus affording the best opportunity the church has ever had to reach new homes in the community, with the gospel, Rev. Walter A. Lepp, the pastor, announces.

Bro. Floyd Shiery of DALLAS, TEX., reports that his church had a fine week of meetings when Bro. Herman A. Hoyt of Grace Theological Seminary was with them, and that their Daily Vacation Bible School this year is the biggest ever.

In order that the LAVERNE, CALIF. church might have an opportunity to hear Bro. Clarence Sickel before his return to Argentina, Bro. Donald Carter of La Verne exchanged pulpits with Bro. Sickel, who is pastor of the 2d Brethren Church of Long Beach, on a recent Sunday morning.

Progress in the building of the Grace Brethren Church of HAGERSTOWN, MD., still continues. By the middle of June the bricklayers had finished, the roof was nearing completion, partitions and studding were being placed in the basement, the upstairs windows were being placed, duct work was about completed, and temporary doors were in.

The SAN DIEGO, CALIF. church, of which Bro. Albert Flory is pastor, is rejoicing that when their foreign missionary offering was sent in, it was $77.45 over their goal, and $209.85 more than last year's offering. They state, "We have found that when we are faithful to the Lord in the matter of missions, He is always faithful to us in supplying our needs as a church.

The GLENDALE, CALIF. church, of which Bro. George Richardson is pastor, had the unusual experience of conducting a Sunday evening baptismal service as scheduled, during a blackout. They state that they thus proved the truth of the chorus, "Blackouts make no difference now. . . ."

Bro. Chas W. Mayes of ASHLAND,O., writes that the enrollment of the Daily Vacation Bible School conducted at his church was 257 before the end of the first week. 35 workers are doing all they can to make the school a success.

Bro. C. H. Ashman of WHITTIER, CALIF., writes: "The Lord is abundantly blessing the Whittier church in some ways. Finances are the best they have been in years. Have just completed remodeling and redecorating several Sunday School rooms and portions of the church auditorium, also pastor's study and church office. The grounds around the church are being re-seeded and decorative shrubs planted. We have purchased a set of pulpit chairs, six in number. We have gone as far as permissible in these expenditures according to the allowances of the government. All this has been paid for out of accumulated funds without assuming any debt. "We are fighting against war conditions which tend gradually to decrease our leadership and attendance! It is becoming increasingly difficult to secure and maintain the interest of folks in spiritual things. Surely His coming draweth nigh."

"Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." According to Federal records at Washington, during 1941, there was spent in U. S. for gambling $6,500,000,000; for liquor $6,000,000,000; for bootleg liquor $3,090,000,000; for tobacco $1,500,000,000; for cosmetics $1,000,000,000; for chewing gum $100,000,000; for playing cards $14,000,000; for motion pictures $1,885,000,000. This is a total of over $20,000,000,000 spent annually for luxuries and poison. If we stop and think for just a moment, we will realize that the items mentioned in the above group do not cover the field of pleasure. Think what the grand total must be, and then compare it with the small amount given that the gospel story might be taken to men! Can a people forget God as completely as we have in our land and not be judged for it?

A STARTLING QUESTION

A poor child strayed into a Sunday School and asked imply: "Is this the way to heaven?" The superin- endent was startled. Was the school indeed the "way o heaven?" The artless question struck home to oth superintendent and teachers. What were they ll doing? Whither were they tending? . . . $500,000 BIBLE BURIED IN BRITAIN

The oldest Bible manuscript in the world, the Codex Sinaiticus, bought for 100,000 pounds (about $500,000) by the British Government from Russia in 1934, has been stored away in a little box and buried deep in a cellar of a country house many miles away from London.

To hide a valuable manuscript in this manner is understandable—but the most effective place in which to hide the Word of God is the heart.

HE COMETH!

'Behold, He cometh" Lift your head,
Redemption draweth nigh;
That One Who suffered in your stead,
Ascended now on high.
Who doth your sorrows feel,
Himself will come, God's Holy One
Who died, Who lives, the Father's Son,
All glory to reveal.

Does not this overwhelming thought
Your very sorrow drown—
The richest grace shall yet be brought
When He Who cometh down,
With all His angel-train,
Will all His sleeping ones awake,
And all His waiting ones will take
With them, to share His reign?

STUDIES IN THE EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS—XI

"THE WALK OF THE BELIEVER IN THE REALM OF DOMESTIC RELATIONSHIPS"

Ephesians 6: 1-9

HOMER A. KENT, Grace Theological Seminary

As we approach a study of the last chapter of Ephesians, we should remember that the walk of the believer is still the main matter of consideration. The first three chapters of the book deal with matters of doctrine, laying a suitable foundation for a Christian life. The last three chapters of the book deal with the outward walk of the believer before the world. These latter chapters give a magnificent portrayal of the kind of people the members of the true body of Christ should be. If we would know what God's ideal is for His children while upon earth, we should study these chapters.

We shall confine our present study to 6:1-9. In these verses we have a picture of the kind of people God's children ought to be in their home relationships. God expects the believer to manifest his profession at home. A lot of folks are able to live very pious lives when in the congregation of believers, but seem lacking when it comes to demonstrating the Christian life in the home. A definite test of the reality of a believer's profession may be applied by the following question: Does it reveal itself in the home?

The passage before us divides itself into four sections. Let us briefly consider each of them.

The Conduct of Christian Children (vs. 1-3)

In relation to their parents, they are to exercise obedience. This obedience is to be wrought "in the Lord," which indicates that the apostle has definitely in mind here a Christian home. This obedience of which he speaks is to be considered as a part of the child's service unto the Lord. It is "right." Such obedience has been commanded in the law of God (Ex. 20:12). God has promised a special blessing upon its observance. "Disobedience to parents" is repeatedly named in the Bible as a symptom of wretched evil in human life. And in II Tim. 3:2, such disobedience in increasing measure is shown to be one of the signs of the "last days."

The need today for the apostle's firm exhortation is evident in many homes. Parental authority seems to have vanished. Children do as they please. They are not taught from God's Word what is their proper place in the home. Due respect and reverence for parents is lacking. Children often speak of their parents as "the old man" or "the old woman." These things ought not so to be, and they give expression to a lack of Christian teaching somewhere. Let us keep before us the shining example of the Son of Mary in the home of Nazareth, Who, in relation to His parents, was "subject unto them" (Lk. 2:51). Such subjection is the basis of righteousness and happiness. "When that example is out of date, and not till then, shall we have outgrown the law of Moses and of the Lamb, 'Honour thy father and thy mother'."—(Moule).

The Conduct of Christian Parents (v. 4)

The walk of parents before their children is to be one tempered by love. Only "fathers" are mentioned in the passage, but doubtless mothers are included. "Fathers" are mentioned as being the head of the homes. Then, too, it may be that they only are mentioned because they are more prone to exercise passion in reproving their children than mothers. At any rate, in training and discipline of children it is not right to "provoke" them to wrath. Some parents make their children irritable because of their continual nagging at them and their unreasonable commands. Other parents are continually squelching their children until they are almost afraid to open their mouths. Parents ought to exercise a certain "sweet reasonableness" in handling their children.

Two responsibilities belong to parents in child care. They are to "nurture" them. The word carries with it the idea of chastening when it is needed (Heb. 12:7). Someone has sand that "every thing in the modern home is controlled by switches except the children." Sometimes discipline is sorely neglected. But this is to do injury to the child. It is still written in the Bible. "He that spareth his rod hateth his son: but he that loveth him chaseteneth him betimes" (Prov. 13:24).

They are also to "admonish" them. This carries with it the idea of teaching by words of whatever kind are needed. Surely this includes training in the knowledge of the Scriptures. Parents have no right to neglect to instruct their children in the things of God. This responsibility is splendidly set forth in Deut. 6:6-7.

The Conduct of Christian Servants (vs. 5-8).

The word for "servants" used here really means "slaves." Human slavery was a definite part of the world of New Testament times. The gospel set in operation principles which would eventually abolish this evil institution. But, in the meantime, Christian slaves were to serve their masters faithfully, recognizing that in the fullest sense their service was unto Christ. There is a very precious lesson here. Even in the menial tasks of life it is possible to serve the Lord. No Christian employee has a right to rob his employer of time or effort. In so doing he is being untrue to Christ. The immediate reference of the text is to servants in the home. But it allows of wider application. All Christians who serve others should render their service as unto Christ. A person does not have to be in the pulpit, on the mission field, or teaching a Sunday School class, in order to serve the Lord. He can do it in the humble tasks of daily life.

Finally, The Conduct of Christian Masters (v. 9)

Likewise, masters or employers who are Christians should remember their relation to the Lord. In His sight all men—masters and slaves—are alike. "In Christ Jesus" there is no distinction. Therefore, masters should treat their servants as brethren in the Lord. Love should regulate their demands. Threatenings ought to be absent.

The primary reference in this passage is to masters and servants in the home. But the same attitude may well be employed by employers of men everywhere, especially on the part of Christian employers. If it were, a lot of misery and trouble would be averted in the world.

To summarize, it is clear that the Spirit of God has given us this paragraph of Scripture in order to safeguard the Christian home. If the home is to be what it ought to be, there must be a proper recognition of authority, a careful instruction in the things of the Lord, an unselfish consideration of the rights and privileges of others, and a realization that in all of our work and living in the home we ought to be serving the Lord.

It has been noted that nowhere is family loyalty more universally honored, at least in theory, than in China; that "long-lived Empire, which seems to tend to persist even under such shocks as the present days have brought it. If family loyalty and love so exist in a country that has not known the gospel, how much more should it exist in lands like our own which have so many gospel privileges, including the clear instructions of God's holy Word.

From A Tither . .

(Please don't read this if money talk bothers you.)

The steward of Bible days was expected to decide with full freedom and self initiative for His Lord. By his eager, confidential fellowship with his master, the steward understood and shared his master's mind and was put on his own. He was not under orders. So great was a steward's freedom, and so fully did he initiate in his management, that it is said that Potiphar "left all that he had in Joseph's hand (his steward) and he knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat."

Stewardship is the free, spontaneous, full glowing, faithful administration of all life and all one's possessions for God, the real owner. It becomes practically a partnership.

"Open Doors"---James Gribble

"COME, DEAR LORD JESUS"

By NELLIE MAGERS

"I can but say, Oh, my God, that I give myself wholly and without reserve to Thyself. And the greatest grace I can ask of Thee is, Oh deign to send me to some place where Thy missionaries have never yet been able to go, where those whom I love as I love Thee wander from Thee."—(Coillard).

It was with this desire burning in the heart of James S. Gribble that he became the pioneer missionary to Africa, representing The Brethren Church in French Equatorial Africa in 1921.

James Gribble was born in a farm house near Mechanicsburg, Pa., Feb. 25, 1883, under humble circumstances. Although his years of schooling were few, he possessed ambitions and a great desire for knowledge, with a longing to "do something." His various jobs as farmer, street-car conductor, engineer, and in different factories and offices, were used by God to train him for the many needs of a pioneer in an African mission field.

In 1904 after his conversion he interpreted the "great commission" to mean, "Go, James Gribble, into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Immediately he became interested in Africa, but many obstacles stood before him. However, he was a young man of courage, humility, faith, and prayer; and in 1908 God opened the door to Africa through the Africa Inland Mission. On the same ship sailing from New York was Dr. Florence Newberry of Chicago, who was going to the same mission field. In Aug. 1913 she became his wife, and thus became also one of the first party of missionaries to enter Oubangui-Chari in 1921.

Six years of trials, hardships, financial problems, and sickness, only strengthened Mr. Gribble's faith and deepened his prayer life. It is said of him that "he advanced on his knees." At the end of these six years he and his wife returned to America, following the very severe illness of his wife. In spite of the struggles of these years, they looked forward to future service for God in their chosen field, with hope and faith.

In Jan. 1915 they arrived in Philadelphia, and were immediately called into service in telling the home churches of their African work and the great need of the yet untouched territory of Oubangui-Chari. In these tours of the chrches they became acqainted with Miss Estella Myers, who returned to Africa with them; also Mr. and Mrs. Antoine Rollier, who joined them before they reached the field. They also came in touch with many of those who have gone to their aid since the work was started.

On Oct. 29, 1915, a daughter was born to them in Chicago. This daughter, Marguerite, with her husband Harold Dunning, is now in Africa laboring for those for whom her father gave his life.

After three years of waiting, praying, speaking, and preparing in the homeland, they again set forth for their cherished work in Africa on Jan. 7, 1918, this time to open a new field for The Brethren church. Again many trials and hardships were before them as they undertook this new work. But their trust was in the Lord, in Whom "all things are possible." As they patiently waited for government permission to enter French territory, Mr. Gribble wrote to Dr. Bauman, "We are full of gratitude and praise. In spite of our difficulties we are not cast down, but have been given a godly confidence, knowing that He is working and that government permission is sure. We know not how long we must wait, but we are absolutely certain that we shall not over-stay His time; so we wait on in patience, counting it a privilege, and knowing those who are best at waiting are best at serving also." In this we can see the godly spirit that dominated his life and made his great ministry possible. He was willing to give all for the Lord, and many times great sacrifices were made.

While waiting at Brazzaville he wrote, "We feel like the Israelites outside Jericho; yet one day these walls of hindrance will fall, and we shall enter Oubangui-Chari for Jesus." And fall they did, but slowly. Dr. Gribble says of the year 1920, "It has been a year of illness, of sorrow, of bereavement, of separation, of losses, of misunderstandings, of hindrance, of poverty, of pain, of struggle on the human side." But it had also been a year of God's sustaining power; and on Feb. 2, 1921, permission to enter Oubangui-Chari and locate a station at Bozoum was granted by the government. On Feb. 26 Mr. Gribble entered his chosen field, after almost three years of waiting, to look over the field and select the most suitable spot for their station. Not until Aug. 1 did he enter Bozoum to establish a station, from which point he hoped to branch out to other unreached tribes.

After his years of struggle, suffering, and trials, he was just beginning to see real fruits of his efforts, when on June 4, 1923, the Lord called him to come home. On June 1 he was stricken with black-water fever. During these last days of intense suffering, he spent much of his time in prayer and singing. Dr. Gribble tells us in "Undaunted Hope:" "At 10:55 Monday night, June 4, 1923, he repeated once more the prayer which he had regularly repeated at intervals of five minutes during the preceding 24 hours: "Come, dear Lord Jesus." "And so, as his life had been yielded entirely to the Lord and the saving of lost souls in Africa, his last word, "Jesus," was a fitting benediction to it. The marker which marks his grave has on it, "Rev. 22.20" ("Even so, come, Lord Jesus.")

He was permitted only 12 years of service in Africa, but they were hard, full, years; and through his hu-

Dear Friends,

Such a good mail as we did receive here on Feb. 19! Thanks for your part in making it a real one. Even the Christmas cards always had a welcome note on the back of them. This is the first real mail I have received since my arrival here Dec. 15th. Two months is rather a long time to wait for news, but one has to have patience these days.

Miss Emmert

I am glad that we sent our first telegram from Bathurst, Gambia, for even if we were not out of danger then, yet it relieved your suspense. If you had had to wait six weeks until we had arrived at Matadi, you would have thought, for sure, that we had been sunk. I think they generally delay telegrams, too, so that if there is a hidden meaning, the value of it will be lost by the time it is received.

Only one of all the letters was opened by the censor, and that was an air mail from my brother—which was mailed Dec. 5 and arrived Feb. 19th! I was unable to tell by the post marks whether it actually did come by air mail or not.

How thankful we are to be here safely, for we can see now how necessary it was for us to make our "get-away" when we did, if we wanted to come at all. The workers out here are all too few at best, and just now we are only a little over half our usual number.

The native Christians were very glad to see us. When they heard an account of the trip, they said that God had performed a miracle in bringing us back safely. I think, myself, that He timed everything just right for us. We had the distinct impression, when our motors were quieted for four or five hours one night for repairs, that the Lord was hiding us from danger. You know that the subs locate their prey by means of the vibrations of the engine under the water. We were at that time in the most dangerous part of the journey where a boat had just been sunk a day or two before. A submarine might have passed near us that night and never found us, as we lay silently rocked by the billows.

Our friends show their appreciation of our return by bringing gifts. I have received 7 chickens, 21 eggs, 2 bunches of bananas, 5 pineapples, and a sack of potatoes so far ! ! It might be possible, that mingled with the appreciation, is the childish hope that there is something in our trunks for them. Motives are often mixed. But, at any rate, we love them sincerely, and trust that they return the same feeling to some degree, at least.

We are trying to re-organize the school work somewhat. We are printing a new primer on our multigraph, and are going to request that our more advanced pupils spend the P. M. in practice teaching, so that a larger number will be learning to read. The trouble is, that with no compulsory education laws, it is difficult to keep the village children regular in attendance.

This month we spent ten days at Bassai for our Missionary Conference, and now since our return we have been holding a Native Workers' Conference. This latter has kept us busy every minute—but just the past few days I have had to stay in the house with a bad cold. It is not a very agreeable companion, by the way, to stay in the house with, but perhaps I'm just as disagreeable company as it is!

It has been very warm weather here lately—nearly as bad as you usually connect with Africa, but soon the rain will begin and it will be Spring again! Although it has been the dry season, we have had quite a few fresh vegetables this year, as Miss Tyson succeeded in getting a plot of ground down near a stream about a half mile away from here. It is shaded and easy to keep watered, so we have tomatoes, lettuce, sweet potatoes, onions, cabbage, etc.

Dunnings occupy the only other house on this Station. They have a very sweet baby girl whom we admire very much.

I should not neglect to tell you one of the disappointments awaiting me. One of our evangelists, an old school boy, had quit his work, taken a second wife, and gone into the tailor business. Within a very short time he was taken violently ill and died. It was quite a shock to the rest of them, as this is one of their greatest temptations. I believe, myself, that the Lord meant what He said, when He said, "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." (Lk. 9:62), meaning, of course, when circumstances are under his control. The many mility and faith he put more into them than most of us do in many times that number of years. Although his earthly life was ended, his work had just begun. He had lived long enough to see the station at Bassai well started. Buildings had been erected, roads constructed, and many meetings held, with 37 converts having been baptized. He hoped to leave this station in the capable hands of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Jobson and part of the new missionaries who were on their way to his aid, while he and the rest of the group moved on to start a new work at Yaloki. This he left to the others, as they were just leaving the coast for the interior when he was promoted to glory. He wanted no praise for himself, but in humility praised the Lord as is seen in one of his statements, "It all comes from God and to Him be all the glory."

(As I read again of the life of this noble man of God as told in "Undaunted Hope" by his wife, I have felt more and more unworthy to even attempt to write this mission study. However, I pray that this glimpse of his life will influence every one of you readers to read the above mentioned book; and if you have read it, read it again. May it instill in each of our hearts a greater passion for lost souls and a zeal for missionary work.)

that have been kept faithful, however, and have been making steady progress are a source of joy to us.

The whole support of 14 preaching points has been thrown upon the native church now. It will be a time of testing for them, but the idea is that they will never become strong as long as they rely on us. Please pray for them during this time of sifting that they may indeed become all the stronger for it, and that the Christians may learn to tithe more faithfully in order to keep the work going.

What Have You Done?

—FOR HOME MISSIONS IN CLAYHOLE?

Clayhole, Kentucky
December 29, 1941

Dear W.M.C. Friends:

It has been over one year since we moved into our new house which was made possible by you folks. Two years ago when we accepted the call to come to Clayhole, we did not realize we would ever be permitted to live in such a nice home. When we began working at Clayhole we did not even have a lot on which to build. As time passed and the need arose, our heavenly Father provided.

Rev. Landrum

When we began working here we were living in a rented house at Lost Creek. When it rained we needed umbrellas to keep us dry. Several times our furniture was soaked. We could hardly sleep on the beds. One evening we had some friends in for supper. It happened to be a rainy evening, so we had an abundance of water on the table. After such experiences the new home is appreciated more than ordinarily. Words cannot express our real appreciation for the home you have built for us here at Clayhole.

The house is up to date in almost every respect. We have many of the modern conveniences, such as hot and cold running water, electric lights which are supplied by a delco, and a furnace. Most of the furniture was supplied by various Brethren organizations and individuals. The Landrums are not the only folks at Clayhole who appreciate the house. As the people here see the place, they know that the Brethren people have a real love for the Clayhole people.

If any one would like to have a picture of the church and parsonage, just write me a card and I will be glad to send you one by return mail.

Sincerely yours,

— Sewell S. Landrum.

W.M.C. News

A "newsy" letter comes from the Summit Mills W.M.C. this month. The secretary, Mrs. Robert Keim, reports a membership of 18. We are glad to hear that this small group is faithful. Mrs. Keim states that nearly always they have 100% attendance, with one or two visitors present. The Meyersdale Council and the Summit Mills group chartered a bus, and together attended the District Rally at Uniontown. The Myersdale church is sorry to lose Rev. and Mrs. Lorenz, who have served them so faithfully for a period of 6½ years. Rev. Lorenz has taken up his new duties as chaplain in the U. S. Army.

The North Riverdale W.M.C. makes its first report this month. We are glad to hear from this group and to note that they are on the job 100%. Mrs. Ora Blosser, sec.-treas., states that they have a membership of 18, that they meet in the homes of the members, and that they have found the devotional topics as prepared by the National Council very helpful. She says further, "We praise the Lord for the wonderful way in which he has undertaken for us. Since the beginning, He has so graciously supplied our needs that we have been able to send in a nice offering for each of the national objectives."

We have a report of the W.M.C. District Rally of the churches of the southern half of the Southeast District. The rally was held at Buena Vista, June 12. There were 30 ladies present representing Councils from Roanoke, Hollins, Covington and Buena Vista. Reports revealed the fact that the Councils represented were wide awake, and that there had been special interest in the work during the year. For an annual project the group decided to aid in the support of one of the missionaries' children. The Sheldon baby was chosen. Mrs. Wade K. Jefferson closes her interesting report by saying, "Our prayer is that we may truly grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord, being careful to give Him the honor and glory in everything."

WHY "TRYING TO BE?"

"J. A. Slimmon, afterward a missionary in China, met Lord Overtoun when in great distress of soul. Lord Overtoun asked, 'Are you a Christian?' 'I am trying to be one,' was the reply. Lord Overtoun turned to John 17:4, and read, 'I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do,' and asked, 'What work did He mean?' 'The work of saving sinners.' 'Are you a sinner?' 'Yes.' 'Then if He has finished the work of saving sinners, and you are a sinner, what are you trying to do?' With that simple question the light came."—The Dawn.

Friend, young and old, if the Lord Jesus Christ has finished the work of salvation on the cross of Calvary, what is there to be done by any of us in this day of grace and mercy but to believe it and be saved?—Sel.

A happy Christian one day met an Irish peddler, and said to him, "It's a grand thing to be saved."

"Ay," said the peddler, "it is. But I know something better than that."

"Better than being saved?" asked the other. "What can possibly be better than that?"

"The companionship of the Man Who has saved me," was the reply.

Junior News!

Dear Aunt Mabel:

Greetings from our newly organized Jr. Sisterhood at Mundys Corner.

We held our first meeting in April with seven girls in attendance. It was at this meeting we elected officers which are as follows: pres., Helen Cunningham; v. pres., Beverly White; sec., Joe Ann Kerr, ass't. sec., Joan Krauer, treas., Lucille Schrack, pianist, Patty Ann Griffith; ass't. pianist, Shirley Watson; patroness, Miss Verna Rose.

Our next meeting was held in May, our society joining the Senior S.M.M. and the Senior and Jr. W.M.C. at their mother and daughter banquet. At this meeting three new members, Evelyn Rager, Marie Jenkins and Bonita Rose, joined with our society. These girls all serving on committees. Although we have started rather late to complete all our goals for this year, I am sure we will be ready to start right in when we receive our goals for next year. However, we are endeavoring to fill our dime calendar and complete our Bible reading for this year.

Although we are small in number, we believe that each girl has a deep love for Christ; and we know that if we love Him we will serve Him. We may not be able to do great things, but we can do small things in a great way, the Lord working through us. We covet your prayer in behalf of our new society, that we may be yielded vessels unto honor, sanctified, and meet for the Master's use, and prepared unto every good work (II Tim. 2:21).

In His Name,

Jr. Sisterhood girls from Mundy's Corner.

Bible Study

REVELATION II

In Revelation, chaps. 2 and 3, the apostle John has recorded our Lord's words to seven churches of Asia.

Historically, the letters were real. The churches were real, and the conditions described in the letters really existed.

But the letters are also for "him that hath an ear to hear." Thus, typically, they are for individuals in any church anywhere in order that personal sin might be discerned, and done away with. They are for local churches of any age, that each church might test its spiritual condition in the sight of God.

Taken from the prophetic standpoint, the seven letters discribe seven stages thru which the church of Jesus Christ should pass, from the time of its beginning at Pentecost until the time of its promotion at the rapture.

Briefly, Ephesus represents the apostolic church; Smyrna, the persecuted church. Since Satan could not stop spiritual progress by torture and death, he came inside the church; and Pergamos represents the church in its stage of worldly success, and spiritual decline from the time of Constantine's acceptance of Christianity until Thyatira, when the rule of pope, and priest, and idolatry became supreme.

Sardis, prophetically, is the period of the Reformation when the Lord used Luther to make a window in the wall of the dark ages, thru which the light of His truth could shine. Philadelphia, the church of the open door, is the missionary period in which Carey and others laid down their lives in "brotherly love" for souls and His name's sake.

The Laodicean church looked forward to the present situation of the visible church today. And what a situation! Alive, awake, zealous, content, and rich in everything but the things of God, the church is beggarly poor because Christ is no longer the welcome Lord of pulpit and pew, but the Stranger outside the door. Oh, that we would awaken and realize the value of Him and invite Him back again!

Thus, we have God's outline of church history, and a record of "the things which are."

Notice in each letter the one written to, the apt description of the writer, the "I know thy works," the exhortation and warnings, and the promises and rewards to the overcomer (cf. I Jn. 5:4,4:4).

We should study this portion of our Library Book with diligence, and ask the Lord to show us our own hearts. He wants us to take time to love Him. This is our first work. Let us always put first things first.

Christ the Hope of South America

By DOROTHY MACONAGHY

Is Not Christ Known In South America?

Christ is the hope of South America, just as He is the only hope of all the continents and nations in the world. Some may ask, "But is not South America different from most of the countries to which missionaries are sent? It is not pagan, like Japan and India, nor are its people heathen like those of Africa. They do not bow down to sticks and stones. They have Catholicism; and while that religion has many teachings with which we do not agree, yet they do worship God and the Lord Jesus Christ." But do they, really? In a country like the United States, where the Catholic Church has no more rights and privileges than any other group, many people—yes, even Christian people—are ignorant of her true nature and teachings. They think that because they speak much concerning some of the cardinal truths of the Bible—such as the deity of Christ, His virgin birth, and sacrificial death—that they worship and exalt Him.

Mrs. Maconaghy

However, when one has been for several years in a country whose state religion is Catholicism, and where consequently it has the upper hand, one's eyes are open to its true nature, and one begins to wonder: Is Christ the object of the worship of these people? Do they really know Him as we do? Let me give you a few instances among many in our short time here.

About two months ago, while distributing tracts from house to house, one elderly lady said to us: "You have no right here. You are our enemies." We assured her that we were not enemies; and that we loved and worshipped God, and His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. "Ah, but you are enemies of the virgin. You don't worship Mary. Since she is the mother of God, she is God too, and must be worshipped," was the amazing reply. The fact that we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ made no difference to that woman. The Virgin Mary was for her the all-important one.

The following was the reply of another elderly lady to our invitation that she attend our meetings. "Oh, but I have a virgin here in my house that is nearly a meter (39 inches) long. And we pray to the saints, because you know God is sometimes angry with us, and then we have to pray to the saints so that they will intercede for us." How much did that poor soul know of the Lord Jesus Christ, who "ever liveth to make intercession" for His own?

Turning on the radio the other day, we happened to tune in a mass that was being broadcast from Valparaiso, Chile. During the service the priest offered a prayer, addressing it to Carmen, heavenly queen of Chile, praising her as the one from whom had come all the blessings that Chile enjoys, and attributing to her, salvation and all the virtues which belong to Christ alone. In the minds of the adherents of that religion, who do you suppose is the object of their worship? Not Christ, but Carmen, heavenly queen of Chile! And every country, province, and town, has its special patron saint who is worshipped and considered its protector.

Is it not clear then, that these people need to know Christ, our Hope? To know that He, and He alone, is the Savior from sin and that He is the only worthy object of our worship?

How is Christ the Hope of South America?

The Apostle Paul, writing to the Ephesians, refers to the time when they were without Christ as a time when they had no hope. The people of South America, being without Christ, are likewise without hope. This condition affects their present life as well as their future state. Girls, think what it would mean to you to be deprived of the blessed knowledge that the Lord Jesus is your Savior; that your sins have been atoned for completely by His blood; that you can go rejoicing in the present possession of eternal life, knowing that should you die today or 5 years from today, you will immediately find yourself in the presence of the Lord! Think what it would mean to you to be deprived of your quiet time in communion with the Lord each day, and in quiet meditation of His Word! Yes, think what it would mean to be deprived of all this; and in its stead to be told that while Christ died for sin, you can never in this life have any assurance that your sins are forgiven; that if you go to church faithfully, confess your sins to the priest, and pay sufficient money, and if, after you die, your relatives are faithful in praying for your soul and pay enough, perhaps, after you have spent enough years in purgatory to be cleansed from your sins, you may be admitted into heaven—think what a hopeless existence would be yours! But this is the belief of millions in South America!

The Lord Jesus Christ is their only Hope. The gospel must be proclaimed, so that these people shall have the opportunity of knowing that the Lord Jesus Christ is the sinner's friend, that He paid in full their debt, and that salvation is theirs for the taking. Only thus, freed from the shackles of the Catholic Church and from bondage to sin and fear, with their hope in the Lord alone, will the people of South America be enabled to have hope, not only in this life, but in that which is to come.

How About It?

Has any one ever entered your life who is the worse for having met you?

Why I Am a Christian

By DR. PAUL W. ROOD

Reprinted from the World Wide Temple Evangelist

Tonight my text is found in the book of Romans, the first Chapter and the sixteenth verse, where we read:

"For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."

If Paul, the great apostle to the Gentiles, who sat at the feet of Gamaliel and was one of the outstanding personalities of all history, was not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, there is no high school student or college student or university student or professor in our day that needs to be ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Recently I said to Dr. Nothrup, one of the outstanding philosophers of our day, that I have seen that Paul was one of 10 of the greatest men that ever lived in this world. And he said, "I go one step further (and remember now, that this man is a professor of philosophy). He said, "I would say that the apostle Paul was the greatest personality that ever lived in this world." Now, of course, he as well as I excluded our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ Who was in a class by Himself because He was the God-Man, but it was interesting to me to have this testimony from this outstanding character.

Now, then, Paul is not ashamed of the gospel. And you and I don't need to be ashamed of the gospel, for gospel means "good news" and we don't need to be ashamed of good news. If I should come to your house tomorrow morning at 11:00 o'clock and tell you that you had suddenly fallen heir to a million dollars, you'd consider me the bearer of good tidings, and you'd welcome me into your house. Well, I have better news than that. It's the good news that is defined by Paul in I Cor. 15.

"Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures: . . . he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures."

Now that's the gospel. That's the old news, that's the new news, that's the good news; that's the best news that this world ever heard. And so Paul was not ashamed of the good news.

"For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God. . . ."

I was raised on a farm. At least I spent a couple of years in my childhood days on the farm, and I know something about dynamite. I remember how we used to bore a hole in the root of a stump, and how we put a stick of dynamite into that hole, and we'd light the fuse and run away. There would be an explosion, and that stump would be removed. because there was power in the dynamite. Now the Greek word for power in Rom. 1:16 is really "dynamite"—"For I am not ashamed of the good news, for it is the 'dynamite' of God unto salvation."

Now the biggest word in the language is the word "salvation". It is the all-inclusive word. It takes in the past. the present, and the future. When you came to Christ, you were saved from the guilt of sin, and now as you trust in Christ you are being saved from the power of sin. And when you see Jesus as He is, you will be saved from the very presence of sin. It is all included in this wonderful salvation.

"For I am not ashamed of the good news of Christ: for it is the dynamite of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

There you have the simple condition of salvation All you need to do to be saved is to come to Christ as a poor, lost, undone sinner, recognizing that you are hell-bound and hell-deserving, and then turn to Him in repentance and faith; and as you accept Him as your personal Savior, the Holy Spirit through the Word of God performs the miracle of regeneration whereby you pass from the realm of death into the realm of life.

Now, I am a Christian. Why am I a Christian? Because

It Is Reasonable

God appeals to the reason of man, and God's appeal is a reasonable one.

"Come now, and let us reason together . . . though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." ". . . present your bodies . . . your reasonable service."

"Give . . . a reason of the hope that is in you."

And so, my friends, Christianity from beginning to end is reasonable.

In order to reason, you have to have a premise. And so let's accept the premise, a fact that we can all agree upon. Here's my premise. Wherever there's effect, there must be a cause. Now I have here a watch Suppose I stand before this intelligent audience and say this watch has come into existence in the following fashion. A piece of gold blew down from Alaska, a piece of steel blew down from northern Minnesota and then some glass came here from Indiana. Some how or other these elements got together and formed this wrist watch that keeps fairly accurate time. Why you'd say, "We ought to send this fellow to . . . I don't know where you send them here in Indiana, but to whatever place you send folks of that sort you'd say, "That's absured, that's illogical, that's nonsensical." Wherever there is an effect, there must be a cause; and wherever there is an intelligent effect, there must be an intelligent cause.

I go in Yosemite National Park—to Mirror Lake in the early morning when the sun is rising, and see all the surrounding mountain peaks reflected in the quiet waters. I go to Bridal Veil Falls in the afternoon, and see the waters rage hither and thither as the veil of the bride in the summer breeze, and all the colors of the rainbow reflected as the sun is setting. I climb the one-and-a-half mile trail to Glacier Point, and from that vantage ground behold the surrounding mountain peaks and the valley below, and I see on every hand evidence of intelligence. I see intelligent results, and I realize that back of this there must be an intelligent cause. And so, as a thinking being, I am compelled to begin where the Bible begins—"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." If you accept that

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

Some people are content to spend a week-end with Jesus, but balk at having Him as a permanent guest!

statement, everything else in connection with Christianity becomes reasonable. It becomes reasonable that God would reveal Himself as God has done through His incarnate word, His only begotten Son; and in His written Word, our Bible.

My friends, it was necessary for God to reveal Himself unto mankind; and so Christ came and said, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father, for I and the Father are one." My friends, Christ was God manifested in the flesh, and He was a God-Man; and He came to deduce the Father, and to make it possible for us to get right with God. He came to provide an atonement so that man could be in right relationship with his Creator. We needed that kind of a revelation. We needed that God should come down in human form, and that's what He did in the person of His only begotten Son.

The Fact of the Bible

You can't deny the existence of this book. Here it is in spite of all the attacks that have been made upon it throughout the ages that have gone by. And here you have it—a library composed of 60 volumes written by 40 human authors and produced in 16 centuries of time; and yet you find that this divine library is characterized by unity from beginning to end. Can you conceive of 40 men getting together today and producing a library of 60 volumes that would be characterized by unity and harmony? It's inconceivable. Well, how could 40 men scattered out in 60 centuries of time write 66 books that would be characterized by harmony? There's only one way to explain it, and that is that one mind controlled the 40 human minds of these writers of these Biblical books and that one mind was the Holy Spirit. "Holy men of God spake as they were moved (borne along) by the Holy Spirit."

I call your attention to fulfilled prophecy. Here are details, predictions made 600 to 800 years before Christ came. Read Ps. 22. Read Is. 53. Then read the record of the crucifixion of Christ in the four Gospels, and note how many of these specific promises are fulfilled on the one day of the crucifixion. My friend, fulfilled prophecy is an argument that cannot be successfully refuted.

I call your attention to the testimony of archeology. Isn't it most remarkable that these things have been hidden in the bowels of the earth for centuries, and now, in an age of skepticism and doubt they have been revealed to the world? I sat through a series of lectures by an archeologist, and in his concluding lecture he said, 'So far, not a thing has been discovered that has refuted a single statement in the Word of God. Everything which has been discovered that has any bearing on the Word of God puts its stamp of approval upon the Bible and its statements." Now that is a most significant statement indeed. My friends, the Bible not only contains the word of God—the Bible is the Word of God.

"For ever, O Lord, Thy Word is settled in heaven."

I call your attention in the second place to

The Fact of Christ

You can't deny the fact of Christ. Every intelligent person in this world, every informed person in this world, recognizes the historicity of Jesus. The minute that you do that, you have to account for Him.

Now I call your attention to these facts concerning Christ. First of all, there is the fact of His sinlessness. He is the only being in human form that ever lived in this world who never had a sinful thought, who never spake a sinful word, who never committed a sinful deed, He could challenge His enemies by saying, "Which of you convinceth me of sin?" and Pilate could say of Him, "I find no fault in this man." God the Father put His stamp of approval upon the 30 years of Christ's life here on earth when at His baptism He said, "This is my beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased." Every motive, every desire, every thought, every word, every deed in the life of Christ was pleasing in the eyes of the heavenly Father.

I call your attention also to His marvelous teaching. Oh, we've had great teachers in this world; but my friends, no one comparable with Christ. He was the incomparable one. He was the greatest Teacher that ever lived, that ever thought. Read, for instance, the great sermon on the mount, recorded in Matt. 5, 6 and 7, and the farewell discourse recorded in Jno. 14, 15 and 16; and, my friends, you will read the two greatest sermons that ever have been preached in the history of mankind.

Christ was not only a sinless Being and the greatest Teacher that ever lived, but Christ was the greatest Miracle-worker of all the ages. He spoke to the water and it blushed and turned into wine. He opened the eyes of the blind and unstopped the ears of the deaf and caused the dumb to speak. He healed the sick. He fed the multitude, He stilled the storm. He raised the dead, and He's the great Miracle-worker of all the ages.

I call your attention to His physical resurrection from the dead, which is one of the best proven facts of all history; and, my friends, Christ conquered sin, death, and the grave.

I call your attention, furthermore, to His influence upon subsequent history. He has influenced every realm of life. If you are going into our libraries to destroy that which has found inspiration in the life and ministry of Christ, you will have to destroy that which is best to the realm of literature. If you are going into the art galleries to destroy that which has found stimulus and inspiration in the life and ministry of Christ, you will have to destroy that which is best in the realm of art. He has influenced every age of life. Wherever Christ is not known, womanhood is degraded and childhood is neglected. Wherever Christ is known and worshipped, there womanhood is exalted and childhood is recognized and cared for. Christ has lifted billions of people from despondency and discouragement and doubt and sin and degradation, and has revolutionized multiplied millions of lives who have been completely turned around by the sanctifying influence of Christ's death upon the cross of Calvary.

I call your attention in the third place to the Fact of Christian Experience

Now this is the day of pragmatism, when everything, is brought into the laboratory to be tested and tried. Well, let's look at this matter of Christian experience. Tonight there are millions of people throughout this world who can stand up and say, "Whereas I was once blind, I now see. My life has been changed, my life has been revolutionized, my sins are forgiven, my heart has been cleansed, I have received peace that passeth understanding and joy that is unspeakable and full of glory because I have learned to know Christ as my personal Savior."

No, you can't deny the fact of Christian experience. It is a fact, and millions can testify to the reality of real experience of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.

It is reasonable to be a Christian. Now the next reason why I am a Christian is

Because of Sin

Sin is a fact. All you need to do to find out that sin is a fact is to read history, to read biography, to read literature. The greatest piece of literature ever produced on the North American continent was the Scarlet Letter, and it was built on the premise that sin is a fact; and that's true of practically all literature. All you need to do to find out that sin is a fact is to read your newspapers and contemporary history. All you need to do to find out that sin is a fact is to go to your insane asylums and your penitentiaries and your hospitals. All you need to do to find out that sin is a fact is to look into your own heart.

"All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God."

"There is none righteous, no, not one."

"The heart is . . . desperately wicked: who can know it?"

Sin is the most appalling fact in the universe. My friends, you hear the hiss of the serpent in the very letter "s" with which the word sin begins. It's sin, and it's sickness, and it's sadness, and it's sorrow. I'm a Christian tonight because sin is a reality.

In the third place I'm a Christian tonight because only from sin. There is no one else in all this world that can solve the sin problem except Jesus Christ. Our Lord Jesus Christ went to Calvary and bore our sins in His own body upon the tree, and suffered, the just for the unjust. He died in my place and in my stead; and my friends, because of His sacrificial atoning death, tonight there's forgiveness and salvation and hope for every person who will turn to him. "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." Oh, won't you turn to Him tonight? Won t you accept Him as your sin-bearer?

Christ Can Save

I am a Christian in the next place because of the

in the Christian life. Why, you know, sometimes people talk about Christianity as if we were inviting them to a funeral when we invite them to accept Christ. We are inviting you to a wedding. "He brought me to His banqueting house, and His banner over me was love." "Come thou with us," said Moses to Hobab, "and we will do thee good." And that's what we say to you tonight.

What would Hobab have received because of Moses? First of all, he would receive the blessing of manna, fresh manna every day. Godliness is profitable both for this life and for the life to come. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

What else did Hobab receive? Why, he received the blessing of guidance by the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night. Wouldn't you like to have the guidance of the Holy Spirit in your life?

What else did Hobab receive? The blessing of the tabernacle which speaks of fellowship. Wouldn't you like to have fellowship with God, and with the saints of God? You receive the fellowship when you come to Christ.

What else did Hobab receive? The blessing of Canaan; and Canaan, my friends, stands for victory. Thank God you can have victory in all the difficulties and the problems of life if you will come to Christ.

All that I want is in Jesus: He satisfies.
Joy He supplies.
Life without Him would be worthless;
All things in Jesus I find.

The last reason I am a Christian tonight is

Because of Eternity

I am frank to tell you, my friends, that I would be afraid to face death without Christ. I am frank to tell you I would be afraid to put my head on a pillow tonight without knowing that I was a child of God. I am frank to tell you I would be afraid to go into an automobile or into a railroad train or into an aeroplane without knowing that I was saved. I am frank to tell you I would be afraid to face God, I would be afraid to face eternity, without knowing that I was born again. I am frank to tell you that I am a Christian because there is an eternal heaven to gain and an eternal hell to be shunned. I plead with you to recognize the fact that there is an endless eternity, and that a million, billion, trillion years of life you will be somewhere; and I ask you, "Where will you spend eternity?" That's the question

I remember after I had been away from home for three years, I went to the board of my church and said, "I would like to go home to visit my mother and father, and my sisters and brothers." The deacon said,

"You go, pastor; we will take care of the work while you are gone." I will never forget the day when I got off the train at Kalama, Wash., and my little mother was down there at the station to meet me with my oldest sister, Olga; and how we rode up the hillside to the old barn.

The last Sunday came. I preached in the old country schoolhouse. We went home that night and I gathered the family together and opened the Bible at the last two chapters of the book of Revelation and read the two chapters. Then I asked them all to kneel; and I asked God that we might all meet in heaven, that none of us should be missing when the roll is called up yonder. Mother and I were the only two who were Christians at that time. Well, that night I couldn't sleep. By and by I heard footsteps in the room. Someone was sitting on the edge of the bed. I felt a hand on my brow. It was Mother's hand. She said, "Paul, you're leaving tomorrow, and I wanted to talk to you while we could be alone because we will be so rushed tomorrow. Paul, first of all, I want you to make me a promise. I want you

HOW'S THIS FOR A MISSION CHURCH? The First Brethren Church of Peru, Ind., writes: "There were 55 in Prayer and Bible Study last Thursday." We would say that that is better than many of our old established churches could report. Keep it up, Peru!

CHILD EVANGELISM in Southern California reports 650 classes with an enrollment of 22,573 boys and girls. This report further states that of this number there are 7,200 who are not enrolled in any Sunday School. And this can be duplicated in scores of other communities. What are you doing for these young lives?

HAGERSTOWN, MD. The Grace Brethren Church plans its dedicatory service for their new church building, on September 13. Secretary R. to promise me that whatever others may do, that you will tell the story of Jesus and His love, and that you will preach the gospel, the old-fashioned gospel."

"Yes, Mother," I said, "By the grace of God I will be faithful to the Lord and to His gospel, and I will preach the old, old story of Jesus and His love."

Then she said, "There is something I want to tell you besides that. When you are preaching in your pulpit in Chicago, I will be on my knees. I will figure out the difference in time, and all the time you are preaching I will be here pleading the promises of God and praying for you."

Do you think I could feel happy away from God—do you think I could be a modernist—do you think I could drift away from the Lord and from the gospel with a mother like that, with memories like that?

It may be that you had a mother like that too. It may be that your mother is still alive and she is praying for you, or that, if she is on the other side, that she is leaning over the ramparts of glory tonight praying that you may come to Christ.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

LIMESTONE, TENN.

The church at Limestone, Tenn., has recently experienced a period of great spiritual refreshing from the hand of the Lord. A revival meeting was conducted June 2-14 by Rev. Rempel of Flora, Ind. Bro. Rempel and his consecrated wife were a source of real inspiration and spiritual strength to the entire church and community during the two weeks in which they labored among us. The clear and direct way that Bro. Rempel presented the Word of God made it possible for even the small children to understand the plan of salvation as well as other great doctrinal subjects. For this we were indeed thankful.

An added feature of interest and instruction for both children and adults was the object lesson given each evening by use of the flannelboard. Also the excellent music rendered by Bro. Rempel on his accordian was considered a special treat. Sometimes there would be an instrumental quartette. Our evangelist would play the accordian, and Rev. Lewis the violin. They would be accompanied by the piano and organ.

Perhaps mention should be made of a special service June 9. During our evening service a state-wide blackout had to be observed. We sat in physical darkness for 30 minutes, but the spiritual light was very bright in the hearts of those who possess the Savior, Who is the Light of the world. Bro. Rempel played many numbers on his accordian. Many choruses were sung. Testimonies were given and a number of Scripture quotations were recited. So despite the blackout, we had a very edifying service.

Throughout the meeting, the attendance was quite commendable, notwithstanding the short nights and the busy season of the year in the country. There would always be an overflow crowd on Sunday evening. These two weeks were certainly delightful from the standpoint of Christian felloship, music, and the wonderfully clear presentation of the Word.

Rev. and Mrs. Rempel were greatly loved and appreciated by everyone, and we shall always cherish the memory of their days of service among us.

The visible results of these two weeks of evangelistic effort were 10 confessions, two reconsecrations, and three baptisms.

In His name,

—Lelia Arnold, Church Sec'y.

The Minister's Use of English

Writer's note: I am a minister of the gospel. I enjoy listening to other ministers. At various times I have noted certain errors in English, or unwise and ambiguous expressions, used by others.

The following tests are presented, therefore, not as a criticism, but as a help in calling attention to certain poor expressions. I am not signing my name because I make so many errors myself.

THE LORD JESUS CHRIST IS COMING AGAIN!

The God of the ages planned it; our Lord Himself promised it; His Word testifies it; the Holy Spirit sealed it; holy men of old recorded it; the church awaits it; weary souls of earth pray for it; redeemed saints in Paradise long for it; blinded Israel wails for it; the whole creation groans for it; the devil is bitterly conscious of it; a demon world quails at the thought of it; and the modernistic professors sneer at it; yet a thousand signs proclaim it!—L. S. Bauman.

We are not here to play, to dream, to drift;
We have hard work to do and loads to lift;
Shun not the struggle—face it; 'tis God's gift.
Be strong! —Babcock.

OUR COVER PICTURES

The front and back cover of this issue of the Missionary Herald features a photographic report (the universal language) from Brethren Churches in general and Home Missions fields in particular. Photo No. 1 shows our pastor at New Troy, Mich., Rev. Russell Williams, and Mrs. Williams. No. 2 shows a group of Brethren ministers at the Central District Bible conference at Dayton, June 16th-18th. No. 3 shows two little "jewels" from Indiana—one from Peru and one from Fort Wayne. Guess who.

No. 4 is another view of the almost-completed church at North Riverdale, Dayton, which is to be dedicated September 13. Let's all go. No. 5 is a view of the tent meeting held at New Troy in June by the council secretary. No. 6 shows the laying of the cornerstone recently at Hagerstown, Md. Dedication of this new church will be held Sept. 27, and we all want to be there, too.

The adult Bible class at Compton, Calif., is seen in No. 7, the Beginners class at Waterloo, Ia., in No. 8, and a group of Young People at Modesto, Calif., in No. 9. There's a wonderful story in No. 10, a photo of the Marion Goodman family, who represent the "first harvest of Life for Christ" at our growing mission church in Modesto, where Ralph Rambo is pastor. The father and son are both preparing to enter Grace Theological Seminary at Winona Lake this fall, while the daughter will enter Bob Jones college at Cleveland, Tenn.

Delegates at the recent Central conference at Dayton are shown in No. 11, and a group of Beginners at Bellflower in No. 12. The Fremont, O., congregation appears in No. 13, the Young People at Clayhole, Ky., in No. 14, and the interior of the new North Riverdale church, being inspected by visiting Brethren to the Dayton conference, is revealed in No. 15.

The Sunday School cabinet at Winchester, Va., No. 16, completes this pictorial report from our Home Mission Brethren, all of whom are grateful to the entire brotherhood for your prayerful and financial support of their missions.

BEFRIENDING ISRAEL—

In the midst of war, blood and suffering; in the midst of deceit, lying, scheming and treachery; Israel in Europe is finding at last that true Christians are her real friends.

An outstanding incident of this today is the recent letter of Pastor Boegner to the Grand Rabbi of France, in which the pastor wrote of "The pain which we all feel at seeing racial legislation introduced into our country and in observing the innumerable trials and injustices which it imposed on French Jews." This letter and the open opposition voiced by French Christians to anti-Semitic abuses, have made a tremendous impression on European Jews. They are beginning to realize that the true spirit of Christ loves Israel and will befriend her suffering people.

This championing of Israel's cause is not alone in France but also in Holland, Belgium, and America. May this be the awakening of Israel to feel kindly toward the gospel and to receive Christ as their Messiah and Savior before He returns.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" Matt. 25:40.

THE WHALE STORY AGAIN—

Dr. Eugene Geiling, professor of pharmacology at the University of Chicago, a scientist of quite some note, recently declared in an address in Philadelphia that he had crawled through the gullet of a whale and that he had no difficulty at all. "It was a pretty slimy trip," he said, "but there was plenty of room." Of course it is to be understood that the whale in whose gullet he climbed around was dead.

Now to some it seems as though such incidents as this help men and women to believe the Bible and to break down destructive criticism. However, all such criticism is not born of faith but of unbelief. It does not help men to believe in the God of the Bible by making it to appear that the experience of Jonah could have been accomplished under normal conditions. To try to show that many of the miraculous occurrences in the Old as well as the New Testament can be accounted for on a naturalistic basis does not help faith. It does not help men to believe in the God who brought about the resurrection of Jesus Christ to tell them that the great illustration that the Lord gave of the resurrection in the experience of Jonah was only a natural thing, easily accounted for without the working of God.

The God of the Bible is omnipotent. Real faith in Him believes that He can do anything. To try to reduce the incidents and the miracles of the Old and the New Testament to the point to where it does not demand anything in the way of faith in the miraculous working of an almighty God is no contribution to the faith at all.

Dr. Geiling did not spend three days and three nights in a whale's belly. The whale in which he crawled was not alive, nor did it take him on a three days' journey and finally spew him out on a shore hundreds of miles away. There are many things about Jonah's experience that were not accounted for by merely crawling in and out of a dead whale's gullet. The God who saved Jonah from a whale's belly is also able to save those who trust Him from the grip of death: this is the great message for the soul. It satisfies.

WHO REALLY PAYS?—

Our last annual report was most gratifying to the Directors of the Home Missions Council. It revealed that our mission points had reduced their indebtedness on new buildings at a most amazing rate last year. In fact it seemed almost unbelievable in some cases. But there were the facts to prove it. However, it remained to be seen if it was done at the cost of their giving to send the gospel to others. The Thanksgiving Offering was the first test. We waited with interest. Now that the returns of the Thanksgiving Offering have come in we find that our mission points have given the greatest Home Mission offerings in their history. With church buildings to erect or to pay for, and a thousand other things to buy for their own house of worship, yet they are not doing it at the cost of Home Missions. Instead, their gratitude for their blessings is such that they are making greater sacrifices than ever for others.

How different is the spirit of some older congregations who seize upon every excuse imaginable to justify their lack of love and devotion for home and foreign missions. If they re-carpet the church, it comes out of the Home Mission offering; if the church is painted, the Foreign Mission offering pays for it; if the parsonage is done over the Seminary Offering suffers. We have often wondered if some preachers don't feel ashamed down in their hearts of ever having to make excuses for failure of their congregations. We wonder if their manhood doesn't rise up and protest and cause them to jerk off their coats and say, "I have had enough of this kind of thing. I am tired of making excuses. We are going to do our part no matter how hard the work is, nor how great the sacrifices it demands. We are going to stand up and be counted among those that achieve things for God."

"WE BELIEVE IN EVANGELISM"—

We have just read the official organ of a denomination that has had an illustrious past. It was founded in a blaze of evangelism. Its founder was a most powerful and tireless evangelist. But for years that denomination has been floundering around in spiritual defeat. It has been the refuge of every foul and unclean spiritual bird. There has been room in its branches for communism, liberalism, socialism, modernism, worldliness and unbelief. Evangelism has been all but dead within its ranks, naturally. This magazine reported a committee on evangelism. That body made what no doubt to them was a most courageous statement to the effect that they must be "Evangelical." If it had not been that evangelism is practically dead among them such a statement would be laughed at. Imagine a convention of doctors issuing a carefully prepared document stating, "We believe in the practice of medicine." Or a gathering of attorneys resolving, "We believe in the practice of law." When a church people have slipped so far from the heart of the gospel that they make statements like this it is a tragedy. Of course, when the leaders of a people no longer believe that every man outside of Christ is hopelessly depraved and lost, and that the Blood of Christ is a thing that should be avoided in their preaching as an offensive thing, of what value is evangelism anyway?

Evangelism is not just a 'part' of the true church life, it is all of it. What is Home Missions, in every sense of the word, but pure and simple evangelism? What is Foreign Missions, but pure evangelism? What is the purpose of all our publications, but evangelism? What is the real purpose of every Bible Conference but evangelism? When the passion to evangelize others with the gospel ceases to be the heart of every sermon, every Bible lecture, every editorial, every conference, every ministers' meeting, or every seminary class, we are slipping away from the one thing God has given us to do. When the preaching of a sermon and its reception, is the main thought of the preacher; when the purpose of a Bible Conference is merely "to hear or tell some new thing;" when the publishing of a magazine is but to make a good impression; then deadness will soon take hold of all. Instead of holding conferences on evangelism, and writing articles on evangelism, with these things being the beginning and the end of it, the preachers with a real and genuine calling from high Heaven will be practicing evangelism and bringing men to repent of their sins and turn to Christ!

till after National Conference to start using coin collectors for your Thanksgiving offering. It may prove "too little and too late." The real purpose of these collectors is not to displace other giving but to make use of the small change over a longer period of time. Start using them now.

THE REASON WHY THEY CRITICIZE—

Recently an earnest minister was telling us of how hard he had tried to help some discouraged folks in his church. The husband and father had lost all he had in a bad investment, and on top of it the worry had brought him ill health. The home was full of gloom and despair. The pastor had repeatedly called to comfort them. He preached several sermons with them in mind. But each time he got up to preach he noticed that the family was not present. He said, "How can you help folks when they won't give you a chance? And now they are criticizing me and the church and saying that the church has been of little help to them in their trials."

How often the teacher of a class will come to the pastor with the problems of the class and the fear that they are getting away from the influence of the church through the effect of their college studies. The pastor prepares a series of sermons to help the boys in their struggle to retain their faith, but through the entire sermon series neither the teacher nor the class are there. Yet those boys and the teacher keep right on complaining that they get no help from the church in their life problems.

If the critics would only give the faithful preacher and the services of the church a real chance to help them, how much different things would be. Those who are faithful to the church and to all its services, will not likely find cause to criticize the pastor and the church for not being helpful in their time of need.

"IT JUST RUNS AWAY WITH ME"—

The home where we are now being entertained is within a stone's throw of the main line of the New York Central railroad. The way the crack passenger trains roar past is awesome to say the least. To see that great train of a dozen cars, and a huge locomotive, weighing hundreds of thousands of tons go thundering by at ninety miles an hour while the ground shakes and trembles, is a sight indeed. It makes one shudder to think of that engineer, with his small, helpless body of flesh, sitting in that cab in the midst of all that tremendous weight and power hurtling through the air at that awful speed. If a small rod on the drive wheel should come loose, as they often do, and go whipping and tearing through the cab, or strike the ground and overturn the engine, with the result of a rending and tearing of tons of steel, and his poor, helpless body in the midst of it all, what a tragedy.

Talking to a friend of mine, an engineer, about this very thing he said to me, "The fact is, when we open up the throttle to full speed, the train simply runs away with us and we hope and pray that we shall be able to control it and that nothing ever goes wrong."

Then I thought of this old world and its condition. We have the statesmen of every nation trying to control it and save it from an awful wreck. But the world is running away with them today. The powers that are loose in this old world are greater than any man or set of men can control. No human power can slow it down. No human power can stop it. No power known to man can prevent the wreck that it is headed for. Since men have rejected Christ, the Son of God, the Prince of Peace, and have chosen the course of rebellion under Satan's leading, since they have opened up the throttle of sin, selfishness, war and terror, the powers of Hell have been turned loose and the men who have tried to get along without God and run this world without God have a hard day ahead. No doubt many of the world's statesmen would like to call a halt, but they are too late for that. They have sown to the wind and are now about to reap the whirlwind. God pity the souls of men that shall be caught in the wreck when it comes at the close of the age. Let us warn men of the day of reckoning ahead with all our power. We can save some. Let us be at it. "God now commandeth all men, everywhere to repent." There is a reason.

Many Thanks

That's what service men will say when they get those BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD magazines.

The BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD CO. is willing to do its part in sending without cost to the men connected in the Army, the Navy, the Air Corps, and other departments of American military service.

We have just begun sending these magazines to the reading rooms at the request of the men in the service. There are scores of camps and reading rooms that would appreciate this Christian magazine. Some of these camps serve several thousand men. Will you send your gift for this purpose? We would appreciate the name and address of some military official who would welcome this Christian literature and would make it available for the men in the service.

$5.00 will send six copies of THE BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD for one year, for use in the camps or reading rooms. Send your gift to the boys 48 times this year for their spiritual defense!

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

A CHURCH ORCHESTRA comprised of young people of the First Brethren Church, Long Beach, Calif., has been organized under the direction of Brother Sterling D. Smith. Orchestra will play at the evening services of the church and at special occasions. Many Winona Brethren Bible conference attenders will remember Bro. Smith as that wonderful flute player, who favored the conference with so many beautiful flute numbers.

MUNDY'S CORNER, PA. The Pike Brethren Church has called Rev. and Mrs. Henry Rempel as their pastor beginning the later part of July. Rev. Kenneth Ashman the former pastor at this place has accepted a call to the Main Street Brethren Church, Meyersdale, Pa.

HERE IS SOMETHING: Recently the West 10th Street Brethren Church, of Ashland, Ohio, Rev. Charles Mayes, pastor, received $10.25 in war stamps in the church offering plates. Suggestion was made "that any other stamps appearing in the offering will be gladly received. These can either be converted into a war bond in the name of the church corporation, or turned over to some of our creditors as stamps, probably at face value. It honors the government to buy stamps even though the stamps may be turned into the church. The government will not lose and the church will thus gain."

RECORD ATTENDANCE of 177, June 14th in Sunday School at the First Brethren Church, San Diego, Calif. Rev. Albert Flory, pastor reports that Easter Sunday has been the only exception in this record, when over 200 were present. That's great work. And remember—this is one of our baby Home Mission churches! Keep up the good work, San Diegoans!

DR. BAUMAN WRITES: "Now that both Britain and the United States have joined in pacts with Russia for the 'making of a better world after the war',—well, now it is time to go to the press." Which reminds us of the oft question asked us here in the office, "When will Dr. Bauman's book, RUSSIAN EVENTS and BIBLE PROPHECY, be off the press?" Word comes to us from publisher that this timely book will be ready on or about August 15th. The reason for further delay—Dr. Bauman has added more to the book on the German and Japanese events. If you have not yet placed your order for this most timely prophetic book, do it now. Send your order to The Brethren Missionary Herald Co., 3326 South Calhoun Street, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Price of book $1.25.

A BIBLE CLASS is conducted each Monday night in Indianapolis, Indiana, by Rev. Robert Ashman assisted by Verne Stuber. Both of these men drive some 100 miles each Monday night from Peru, Indiana, to meet with a group of Brethren living in this Indiana capitol city. Those knowing of Brethren in this city would do well to drop a line to these Brethren informing them of our people in this city. Or a line to Mrs. R. H. Aeby, 6407 Park Ave., Indianapolis, Indiana.

Across the Nation - - WITH OUR SECRETARY

New Troy Campaign—

This was a tent meeting as was also the revival last year in New Troy. It seemed wise not to use the church building for a good many reasons. For anyone who is acquainted with the conditions of the field in the New Troy community, the changed attitude regarding the work of the church was most apparent. Few people realize what a courageous task Russell Williams and his wife undertook when they first went to New Troy. Many years of pastorless experience had taken their toll in the lives of the few church members that hung on through the years. It had cost heavily in the esteem that the community had had for the church. Now all of this seems to be changed. There is a real high regard for the work of the church and its ministry today. The finer people of the community are now seeing the difference in the message from the pulpit and in the lives of the people which are produced by a real gospel.

In our tent meeting last year, one young man made confession and dedicated his life to the ministry at once. He enrolled in Bob Jones College, January 15th to begin his preparation for the Brethren Ministry. During this last meeting his younger brother accepted Christ and we believe that he too will enter the ministry. If these meetings had no other result than the winning of two such young men, they would have been highly fruitful. Who could forecast the countless souls that may be brought to Christ by two such ministeries? Both have resulted from these meetings.

Brother Fred Taylor and his wife, who have come from our Long Beach Church and are now living in Benton Harbor, Mich., were a great blessing to our meetings. Brother Taylor is a remarkable musician and has had a most unusual conversion. His testimony is being greatly used of the Lord. Many will remember him from the program which he put on at Winona Lake at our last national gathering. He was with us in the meetings at New Troy, several nights and was a great help. His humility and the sweetness of his spirit are a beautiful accompaniment to his wonderful ability as a musician. We hope to have him in constant service among our churches.

There has also come a real change within the church membership. A new spirit of devotion to Christ; a new and growing sense of responsibility in sacrifice and service are very manifest. We believe that there are few groups as small as this who give as much to the Lord's work. And they are happy in the new knowledge that they can do it. The men of the church certainly are fine to give of their time to the work of thec hurch. They gave us wonderful help in handling the tent. In fact they put it up themselves and as expertly as anyone could do it. When we arrived everything was ready, seats, platform, railing, pianos, tract table and all.

It was a pleasure to work once more with the pastor Brother Russell Williams. Patience and fortitude are virtues in action in him. Such a work could never have been possible without such leadership. His infinite patience and sweetness under most trying circumstances were the essential qualities in any minister attempting to save this field for Christ.

We greatly enjoyed the hospitality of the people and especially our home with the pastor and his wife. Today there is confidence, unity and vision in the hearts of these people. God bless them all.

New Group in Benton Harbor—

For several months, Brother Williams has been driving from New Troy to Benton Harbor to hold a Bible Class in the home of a Brethren family in that city. Already a nice group of Brethren has been gathered, and they are praying for the blessing of God to the end that soon they may lay the foundation of a new Brethren Church in Michigan.

Central District Fellowship—

It was a real pleasure to meet with the ministers and laymen of this district in their annual Fellowship held this year at Dayton, June 16th to 18th. The addresses were all good and strengthening to faith. Brother Robert Ashman made a very able moderator and all sessions were well ordered and yet without the snap of officiousness that often hurts such meetings. A real program of advance of ten percent in all departments of each church, each month during the coming year was enthusiastically adopted by the delegates. If this program is really in operation this year, it will mean the biggest advance that these churches have ever had. It will mean at least 100% increase over all above last year. We were especially interested in this angle for it means a doubling of the Thanksgiving Offering from each church for Home Missions this fall!

The District W.M.C. unanimously underwrote the erection of a clothing room at Clayhole, Ky. Mrs. Hazel Landrum has been handling the distribution of clothing and has been forced to use the garage for the work. This has been very unsatisfactory and most inconvenient. So we will now see a new and efficient building erected for this needy work, yet this summer. The women of the Central District deserve great credit for this splendid and practical gift for our Kentucky Mission.

The Dayton pastor and people made all of us most welcome and "at home." It will not be hard to get the conference to return to Dayton. We are glad to show some pictures of that gathering.

North Riverdale Going Up Fast—

Last week at Dayton, we had a good opportunity to look over this new building again. Many delegates from the District meeting went out to see it. We were able to take some real good pictures of the building. It is now being finished on the inside. The congregation expect to hold services in it about August 1st. but the structure will not be completed until the first week of September. Dedication has been set for September 13th. This will be a big day for Ohio Brethren, and it will be a grand day for the faithful band at North Riverdale.

Hagerstown Sets Date of Dedication—

Word has just come from Brother Lew Grubb that their new building is being rushed to completion. The plastering is now finished, the windows are placed, the celotex finish is being put on, and the exterior

Righteousness Shall Cover the Earth

By DONALD CARTER, Pastor, La Verne, Calif.

Jesus Christ is coming back! This time He will come as King! How dear to our hearts are those scriptures that foretell the coming of the Smiting Stone, smashing asunder the very foundations of man's corrupt and vicious leadership in a sin-weary world. How wonderful it shall be to know that the rightful King is on the throne, that the holiness of God is vindicated, that all false worship has ceased, that war is ended, that true justice is administered, that the earth is restored to her original fertility, that the nature of wild beasts is changed, that human life is prolonged, that Satan is bound, that all men enjoy spiritual prosperity under the personal reign of our blessed Lord. That day of all days; that day of anticipation; that is the Millennium. Righteousness shall cover the earth!

But what of the church, the bride of Christ during this wonderful period, what shall be her part in this great manifestation of God? The church is a heavenly people with a heavenly calling whose destiny is an eternity in the blessed presence of God. Yet, thank God, there is a program for the church during this Millenial period. God has granted the church a part in this the grandest age this world shall ever know. It will be a prelude of holy living, true fellowship, and benevelont rulership before she enters that final state of the new heaven and the new earth. What a privilege she shall have in being permitted to have a part in the closing scenes of this present groaning creation when it shall finally be ruled and governed by Him whose right it is to rule.

Certainly our hearts sing as we contemplate those future events, the rapture of the church, the Bema Seat judgment, the Marriage Supper, and finally Heaven itself. Yet there is a stimulating blessing in this time of strife and turmoil in considering the part we shall take in the coming Christocracy when we, aliens now in a world of injustice, unrest, unhappiness, and infidelity, shall share with our Blessed Head in administering a righteous reign upon a sin-weary and war-weary world. When righteousness shall cover the earth under the reign of Jesus Christ, what shall be the place of the believer? Four simple and well known statements of scripture outline the position we shall hold in That Day and constitute a wonderful source of encouragement for today.

"WE SHALL EVER BE WITH THE LORD" (I Thess. 4:17)

This comprehensive statement embraces all of that endless age of eternity when we shall be inseparable from the lover of our souls, and presents a staggering truth concerning the union with Christ that has begun here with our confession of faith in our Lord. Let us hold in abeyance the thought of our relation with Christ during eternity with all the promise it awakens in our minds and fasten our attention to this one aspect: we shall be with Christ when He rules this earth! ! The logic of this position is irrefutable. We shall be with Him and He shall reign on David's Throne. Therefore we shall have some part with Him in relation to this earth. God has not seen fit to give us any detailed information as to just what our position shall be. However, our very union with Christ makes it imperative that certain experiences shall be ours: Christ will have a definite relationship with His earthly people, Israel. We shall share that experience also for we shall be with Him. Christ will have a definite relationship with the Gentile nations. We shall share that experience for we shall be with Him. Christ shall sit on the throne of David. We shall share that experience for we shall be with Him. Christ will administer a benevolent and righteous rule upon the entire earth. We shall share that experience for we shall be with Him. Christ will exert a wonderful power over the redeemed and rejuvinated world of nature. We shall share that experience for we shall be with Him. Let not anyone think that this is a crass lowering of the heavenly position of the church. If God is able to prepare heavenly mansions for His Saints He is able also to magnify His saints during the interval of the Millennial period. Think of it Christian, for the first time in all history we shall see the world from the Throne. The despised and hated believers in the crucified Christ shall begin their eternal life with Him in His glory. We shall be with Him; that is enough.

"WE SHALL BE LIKE HIM" (I. John 3:2)

A second simple statement opens another vast avenue of truth to us. For all eternity we shall be like appointments are being placed. It is remarkable the way the Lord has wrought for this building from the very beginning.

Dedication date has been set for September 27th, with Dr. L. S. Bauman as speaker. Dedication will be preceded by two weeks of meetings, held by the Secretary, and followed by one week of Bible Conference by Dr. Bauman.

Pray for Clayhole Revival—

By the time these notes appear in the magazine the evangelistic campaign at Clayhole will be drawing to its close. This is the first real soul-winning campaign to be held at this point since it was started. A spirit of revival seems to be already kindling there. Here is part of a letter from Brother Landrum, "We have had four decisions for Christ in the last two weeks. Last Sunday many others were under conviction. Next Sunday we plan to baptize 5 or 6. Most of them are adults.

"Last Sunday a mother accepted Christ from back in the hills. Another old lady said, 'This is the first time I was ever in Sunday School.' The attendance at Sunday School last Sunday was 181. The adult class had 35 and my young people's class had 33."

Please remember us daily at the throne of grace that a great outpouring of the Spirit of God shall sweep over those hills and bring a multitude to Christ.

Bus Is Bought for Clayhole—

God has answered prayer once more. For months we have scoured the country for a used school bus, without results. Last Saturday the Lord led Brother Landrum to a place in Dayton where he could find what he needed. A bus was purchased in short order. He drove it home from Dayton, where he had attended District Conference. Needless to say, the people, Brother Landrum, and all of us were delighted. Don't fail to thank the Lord for the answer to our appeal for help.

Him. That likeness shall begin when "in the twinkling of an eye," "at the last trump" we shall be changed and caught up to be with Him. That likeness to Christ shall be ours during the millennial period as well as for all eternity. It is not stated in God's word that the believer shall have to wait until the final state before assuming his glorified body. That marvellous change when we shall come "to the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" (Eph. 4:13) will be ours at the "Rapture" of the church and will certainly be ours then during the millennial period. In That Day we shall stand as a testimony of what God can do with those who put their trust in Him. "It doth not yet appear what we shall be," John says. No, all of our lives fall short of that life lived by Him in the body of His flesh. Many of us now have departed from our high and holy calling to dwell among the flesh-pots of the world. We are not manifesting Christ as He is to the world. Shame on us for our blindness in the face of this marvelous truth. But when He comes back we shall be changed. Our mortality shall give place to immortality, our weakness to strength. Then we shall be like Him, walking as He walks, living as He lives, loving as He loves. We shall be like Him in every particular! ! what a glorious picture, what a contrast to our present condition, what a wonderful prospect. "Even so, come Lord Jesus."

"WE SHALL APPEAR WITH HIM IN GLORY"
(Colossians 3:4)

This third statement reveals another aspect of our future position in Christ Jesus. We are told that when Christ shall appear, that is at His second coming, "we shall appear with Him in glory." This Christian sect of which we are a part, despised as Christ was despised, suffering as He suffered, unloved, unwanted, persecuted, shall in That Day appear with Christ before the world in all her true glory. The meaning of the word here translated "appear" is "to manifest" or "place on display." During the Millennial period our Christ will take us, trophies of His grace, and place us, now glorified, now sinless, now completely Spirit filled, now with bodies that reflect the true image of God, now unfettered by the bonds of time and space, as a living monument before the world to shine for Him and display His glory. We shall be living testimonies of righteousness to the world and through us God will be glorified, Christ will be vindicated, and the Holy Spirit will be personified. Then shall be fulfilled, at least in part the words of Paul: "the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us." (Romans 8:18). Think of the position we shall hold, constant, consistent testimonies of holiness and glory during that great Kingdom age. Surely we may say: "What hath God wrought?" In view of such a future ministry dare we, as ambassadors of the King of Kings, compromise our position one whit? "God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?"

"WE SHALL REIGN WITH HIM"
(II. Timothy 2:12)

During this glorious coming period the scripture tells us that Christ Jesus shall reign with equity and righteousness, that world conditions shall be ideal, that the earth shall yield with such profusion that the plowman shall overtake the reaper, that they shall not hurt nor destroy in all God's holy mountain, that the time for which the whole creation groans and travails shall have come. The golden age shall be here. In this beautiful well ordered world God will have an additional function for His saints, the church. We shall have a part in directing its government. How many Christians have waxed hot with righteous indignation over the foolish wasteful and sinful administration of human government. How often we have wished we could seize the reigns and govern as Christ would govern. This wish has become so strong that it has divided Christendom. Many feel that the church's place is to enter politics, legislate righteousness, pass laws and force unbelievers to obey Christian edicts. This commendable but mistaken ideal has weaned many away from the real work of the church, saving souls and has caused Christians to try of themselves to bring in the Millennium. This ideal has plunged the church unto the great post-millenial error and hindered Christ's true program. But, when Christ returns He will set up that Kingdom by the might of His power. Then, listen to the place of the Christian during that time: "They shall be priests of God and of Christ and shall reign with Him a thousand years." (Rev. 20:6). Kings and priests we shall be. Paul tells us that we shall judge the world. This is the function for which God is now so carefully preparing us. Our faith is tested, our lessons are hard, the temptations are strong. God is now preparing His vice-Regents for their function during Kingdom days. Ours shall be a two-fold administration, Priestly and Kingly. We shall direct both the religious and secular life of the day. We shall put into execution the principles of Christ's righteousness for the everyday living of men. That administration shall be tempered and enriched by the spirit of devotion and worship inspired and directed by us. As His vice regents we may have our localities of service, our functions. Yet these duties shall not separate us from the fellowship of our blessed Lord. Surely, "eye hath not seen nor ear heard neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." Yet God has given us an inkling in these scriptures of what lies ahead. In that day our part in the great plan will be revealed to us.

Beloved, what a blessed anticipation is ours. Here is assurance for the dark days in which we are traveling. Here is courage to stiffen the weakest Christian spine. When we see this old world plunging into its most terrific maelstrom of strife, when Godlessness and unbelief are taking the world captive, when the terrible apostacy of today is snatching away many who we thought were Godly Christians, when our churches are weakened and discouraged with the seemingly hopeless task before them, when preachers are trimming their theology to meet the approval of their fickle hearers, when our own hearts would

Reports from Mission Churches

NEW TROY IS STILL ON THE MAP

We are making this report of the work in New Troy in the hopes that it may be used to show how much every Home Mission dollar means in bringing the gospel to those who would otherwise have nothing but a closed church and empty hearts—with no opportunity to hear of the One Who saves.

We are not making any claims to great accomplishments, but the Lord has been honoring His Word and the consecrated dollars of those who have prayerfully given to Home Missions.

It is not quite four years ago that we stepped into a Sunday School with an attendance of fifteen to twenty-five conducted by teachers who did not know what it meant to be saved. They would work in a tavern until 3:00 then come home and teach their class. The Sunday School enrollment this year for the first three months was eighty-one; for April, eighty-two; for May, ninety; and for June, ninety-five. The teachers know and love the Lord and His Word.

The church had not been taught to give, but to use money making schemes to raise funds. One month during the first year they gave less than five dollars for the work of the church. During the past three months the offerings amounted to $435.00. We are praying that the day may soon dawn when they will be fully able to care for their pastor. We believe that day is now here if each one will recognize his responsibility and privilege. We believe that if each one will put his shoulder to the wheel the joy of accomplishment and the blessing and knowledge of knowing they are doing that which is pleasing to their Lord will overshadow any thought of personal sacrifice or personal glory.

Now to tell some of the high points in the activities of the church during the past few months.

On March 15 a Gospel Team from Grace Seminary visited us. Bro. and Sister Garner Hoyt were on this team and the people here have made it a part of their ministry to remember them in prayer that the Lord may open a way for their soon departure and that He may use them to His glory as they go forth.

Professor Herman Hoyt was with us for a three-day Bible Conference on May 1-3. The people love to drink in the message of life as he ministered to us from the living water.

On May 17th I had the privilege of officiating at a Golden wedding as the bride and bridegroom of fifty years ago re-affirmed their marriage vows. What a blessing it is in a world where the institution of marriage is looked upon lightly—where they marry and are given in marriage—to see a couple true to their vows through fifty years, facing the sunset years together.

We held our daily vacation Bible School on May 25-29. This school is held in the local high school in co-operation with the rural Bible Missions of Michigan. This year there were 188 enrolled in the school with an average attendance of 145.

The Musical Taylors were with us for the evening service on May 31 and bore their testimony in message and song. They also proved a real blessing and help during the tent meeting which opened the following Tuesday evening.

This tent meeting, with Bro. R. Paul Miller as the evangelist, was the climax of the activities of the previous months.

The attendance during the meetings was not as large as we had hoped, unless you count the unseen audience which always gathered on the outside of the tent and heard the gospel message which they would never have heard through the walls of the church.

This is a berry country. Many churches must almost close their doors during the summer months because everyone is out picking berries. The strawberry season was early this year and came during the tent meeting. While this affected our attendance during the week, it stayed up on Sunday, and for this we praise the Lord. One good thing which came during the meeting is that our Sunday School superintendent made a stand in this matter and was faithful during the berry season this year. Now she is as happy as can be over the stand she has taken.

Last fall two little girls confessed Christ as Saviour and were baptized. These girls felt they were not living in fellowship with their Lord and doing his will. During the meetings they stepped out and publicly expressed their desire to have the slate wiped clean that they might make a new stand for Jesus.—"And a little child shall lead them." How often children put their elders to shame.

There were three who publicly confessed Christ as Saviour and Lord for the first time during these meetings. These are all people who have been raised in a church but they came to the place where they felt their need of a living faith rather than a dead religion. They are planning to be baptized and enter the fellowship of the church in the next two weeks.

Bro. Miller and the pastor had the opportunity of dealing personally with a number of people. Some of these are men whose wives have confessed Christ as Saviour and Lord and we are praying that they may soon be claimed as trophies of His grace.

If this meeting has the same effect upon the church that our tent meeting last fall had, the real results lie in the months ahead. Last Sept. Bro. Miller was with us for a tent meeting. The meeting closed with three rededications of life and one first time confession. But the greatest blessings came in the days fain deceive us and lure us down the tinsel pathway to destruction: then we hear that sweet impelling call:

"Fear thou not, for I'll be with thee
I will still thy pilot be;
Never mind the tossing billows,
Take my hand and trust in me."

Then do we recognize our true heritage, a glorified, magnified ministry upon this world, and after that;—Heaven.

"We shall ever be with the Lord"
"We shall be like Him"
"We shall appear with Him in glory"
"We shall also reign with Him."

which followed for the church seemed to take on new life and grow and be blessed more and more every day. We are praying that the same may be true of the meetings which have just closed.

My wife and I enjoyed the fellowship of Bro. Miller in our home and are looking forward to the next time when the Home Mission Secretary visits the Home Mission Pastor in New Troy.

—Russell Williams, pastor.

NEWS FROM WOOSTER

D.V.B.S.

The Church at Wooster has just recently conducted its second and most successful Daily Vacation Bible School. Despite the fact that three other churches in the city were carrying on a D.V.B.S. at the same time ours was in progress, the Lord gave us an enrollment of 150 boys and girls. Our school was the largest by far of any in the city and this has done much to place our work before the people.

There were sixteen different denominations represented in the school but what is more important is the contact the school has given us with many new families which are not attending any church at all. The closing program of our school brought out many parents who expressed their appreciation for a school that did so much for their children. The church was packed and overflowing on that night with people standing on the outside.

Sunday School

Recently we separated our Primary department from the Beginners department and in so doing have had a noticeable increase in attendance in both divisions. The living room and the kitchen of the parsonage have been called into service to house the Primary group. The living room is used for the assembly or opening exercises and then a portable screen divides the room so that two classes are held in the one room while the third class meets in the kitchen. The church has provided a beautiful new linoleum for the living room floor so that the room might be serviceable for both living quarters and Sunday school rooms. We have heard no complaints from the boys and girls who meet in the kitchen even though they do have to smell the savory aroma of the Sunday dinner as it is cooking in the oven!

Finances

This past year the church has witnessed a very definite blessing from the Lord in material things. Over $1,000 has been given for missions and benevolences, and this from a church with an actual membership of 46! We hear much about per capita giving in churches with large mission offerings and we would like to say in fairness to the Wooster people that although they have not made any big noise about what has been given we do not know of any church in the brotherhood that has done better than they have when it comes to comparing numbers if so be there is any advantage in it.

The church has also installed a new heating system, purchased new hymn books, and done much in the way of general repairs on the building.

A Request

As the church attempts to contact the many new prospects that have been given it we would like to ask that our friends hold us before the throne of grace in definite prayer that souls shall be saved in this city. Pray that the Lord will overrule in the stigma attached to meeting in "that house." Our Sunday school is growing and we hope soon to so crowd this building that we will be forced into a new one.

THE GRACE BRETHREN AT FLORA FORGE AHEAD

We extend greetings to all Brethren from The Grace Brethren Church of Flora, Indiana. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ. Thanks be to God that these blessings have also come upon us here in Flora. After a long silence permit us once again to sound a note of praise from this little Home Missions Church. We felt lead during the Spring months to preach a series of messages on the following 3 subjects: Sin, Salvation and Security. In this series we portrayed how sin came into the world, how sin alienated mankind from God, and how God provided a way back through the finished work of Christ on the Cross. Under the general head of salvation we preached on election, calling, faith, regeneration justification adoption and closing the list with a message on assurance. The last two messages of the group were on the security of the believer. This blessed doctrine has been misunderstood by many; however, God's Word is clear, it must stand, and consequently we found by preaching upon this subject, that it brought a great blessing to saint and sinner both. It was on the night when we preached the second sermon on security that 3 adults made their decision definitely for Christ. At the call for public confession of Christ, they stepped forward boldly, and took Christ as personal Savior. Later on we heard of a Christian man, from another church, who heard most of the series, including those on security who went home, and told his wife, that he never could believe in security, "but now," said he, "since I saw him read it right out of the Bible I'm constrained to believe it." Well bless his heart, that's how we ourselves were once convinced.

Summer Bible School

We had the great joy here at Flora, to conduct our third annual Summer Bible School for Children, during the last two weeks of May. The Lord was very gracious in giving us cool weather, and in blessing in every other way so that the school was bigger and better than either of the preceding ones. Let us tabulate a few of the statistical figures of interest regarding this work. The enrollment reached the peak of 174 with an average daily attendance of 137 including staff members. These 174 children came from 19 different churches, and represented some 12 different denominations. The Bible was our Textbook, and every child was taught the plan of salvation by faith in the shed blood of the Lamb of God. Much stress was placed upon memory work, so that a sum total of 375 Bible verses were committed during the two weeks. The Flannel-Board system was used very extensively, and effectively throughout the school. The Spirit of God worked in the hearts of the children and 31 responded to the call of the Savior, "Behold I stand at the door and knock, if any man hear my voice, and open the door I will come in . . . " Words can't describe the joy that comes in seeing the children responding to the Gospel. We are praying that the Good Shepherd will keep these little lambs, for some of them belong to unchristian homes. The school came to a grand close, when on Friday night of the closing day both children and parents gathered for a public service. Most of the children were present, and many brought their parents, so that our little church was filled to capacity. We praise the Lord for the joy and privilege of working with the children of the community for the two short weeks. We felt that we were building a strong Spiritual defense such as America and all other nations need. We thank everyone who had a part in making the School such a success. God's name be praised!

On Sunday May 31st we led 6 of our recent converts into the waters of baptism; all 6 were received into the fellowship of our Church.

Limestone Revival

On Monday, June 1st Mrs. Rempel and I started for Limestone, Tenn., to fellowship with that fine Church in a two weeks' revival. We received a very warm 'Southern' welcome. In fact the hospitality of those dear people was of the finest kind we have ever experienced. The meetings were well attended from the very beginning and throughout. One night the entire State of Tennessee underwent a "blackout" but we held our service and filled the dark half hour with the glorious light of testimony, song and Scripture. The Limestone community is blessed with a large host of young people. Some nights half of our audience of perhaps 140 would consist of children and young people. On the closing Sunday we met with 58 young people in the senior C.E. Most of these are splendid Christian young folks, and about half of these belong to the Limestone Brethren Church. Time and space does not permit to give a detailed report, but may it suffice to say that God wrought miracles in that souls were brought out of death into life in Christ Jesus. (The secretary of the Limestone Church will give a fuller report.)

District Conference

On our way back from Tennessee we stopped at Dayton, Ohio, for the sessions of the Conference of the Central District Fellowship of Brethren Churches. It was a real Feast of spiritual blessings to sit and listen to the several speakers of the conference program. The Lord was consciously near to all, and especially so in the closing service which was given over to the observance of the communion. Brother Barnard was in charge of the blessed service which so wonderfully climaxed the three day conference.

District Camp

On Monday June 22nd we met with 64 other campers at Camp Indisinewa and spent a very profitable week. We had a splendid group of Christian young people present. The week slipped by very rapidly for every day was packed full of spiritual and recreational activities. Again we thank the Lord for His faithfulness for during the week three of the campers gave their lives to the Lord, and on the closing day were baptized by several of our Elders. All went home rejoicing; weary in body, yes, but stronger in spirit, for we were all conscious that we had been with the Lord and in sweet fellowship with His dear Children, in this unique way.

Present Status

On July 3rd our Flora congregation held its quarterly business meeting. Reports from the various organizations were read, and items of business for the future of the Church were transacted. Our people here have supported loyally, and have given liberally. All bills are paid, excepting one small item, and let us further report that the church is 9 months ahead with its monthly installments on our building debt. Two years ago this month, we had barely begun the breaking of the ground for the building. Under the Grace of the Lord an $11,000.00 building was erected. Today our debt on this building is down to $4300.00. The Lord be praised for his love. We thank the Home Missions Council who has greatly helped in making all this possible. We can not tell of all His blessings upon us, but we praise Him that he has both enriched us numerically and spiritually. We began with a membership of 79 and now we have grown to 116. Does it pay to support Home Missions? We believe that it does.

Coming Bible Conference

Thus far you have followed a Mission Pastor in his several duties for a period of 6 weeks. Now a word of the future, and we shall close. The Lord willing, Brother Herman Hoyt of Grace Seminary will come to conduct an 8 day Bible Conference during the latter part of July, 19 to 26. This conference is slated to close with our spring communion to be held on Monday night of July 27th. Any Brethren within driving distance are cordially invited to be present at this sacred service. May we solicit the prayers of all the Brethren in our behalf here at Flora, that God may richly bless the saints, and use them to win sinners into the joy of salvation through Christ.

Sincerely yours in the Blessed Hope,

—Henry Rempel, pastor.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

AN APPRECIATION

It is the intention that the gospel be preached in simplicity and plainness. That was Christ's own method as it was also that of Paul. Whatever their attainments most people want a plain gospel message with illustration from real life and experience. A general sentiment is "Tell me the story simply, as to a little child."

Just such a plain preacher was Bro. Henry Rempel among us here in Tennessee. We want to express our appreciation for his recent two weeks of services here. What a hard worker he is. He seemed to leave no stones unturned in his effort to serve the church and community. His contribution of his musical talent to our music and song services were so splendid the people wanted more. Then his fine way of teaching children by use of the flannelgraph, stories, and illustrations was liked by both children and grown ups. And the messages to the congregation were interesting to the children for it was noticeable how many of them listened through the sermons to the end as they did to their own part of the service.

We believe Grace Seminary and other sources have had a part in fitting Bro. Rempel for an effective Christian service but as had been recently said, "A man's spiritual power is due in no small measure to the influence of a great wife." We were delighted to have Mrs. Rempel among us with her ever readiness and ability to help out anywhere.

Words fail us to fully express our appreciation of these two children of God going about doing good and giving unto the Lord that which costs them something. We believe they would do any Church good. It was a blessed two weeks of more about Jesus and his amazing grace.

THREE ASPECTS OF THE COMMUNION
1 Corinthians 11:23-26

I. It is a Memorial (look back)—"This do in remembrance of Me." (Better than precept.)

II. It is prophetical (looks ahead)—"Till He come." The "blessed hope" of the church.

III. It is Evangelistic—"Ye do proclaim the Lord's death."

1. It bears testimony to the sacrifice of Christ for sinners.
2. It is one of our Master's few commands and the test of love is obedience.

The Wisdom of God as Revealed in the Virgin Birth

By BLAINE SNYDER, pastor, Campbell Brethren Church, Lake Odessa, Mich.

To many in our day of skepticism and modernism the doctrine of the Virgin Birth of Christ has lost its appeal. According to them if we accept the other great teachings about Christ, what difference does it make how he came into the world? Let us cling to the "important" aspects of Christianity and not show so much concern about the less weighty matters! Now, a careful analysis of the situation will generally reveal a startling situation. That situation is simply this: that a man who denies the Virgin Birth of Christ usually uses the denial of this doctrine as a stepping stone from which he proceeds to deny every other great fundamental of the faith. It is not so much a question of denying this miracle as it is a question of the denial of all miracles.

To be sure, the miraculous element of Christianity may in many respects be regarded as a barrier to faith. But the denial of the entire scheme of Christianity on the basis of a few miracles which one does not understand is certainly far from reasonable. We shall turn our attention in this article to one aspect of one of the greatest miracles of all ages, the Virgin Birth of Christ. Within the scope of this article it would be utterly impossible to deal fully with even this part of the problem. But may these few words serve as a stimulus to further study of the doctrine on the part of every reader.

The thing that we are to concern ourselves with in the problem before us is how God's wisdom was revealed through the incarnation of Christ by the Virgin Birth. The question before us takes us back into the history of the children of Israel to the time of Jeremiah the prophet. Every Jew knew that the Messiah of God was to come through the line of the kings. Looking backward we can see the hand of God continually at work electing certain individuals upon whom His blessing would fall and setting aside certain others. We can see this election among the sons of Jacob, Judah being selected (Gen. 49:10); in the placing of David on the throne rather than the other sons of Jesse; the passing of the royal line through Solomon; etc. Thus, from Abraham down God had been working his sovereign will in view of the coming of the Messiah.

We must now turn our attention to the heart of the problem before us. In the days of Jeremiah we find upon the throne of Judah a man of such low degree that God placed a terrible curse upon him and his decendents. The words are recorded in Jer. 22:29-30, "O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord. Thus saith the Lord, Write ye this man childless, a man that shall not prosper in his days: for no man of his seed shall prosper, sitting upon the throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah." Had not God's Messiah been promised through the line of Solomon? Yet here we have Jehovah himself pronouncing a curse on this very line of kings. The problem becomes fully impressed upon us when we realize that either the Messiah had to be born outside the line of the kings or else escape this curse placed upon the line. Neither of these alternatives could be met by man.

We seek for the solution of this problem to the one who knows the end from the beginning. From David on there are two lines of descent: the one through Solomon, the other through Nathan. In order for any man to be a rightful heir to the throne of David he must come through the line of Solomon, yet the curse was placed on this line. How shall these two situations be harmonized? Only God is able to do the impossible. We find according to the Gospel narratives that in due time Jesus was born of Mary. Mary was of the line of Nathan. It was thus that Christ received his body from the loins of David. That part of the problem could be readily solved. But the other phase of the difficulty, namely his legal right to the throne, is not so obvious. God overcame this difficulty by the marriage of Mary to Joseph the son of Jacob before the birth of the child Jesus. Thus, Jesus was not a true son of Joseph, but only an adopted child. But even an adopted child falls heir to the rights of the family. That this interpretation of the problem is the correct one can be determined by a study of the two genealogies found in the gospel records. In Matthew we have the genealogy of Joseph. In Luke we have Mary's genealogy. Joseph was the "son of Heli" because he was "engaged" to Heli's daughter. Christ escaped the curse of the family of Solomon by being adopted into the family instead of by being born into it.

Who but God alone could scan the horizon of the ages and arrange every detail so that in the fullness of time he could send forth his Son, made of a woman to redeem them that were under the law? God made good every promise of his concerning the coming of the perfect servant. He will yet make good every promise he has made to those who are by adoption the sons of God.

RULES FOR SELF EXAMINATION

The following twelve rules are recorded as having been used by John Fletcher of more than a century ago. They were used by him at the close of each day for self examination:

1. Did I awake spiritual, and was I watchful in keeping my mind from wandering this morning?
2. Have I this day got nearer to God in prayer or have I given way to a lazy, idle spirit?
3. Has my faith been weakened by watchfulness, or quickened by diligence?
4. Have I walked by faith and seen God in all things?
5. Have I denied myself in all unkind words and thoughts? Have I been delighted in seeing others preferred?
6. Have I made the most of my time, as far as I had light, strength, and opportunity?
7. Have I kept the issues of my heart in the means of Grace, so as to profit by them?
8. What have I done this day for the souls and bodies of God's dear saints?
9. Have I laid out anything to please myself, when I might have saved the money for the cause of God?
10. Have I governed well my tongue this day, remembering that in a multitude of words there wanteth not sin?
11. In how many instances have I denied myself this day?
12. Do my life and conversation adorn the gospel of Jesus Christ?—(Selected.)

Books reviewed in this column we consider fundamental to the Christian standard, although there may be some small portions with which we do not agree or, of which we cannot approve. In such instances we shall call attention to that with which we are not in accord.

Books reviewed here may be procured from The Brethren Missionary Herald Co., 3326 Calhoun St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SOME NEW MISSIONARY BOOKS

"John G. Paton, Missionary to the New Hebrides" by J. Theo. Mueller, published by Zondervan. A book filled with exciting, perilous adventure of a missionary among the savages of the South Sea islands. The reading of this book will fire the heart of any Christian and will give a deeper concern for missions. A book for young and old. 129 pages, cloth, $1.00.

"David Livingstone, Missionary Explorer," by Basil Miller, published by Zondervan. An intensely interesting biography of a truly great character. A book that tells of that great missionary explorer who was born among the poor of England. but was buried among the kings of England. Truly a book of real drama of that challenging Dark Continent, Africa. 163 pages, cloth, $1.00.

Thank You, Dr. Bauman!

(The following appeared in the church bulletin of the 1st Brethren Church, Long Beach, Calif., June 28th.)

Now is the time to make an offering for the publication interests of our Church. Few people realize the ministry which is being carried on through the printed page by The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. That name was rightly selected, for if ever an organization was conducting a missionary program throughout the year it is our publication house at Fort Wayne, Indiana. Rev. Leo Polman, Secretary of Publications, who was with us in an Evangelistic campaign the early part of the year, reports that each year there is a decided growth in the amount of literature printed, and that the ministry of The Brethren Missionary Herald Company extends even beyond the borders of our own denominational work, into many other fields of Christian service throughout the entire world. Some may ask about the profits from the sale of such literature. Of course, there is some profit, but inasmuch as none of our publications carry advertisements such as many other periodicals carry, and which largely supports their work, and much of our literature such as tracts, gospels, etc., is distributed free, there is need for added support by free-will offerings on the part of all of the Churches of the Brotherhood. In each box of weekly contribution envelopes at this time of the year will be found a yellow envelope marked "Publication Day Offering." A five dollar bill, less or more, placed within this envelope will be an investment in the Lord's work which will reap a harvest of precious souls won through the printed page. Do you want a share in this great ministry? If so, do not miss using the little yellow envelope.

Have you or has your Church had a part in our publication offering? It is not too late. Do it now.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

The following account appeared in a little booklet designed for soldiers:

"Many people looked upon the exploits of John Jay McDevitt, an ex-tramp and milk vender, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., as nothing but an exhibition of supreme folly. This man had managed to scrape together a sum of about thirteen hundred dollars. He announced his intention of spending the whole of it in living, just for one day, like a millionaire.

"He engaged the services of a physician and a valet to attend him, and chartered a special train at the cost of $350 to convey him to New York. Arriving in the city he began to squander his money in the most prodigal fashion. He paid $100 for his dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, and afterwards got through the remainder of his cash in a way that a millionaire spendthrift might have done. His last dollar spent, he was dependent upon the courtesy of the Railroad Company for a return ticket to his home.

"Such an absolute waste of money as this seemed to be, made McDevitt the most notorious character of the moment. His doings were chronicled with the utmost minuteness by the daily papers, and their descriptions found an echo in the European press. Well nigh universal execration and contempt were the lot of John Jay McDevitt.

"But notoriety, even of this sort, means something. Within a few hours of his return home, McDevitt was in receipt of offers to appear in music halls, and to pose for movie and news representations at figures far in excess of what he had spent. Easily he recouped himself many times over, and proved that his one day of millionaire life was not the freak of a semi-lunatic, but the well planned act of a long-headed man who knew nature well."

We cite this as another example of the spectacular that is taking the stage in this present day, and an example of the age old adage that truth is stranger than fiction. And truth will always be stranger than fiction, for the human mind cannot create new ideas, for man is not a creator. The most that man can do is reassemble the ideas which already exist. But the thing that seems so strange to believers today is the apparent unwillingness of such a world to receive the simple story of Christ "who being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God; but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Phil 2:6-11).

There is nothing in the history of men or the fiction of men that rivals this simple little account of an actual incident in history some nineteen hundred years age. This One, whose possessions cannot be computed by any figures known to man, became poor that we through his poverty might be made rich. And today, he who squandered for us then in one gigantic spending spree, all that he had, even to life itself, is in glory, because the Father of glory took note of this notorious individual and desired to exalt him for the sake of making him the supreme representation of unselfish prodigality.

ANY CREATION, BUT NOT GOD

Not long ago the writer was listening to a radio broadcast on Sunday. And to his surprise there appeared upon this popular program a number in song which was doubtless designed to bring sanctity to the program because of the day. Be that as it may, one refrain of that song made an indelible impression upon my mind. The essence of that refrain was this —"a million angels bringing peace to the earth."

Now of course peace is a most popular theme today, when the world is engulfed in war such as no other time since the beginning of history. Peace is a desirable thing. With that no one can find fault. And too, no one can find fault with the insistent longing for peace that burns in every heart, which longing was expressed in this particular refrain. But the manner in which this refrain suggested that it be brought to the world may profitably be examined.

It may be observed that this peace being brought by a million angels is merely a poetic way of putting the matter. And if that were true we might dismiss it without a second thought. But poetry with all its syllabic beauty ceases to be beautiful when it lacks the truth which alone is beautiful. Certainly such poetry can do nothing more than intrigue the fancy or agitate the auditory nerve. It cannot satisfy the longing of the human heart. And if this refrain is not the truth, even though it is a poetic scramble of ideas, then it is falsehood, and it is designed to obscure the truth.

And what is the truth? It is this, that God in the person of His Son will come again in the flesh, personally and visibly, and will with the rod of his might establish peace in the earth. "For unto us a Child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this" (Isaiah 9:6-7).

But men resent this teaching of the scriptures and they shy away from its truth. They would much rather think of peace coming to the world by the efforts of men, or even a million angels bringing it, than God entering human affairs and effecting the peace for men. After all, it is a humiliating doctrine for men. For they must admit, if this be true, that man is incapable of handling his own affairs, and he must seek the aid of Deity. And this also means that man must submit to Deity which is where the rub comes. This means that man must confess sin and seek a savior.

A careful comparison of the reading of Luke 2:14 in the Authorized and Revised versions will reveal the very thing we are talking about. The Authorized Version reads: "and on earth peace, good will toward men." The Revised reads: "And on earth among men in whom he is well pleased." There is a world of difference as can easily be seen. The Authorized is based upon a faulty text. Whereas the Revised is based upon a corrected text. And the Revised makes it clear that peace will come, but it will come only to those in whom he is well pleased. And those with whom he is well pleased are those who have bowed the knee in submission to the Savior and Lord of men.

So the ultimate reason man talk about angels bringing peace rather than the Son of God is moral. They would not need to bow the knee to angels, but they would be obliged to bow the knee to the Son of God, first seeking him as a savior from sin, and then as the Lord of life. Here again we see the truth of John 3:19 illustrated, "men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil."

BUT BOLSHEVIKS GET SAVED

Nordenberg, an eminent engineer in Finland, gives his own account of seven Russians who were saved for eternity. And herewith we give his own eye witness account, for herin may be observed again the power of the Gospel even among men who are committed to a plan to sweep God from His heaven and from the hearts and minds of men.

"One of the strangest experiences in my life is connected with war.

"I offered my services to the Government and was appointed an officer in General Mannerheim's army. It was a terrible time. We besieged the town. It had been taken by the Red Army and we re-took it. A number of Red prisoners were under my guard. Seven of them were to be shot at dawn on Monday. I shall never forget the preceding Sunday. The seven doomed men were kept in the basement of the town hall. In the passage my men stood at attention with their rifles.

"The atmosphere was filled with hatred. My soldiers were drunk with victory and taunted their prisoners, who swore as much as they could and beat the walls with their bleeding fists. Others called for their wives and children who were far away. At dawn they were all to die.

"We had the victory, that was true enough; but the value of this seemed to diminish as the night advanced. I began to wonder whether there did not rest a curse on arms whichever side used them.

"Then something happened: one of the men doomed to death began to sing! 'He is mad,' was everybody's first thought. But I had noticed this man, Koskinen, had not raved and cursed like the others. Quietly he sat on his bench, a picture of utter despair. Nobody said anything to him—each was carrying his burden in his own way and Koskinen sang, rather waveringly at first, then his voice grew stronger and filled out, and became natural and free. All the prisoners turned and looked at the singer who now seemed to be in his element:

> Safe in the arms of Jesus, Safe on His gentle breast,
> There by His Love o'ershaded, Sweetly my soul shall rest.
> Hark, 'tis the voice of angels, Borne in a song to me
> Over the fields of glory, Over the jasper sea.

"Over and over again Koskinen sang that verse and when he finished everyone was quiet for a few minutes until a wild-looking individual broke out with 'Where did you get that, you fool? Are you trying to make us religious?'

"Koskinen looked at his comrades and his eyes filled with tears. Then he asked quietly: 'Comrades, will you listen to me for a minute? You asked me where I got this song: it was from The Salvation Army. I heard it three weeks ago. At first I also laughed at this song but it got me. It is cowardly to hide your beliefs: the God my mother believed in has now become my God also. I cannot tell you how it happened, but I know that it has happened. I lay awake last night and suddenly I felt I had to find the Savior and to hide in Him. Then I prayed—like the thief on the Cross—that Christ would forgive me and cleanse my sinful soul, and make me ready to stand before Him whom I should meet soon.

"'It was a strange night,' continued Koskinen. 'There were times when everything seemed to shine around me. Verses from the Bible and from the Song Book came to my mind. They brought a message of the crucified Savior, and the Blood that cleanses from sin, and of the Home He has prepared for us. I thanked Him, accepted it, and since then this verse has been sounding inside me. It was God's answer to my prayer. I could not longer keep it to myself. Within a few hours I shall be with the Lord, saved by His grace.'

"Koskinen's face shone as by an inward light. His comrades sat there quietly. He himself stood there transfixed. My soldier were listening to what this Red revolutionary had to say.

"'You are right, Koskinen,' said one of his comrades at last. 'If only I knew that there is mercy for me, too. But these hands of mine have shed blood and I have reviled God and trampled on all that is holy. Now I realize that there is a Hell and that it is the proper place for me.'

THINK IT OVER

Science has ears to detect the fall of a snow flake. How do you suppose some of our slips must echo in heaven?

"He sank to the ground with despair depicted on his face. 'Pray for me, Koskinen,' he groaned, 'tomorrow I shall die and my soul will be in the hands of the Devil.'

"And there these two Red soldiers went down on their knees and prayed for each other. It was no long prayer, but it opened Heaven for both, and we who listened to it forgot our hatred. It melted in the light from Heaven, for here two men who were soon to die sought reconciliation with God. A door leading into the invisible stood ajar and we were entranced by the sight.

"Let me tell you shortly that by the time it was four o'clock all Koskinen's comrades had followed his example and began to pray. The change in the atmosphere was indescribable. Some of them sat on the floor, others talked of spiritual things.

"The night had almost gone and day was dawning. No one had had a moment's sleep. 'Sing the song once more for us, Koskinen,' said one of them. And you should have heard them sing. Not only that song but verses and choruses long forgotten came forth from their memories as buds in the sunshine. The soldiers on guard united their voices with them.

"The town clock struck six. How I wished I could have begged grace for these men, but I knew that this was impossible.

"Between two rows of soldiers they marched out to execution. One of them asked to be allowed once more to sing Koskinen's song. Permission was granted. Then they asked to die with uncovered faces—and with hands raised to Heaven they sang with might and main:

Safe in the arms of Jesus, Safe on His gentle breast.

When the last line had died out the lieutenant gave the word 'Fire', and the seven Red soldiers had fought their last fight. We inclined our heads in silent prayer.

"What had happened in the hearts of the others I do not know but so far as I was concerned I was a new man from that hour. I had met Christ in one of His lowliest and youngest disciples and I had seen enough to realize that I too, could be His."

War has its grim realities indeed. But in the midst of all these untoward circumstances the grace of an omnipotent Savior is saving men who bow the knee in submission to Him. And even Russians sworn to an anti-God platform are found by Christ in the hour of greatest need.

WHO ARE THE KINGS OF THE EAST?

In these days when the Orient is figuring so prominently in the history of the world the student of prophecy is caused to recall words from Revelation and Daniel which stir him deeply. For Revelation records these words: "And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared" (16:12). And the context makes it very clear that this particular passage refers to the gathering of the armies of the nations for the final conflict in the "place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon" (16). Then too, the parallel passage in Daniel 11 with reference to the same event: "But tidings out of the east . . . shall trouble him" (Antichrist), adds force to the passage in Revelation (43).

The writer does not presume here to suggest that this is the endtime, and that the events that we are now witnessing will wind up the course of the nations upon the earth. But there are some interesting things to think about. Certainly it is not a long venture to suggest that the kings of the East must rise before the events of Revelation and Daniel can be fulfilled. And within the last several thousand years there has not been enough strength in evidence in the East to constitute them as the menacing powers of the endtime that they must be to fulfill the scripture. Furthermore, it has been the Occident that has been in power in the East. If scripture means anything, it means that Western power must come to a close in the East and the dormant powers of the East must rise.

Centuries and even milleniums have run their course and the sleeping nations of the East have slept on. Not until within recent years have these nations been aroused from their long sleep. And it has been the Western nations that have prodded them awake. The open door into Japan dates from the memorable voyage of Admiral Perry into a harbor of those Islands. And China's age-long sleep was disturbed when the nations of Europe rushed headlong into her land to exploit her vast wealth. India, too, dates the morning of her new day from England's entrance into her land. And from these foreigners Japan, China, and India have learned of their own vast resources and the possibilities for progress.

Now these giants of the East are stirring, and their movements are produced by their own conscious efforts. Japan has struck with inconceivable power and swiftness to drive the Western nations from the Pacific. India, in spite of the menacing danger from Japanese control, is using her opportunity and holding out for freedom from British hegemony. And China, though at this present moment is allied with Western nations, is undoubtedly interested in victory in this conflict solely because she sees the sun rising upon her future with bright prospects for power and progress. Since these signs are now evident, we may expect to see these nations rise more into prominence in the near future.

Observing these things in operation today and knowing the prophetic scripture on these matters will encourage the student of prophecy to watch, with increased interest events now transpiring. For the rise of the kings of the East means the nearness of the coming of the Lord and the ushering in of that period in which the final events of the age will take place and bring the age to its close. It may even be that prophecy concerning the "kings of the East," if now being fulfilled, sheds some light on the way this present conflict will come to its close in the Orient.

For believers there is only one observation that we can make, and that is the one Peter makes: "Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless" (2 Pet. 3:14).

SOME ARE STILL BLOWING BUBBLES

Some of us opened our eyes upon a world prepared for World War I. And we watched the nations enter the holocaust from which some were never to emerge, and those that did, came forth battered and bleeding, and in moral and financial ruin. During that mighty conflict we heard the cry "The War to end all War"; "The War to make the world safe for Democracy."

When we were old enough to peruse the annals of history, it was to discover that the 25 years or more, preceding 1914, were filled with many attempts to outlaw war. World courts, Hague Peace conferences, alliances, disarmaments conventions, all of these, and more were employed to create, if possible, a warless world. At this same time among the governments of the world new and greater preparations were being made for war. But outside of military circles these preparations were considered of small significance. In general men were convinced that we were on the eve of a warless world. So convinced was one great college president that in July of 1914, following a tour of Europe, he declared that men had progressed so far that war was an impossibility. And then came the war, less than a month after his very dogmatic assertion.

One would think that that would be enough to convince sane minded men that a warless world, until some supernatural operation takes place, is impossible. But even the greatest war in the history of mankind was insufficient. For the war had scarcely closed in 1918 than newer and greater efforts were made to bring in the warless era. The most notable effort ever made was the League of Nations, which, from its very inception was impotent to carry out any of its decrees. So nations went on doing as they pleased. But during the two decades following 1918 fancy and imagination has run high and wild. And probably no era has been filled with so many bubbles. But the bubbles have burst again, and this time so terrific has been the pressure with which these bubbles have been blown to bits, that one would think that scarcely any breath would remain with which to blow more.

But such is not the case as a recent meeting of the Federal Council of Churches in America reveals. Their latest suggestion is this, that at the close of this war they will write the peace. The Nations wrote the last peace and miserably failed to achieve their objectives, so hopelessly did they botch affairs in Europe. In fact the nations involved in the writing of the last peace treaty were simply laying the ground-work for the present conflict. But the churches must write the next peace. And they will achieve where the nations failed.

All of this sounds good, and is commendable insofar as it expresses a proper desire and a high aim. But it does untold harm to the cause of Christ, for it seeks to achieve a peace outside of the plan of God, and ignores the real purpose of the church in this age. And more than that, it ignores the basic reason for all wars, namely, sin, and the reason the word of God must utter prophetically the truth that "even unto the end shall be war" (Dan. 9:26 ARV).

While blowing bubbles may be an interesting passtime it is always a dangerous passtime, especially when it lulls men and women, in a doomed world, to sleep. Above all things, believers need to beware of falling into the errors which are so apparent among those who know nothing of the word of God and the prophetic program for the age. This is a time when the greatest efforts should be expended in the direction of that which will succeed. Prophecy has never failed. And so wars shall continue to the end. But there is a day of peace coming, when the Prince of Peace shall descend the heavens and plant his foot upon the warring nations and they shall learn war no more. Until then there is only one program for the church, and that is to herald the gospel of peace to a lost and dying world, and to point men to a time when peace will prevail among the nations, a peace effected by the person presence of the Son of God himself.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU?

John 3:16

Is the gospel of Jesus nothing to you,
My friends, who are still in sin?
Do you count it as nothing when others plead
And strive your poor soul to win?
Are His message and messengers nothing to you?
Would you stop your ears and say:
"It is nothing, no nothing at all to me,
For I mean to go my own way?"

Is it nothing to you that the Savior came
All the way from His heavenly throne,
To save and redeem you from all your sins,
And make you forever His own?
Is His loving compassion nothing to you,
That you trample it under your feet?
Oh, do you not think of the great judgment day
When your record up there you'll meet?

Is it nothing to you that the dear Saviour died
On Calvary's cross for you?
Oh, how can you think of His grief and pain,
And still to Him be untrue?
Is it nothing to you that He bore all your sin,
That you might be happy and free?
Do you mean, as you turn His salvation away,
"It is nothing, no nothing to me?"

Is it nothing to you that He tenderly pleads
And begs you in mercy to come;
That He, in His loving compassion has gone
To prepare you a heavenly home?
Oh, will you not turn from earth's trifles away,
Accept His salvation so free?
Your Savior is waiting to welcome you home;
Don't say, "It is nothing to me."

—Ida L. Cornett.

Everybody thinks himself a judge of a sermon, but nine out of ten might as well pretend to weigh the moon. I believe that, at bottom, most people think it an uncommonly easy thing to preach, and that they could do it amazingly well themselves. Every donkey thinks itself worthy to stand with the king's horses; every girl things she could keep house better than her mother; but thoughts are not facts, for the sprat thought itself a herring, but the fishermen knew better. I dare say those who can whistle fancy they can plough; but there's more than whistling in a good ploughman, and so let me tell you there's more in good preaching than taking a text, and saying firstly, secondly, and thirdly. I try my hand at preaching myself, and in my poor way I find it no easy thing to give the folks something worth hearing; and if the fine critics who reckon us up on their thumbs would but try their own hands at it, they might be a little more quiet.—C. H. Spurgeon.

God In Human Experience

George Bennard Goes Through a Trial

(Author of the Old Rugged Cross)

By BASIL MILLER

(Courtesy of The Christian Readers Digest)

"George Bennard. I do not know him. Who is he?"

Ah, yes, everyone who sings gospel songs, or who has heard them sung knows George Bennard. He is the writer of today's most popular gospel song, the song that has gone around the world and been translated into practically all the languages where Christian songs have gone. You have heard of it, I am sure, and many times you have hummed its melody, or joined in with the words.

The song and George Bennard are one. I refer to "The Old Rugged Cross." You cannot separate them. George Bennard is now a little old man, a retired Methodist minister, who looks not a great deal unlike his famous spiritual sire, John Wesley. His hair is silvery, his form slight and his face saintly. He looks like a man who could so tune his soul to the Infinite and catch the melody to fit those immortal words.

But George Bennard was not always the living replica of his song, "The Old Rugged Cross." Turn time's tide back many, many years and you will find a little boy who had never in his life been to Sunday school and who had never received any religious training whatsoever. He was from the great rank of boys who have never darkened the doors of a church. He was a little spiritual Hottentot.

And his father ran a saloon. An old-fashioned saloon, not one of these modern combination drug-store and saloon. It was a saloon where strong men went in and got dead drunk and stayed until their wives came for them. It was a saloon that women never visited. That is, never visited until our story begins.

A Christian worker, a mild little woman who hated the saloon but loved the keeper's soul, swung the saloon doors open one day and wanted to talk religion. But the barkeeper would have none of her religious tongue, so he bid her be off.

"But, isn't there someone in the home that I might pray with?" she inquired when her religious efforts came to naught in the saloon.

"Why yes, I've a son," the father said aloud, but he thought, "She can't do any harm to the boy, so let her work her religion on little George."

At that moment God took a hand in human experience. The Christian woman immediately ferreted out little George, a slight little creature, and began talking to him. She prayed for his soul, and left a Christian blessing upon his head.

The gospel seed was sown, soon to sprout into a tree of faith, and Father Bennard's words were proved far from true. For George became a Sunday school scholar, and soon turned his childish face toward God's glorious sunlight.

At that moment the theme song of the "Old Rugged Cross" was sung in his soul by an angelic choir.

George entered the ministry when he grew to young manhood. Early in 1913 the theme of this favorite song was given to the minister. But only the theme. Then came the air, so clear and definite and polished that all it needed was setting on paper. The tune needed no altering for it was as nearly perfect as music could be.

But that was as far as the famous George could get.

George one day faced a peculiar trial. It lasted for weeks. His soul was wrung and only his faith would cling—cling! He had caught it. "I'll be true to the cross of Jesus. I'll cling to it, please God, all my life!"

Suddenly these words fitted themselves to the swing and tempo of the melody. He listened and his spiritual ears caught the words, "I'll cherish the old rugged cross till my trophies at last I lay down. I will cling to the old rugged cross, and exchange it some day for a crown."

The song was complete. But it took the soul-wringing of a great trial of faith to give it. It was distilled through suffering, which is the key of the cross!

IT'S A GREAT LIFE

if you don't weaken. There's a law against the average man's buying a new automobile. Neither can he buy a new tire for his present car. He can only have a certain amount of sugar. He can't even buy a typewriter, but there is no limit to the amount of whiskey he may buy to pour down his throat and paralyze his senses and become a public menace. Whiskey guzzlers should be rated the same as 5th columnists. They help break down the morale on the home front.—Bethel Brethren Church bulletin, Berne, Ind.

"WHOSOEVER WOULD BECOME GREAT . . ."

"Whosoever would become great among you shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you shall be your servant." Matt. 20:26,27.

This world is familiar with the methods by which men and women seek to become great. In society it is called social climbing; in politics, political climbing; and when one is successful in his career, it is said that he has climbed high. This climbing is done by exalting oneself in as favorable a light before others as possible. Self is always the center of the ambitious person's thoughts, and everything has value insofar as it benefits and lifts up himself.

In the spiritual world the methods are reversed: for if one exalts himself, he is lowered in usefulness for God, and if he humbles himself and seeks the good of others, he automatically becomes great and exalted in spirit.

Therefore, if we seek after the greatness which God favors, we will go down in order that we may go up; and, whereas the benefit of self was formerly the center of our thoughts and ambitions, now the good of others will be our concern; and everything will have value only insofar as it benefits and lifts up others.

By following this plan of life, we become united in spirit with Christ, the humble servant; and, as we share in His humiliation, we, simultaneously, are glorified with the dignity of His love.—La Verne, Calif., church bulletin.

The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Romans

By GERALD POLMAN

The Importance of Paul's Epistles to the Seven Churches.

The Apostle Paul wrote nine Epistles which he sent to seven churches. The Epistles are Romans, I and II Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Phillippians, Colossians, I and II Thessalonians. These have been written especially for the instruction of every Christian. The other Epistles written by Paul were sent to individuals and not to churches. However, they are also meant for the instruction and help of the Christian.

The Bible's subject matter has to do with three main groups: the Jew, the Gentile, and the church of God or the Christians. These are not identical and they do not overlap. The group which the Pauline Epistles deal with is the church of God or the Christians. Many times these Epistles "are looked upon as but an appendage to the Gospels and Acts—as having about as much significance as a footnote to a book, and about the same relation—incidental when they are fundamental." Because of this fact many Christians pass these church Epistles by as unimportant to themselves. But they are a benefit to the Christian because in them he finds his calling and his hope.

The Importance of the Epistle to the Romans.

Having pointed out the importance of all the church Epistles, now we want to narrow the field to the importance of the Epistle to the Romans.

The canonical order of the nine Epistles or letters written to the seven churches is as follows: Romans, I and II Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Phillippians, Colossians, I and II Thessalonians. These nine church Epistles were not written in the order in which they appear in the Bible. They are with a few exceptions in almost the reverse order. If these books were studied in the opposite order from which they appear in the Bible, beginning with Thessalonians and ending with Romans, it would be just as difficult "for a person to try to master geometry before learning the multiplication table. "Romans holds the pass key by which we pass on to the Corinthians, Ephesians, Colossians, and on to the close."

The order in which the Church Epistles are, is not an accident. There was a real purpose behind the placement. William L. Pettingill, points out another reason for the placing of Romans first. "It is fitting that Romans should be located at the beginning of the New Testament epistles, because of its fundamental character, setting forth as it does in logical order of sequence the things that are elementary in 'the faith which was once delivered to the saints'."

Romans is the presentation of the fundamentals of a Christian education course. It is the "A B C book in Christian education, which finds man in sin, and through faith in Christ, he stands justified before God."

Paul wrote his Epistle to the Romans during a stay of three months at Corinth when he was on his third missionary journey. The date of Paul's writing was about 58 A.D. The material is organized in a very systematic study.

The Organization of the Epistle of Paul to the Romans.

The Epistle to the Romans has three main divisions which gives the book its organization. These divisions are as follows:

1. Salvation. Chap. 1-8.
2. Dispensation. Chap. 9-11.
3. Exhortation. Chap. 12-16.

If some one would name all 16 chapters of Romans according to their content, we should find that chap. 9-11 of the second division of Dispensation has a change of subject. The subject of Romans changes with chap. 9 but it is resumed again in chap. 12. We will call this division in which the subject changes "The Parenthetical Portion."

This "parenthetical portion" does not change the subject matter of the book. It is used for the same purpose as a parenthesis in a sentence. A sentence is fragmatically correct without the parenthesis; Romans with the "parenthetical portion" is the same. If these three chapters, 9-11, were left out, one could read right straight through without knowing anything had been left out.

The theme of this "parenthetical portion" has to do with Israel, while the "main portion" of Romans has to do with the church. The "parenthetical portion" "takes up the little section in 3:1-8, 'What advantage then hath the Jew?' and carries the answer to its utmost limit . . . This matter about the Jews relation to Christianity was a vital one in Paul's day."

In these three chapters Paul changes the subject from an explanation of grace in chap. 1-8 to an explanation of God's present dealing with Israel. God had committed Himself many times to Abraham and his seed to bless them as a nation. Paul now reconciles the "no-distinction-between-Jew-and-Greek" message that he was preaching. Paul did not want to leave the impression that Israel was a disobedient people, and that God had rejected them entirely, and was going to give His blessing to the Gentiles instead.

At the writing of the Epistle of Romans, the message of the New Testament was just beginning to be presented to the Greeks. They were being "blessed" by God; and Israel, who were God's chosen people, didn't understand. So this "parenthetical portion" was inserted by Paul as an explanatory or a qualifying statement. These three chapters do not set forth the Christians' salvation or their place in Christ, as do chap. 1-8. They unfold to the Christians their relative place in God's plans, along with the nation of Israel's place in God's plans.

A further proof that the "parenthetical portion" is complete in itself is that chap. 11 closes with a separate benediction and amen. Then chap. 12 continues with the subject of chap. 8. The "main portion," which is divided into two divisions by the "parenthetical portion," is subdivided into seven sections. These are as follows:

1. Condemnation (chap. 1-3).
2. Justification (chap 4-5).
3. Sanctification (chap. 6-7).
4. Glorification (chap. 8). Third division—Exhortation (chap. 12-16).
5. Transformation (chap. 12-13).
6. Exhortation (chap. 14-15).
7. Salutation (chap. 16).

"In chap. 1-8, the apostle of the Gentiles calls attention of Gentile and Jew alike as sinners before

God, that all need to accept Christ that they may become sharers of the good things that are to come. God actually proclaimed in a prophetic way this good news to Abraham. Chap. 1-3 bring this point out very strongly. After Paul does this, in chap. 4:5 he illustrates and enforces the fact that a man is justified by faith apart from works of law. Faith is the condition of our justification, not the ground of it. The ground of a Christian's justification is the death of Christ on the cross.

In chap. 6-7, Paul shows that righteousness revealed in the gospel does not only justify the believer, but gives dominion over sin which produces sanctification. "The gospel revealed the only effectual method of justification, and just as it can produce justification, so it can secure sanctification.

Then in the logical order in chap. 8, Paul brings out the believer's glorification. Thus we see in this first division of Romans, Paul takes the reader from condemnation to glorification.

The second division of the Epistle to the Romans has been discussed in preceding paragraphs as the "parenthetical portion." So we will pass right on to the division of Exhortation.

Chap. 12-16 are an exhortation based on the truth or doctrine of salvation as set forth in chap. 1-8. "The 'I beseech you therefore' of 12:1 continues chap. 8 as an exhortation." It does not follow chap. 11, which with chaps 9,10, are the parenthesis within the Epistle.

Chap. 11 of the parenthesis having ended, Paul continues with the "main portion" of Romans. "The strictly doctrinal teaching of the first of the seven church Epistles being now concluded, the apostle, as a wise master-builder, follows it up in this and remaining chapters, by impressing believers with the holy obligations which their standing and life in Christ imposes upon them."

This last portion of Romans is practical. It shows the Christian his life's duties. It begins with the doctrinal and ends with the personal application.

The Epistle of Paul to the Romans, which begins with a word of salutation to the Christians that are in Rome, ends with chap. 16 which is in the nature of a post-script. It is almost wholly concerned with personal greetings to individuals, of whom very little is known. The chapter is still significant, in that it shows that Paul was not taken up with helping the church at Rome as a whole, but "like his Master, he was individualistic in his ministry. Each soul counted for much, and thus those whom he had once known in spiritual companionship he did not easily forget.".

The Epistle of Romans teaches that all men have sinned and come short of the glory of God. If we would accept the doctrine and instruction from Christ by the Holy Spirit in the Epistle of Romans, we would belong to Christ through death and resurrection. Then there would be no condemnation or separation and we would be worthy followers of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Russian Events and Prophecy

By LOUIS S. BAUMAN, D.D.

Russia has come boldly into the picture since Dr. Bauman's "Light On Bible Prophecy" started on its meteoric career, in which many thousands of copies have been published. Following the same line in his treatment of Russia, Dr. Bauman, according to his own words, "sticks to the Word of God, no matter though its prophecies may at the time seem to man impossible of fulfillment." In his new study he answers such questions as: In the prophecy of Ezekiel is Russia the nation in view? If so, who are the allies? Is the great northern conference now in formation? He also treats such subjects as Gog and Magog Prepared for Battle, The Cause of the Conflict, Forces God will Use to Overthrow Gog, Gog's Doom, The Bonepile in Palestine, The End of Communism, etc. A book every Christian should read and ponder today.

The book is promised to be off the press, Aug. 15th, and all orders will be filled immediately. Due to increased costs of paper and production, the publisher has notified us that it has been necessary to advance the price to $1.25. It is much safer to be in God's house on Sunday night than on the highway. The one leads to happiness and the other may lead to the hospital. Shame, too, if the salvation purchased for you by God's own Son means no more than remaining home or permitting friends to keep you away from His house. Jesus may come tonight!—Peru, Ind., Church Bulletin.

Bible School Success? How?

By MRS. RAYMOND DYER, Washington, D. C.

If the Bible School is to send forth Christians rooted and grounded in the Word of God, and living Christ daily before the world, the Bible must be taught as the vital need of boys and girls. Our task as teachers in the Primary Department is perhaps greater today than ever before but, let us remember that making God's Word real to children is a very great privilege.

Let us consider briefly a few facts which we must emphasize if our work with the children is to be effective.

I. We must place greater emphasis on visitation work. Pupils are not coming to us in great numbers today unless there has been great effort put forth by the teacher to interest them. Visits are needed to get them to come to Sunday School and continued visits are needed to encourage regular attendance. A periodic canvass of the neighborhood is beneficial in securing new scholars.

II. We must emphasize individual child study. You have probably heard the story of the Primary Dept. Superintendent who, wishing to pay tribute to the faithful Primary teachers, asked the children this question, "Who are here this morning without whose help we could not have our Primary Dept?" It was hoped of course that the answer would be "The teachers," but the response which came quickly and clearly was "The children." How very true this is. We must have faithful, consecrated teachers, with carefully planned lessons; we surely need good organization, but our chief desire should be to have our children always in mind. We must take time to study the home life and every day world of each child and make every possible effort to gain his love and his confidence. All our teaching should be done with the desire to make Christ real to the boys and girls in order to win them for Him.

Supposin' fish don't bite at first,
What are you goin' to do?
Throw down your pole, chuck out your bait
And say your fishin's through?

You bet you ain't; you're goin' to fish
An' fish, an' fish, an' wait
Until you've ketched a bucketful
Or used up all your bait.

Suppose success don't come at first,
What are you goin' to do?
Throw up the sponge and kick yourself
And growl, and fret, and stew?

You bet you ain't; you're goin' to fish,
An' bait, and bait ag'in,
Until success will bite your hook,
For grit is sure to win. (EX)

III. We must place emphasis on interesting attractive teaching. The brief period spent in Bible School each Sunday morning is the only Christian training which some of our boys and girls receive. By use of pictures, blackboard and objects we should make the vital truths which we present as attractive as possible. One year, when presenting the life of Christ, we used a series of seven large attractive pictures displayed in a prominent place in the room. Under each picture a card was tacked on which words describing the picture were printed. (He came, He grew, He loved, He died, He arose, He ascended, He is coming). An appropriate Bible verse and song were used in connection with each picture. How the children loved to review that series of lessons over and over. I am sure that the children will remember the facts which were presented more vividly because of the use of those pictures.

IV. Emphasis must be placed on the application or putting into daily practice the truths taught in the Bible School. Let us ask such questions as these each Sunday: Were you able to do something at home this week to show that you love Jesus?? Did you invite someone to come to Bible School? By showing such personal interest in his daily activities and encouraging him to remember to be helpful and kind, we are enabled to gradually lead the child to accept Christ as his personal Saviour.

V. Let us emphasize memorization of Scripture. It is hardly possible to place too much emphasis on the importance of memorizing Scripture verses. Such verses have a way of coming into your mind in time when difficulties and problems arise bringing comfort and peace. Many of us remember portions of Scripture which we learned when in the Primary Dept.

Realizing that we are called to do a great work, and that without His help we can accomplish nothing, let us fully yield our lives to Him, asking His guidance in planning and presenting the lessons. Let us ever follow Him so that no child, in following us, may be led away from Christ. May this be our daily prayer:

"Not at some future time, Dear Lord,
But now, just now, this boon I ask
That in my soul Thy grace be poured
To help me in my God-lent task!
To lead aright, since lead I must
This child entrusted to my care;
I need and ask in sacred trust
Soul strength from Him who taught us prayer."

The What and the How of a Seventy Band

By REV. R. D. BARNARD

Pastor First Brethren Church, Dayton, Ohio

1. The Seventy is a Biblical organization. Luke 10:1-24 tells you about it. It is a fellowship of believers who are agreeing together that for the current year they will plan to make two calls per week.

2. Reenlistment Sundays will be at the beginning of every calendar year. If conditions have so changed that the work is a burden, one need not reenlist. It is hoped, however, that people will work year after year. We hope many will enlist during the year.

3. We earnestly hope that all members of class Attendance Committees will be members of the Seventy, as will all teachers and class officers. Of course, if any person is over-burdened with other parts of the Lord's work, then do not enlist in the Seventy.

4. Once every month we will meet to give reports of work done, and to receive assignments. If you cannot attend a monthly meeting, just send in your report by mail that we can read it at the meeting, and we will send your month's assignments by mail. We hope also to have time at every meeting for some teaching in personal work.

5. There's variety in the Seventy—at least four kinds of work. 1, for those who can and will visit and present Christ to men and women. 2, those who feel they cannot do this, but will go and invite people to church and to Bible School, even plan to bring them. 3, those who are willing to do "scouting"—that is visit those who have attended our services and signed attendance cards, just a visit to assure them of our welcome. 4, those who will help in community survey work, or in the passing out of circulars in different communities.

6. Try to get complete and accurate information about the entire family where you call. People are always anxious to tell you about their family. When you ask, they feel you are interested. Find out:

Names and ages of children (if family is at all favorable).

Names and addresses of married children.

Correct name and address of the head of the house.

How long they have lived in city, and at present address.

Church memberships or interests.

If they have friends or relatives in our church.

Whether they have attended our church, and how often.

And, as you feel led, whether they know the Lord or not.

7. Most of the information you will get in general conversation and you write down after you leave. But I usually get the names of children and write these in their presence, saying that I desire the information so that teachers in our Sunday School can personally invite them. Most families will be happy to tell you.

8. Write full information on the back of your card, after you leave the home. Don't just say, "Call made," or "Will come," or "Not at home." Such reports don't help us much. Give us full information.

9. Use tracts in visiting.

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

THE SECOND BRETHREN CHURCH of Los Angeles, Rev. Paul Bauman, pastor, reports that the visitation program which was started some months ago, is continuing steadily. Each Thursday evening many of the members of this church are out doing the Lord's work by systematic calling and visiting.

ONE CHURCH SENDS THE BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD magazine to 350 homes. And this is not all, for we received word that every new member uniting with this church will be given a three months subscription as a gift from the church. Not bad at all. When your secretary of publications receives word like this his face just beams. Keep it beaming, Brethren! Oh, you want to know what church is doing this? It's none other than the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif., Dr. L. S. Bauman, pastor.

WE ARE WONDERING HOW that innoculation of 10% in the Central District of Brethren churches is progressing? Haven't heard any more about it. Has the innoculation proved negative? Let's hear from the churches as to what they are doing along this line. Haven't even seen a poster yet!

RECENT VISITORS in the office of The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. were, the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Ashman of Pennsylvania; Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Schaffer of Berne, Indiana; Rev. and Mrs. Benard Mason, of the Mason Bell Ringers, Los Angeles, Calif. When in this vicinity, be sure to stop and howdy with us!

APOLOGIES TO PERU—Last week we noted the splendid attendance in a prayer meeting at the First Brethren Church, Peru, Indiana, Rev. Robert Ashman, pastor. No apologies for that statement. But was our face red when we were reminded (and not by any one from Peru) that the Peru church has not been a Home Mission church for about two years. For the fact that we called this church a home mission church, we apologize. Not because it is a disgrace to a Home Mission church, but, having been a pastor of two home mission churches, we know the struggles as well as the joys for a home mission church to attain that place of being a self supporting church.—L. P.

The word flesh has been defined as being "That touchy thing in you." Another has said that "If you will droy the 'h', and then spell it backward, you will know what the Word of God calls 'flesh'."

Some Things to Think About

By NORMAN UPHOUSE
Pastor Northriverdale Brethren Church, Dayton, Ohio

It is a real pleasure to write on a subject about which I feel God wants us to know. If there was ever a time that people are thinking, it is now. Reasons for action, prospects for the future, life and death, security and insecurity and the like are gaining the attention of many.

One of the greatest philosophical statements ever made was "God has spoken." Really there were three ancient and fundamental questions that perplexed the minds of thinking men. They were: 1. Where is God? 2. What is He like? 3. What has He spoken? Jesus Christ came into the world of men to answer all three. He declared that God was in heaven and He came to reveal to men what God was like. Further, those that saw Him saw God. And that God has spoken that only by belief and acceptance of Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord can any go to heaven. Jesus said that He brought the testimony from heaven and it was true that God wanted all to accept Jesus as the Way, the Truth ,and The Life. No man cometh to the Father but by Him. That's something to think about. Since it is true, we better be sure that we are on the right way.

No substitute for Christ will ever please God. However, Christ as a substitute for us will please Him. In other words, He that hath the Son hath life and he that hath not the Son hath not life, but the wrath of God abideth upon Him.

Time is getting short for us to be telling all the world about Jesus Christ as Saviour. All Scripture tells of Him. He fills the Bible. It is the written word and He is the living word. He is the greatest personage that ever stepped upon the stage of human activity. No man was born as He, none lived as He, none died as He, none arose as He, none claimed as much as He.

There is a text which introduces Him a little differently than the usual and because of its uniqueness I suggest Phil. 4:8 "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Here we have the law of the octave in operation. There are 8 qualities or characteristics of Christ. Seven is the number of perfection. Three for heaven and four for the earth. Combined there is harmony and perfection. Eight is the new beginning and corresponds to one of the new set of sevens. We have this principle in the pattern of the snowflake and the scale in music. Why shouldn't we worship God on Sunday? It is the first day of the new order. It suggests something greater than the old order. It is perfection with a new beginning.

1. THINK ABOUT TRUTH.

Pilate asked, "What is Truth?" John 18:38. His inquiry was not made to trap Jesus. It was the admission of ignorance. Men simply did not know. Was it absolute or relative? Could it be isolated for examination? When could anyone know for sure that he possessed it? There had to be a measurement of accuracy that would give the assurance. Being an abstract term, men avoided dealing with it.

But Jesus came and declared, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life. No man cometh unto the Father but by me." Standing squarely upon his claim, we understand Him to be the impersonation of truth, The standard by which all propositions are tested. Every phase and activity of life must be considered in relation to the person of Jesus Christ to determine true values.

The psalmist said, "Oh Jehovah, Thou God of Truth" 31:5. And John insisted that "Grace and truth came by Jesus Christ." John 1:17. If you never thought about it before this way, do it now. Shun the false and accept the true.

2. THINK ABOUT HONESTY.

The R.V. has translated this as honorable with a marginal suggestion of reverend. These do belong to God in a more definite way than to any other person. Ps. 111:9 "Holy and reverend is His name." They indicate that God is worthy of honor. Men willingly unhinge the knee at the altar of the true God. They realize that He alone deserves worship and honor.

John wrote about this one day, saying, "All men should honor the son, even as they honor the father. He that honoreth not the Son honoreth not the Father which hath sent him" 5:23.

Here is something too important to pass over lightly. Heaven for you is at stake at this verse. God has spoken and will not take it back that all men, from all stations of life, color and creed must come to honor Jesus as the Christ or meet Him as their accusing judge.

It used to be that men did not know these details and could plead ignorance (though that did not excuse any one). But now none can say he did not know (at least here), you do know. We have the accurate recording of the Word that says we should honor the Son.

Think what the writer of the second psalm said when God put it into his heart and mouth to speak. "Kiss the son lest He be angry and ye perish from the way." Men who have taken Him as Lord and Saviour acknowledge that He is worthy of honor.

3. THINK ABOUT JUSTICE.

Justice! What a watch word for all who love the finer things in life. In many places it has departed and injustice is practised Christianity presents the Christ as a champion of justice. More than that He is the Just One. The first Christian martyr recorded in the Bible was Steven. At his death he persistently accused his tormentors by holding them responsible for the crucifixion of the Just One. That was Christ.

To be just is more than to have a sense of justice. It is inseparably connected with righteousness. "Jehovah is righteous." Ps. 11:7. And "Righteousness and justice are the foundations of Thy throne." 89:14. These refer to Christ for in I John 1:9 "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just (or righteous) to forgive us our sins." In all of His treatment with His creatures He has been and will be just and righteous. Some people can't seem to think of God as possessing an array of striking attributes such as holiness, justice and righteousness. They think that love is the great thing and overshadows the others. In spite of

How About It?

Dare you delay any longer in making your decision for Christ?

love, justice will speak and the sinner will be naked before God. Our only approved preparation is to be clothed in the righteousness of Christ. We receive this by receiving Christ into our hearts.

4. THINK ABOUT PURITY.

All of the best men of history were sinners. They were far from perfect. There are no perfect men now. Some claim to be perfect, and they are so in their own eyes, but not as God looks at them. "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves." I John 1:8.

Anything to be pure must be free from all contamination. There cannot be any foreign matter to spoil it. The smallest particle of leaven renders it impure.

Christ alone is the pure One. I John 3:3 "He is pure." He is in a class by Himself in this respect. He never sinned. He lived a sinless and spotless life. He always did the right thing at the right time. He never did the wrong thing anytime. He never made a mistake. He never disappointed God the Father. He never grieved the Holy Spirit. He never prayed "Father forgive me" because He had nothing harmful in Him. Moses, Joseph, David, Daniel, Isaiah, Jeremiah and all the other warriors for God were men who needed to come to Him with a broken and contrite spirit. But not so with Christ.

I challenge any one to carefully and critically scrutinize the life of Christ first as to who He was and is and also as to what He claimed and did. If you do this with an open mind and sympathetic heart, free from prejudice and the traditions of men, you are going to see Him as the pure One from heaven.

He lacks nothing that perfection includes.

He has nothing that perfection excludes.

5. THINK ABOUT LOVE.

God is love (I John 4:8). This is elementary theology but it is staggeringly profound. It was our first conception of God and possibly the most widely published fact known. No man should ever sink so low that he forgets that God is love. God hates sin but He does not hate the sinner. Pagans think of their gods as those who delight in vengeance and torture. They come to their altars to appease the angry gods. We have a positive revelation and demonstration that God is love. For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son.

The very fact that God was willing to send the Son, heaven's best for us, proves beyond cavil that he possesses a love that is active and wonderful in expression.

Jesus Christ loved as well as being the expression of it. He loved little children. He loved unfortunate men and women. He loved His own. "Having loved His own, He loved them unto the end" John 13:1.

Let the love of Christ constrain you to come to Him.

6. THINK ABOUT THE TERM GOOD REPORT.

We'll start at the end of the life of Christ on the earth and look back to see how He lived. Think about the scene in front of Pilate's judgment seat, at the place called the pavement. It was the time for the passover preparation and Pilate brought out Jesus before the company of accusers and said, "Behold your King." They replied, "Away with Him, Crucify Him." But Pilate said, "Shall I crucify your King? I find no fault in Him."

There stands the record. Pilate was a man qualified to conduct the investigation because of his position and authority. An officer of Rome and a friend of the Jews, he examined Jesus' credentials and said that he found no fault in Him.

Pilate chose to wash his hands from all further responsibility. The people asked for His blood. They were mad and unscrupulous. They formed a lynching mob and man-handled Jesus and crucified Him. However, the centurion watched the affair and said, "Truly that was the Son of God."

Remember

The man who trusts God does not let the state of his purse determine his happiness and joy.

Even though He died the death of a criminal, He was a man of good report. He went everywhere doing good. There must have been another reason for His death. Greater love hath no man than to lay down his life for another. If you never thought about that before, it is food for thought and cause for action.

7. THINK ABOUT VIRTUE.

Many sought Jesus because virtue went out of Him Luke 6:19. We have been moving along pointing out how Christ is seen in all these great words and now we can say that truly He is the One of Virtue.

Virtue is moral excellence, rightliving, chastity, integrity and uprightness. These terms are heavily freighted. They identify the Son of God. They give the details in the picture of the One God wants us to see. And also what God wants to see in us.

Jesus Christ is the example to all believers. He is the only safe and perfect example. To other people, unsaved and unregenerated, He is judge and no more. Now He stands at the door and knocks for you to open. Let Him in.

8. THINK ABOUT PRAISE.

Praise is the last subject but what need is there to say more to prove that Jesus is the One who possesses all the qualities for praise. He never forgot to praise His heavenly Father. We humbly yet joyfully praise Him, the Author of our Salvation.

Now is your time to praise Him. In the quietude of the hour, where you are friend, take Christ into your heart. Say I will. Do not let another opportunity depart. Surrender your all to Him. Then you shall know some of the things He hath prepared for you.

WOULD I BE CALLED A Christian

Would I be called a Christian
If everybody knew
My secret thought and feelings,
And everything I do?
Oh, could they see the likeness
Of Christ in me, each day?
Oh, could they hear Him speaking,
In every word I say?

Would I be called a "Christian"
If any one could know
That I am found in places
Where Jesus would not go?
Oh, could they hear His echo
In every song I sing?
In eating, drinking, dressing,
Could they see Christ, my King?

Would I be called a Christian,
If judged by what I read?
By all my recreations,
And every thought and deed?
Could I be counted Christ-like,
As I now work and pray?
Unselfish, kind, forgiving
To others every day?

Camp Buckeye Notes

Greetings from Camp Buckeye! On Sunday afternoon, June 21, 157 young people and staff gathered at the Akron Y.M.C.A. Boys' camp (Camp Y-Noah) near Akron, Ohio for the tenth year of Camp Buckeye, Ohio Brethren young peoples' summer training camp. Of the original group which organized Camp Buckeye ten years ago, only two pastors remain; namely, Rev. Norman Uphouse (who spent several years in the interim out of the state), and the undersigned. The former is pastor of the new Brethren church at North Riverdale, in Dayton, Ohio. The latter is pastor of the First Brethren Church in the Ellet District of Akron, Ohio.

During these ten years the camp has grown from approximately 60 campers to the all-time high of 157 this year. Of this number 18 were staff members; 76 were first year campers; 38 were second year campers; 22 were third year campers; 2 were with us for the fourth year; and one for the fifth time. The latter, Miss Grace Dawson, is a member of the Evangelical denomination, but was saved in camp five years ago, and has given a splendid account of her Christian faith ever since. Last year she was chosen as the best all-around camper among the girls of the camp—chosen by the campers themselves. In addition to Brethren, the following denominations were represented in the student body: Baptist, Evangelical, Methodist, and several non-denominational churches.

Camp Buckeye this year was not only the largest in its enrollment, but it was the best all-around camp we have ever had. In fact Mr. Robert Maloney, superintendent of the Y.M.C.A. camp ground and Y.M.C.A. boys who camp there each summer, told the student body the last day we were in camp that it was the best group they had ever entertained, which is, to say the least, a very fine compliment to the Brethren young people of this district.

One of the decisive factors contributing to the success of the camp this year was the presence of the America Back to God Trio, consisting of Russel Ward, Kenneth Cummings, and Charles Bergerson, together with Mrs. Bergerson, who was dean of girls and camp nurse, and Mrs. Cummings, who assisted her husband in the class on Gospel Art among the junior group. Most certainly there was not a single camper who would not declare that the Trio added tremendously to the success of Camp Buckeye in 1942. This certainly is a wonderful group of consecrated young men serving the Lord with their splendid talent. That the Lord will expand their ministry is our firm belief.

One of the real joys, to all was the fact that eight campers received Christ as their personal Saviour, twelve others dedicated their lives to Him as He shall direct.

Many there were who expressed their desire that camp might continue another week, and some even wept at the thought that they might not get to return next year. We sincerely hope that the Lord will permit our fellowship to continue in 1942, if He shall tarry in his coming.

In closing I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the wonderful way in which the students and staff cooperated in making this the finest and most pleasant year in the history of Camp Buckeye. I could not have desired a more cordial and cooperative group of men and women with whom to fellowship in such an undertaking. May the Lord richly bless in their ministry for Him is my sincere prayer.

—R. E. Gingrich, Dean.

TO MY FRIEND

I spoke to you about your soul today.
Perhaps you wished that I would go away
And say no more and let you be. But, O,
My cherished friend, if you could only know
The longing in my heart for you, the dread
Of looking forward, after you are dead,
Unto that certain day when you must stand
Before the throne of Christ! Works of your hand, Fruits of your heart, will not avail, for He Will ask you, "What did you do with Me?"
Dear friend of mine, there is no other way
Except through Him, Whom you deny today.
How could I bear it, if in your despair
And bitter grief, you cried, "Did she not care
Enough for me to speak? to point the way?
To save me from this anguish and dismay?"
My heart is bleeding, thinking of your woe,
Your terror, and your helplessness and so
I spoke to you about your soul today.
I could not leave you, could not go away.

GOD HAS MADE THREE APPOINTMENTS WITH EVERY MAN

1. At Calvary.
2. At death.
3. At the Judgment.

If you refuse the first one, the second and the third will be all the more severe for you; but if you meet Christ at Calvary, He'll take care of you at the other two meetings.

"Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, we have boldness toward God."—I John 3:21.

Once in a while, earnest Christians find themselves in a condition of mind which makes prayer impossible. Words come with extreme difficulty and seem as hollow as an empty church. We have the impression that we are hypocrites, and truly desire nothing we are asking for, although for months, perhaps, we have been praying in all sincerity and our hearts have been burning with the zeal of our desire for the blessings of God. Truly, when we find ourselves so wordless and so empty of feeling, prayer is labor and in the true sense of the word impossible.

When we are in a state like this, we usually know what is the matter: our consciences are defiled; we have done something wrong. The condition may be compared to a house in which the lights have gone out. We have blown a fuse. Some place there is a short circuit. If we know where the trouble is, we have it fixed. Likewise, if we are to have connection with the Father again, we must remove whatever thing is coming between us and him, make things right, and confess our sin.

If we don't know where the trouble is, we can ask the Father. That is one request which will go through on a dead line. Also, read the Word: for the answer may be there. If we don't want to stay in the dark and the loneliness of our separation from God's fellowship, we had better hunt till we find the short. —La Verne, Calif., Bulletin.

WHAT THE SOLDIERS NEED

A group of ministers asked a young soldier how they might better entertain the soldiers. He replied: "We have been entertained to death. Give us the gospel." —Sel.

The Truth---And It Hurt

When my wife died, leaving me with two lovely daughters, I resolved to bring them up to be the fine, sweet women she wanted them to be. I earned a good living. We had a lovely home. I hired a housekeeper, saw that my daughters attended Sunday School regularly.

As the years passed, while my daughters grew into their teens, I grew lonesome. I found relaxation and companionship with a divorcee who, though she smoked and drank, was always pleasant. I introduced her to the girls, but I had no intention of marrying her, because I knew she would not be a proper mother to the girls, though I saw no harm in a left-handed alliance that was agreeable to both of us. I was in a position to help her financially, and we drifted into an "affair."

Gradually I began to have trouble with my daughters at home. The housekeeper said they would not mind her. She said they often stayed out late evenings, coming home shortly before I did. I caught the younger girl smoking. I scolded them and pleaded with them, but they continued to do as they pleased.

One afternoon I came home and found my older daughter "necking" with a young boy. I ordered the young man out of the house, and raged at her, concluding with, "Don't they teach you at Sunday School how a young lady should behave? I'm going to see your teacher now."

Indignantly I strode out of the house and drove to the Sunday School teacher's home, a couple of doors from the church I used to attend. Since my wife's death I had attended irregularly; and not at all since my relationship with Mrs. L—.

I demanded of the Sunday School teacher, "I want to know what is the use in sending girls to Sunday School and supporting the church if it can't teach young girls how to behave, to obey their parents, and to live moral lives. I have a big responsibility in bringing up two young girls. I certainly don't expect them to learn morals at high school, but I do expect the Sunday School to teach my girls to be good. Why have you failed?"

She looked me straight in the face. "The Sunday School has your girls one hour and a half a week. We cannot in that time correct and change what they have learned all week long in the home. We cannot impose upon them a standard which their father does not respect and follow. I have known for months that your girls were not following Christ, because of the example of their own father."

I blushed with shame. It is almost needless to say that I discontinued my relationship with Mrs. L.—— and started attending Sunday School with my daughters, that they might know their father backed up the teaching of the church.

They are again growing into lovely girls, thanks to a Sunday School teacher with the courage to speak the truth.—Selected.

ONE THOUSAND CONGREGATIONS in a certain denomination were studied by Roger Babson. Over a period of 4 years he found that 70% of the pews were vacant, and 58% of the members did nothing in any way to support the churches. In the country churches 71% attended and in the city 30% attended. He estimated that in the U. S. only 1 in 10 protestants goes to church regularly. Our Lord has been disgracefully represented.

GOD'S CALL TO WATCH!—Mark 13:33-37

Things to watch:

1—Our Walk—"See that ye walk circumspectly." Eph. 5:15.
2—Our Actions—"Abstain from all appearance of evil." I Thess. 5:22.
3—Our Time—"Redeeming the time because the days are evil." Eph. 5:16.
4—Our Conversation—"Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ." Phil. 1:27.
5—Our Habits—"And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed." Rom. 12:2.

Books reviewed in this column we consider fundamental to the Christian standard, although there may be some small portions with which we do not agree or, of which we cannot approve. In such instances we shall call attention to that with which we are not in accord.

Books reviewed here may be procured from The Brethren Missionary Herald Co., 3326 Calhoun St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"Great Missionaries to Africa," by J. T. Mueller, published by Zondervan. This volume tells of the toils and the struggles of thirteen missionaries, as well as their victories and successes. The missionaries Dr. Mueller writes about are: Robert Moffat; David Livingstone; Johann L. Krapf; Samuel L. Crowther; Francois Coillard; John Mackenzie; James Stewart; Geo. Grenfell; Robert Laws; Mary Slessor; Alexander Mackay; Graham W. Brooke and Dan Crawford. A book for any library, but especially for our youth that they might realize the blessings of these mighty soldiers of the Cross. 176 pages, cloth, $1.00.

"JUDITH, Martyred Missionary of Russia," by N. I. Saloff-Astakhoff, published by Zondervan. A true narrative of the life of a girl, the daughter of a prominent Jewish family in Russia, who found Christ and then had to leave her father's house. Fully yielded to her Lord she served him and finally found an end to this earthly life by the sword of a group of soldiers. A life of victory portrayed in this beautiful youthful Jewish martyr will touch the heart of all who read it. Written by one who had the privilege of observing the life of this missionary. 204 pages, cloth, $1.00.

"Seeking Kenya's Treasures" by Gertrude Hill Nystrom, published by Zondervan. In reality this volume is more than a biography; it is a tale and journal of missionary adventure in the heart of African jungles as well. The author is an excellent story teller. Though chiefly a biography of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Johnston, pioneer missionaries of the African Inland Mission, Miss Nystrom thrills the reader as she reveals, from letters written, the great work of these pioneers to Africa. Written in story form. Especially interesting to youth. 147 pages, cloth, $1.00.

INVESTMENTS

We should never think of anything we give or do for the Lord as just something done or given. We must remember they are investments. There is a sense in which we never give. Everything that we contribute to the Lord's work is invested. In eternity (if not here) we shall receive dividends for all these investments. Of course we would contribute and work even if we never expected to receive any rewards nor dividends just because we love our Lord. "The love of Christ constraineth us." But God in His love and grace has provided for these dividends and rewards.

Therefore, whether man appreciates our service or not, we will serve, for God knows all about it. Whether man praises or not, we will serve, for God will some day say, "Well done!" We will be faithful in giving "as unto the Lord" and not as "men-pleasers." "Looking unto Jesus" we will give and work "with an eye single to His glory."

What a vast change this would make in many lives if this realization would come. Whether we like or are liked, we would be faithful, for we love our Lord and He loves us.

"The coming of the Lord draweth nigh." What have our investments been? How we will wish that we had made a bigger investment in the day of His appearing. It's not too late yet.—Whittier, Calif., Bulletin.

"And Jabez was more honorable than his brethren" (I Chron. 4:9).

In the long list of "begats" of I Chronicles, the notice of Jabez stands out like the moon in a dark sky. It says that "Jabez called on the God of Israel, saying, Oh that thou wouldest bless me indeed, and enlarge my border, and that thou wouldest keep me from evil, that it be not to my sorrow! And God granted him that which he requested."

From reading these genealogies, one receives the impression that although many men live and are married and beget sons and daughters, their lives amount to little and they are worthy of no more than to have their names set down. Yet, amidst all this mediocrity, one occasionally finds a person of distinction whose doings are so noteworthy that they demand attention even in a catalogue of family trees.

"Jabez was more honorable than his brethren." Yet it was not mighty deeds or cleverness or wisdom which made him more worthy of honor than others, but an act which is within the range of the weakest and the humblest human being! He simply asked God to bless him and keep him from doing evil, and God as simply granted his request. Each one of us may pray, "Lord, make my life to please thee;" and if we truly mean it, He will grant our petition so that we also may amount to more than a name, and our lives may be lives of distinction in the annals of God. —Bulletin, La Verne, Calif.

If you want to be distressed, look within.
If you want to be defeated, look back.
If you want to be distracted, look around.
If you want to be dismayed, look before.
If you want to be delivered, look to Christ.
If you want to be delighted, look up.

WHY I ATTEND THE PRAYER MEETING

It is a lifelong habit.

Heb. 10:25 enjoins assembling together in worship.

I enjoy every meeting.

That is where we study the Scripture and are taught by the Spirit.

There we present petitions and thanksgiving to our Father and He hears us.

For a little mid-week hour I lay down the vexations and burdens of the day and rest upon the love and power that are mine for the taking.

From there I go out a little stronger, a little more loving, to meet life's hard hours.

I believe what Christ said in Matt. 18:20. He is present at every meeting.

There is a bond that binds those who gather week by week that is one of the great joys of life. They make an "inner circle" to which I love to belong.—Anow.

"Men may misjudge thy aim,
Think they have cause to blame,
Say, "thou art wrong,"
Keep on thy quiet way,
Christ is the Judge, not they;
Fear not, be strong."

D. L. Moody used to say that there was no better way to wake a church up than to put its members to work. He said: "One man will wake up another in waking himself up."—Ellet, O., Church Bulletin.

THE SICKELS OFF FOR ARGENTINA (?)

But why the question mark? Because as we go to press, we can only hope that Brother and Sister Clarence L. Sickel are en route to Argentina, as this issue of The Herald reaches our readers. But, in matters like this, we have had so many disappointments, that we can only say we hope until the soles of their feet are actually on the field at work. Due to many difficulties in connection with satisfying two governments in this case, the return of the Sickles has been greatly delayed. But, as we write, it seems all is well, and they will be off in a few days—off to the work to which they have given, and are giving the best days of their lives.

We trust that the readers of The Herald will hold them up before the Lord for a safe journey. The seas over which they are to sail are probably more dangerous than even the waters our missionaries must travel in going to Africa. Those who keep up with the news must know how exceedingly dangerous are the submarine infested waters of the Carribean Sea, and the approaches of the Panama Canal. The Sickels are sailing on a Chilean boat. They will go from New Orleans down to the Panama Canal, pass through the Canal, and then sail down the western Coast of South America to Valparaiso, and cross over the Andes to Rio Cuarto, Argentina—happy once more to be back to their life-work.

Brother Sickel has been the pastor of the Second Brethren Church of Long Beach for more than two years past. In his service there, he has proven that he is not only a successful missionary in South America, but is also a very successful pastor in the homeland. The Church in North Long Beach has been greatly blessed and unified under his ministry. They give him up reluctantly. God bless you, Brother and Sister Sickel! The brethren of the far southland anxiously await your return. Our loss in the homeland is their gain down there where the stars of the Southern Cross shine down!

MAILBAG

For the last piece of copy we are rushing to the printer for this issue, we quote from a letter just received from Brother Jobson, dated June 26, 1942:

"Through dangers seen and unseen our God delivered us, and to Him we give all the praise and glory. It was nothing short of a miracle that we even got passage, especially for Mrs. Jobson, but a safe trip without mishaps is even a greater deliverance. We were 24 days at sea, a bit longer than we expected, but the time question is no factor to consider now that we are safely here . . .

"With the trip across the ocean now behind us we are proceeding with plans to get to Bangui and on to our field. The baggage and freight has come with us safely this far. It appears as tho passage up the river will be available about July 5th which should get us to our station about July 20th. . . .

"Travel is proving expensive—hotels, transportation, and baggage tariffs are all very high. We are doing our best to keep our expense account down, but at the best it is going to be much higher than you calculated. . . .

"As we enter our 5th term of service it is our desire that God will endue us with power from on high that we may witness for Him to the salvation of many souls. Surely He has opened a way to return to the Field for a specific purpose and we yield our all, body, soul, and spirit, to Him that He may accomplish through us the works which He hath foreordained that we should fulfill.

"Greetings to our friends, prayer helpers, and children and God bless them all."

The first letter to be received from the Jobsons, written by them after landing in Africa, came to their son David, who permits us to quote in part:

"We were 24 days on the boat. It was a Norwegian ship named 'Besholt.' When we got on the boat in New York the captain told us we should wear our life belts day and night for seven days. Sure was hard to sleep in them. Then too, he said when we heard the siren, we should don our life saving suits, (they are rubber with six pounds of lead in the boots) and go to our life boats. Well, May 30th, Memorial Day, about 12 o'clock we heard the siren; we all jumped, tightened our life belts and went to our boat. We could see the submarine about two miles from us. The captain said he was sure any minute we would be shelled, but God . . .didn't permit it. When we think of the thousands who were praying for our safe deliverance, how could the enemy attack us? We had so much ammunition and gasoline on the boat, that had we been shelled, I am sure the boat would have gone up in flames. Well, praise the Lord once again. We had blackouts every night; surely is good to see lights again."

A Farewell Message from the Sickels

(Elder and Mrs. C. L. Sickel enroute to Argentina)

"And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and I will bring thee again into this land: for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of." Deut. 28:15.

Another furlough has come to a close—a long one this time. How little we thought when we said goodbye to friends in Argentina that three and one half years would roll away before we would see again the great Pampa. But the Lord willed for us to stay and we praise Him for the blessings of the "waiting time."

Thy Lord said, Go
And thou hast left thy net,
Thy home, thy friends, thine all
To go!

Should He Say, Stay
Wouldst frustrate God? Or yet
Thine own life's plan forestall?
Their stay!

The Master, Heed;
Bow to His will, nor fret
To go or stay, His call Obey.

But now as we face the great needy field of Argentina, we are glad that He has again said, "Go." We praise Him for answering prayer and opening the way, making possible our return.

In just a few days we will be sailing from New Orleans, south through the Panama Canal down the Pacific Coast to the land of God's choice for us.

We are going back not because there are more souls to be saved than in the U. S. for the need here is, as you know, tremendous. We wonder sometimes if the speech of a certain N. A. priest broadcast during the Eucharistic Congress in Buenos Aires may not be more true than we then thought it to be, when he said that the time was coming when South America would need to send missionaries to North America. We are going not because we do not like the fellowship at the North Long Beach Brethren Church for we have had a blessed two years with these people. If it were the Lord's will, how gladly we would continue on with them.

We are going, not because of any greater love for the people down there than for those with whom we might labor here. Not for any of these reasons, nor for the country; nor for the prospects of a pleasant voyage nor for a dozen other reasons that we might mention. But we go simply because it is the "easiest thing" to do when our Lord says "Go." We cannot do otherwise. We go because there is ever present with us the thought of the great neglected continent where multitudes for whom Christ came and suffered and died have not heard, or having heard it in the garbled form of Romanism, have turned away from it to unbelief; the continent of which it can be truly said, though it is almost unbelievable, that a line can be drawn for 4000 miles north and south and for 2000 miles east and west and not find one missionary agency.

See how the gospel messengers press on!
A mighty army, banners all unfurled,
Sweeps on in lengthening strides of victory
Mighty in deed and word throughout the world
But South America still awaits.

It seems as though each warrior's eager eye
Scanning, perceives the need of all mankind;
And facing death or danger, God's ordained
Bring life to those in death and sight to blind.
But South America still awaits.

Still waits, and waiting hopeless drifts away,
Drawn unto death, and ready to be slain.
Shall we forbear a saving hand to stretch,
Or close our ears to cries of souls in pain,
While South America still waits?

Her teeming tribes of savage red-skins need
Another Brainerd, still so long denied
While slaves of Pagan Rome make mute appeal
As doors wide open stand on every side.
Yet South America still waits!

Still waits! four weary centuries have gone;
Ripe is the harvest, but the laborers few.
Waits for the saving Christ, the cleansing blood
And waiting, calls for light, for help, for you!

As we go in answer to this call we solicit your prayers that we may be able to enter in and accomplish the work which God has appointed for us.

our last issue. This Easter offering balanced to the penny with our bank account, and we believe it absolutely correct. However, if any errors are found therein, we will be glad to make correction; but before writing our office with regard to any error, kindly check up with your local clerk, treasurer, financial secretary, or whoever made out and sent in the report for your local church. You will probably find the error to have been made in the report that was sent to us.

We might announce also in this issue that we have now totaled the offering for the fiscal year—July 1, 1941 to June 24, 1942. The total offering, all of which is voluntary gifts from our local churches, amounts to $69,007.16. This is nearly $19,000 more than any previous annual offering. In the year 1936-1937 our records show that we received $59,534.23, but in this year the amount over $50,000 was largely annuities. Verily, God must look with favor on our foreign work: and we praise Him for all His goodness to us in making it possible for us to be fellow-workers with Christ in making the great salvation known to those who sit in the gross darkness of heathenism and paganism.

MISSIONARY FAMILY NO. 1

That is the tribute that must be paid to Eld. and Mrs. Russell I. Humberd of Martinsburg, Pa. Bro. Humberd is the pastor of the church at McKee's Gap, Pa. Brother and Sister Humberd are the proud parents of seven children. Every one of these children became life members of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church about as soon as they could talk. In fact, if our memory serves us well, most of them were only days old when they came on the roll. At this Easter time, the 7th went on the roll. Nine members in that family—all life members! Does anybody want to challenge that record of holding first place? Nine! Think of that! How about 10 next Easter, Brother and Sister Humberd? Huh? What was that remark I heard? O, well, we doubt if your record will ever be surpassed as is! God bless you each and every one!

OUR MISSIONARIES ALSO

Last fall when the editor was in New York City, standing across the street from the City Post Office, he read the following inscription engraven upon the great stones of that public building:

"NEITHER SNOW NOR RAIN NOR HEAT NOR GLOOM OF NIGHT STAYS THESE COURIERS FROM THE SWIFT COMPLETION OF THEIR APPOINTED ROUNDS."

Of course, the "couriers" to which the inscription refers are the carriers of the United States mails. However, instantly we thought of our missionaries who are the "couriers" of the Word of God. All you need to do is to read the letters in this issue and in previous issues of the Herald, coming from our missionaries, and you will understand also that "neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

OUR DISAPPOINTMENT! HIS APPOINTMENTS?

It was the Apostle Paul, the greatest of all missionaries, who was compelled to write to the brethren at Thessalonica, "Wherefore we have come unto you, even I Paul, once and again; but Satan hindered us" (I Thess. 2:18).

This is exactly the message that our good Brother and Sister, Robert S. Williams, could have cabled to the Brethren in French Equatorial Africa, merely changing the name "Paul" to "Robert." If God permitted the mighty Paul to be hindered in his missionary journey, what is it that one of our missionaries today should not be hindered likewise by Satan? Verily, "the ways of God are past finding out." Without a doubt God could have undertaken and seen to it that Paul was not hindered and likewise today He could have seen to it that Brother and Sister Williams were not hindered by Satan. Some day, in the light of the glory of His face, in that other world, the mysteries that have perplexed us here will be understood.

Nevertheless, the fact of the matter is that after we, together with Brother and Sister Williams, had persuaded the United States Government to grant the passports, and after reservations had been secured on the S. S. Guine, and after vises had been secured from the French Equatorial African authorities, we were held up by the Portuguese Government in Lisbon. The S. S. Guine is a Portuguese boat and is bound for Lisbon, from which point Brother and Sister Williams would have sailed on another boat across to Africa. They waited, but waited in vain for some word from Lisbon; but it did not arrive, and they were compelled to stand and watch the S. S. Guine sail away without them. Talk about disappointment that was a real one, after all the adversities that these two good people have passed through in order to go to the rescue of their overworked fellow-missionaries in Africa. Assuredly no fault can attach to them. But we are compelled to believe that their disappointment, in some way or other beyond our ken, will prove to be God's appointment. Perhaps He did not want them to sail via Portugal, or perhaps it was wholly that He permitted Satan to test us out.

Anyhow, there are the facts, and we can only say to the readers of The Herald that we covet their prayers as Brother and Sister Williams, undaunted, continue their battering away against the powers that be, until they break through and reach the goal. Their lives are on the altar; God has called them; they refuse to be downcast; they will reach Africa yet even though they reach Africa as Paul reached Rome, at last. Remember that the officers in charge of Paul on board that mission ship, when it was wrecked by storm, "commanded that they which could swim should cast themselves first into the sea and get to land: and the rest, some on boards, and some on broken pieces of ship" (Acts 27:43,44). We do not know whether Brother and Sister Williams can swim or not; but if not, we are persuaded after all their experiences, that they will be unafraid to tackle the floating "boards."

IF EVER YOU HAVE PRAYED, PRAY NOW!

In his "Heart To Heart Talks" for July, 1942, Charles E. Fuller, Director of the Old Fashioned Revival Hour, appeals to every loyal servant of Christ to pray definitely for a very definite purpose. We quote from the "Heart To Heart Talks":

"At this time the Old Fashioned Revival Hour NEEDS the prayers of its friends, for serious problems have arisen. There is now organized opposition to all fundamental programs in the United States, and this organization is bringing pressure to bear on the radio stations, asking them to refuse time to all religious programs which are not approved by a committee (though these programs are paying for their time). They plan later to have time given free of charge for APPROVED religious programs, and the Old Fashioned Revival Hour would NOT be on that approved list! Why? Because the hour is fundamental and too evangelistic in its teaching. This is a powerful organization, and what a tragedy it would be if it could accomplish the ends which it is now trying to attain! So we ask all our friends to pray regarding this matter—that God will undertake and frustrate these plans!"

Back of this movement "for approved religious programs" is undoubtedly the power of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. It is quite evident that this modernistic organization, honeycombed as it is by unbelief in the inspired Word of God and by Communism, proposes to throttle the teachers and preachers who believe in the faith of our fathers as is revealed in the very Word of God. The whole proposition is a direct blow at the very thing for which our President has told us America is now fighting—freedom of speech. It is the program of the Antichrist so clearly set forth in Rev. 13. Christians, if ever you have prayed, pray now; for the success of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in this matter would be but the beginning of their attempt to take over complete control of the religious life of America. We cannot believe that America is to be thus Russianized.

RIDICULOUS INTERPRETATIONS OF SCRIPTURE

The present world stress is giving false prophets their greatest opportunity of all time to cash in on their wares. Most of these false prophets know little more about the true revelation of God than the apes of darkest Africa. They manage to dispose of their wares, at a very good price, to those who are ignorant of the Word of God. They widely advertise their wares from the pulpit, through the press, and over the radio. The proclaimers of British Israelism is a sample. No thoroughgoing student of the Word of God can be deluded by this unscriptural ism.

We have just read, in a great newspaper published in Los Angeles, a press dispatch from the eastern shore of the United States, setting forth that some prophet back there declares that Isaiah's prophecy in 3:18-26 is being fulfilled in the clamping down of the government upon the sale of automobile tires.

We are also reliably informed that Governor Coke R. Stevenson of Texas, observed recently that today's tire situation is the fulfilment of a prediction by the prophet Isaiah. It is certainly refreshing to know that the governor of a great state at least believes in the fulfilment of Bible prophecy.

It is astonishing how many people have either written or spoken to the editor, calling attention to this passage, and expressing their belief that it does refer to the government taking away from its citizenry the right to purchase new automobile tires. We now quote this passage in full, for it is apparent that not many people really go to the Bible and read the passage, else they would not be troubled by silly interpretations.

SPECIAL NOTICE ABOUT

Foreign Missions Handbook

At last, after many trials and tribulations, chiefly at the office of publication in Cleveland, the new "Handbook of Missionary Facts" is off the press, and has been mailed to members of The Foreign Missionary Society.

We wish every member of the Society to have a free copy of this handbook. If you fail to receive yours, drop us a card and one will be mailed immediately.

Pastors and Church workers may have an extra supply of these books for use in keeping alive the spirit of missions in your congregations. Let us know the number you can profitably use.

Louis S. Bauman, Sec'y-Treas.
1925 E. 5th Street
Long Beach, Calif.

The passage reads:

"Therefore the Lord will smite with a scab the crown of the head of the daughters of Zion, and the Lord will discover their secret parts.

In that day the Lord will take away the bravery of their tinkling ornaments about their feet, and their cauls, and their round tires like the moon.

The chains, and the bracelets, and the mufflers,

The bonnets, and the ornaments of the legs, and the headbands, and the tablets, and the earrings,

The rings, and nose jewels,

The changeable suits of apparel, and the mantles, and the wimples, and the crisping pins.

The glasses, and the fine linen, and the hoods, and the vails.

And it shall come to pass, that instead of sweet smell there shall be stink; and instead of a girdle a rent; and instead of well set hair baldness; and instead of a stomacher a girding of sackcloth; and burning instead of beauty.

Thy men shall fall by the sword, and thy mighty in the war.

And her gates shall lament and mourn; and she being desolate shall sit upon the ground."

Now, when the description of the prophet speaks of "round tires like the moon, the chains, . . . and the mufflers, . . . and the headbands, . . . the rings, . . . the glasses, and the fine linen and the hoods," we can understand how some folks envision the automobile. Likewise, the picture of the automobile becomes a bit more emphatic when it declared that "instead of a sweet smell there shall be a stink"—well, anybody who has followed closely in the wake of an automobile might understand even that! However, will these fanciful interpreters tell us just what it means when the prophets declared, touching the object of their prophecy, "the Lord will discover their secret parts," and that "in that day the Lord will take away . . . the bracelets, . . . the bonnets . . . and the ornaments of the legs, . . . and the earrings, . . . and nose jewels, the changeable suits of apparel, . . . and the wimples, and the crisping pins, . . . and the vails"; and "instead of well set hair baldness." The editor knows something about the baldness of human anatomy but just what picture comes to one's mind when he thinks of a bald automobile? And, just what sort of a mental picture would have to come to the mind in order to apply to an automobile, the Scripture—"she being desolate shall sit upon the ground"? Perhaps that means that somebody has taken the wheels from under her and stolen the gasoline from her tank, leaving her "desolate" on the roadside!

O, well! as for us we will still believe that the prophet of the Lord had "the daughters of Zion" (v. 17) in mind and not the contraptions of Detroit!

As a matter of fact, the prophecy of Isaiah is a prophecy that was fulfilled to the letter long, long ago.

AN AGES OLD PROPHECY BEING FULFILLED

Is it possible that any thinking man or woman can read Deut. 28 and still not believe in inspiration? How, under the stars that shine, could any individual look down through nearly 4,000 years of time, and so perfectly describe the sufferings of his own people? All the centuries that lie in between the writing of the book of Deuteronomy by Moses, and our day, confirm the great prophecy of this 28th chapter.

We read toward the close of this chapter:

"And the Lord shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other; and there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone.

And among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest: but the Lord shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind:

And thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear the day and night, and shalt have none assurance of thy life:

In the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even! and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning! for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt fear, and for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see" (Deut. 28:64-67).

Verily, the Lord hath scattered the sons of Jacob among all the nations of the earth. And, in these nations, they find no rest for the soles of their feet. Nearly 1,000,000 Jews have had to flee for their lives into some other region between the years 1933 and 1940. According to Time magazine, 330,000 fled to Russia, 135,000 to the United States, 150,000 to England, 116,000 to Latin America, 110,000 to Palestine, 150,000 to England, Belgium, France and the Netherlands. And, in some of these lands, the agonies continue. Especially is this true in France, Belgium and the Netherlands, in which lands the Satanically inspired Nazis caught up with the Jews. It is said that 700,000 have been done to death in Poland alone. As is well known, a great multitude of Jews—4,000,000—dwell in Russia, and most of them in western Russia. The Nazis overrun western Russia. God only knows as yet the horrors through which the Jews in that part of Russia have been passing. Verily, God's Word stands. When the leaders of Israel cried in Pilate's hall, "We will not have this man to reign over us," little did they realize what the rejection of their Messiah would mean to them. But some of these days, their eyes shall be open to behold Him. They shall see the nail prints in His hands, and shall cry as did Thomas, "My Lord and my God," and a nation will be born in a day. Then, it will be a different story.

"And they shall look upon Me Whom they have pierced!"

One of the most marvelous changes that has taken place in this world of men in recent years is the attitude of the Jew toward our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Only a few years ago, his attitude toward Christ was one of contempt and hatred; but all of this is gradually, almost imperceptibly, being changed. Instead of spitting upon the ground and pronouncing the curse, "May His name and memory be blotted out," the Jew now, when hearing the name of our Lord, speaks very respectfully of Him. Indeed, He is being admired by the Jewish leaders and the people themselves. They speak of Him still as "the greatest teacher" and "the greatest prophet" that Israel ever had. While this is not to acknowledge Him as the virgin-born Son of God, yet it is a tremendous change from the attitude of the Jews toward Him through the centuries since He died upon the cross. Rabbis today frequently use His words as texts for their sermons. Formerly the New Testament was a forbidden book among them. Now it is eagerly read by many of them. Indeed it is known that in some Jewish seminaries and teachers' institutes, the New Testament has been used as a textbook. Verily, verily, the hour is at hand when "they shall look upon Him whom they have pierced," and believe!

JUST WHO IS DUE FOR EXTERMINATION?

On the last Jan. 30, Adolf Hitler, in one of his blustering speeches, said: "This war can end only with the extermination of the German people or the extermination of the Jews; it will end with the extermination of the Jews." Well, Adolf Hitler is not the first one who has decreed the extermination of the Jews. Apparently, world tyrants were decreeing the extermination of God's earthly people 1000 years before Christ, for more than 1000 years before Christ, David's complaint against these tyrants was written: "They have said, Come, and let us cut them off from being a nation; that the name of Israel may be no more in remembrance" (Ps. 83:4).

Hitler may boast, but the eternal God hath spoken: "Therefore fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the Lord; neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, lo, I will save them from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and shall be in rest, and be quiet, and none shall make him afraid. For I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee: though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee" (Jer. 30:10,11).

Again: "Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divideth the sea when the waves thereof roar: the Lord of hosts is his name: if those ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me for ever" (Jer. 31:35,36).

If our Lord shall tarry, when this war ends it will not end in either the extermination of the German people nor the extermination of the Jews. It will end in the extermination of the world's greatest plague—Adolf Hitler.

THIS "CHRISTIAN NATION"

(The editor wrote an editorial shortly before Pearl Harbor was raided by the Japanese on Dec. 7 last, when many hundreds of our boys were suddenly and treacherously hurled into eternity. This editorial was crowded out of the issue for which it was intended, and has since lain on the shelf. Just before this copy was mailed, we reread the editorial and now are printing it in this issue. Sometimes Christians marveling at the mystery of the ways of God are

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

"The difference between listening to a radio sermon and going to church is the same as the difference between calling a girl on the telephone and spending an evening with her."—Christian Herald.

prone to ask why God permitted a tragedy such as took place at Pearl Harbor. Perhaps this editorial may throw some light upon the subject. At least it should cause us to think.)

We hear so much these days about England and America being great Christian nations, but we sometimes wonder. We doubt whether there is such a thing on the face of the earth as a Christian nation. That hour is on ahead of us when "the kingdoms of the world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ, and he shall reign forever." The revelator tells us that that day will not come until the 7th trump sounds.

The following incident is quite significant. It comes to us from a young man who is a member of the Long Beach, Calif., church, who is in charge of certain equipment that takes in the playing of records for the entertainment of the crew on one of the largest battleships of the American navy. We shall quote directly from his letter.

"It just seems that the world's desires are not on things above. Just the other day I went to Honolulu City and bought a few records—Gospel hymns. Every night recordings are played on deck for the entertainment of the crew. Of course all the music is this boogy woogy stuff. Since I am in charge of all this equipment, I decided to see what the reaction would be to a good hymn; so I put on that good old hymn, "Face to Face." But the devil was at work, as I only got to play it three quarters through and was ordered to stop it!

"Certainly, from the way everyone is turning from the gospel, it looks as if we are coming nearer to the latter day; but I praise God that I am able to live a victorious life regardless of this world. I feel like a sojourner in a strange land. As an ambassador of the Lord, I pray that I may be led to present the cross to everyone I contact. . . . There is a great need for workers in the navy. We are trying to start a Bible class on the ship that will glorify the Word and stay wholly with it."

How we do thank God for a few men. like this man, who are in the navy. One of these days they may be tremendously needed on the bloody decks of our battleships. Thank God that they will be there, able to point the dying to the Christ Who is able to save to the uttermost.

"But what a pity that on a ship where death may reign in the very near future, there can be found anyone. especially in command. who will order a hymn like "Face To Face" stopped when on the record. No wonder mothers sometimes despair when their boys are drafted and taken away to war. perhaps to die on a ship where a hymn such as "Face To Face With Christ My Savior" is taboo. God pity any nation that is so utterly under the control of the atheistic Jew or the unregenerate Roman Catholic or the God-hating communist. that a Christian hasn't the privilege of sitting and listening on the deck of its battleships to a sweet old Christian hymn.

The President of the United States has urged the Gideons to furnish millions of New Testaments to place in the hands of the boys in the army and the navy. What will Mr. Roosevelt have to say concerning the above incident should it be called to his attention? We wonder!

TAHQUITZ ROCK

Elsewhere in this issue of the magazine is the announcement of the Brethren Young People's Camp for the churches of Southern California. This is to be held up in the San Jacinto Mountains in Idyllwild where the Southern California Christian Endeavorors have a beautiful ground. The outstanding landmark of that part of the country is Tahquitz Rock, a picture of which adorns the front cover of this issue of The Missionary Herald.

Another has said:

"Tahquitz or Lily Rock is one of the majestic sights at Tahquitz, towering 3000 feet directly above the grounds and seen through the pine trees certainly gives one a thrill—changing its color as the clouds float above and at sunset is tinged with the colors of the rainbow.

One thinks of Christ the Rock of Ages as one sits in Victory Circle singing and praying until the shades of night hides it from view. Every morning and throughout the days, months and years, as the sun shines upon it, its great dome points heavenward, and again reminds us of the One Who is the same Yesterday, Today and Forever."

This rock, standing on the side of old Mount Jacinto which towers upward of 10,000 feet above the sea, must have had something to do with inspiring the following poem by Helen Frazee-Bower of Southern California:

My Father is an architect in stone;
His granite pinnacles, projecting high
Into a far place, secret and alone
Stand sentinel against the quiet sky.
Their beauty is a deep and still delight,
Their solid strength a challenge to the soul,
Calling my spirit to some lonely height,
Lifting my life toward some splendid goal.

Beholding these, I am remembering
Another Stone, rejected once of men;
When earth's foundations totter, let me cling
To Jesus Christ, the Rock of Ages; when
I build my young life, tall and straight and slim,
Oh, let it be a structure built on Him.

Dr. Gribble's Final Message

(Note—Unless some letter is en route to the United States and has not yet reached the editor, we are here presenting Dr. Gribble's last message to the readers of The Brethren Missionary Herald. It is to be noted that this letter was written on Feb. 23, 1942, just exactly five weeks prior to her "loosing-away-upward" to be with Christ. It is to be noted that the final expression of this probably-final message of Mrs. Gribble ends as we would expect it to end, with the words, "May this . . . be to the praise of His glory." Accompanying this letter was a very brief note from Mrs. Mrs. Gribble, dated two days later, Feb. 25, which we here quote in full:

"Bellevue le 25 Fevrier 1942.

Dear Dr. Bauman:

I am sending you a brief report of our February Conference, also a copy of my letter to Miss Wright, which is self explanatory. These are busy days with short hands, and we cannot write as we would.

We are praying that missionaries may be able to obtain passports. We have not yet heard whether Jobsons and Williams are on the way, or whether Miss Crawford reached home safely, but we are trusting Him Who doeth all things well.

Very sincerely yours,

—Florence Newberry Gribble."

This note also ends as the editor would expect it to, and even had she known that five weeks hence her spirit would take its flight to be with Christ—"we are trusting Him Who doeth all things well."

The editor has also seen a letter, dated Feb. 23, 1942, that was written to a Miss Wright, a friend of Dr. Gribble's, in which Mrs. Gribble wrote: "I am just convalescing from the worst fever I have had in 10 years." Again this letter ended in a phrase characteristic of this wonderful woman: "Our times are in His hands." —L.S.B.)

"Bellevue, par Bossangoa par Bangui
Afrique Equatoriale Francaise
Feb. 23, 1942

Dear Herald Readers:

The Feb., 1942, conference is a thing of the past in actuality, but its fragrant memories still linger on in our hearts.

Guests all arrived during the day of Tuesday, Feb. 3. Yaloke missionaries had considerable delay due to trouble with battery. The Bouca missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. Foster, had preceded all others to Bozoum. Mr. Foster made a tour of the stations at this time.

About noon, two of the cars were waiting at Bozoum, and the Kliever's and the Foster's proceeded to Bassai. Bellevue had arrived before their departure, but decided to wait for Yaloke, and finally to investigate as to the nature of the difficulties. But just then the Yaloke car passed Bozoum and preceded us to Bassai, where the Plymouth arrived shortly after.

There was a hurried assignment of rooms to late comers, and a hasty preparation for supper, that all might be in readiness for the opening session of the conference at 7:15.

Mr. Foster gave the opening address, on the theme of Unity. One of the other missionaries had thought of using this subject, but felt definitely led to choose another. Our newly arrived missionaries, Miss Byron, Miss Emmert and Mrs. Kennedy, then briefly recounted some of their thrilling experiences while separated from us. Truly our hearts do praise Him for bringing them safely to the field.

It had been a long weary, tho happy, day; and all were glad to retire for a night of rest in preparation for the expected time of blessing on the morrow and succeeding days.

The mornings were spent in prayer. Too much importance cannot be placed on this. We believe that success in the Oubangui-Chari Mission has been in direct proportion to our faithfulness in individual and united prayer.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Dunning gave the first of a series of Bible studies on the mission prophets. All of the Bible studies were immensely appreciated. They were given exclusively by one of our two seminary men, Mr. Kliever, or Mr. Dunning. Mr. Kliever's studies were on the Old Testament types, and exceeding profitable. If there is one thing more important than our speaking to God, it is His speaking to us through His Word. Bible exposition is to private Bible study what united prayer is to individual prayer. The Lord Jesus is the center and theme of both. Our missionaries are now so few and scattered, that to meet in as large a group as 13 for prayer and the study of the Word was a rich feast.

Mr. Foster had asked every missionary to come prepared with a message. In addition to the Bible studies and messages mentioned above, each of the 10 ladies also gave a message. Some of the senior ladies have always been upon the conference program, but for some of our young ladies it was a triumphant ordeal! Try to give a set message yourself to a little group of 12 who know your faults, failures and infirmities! But the messages were well received, and the presence of God was very evidently with each speaker. In the order in which they were given, the subjects the ladies presented were as follows:

(1) Victory, Mrs. Kennedy; (2) Dual Personalities, Miss Byron; (3) Psalm 15, Mrs. Dunning; (4) Policy of Missions, Miss Emmert; (5) Counsellors of the Word of God, Mrs. Kliever; (6) The Glory of the Lord Jesus, Mrs. Gribble; (7) The Obedience of Christ, Miss Bickel; (8) John 14, Mrs. Foster; (9) Prayer, Miss Myers; 10) Jonah as a Prophet, Miss Tyson.

The missionary who had considered giving a meshage on "Unity" had been definitely led to change later, partially prepared a message on prayer, and was as definitely led to change. Thus the program presented neither conflict nor theme repetition, but a marvelous harmony. None could help observing how frequently reference was made to certain passages of Scripture, notably Phil. 2, which seemed to run like a golden thread through most of the messages. Next in frequency of appearance was Heb. 1:3, quoted by various speakers and Bible teachers to illustrate varying themes.

Sunday was the pivotal day of the conference. Up to this time, the program was devoted exclusively to communion with the Lord Jesus through prayer and the Word of God. Sunday the observance of ordinances of our Lord, in communion preceded by the love feast and feet washing, took place. The communion service proper was preceded by a wonderful pre-communion sermon by Mr. Kliever. Mr. Dunning

LOUIS S. BAUMAN, Treasurer.

GERALDINE JUDD, Bookkeeper.

HE COMETH!

"Behold, He cometh" Lift your head,
Redemption draweth nigh;
That One Who suffered in your stead,
Ascended now on high,
Himself will come, God's Holy One,
Who doth your sorrows feel,
Who died, Who lives, the Father's Son,
All glory to reveal.
Doth not this overwhelming thought
Your very sorrow drown—
The richest grace shall yet be brought,
When He Who cometh down,
Will all His sleeping ones awake,
With all His angel-train,
And all His waiting ones will take
With them, to share His reign?

A strong appeal had been made for money to carry on the work of the gospel. After the service a prominent church member approached the speaker and said, "I do not believe in giving to foreign missions, and I do not believe in tithing, because the thief on the cross did not have to do these things, and yet Christ said he would be saved." To this the minister replied, "There is a difference between you and the dying thief." "What is that?" the church member asked. The minister answered, "The difference is that he was a DYING thief, and you are a LIVING one."

Minutes of General Interest

Selected from the Minutes of the Business Sessions of the Field Council Meeting of The Oubangui-Chari Mission. Bassai, Feb. 9-13, 1942.

Missionaries present. Dr. Gribble, Miss Myers, Miss Bickel, Miss Emmert, Miss Tyson, Mrs. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Foster, Miss Byron, Mr. and Mrs. Kliever, and Mr. and Mrs. Dunning.

I. Field Secretary. Miss Tyson was elected as Field Secretary. (Ballot vote).

II. Minutes of Previous Meeting. The minutes of the special called meeting of Mar. 1941 were read and approved.

IV. Voting Privileges to Dunnings. Motion prevailed that Mr. and Mrs. Dunning be accepted as members of the Field Council and that they be given the power to vote.

V. Bozoum Bible School. Motion prevailed that Mr. Kliever be requested to work out a schedule for Bible School, and that it be presented at a subsequent meeting.

VII. French School. Motion prevailed that the French School be continued at Yaloke under Miss Emmert's administration and at her discretion, and that the French School be continued at Bassai, as soon as there is a teacher.

VIII. Bozoum Bible School. Motion prevailed that the preliminary report concerning Bible School schedule presented by Mr. Kliever be accepted.

IX. Appointment of Missionaries.

1. Motion prevailed that Miss Emmert be appointed to Yaloke Station.
2. Motion prevailed that Mrs. Kennedy be appointed to Bozoum until reenforcements arrive.
3. Motion prevailed that Mr. and Mrs. Jobson be appointed to Bozoum.
4. Motion prevailed that upon the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Jobson, Mr. and Mrs. Kliever and Mrs. Kennedy be transferred to Bekoro Station.

X. Superintendent of Yaloke Station. Motion prevailed that Mr. Dunning be appointed Yaloke Station Superintendent.

XI. Assistant Field Treasurer. Motion prevailed that Mrs. Kennedy be appointed Assistant Field Treasurer.

XII. Bible Conference Correspondent. Motion prevailed that Mrs. Foster be appointed to correspond with Mrs. Homer Kent concerning Bible Conferences.

XIV. Vacations in South Africa. Motion prevailed that we recommend that the missionaries, whose furloughs are due or overdue, may if they desire, take a furlough-vacation in South Africa, it being understood that it be for at least six months, which would extend their term on the field another two years for every six months thus spent; and that emergency furloughs be advised by the Medical Com. in connection with the Field Superintendent. We also recommend that the missionaries thus going be on an expense account while in South Africa instead of personal allowance.

XVI. Approval of Field Superintendent's Cable. Motion prevailed that the action of the Field Superintendent and the Field Treasurer, asking that Dr. Bauman hold field allowances until requested and that funds be sent out in dollars, be approved.

XVIII. Medical Auto. Motion prevailed that the Medical Auto be put into the custody of the Yaloke Station Superintendent during Dr. Taber's absence unless contrary instructions are received from the board.

XIX. Bellevue Auto. Motion prevailed that the Bellevue auto be kept in Dr. Taber's care for personal use; and that, if occasion permits, the car be repaired.

XXVII. Appointment of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt. Motion prevailed that due to the uncertainty of the time of arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt, we postpone their appointment until more definite word of their sailing is received.

XXX. Yaloke Sawmill. Motion prevailed that due to the shortage of Yaloke Station personnel, we consider the repair of the sawmill inadvisable at this time, and that we advise the Yaloke Station to endeavor to rehouse the machinery suitably.

XXXIII. Bellevue Building Project. Motion prevailed that Bellevue be authorized to use any funds available in Station Treasury necessary for the continuation of the Ladies' House, sum to be refunded when the special funds for this project arrive.

(Note:—The necessary money for the building of the "ladies' house" at Bellevue has been furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Abe Bowman of Long Beach, who have given a total of $900 for this job.

had charge of the morning service for the Karre Christians, speaking in Sango. Special music was rendered by the visiting missionaries. He also had charge of the evening communion service above described.

Monday morning the second or business part of the program commenced. As the secretary has sent a full report to the board, we will not record the business meetings.

Four days of business, in which we seemed wonderfully helped by the hand of God, speedily passed.

Then came the adjournment, and Friday the 13th of February the farewells. The Yaloke car left first, then the Bozoum truck, the Bouca car for Bozoum, then Bellevue last of all.

Most of the missionaries had an uneventful journey to destination. We from Bellevue had an accident when the Plymouth with deficient brakes was parked near the incline leading to the ferry. While the chaffeur was absent for a moment, the car suddenly rolled into the river. Hours of strenuous labors followed, extricating the Plymouth, renewing the oil etc. etc. Finally just before dark we reached home.

An almost miraculous thing happened here. Practically everything in my suitcase was soaked, except my Bible, which was absolutely untouched by water!

We praise God for the conference of February, 1942! May this brief report be to the praise of His glory.

Very sincerely yours,

—Florence N. Gribble."

Mrs. Minnie Kennedy (Feb. 23, 1942) wrote:

"They tell me that you received a telegram from me some time ago now, saying, 'Arrived here'. I'm so glad to know that you did receive it. I was doubtful when I handed it in, whether or not they would send it on. It should have read, 'Arrived Bathurst' though. I don't blame them though for changing 'Bathurst' to 'here.' They really did us a great kindness in so doing. They weren't going to give the enemy any information as to our whereabouts. We were right under the nose of Dakar, and submarines were sinking all the boats that they could find in that territory. I'd like to write and thank them for what they did. We weren't allowed off the boat. A young fellow came on board and took our letters and telegrams ashore for us. I was afraid he might be bluffing us. We'd never be able to go back and demand our money back. He said our boat was the first American boat to call there in the last three years.

"This makes me think of St. Paul's expression, 'What then? not withstanding, whether in pretence or in truth,' the cable arrived, and you knew we were safe somewhere. It was no pleasant surprise to us when we heard that we were going to Bathurst first. But praise the Lord, He brought us safely thru' and we're here safe and sound."

A letter from Elizabeth Tyson—By permission of the office secretary, we quote from Miss Tyson's letter to her, dated Feb. 25. 1942:

"Last week they brought in a very sick man from our Brali chapel field. We have been fighting hard to save his life, but it looks today as though the Lord would take him home. Yesterday morning I visited him to pray with him, and he certainly is happy in the Lord. He is nothing but a skeleton—yet when I asked him if he was prepared to meet his God, his bony face lit up and he said, 'Yes, I am trusting in Jesus; I have no fear of death. I'm counting on the name of Jesus Christ, my Lord'! The little mud hut seemed to light up with the glory of God, and I thought how different this scene from one that I witnessed last week! Another patient suddenly died. The gospel was presented to her quite often—yet each time she mocked it all and lightly joked about death. She was a Cameroun woman, and came originally from Elat; and I am sure that there, too, she often heard the gospel message. By her bedside sat her sister, weeping, and bent down with grief. She was Catholic. Suddenly she jumped up and began to holler, saying, 'You would not have the affair of God—you received much good from His hand—but you never thanked Him for anything—you refused the Lord Jesus—now then—you will burn in hell.' What a terrible denunciation—yet all true. The words cut like a knife; yet how many are doing just what she has done, and will have to face the same future as this poor soul! One soul going into everlasting life through faith—the other into eternal death because of neglect and wilful refusal to accept the free gift. Pray for our medical work that many shall find the way of life and accept it."

Again, Miss Elizabeth Tyson (Apr. 12, 1942) writes:

"This is a beautiful day. All nature seems fresh and green, for we have had several heavy rains and the telltale marks of the long dry season have disappeared. Everybody is thinking and talking garden now, especially among our native villagers. However, some of the missionaries, too, are preparing for the same, since the last mail brought us our seed orders from Burpee's Seed House.

"Even though much of the mail does not reach its destination, yet the Lord has always brought us our necessities; and again with the blessings of sun and rain, many of our material needs are supplied for another year. We certainly do have much for which to praise the Lord. He has graciously supplied our every need, and even thrown in many 'surprise packages'. . . .

"No doubt you have had the cable announcing Dr. Gribble's death. Well, it still does not seem true, for it came so suddenly; and it will be some time before we realize that we shall no longer meet her on earth, but that our next meeting will be in the air, which may not be very far off. It just seems our workers are being cut off one by one, and still we are waiting for re-enforcements.

"There are many ways in which we shall miss doctor, but perhaps the greatest loss will be her great faith and prayer life. She really was one that did not talk about praying, but actually did it. Never a morning passed by but she was up bright and early, interceding with the Lord for all of us. She was a living proof of the saying, 'prayer changes things'. Of course, we nurses will miss her greatly, especially since our $400 of this money was in the hands of the Field Council at the time of their meeting. The balance of $500 is en route.)

XXXIV. Medical Comm. Motion prevailed that we accept the recommendations of the Medical Comm.,

1. That the Pharmacy Agent get in touch with Dr. Bauman about the previous quinine order; and if no word has been received at the home office, that Mr. Jobson be instructed to bring out sufficient quinine for one year; and that Haliver Oil and Vitamin Tablets be ordered to come out in the emergency order.

2. That we try to secure coated quinine for those who need it from Bangui at present, and that it be paid for by the Missionary Medical Fund, as far as possible, with the money on hand, and that the balance be paid for from the Medical Fund of the station receiving the quinine.

3. That upon the request of the government, each station give them a list of the medicines required.

4. That unpaid bills for transportation on bandages be paid for from undisbursed medical funds.

XXXV. Next Field Council Meeting. Motion prevailed that the next regular meeting of the Field Council convene at Bassai, Feb. 4-13, 1943.

Respectfully submitted,

—Elizabeth Tyson, Secretary.

other doctor, too, is not with us; but the Lord still is on His throne, and Rom. 8:28 still holds good; so we must again commit our way to the Lord and rest and trust Him.

"We are praying that the Lord will speak to the hearts of many at home, and that John 12:24 shall again be fulfilled in our work: 'Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.' May this mean more workers, not only from home, but also from our native churches. The natives feel very keenly the loss, and say, 'The Lord has taken our mother home.'

"During the last two weeks of March, I was in Bangui visiting the Tabers . . . When I first arrived, Floyd was out on village work; but after he returned, I spent several mornings over at the hospital with him. He has plenty of work and is kept busy. I believe the Lord will use his sojourn there for His glory; already we are seeing some good . . ."

Little Charles Taber writes a letter to his Grandma, Mrs. Lizzie A. Kamoie, in Allentown, Penna., in which the readers of the Herald will be interested, and which we publish by permission. The children also have a right to be heard in these columns.

"Bangui, A.E.F., April 7, 1942

Dear Grandma:

How are you? We are all in good health here at Bangui. It sure has been a long time since I wrote, I'm so lazy. I'll try to make up for lost time. We've been here at Bangui for three months already, and we like it quite well. The climate's hotter here than at Yaloke. Marguerite and I go to French school now, but right now it's vacation. We've made a lot of friends. We go a lot to the Baptist Mission these days. Daddy has to see a sick lady, and takes us out for the ride and to play with Donald and Gordon Wimer. Did you know that Dr. Gribble has died? She died at Bellevue, Mar. 31. Miss Tyson was here for her vacation a little while ago. I think you know her. We had a good time with her. We're going to have a picnic on an island across the river tonight. Goodbye for this time.

Your loving Grandson,

—Charles.

Miss Verna Pepper, a member of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, has been working for a number of years with the China Inland Mission. Miss Pepper is an exceptionally fine Christian character, for whom we are sure the readers of the Herald will earnestly pray in these dark days. It has been very difficult even to learn of her whereabouts. Any mail addressed to her is returned to our office in Long Beach with the stamp "service discontinued." However, we have just received a letter from the headquarters of the China Inland Mission in Los Angeles that will be of interest to many of our readers:

"The last word we had concerning Miss Pepper was in the form of a cablegram, mentioning that she and Mr. and Mrs. Paulson had evacuated to Pucheng, Kugien province, because of the advance of the Japanese armies in their efforts to capture the railroad from Chekiang to Hunan province. Evacuations, especially hurried ones, always mean losses as well as physical hardship. A great thing, however, is the maintaining of fresh spiritual life and power from God, without which the missionary, and indeed any Christian, is in a tragic condition.

At present our thoughts are centered quite a bit on the question of the repatriation of foreigners, which includes some of the missionary staff. We have no desire to see any of God's servants being brought home except as they require furlough; and it would seem that the devil is stirring up Japanese authorities and others, to try and force out the missionaries of the gospel from those areas where the Japanese have control. We would ask your fellowship with us in prayer for this important matter."

News from Brethren CHURCHES

LA VERNE, CALIF.

Greetings from La Verne to readers of the Herald, the best of church papers.

We are rejoicing over many blessings and victories won lately. Our evangelistic meetings in May, led by Harry Van Bruch, Johnie Hallet, and our pastor, led many to make definite decisions for the Lord's work: some first time confessions, others dedication for lifetime service. Eight have been baptized since the meetings, four of whom were fathers and mothers. Others await baptism soon. Our pastor has given us excellent sermons on the Spirit-filled life, urging continuance in the revival spirit and in bringing others to Christ.

Last Tuesday night, in our regular quarterly business meeting, the balance of the church debt was paid off, leaving the church entirely free of debt for the first time in 19 years. Much of this was due to our pastor's plea a year ago to get busy and clear the mortgage.

We thank the Lord again and again for sending our dear Bro. Carter to us. He has been faithful in declaring God's Word, and doing the work God had for him with us; and has shown wisdom and love in leading us through difficult problems. We were sorry to have the Sheldons leave us. Rev. Tom Olson was with us two nights recently, giving us Bible land pictures, which, with his Bible discourse on each, were very inspirational. We also had the Sickel family with us two weeks ago. He preached for us while Bro. Carter preached in his church in N. Long Beach. We were reminded of service we may render to our boys in the service by two speakers from the Gideons, also giving an offering to them to help supply the Gideon Testament and Psalms to the boys.

Two of our sisters taught in the D.V.B.S. which lasted four weeks and was held in three different churches, one group being in our S. S. Bungalow.

Yours in Him,

—Mrs. Lydia A. Frantz.

The Jews chose Barabbas, the murderer, instead of the true Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, the life-giver; and that terrible choice has been the cause of all the sad tragedy of their national life ever since. Choose Christ; crown Christ; confess Christ; commend Christ; company Christ; and the vision of your redeemed personality will cause His name to be magnified. Let us, in His mighty name stand in gap for God in these darkening days.

An Ebony Paul Reappears In Jail

Yaloke Station, Feb. 25, 1942.

Dear Herald Readers:

The Lord's mercies are new every morning: great is His faithfulness (Lam. 3:23).

Miss Emmert, as you know, is with us now, having arrived Dec. 15. She started working hard immediately on the Christmas program and a new Banou primer to be used in teaching reading in the villages. Please pray much for this work. We feel the need of teaching more and more people to read the Word. It is the only hope for the indigenous church.

Mrs. Dunning

Mr. Dunning, Ruth, and I, spent Christmas and New Year with "Grandma Gribble" at Bellevue. After that, a few days were spent in a Bible conference at Bassai. Upon returning, we found that the Tabers had had to go to Bangui in our absence, so we moved into the house they had been occupying. Then followed days of getting settled, training a cook (which job will not be finished for some time!) trying to find our places in the work again, and getting ready for Field Council.

Jan. 27 the Yaloke missionaries were made happy by the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Foster, who were visiting all the stations before Field Council at Bassai. They stayed only a few days, returning the 31st.

February was the big day for leaving. The Medical Chevy had been tightly packed the evening before, as there is always a lot to be done when all the missionaries plan to leave a station for a period of time. We had hoped to start early enough to arrive at Bozoum to eat our lunch and then go on to Bassai in the afternoon. The car had been overhauled the day before so we had no worries.

Goodbys were said, the car rolled down the hill, and nothing happened! Strange, it had been running perfectly just a few minutes before. Then followed a period when Miss Tyson and I tried to keep the baby cool and as comfortable as possible, while the mechanics, Miss Emmert and Mr. Dunning, tried to find the "short." After some time it was fixed, and the car started with the help of Miss Emmert's radio battery. We returned to the station where Mr. Dunning repaired the car more thoroughly than could be done "on the road."

At last we were off again. The first time it was eleven minutes to eight; this time, eight minutes after eleven! We sped on by Bozoum, supposing everyone had gone ere this. But when we got to Bassai we learned Dr. Gribble and Miss Bickel had been waiting at Bozoum, fearing something had happened to us. They arrived soon after we did, though, having heard that we had gone on.

I will not dwell upon the blessings of conference and the fellowship we enjoyed with each other, as you will be hearing all about that from the pen of a much abler writer.

The trip home was not without its excitement, either, as by this time the leak in the radiator was much worse (with no frequent gas stations at which to stop for water), and we had no brakes. There is a barge to cross between Bassai and Bozoum, and the approaches are steep hills. We decided it was better to get out, all except the driver. We watched the car, in low gear, slide down the hill, bounce onto the barge, and—. No, it didn't go over, but stopped on the barge, for which we praised the Lord!

Home less than a week, and Native Workers' Bible Conference began. The chapel services in the morning and the afternoon sessions are divided among the three ladies. Mr. Dunning has the morning "Bible Hour," and he and Miss Emmert have charge of the "discussion time." Each evening there is a service, in charge of the natives down in the station village. They all gather around a large bonfire. Let us sit there with them.

The time is Monday evening, Feb. 23. Vouloungou, pastor of Yaloke church, is leading the singing. After all sing a few songs, there is group singing: the children, the catechists, their wives, the people from the station, etc. There are a few lanterns in evidence to enable those who have books to see to sing from them. They "start out" the stanzas, and the rest sing from memory.

Now it is time for the message. One of the catechists steps into the circle, a little nearer the fire; and holding his lantern aloft begins to read from the Word. After that he sets the lantern down, because, of course, he does not need notes to preach by. His message is on the sin of doubting and denying God.

At the close, another catechist arises and says, "I want to tell about being in jail." There is an interested murmur of assent, and Vouloungou quiets them again. (This catechist spent two weeks in jail. I wish I could tell you all he said, but I dare to give only a part of it.) Everyone was sorry for him, and much prayer went up on his behalf. But he is not sad. He has much joy because it gave him an opportunity to preach to some that he would perhaps never have reached otherwise. At night he would want to sleep, but the others would say, "No, wake up! Tell us more about the affair of God."

In early morning he would walk out of his hut, blow a whistle to call the others together in the circle, and start preaching. He was scolded by one soldier, who thought his intentions in getting the men and women together so early were evil. Another soldier scoffed at it, saying, "This man is good. . . . Don't worry about him. He is only showing the way of God to them." His message is one of victory throughout. He sits down. Vouloungou calls out another song, prayer is offered, and the meeting is over.

In giving his "report" at the morning chapel, another one of the catechists told of a group of men out in his district. Every one of them is old, with white hair, he said. They make oil for the administrator. Only one is a Christian; the rest are all idolaters. One day a thunderstorm came, and the lightning struck their idols, burning them all. They all confessed that the true God had done that; but so far as I know, they have not yet wanted Him for their own God and Father. Let us remember this one Christian among them, that his testimony might be bright.

A new session of school opens this coming week. pray for these children, that as they learn to read and learn of Christ, they may catch the vision of teaching the men and women in their own villages what they have learned. How necessary it is that people be able to read the Word.

Yours and His for souls,

—Marguerite G. Dunning

"Our Mother Has Disappeared!"

"SHE LOVED EVERYBODY"

(Note:—The following letter to the editor, written by Miss Mary Emmert, of Yaloke, F.E. Africa, should assuredly be read by all who are interested in our mission work in French Equatorial Africa. It reveals the deep love within the breasts of the African natives for one who gave her very heart's blood that they might come to know her Savior.—Ed.)

Yaloke par Bangui, Oubangui Chari,
French Equatorial Africa.
April 11, 1942.

Dear Brother Bauman:

The African Christians say that their great mother has gone to be with the Lord. They realize that Dr. Gribble and her husband were the founders of this work under God, and that those who were sitting in darkness have seen a great light through their ministry.

The black people continually give thanks for the missionaries that God has sent to save them by the gospel story, so they are appreciative of what is done for them. And in this case, we sense that they are profoundly stirred by the passing of their dearly beloved Madame Bombo, as they called her. "She loved everybody," they say. "She never wronged anyone." "Truly she has much fruit here in our country," said an evangelist.

"I am very, very sad to learn of the death of Madame Gribble; it has astonished me greatly," writes one. "We are in a bad state, for our mother has disappeared," he goes on to say. "But we shall rejoin her in heaven. If we persevere, we shall reign also with her."

We, like them, felt the shock of her going, although we realized somewhat how she was failing. There is an empty place in our midst that no one else can ever fill, for she was our mother, too, in so many ways. As we reflect upon her life, we see how many virtues she personified. Faith, hope, and charity! What a trio when all found in the same person. Everyone dimly realizes what a great life of faith she lived, and much will doubtless be said about it. She truly lived a life of faith. In my opinion her love was equally outstanding. She was a living commentary on the verse: "Love never faileth," for she never manifested other than a loving spirit.

Then, too, how we shall miss her prayers! She took every problem of the mission to the Lord in prayer, and especially did she pray for each missionary. Who will take her place in fervent, persistent intercession? God grant that all of us may be called to a more consistent prayer life, so that the work she so loved may not suffer.

I am sertain that Dr. Gribble would not have us extol her so much today as she would have us sound out a call for more workers. Her faith-filled prayers helped clear the way for the coming forth of many recruits in the past. Our already thin ranks are once more depleted by her going from us. God grant to bless her death as He did her life, that she being dead may still speak.

Yours in Him,

—Mary L. Emmert

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

The Bible Class which Bro. Robert Ashman of Peru, Ind., has been teaching in INDIANAPOLIS, is now meeting each Monday night in the Young People's Room of the Cadle Tabernacle. No charge is being made for the use of this room, compensation for which is being cared for by free will offerings. The class is open to all who are interested in Bible Study.

Mrs. Lydia Frantz of LA VERNE, CALIF., writes, "Three other of our La Verne delegates and myself are spending the week in Long Beach, attending our Bible conference. There were only three delegates short of the entire quota from the whole district; and this, with the acute tire rationing, is wonderful. A very interesting business meeting was transacted Saturday, all in love and unity."

A few weeks ago there was a report in these columns that HENRY REMPEL would be the new pastor at Mundy's Corners. This is an error, for he was given a unanimous call but at this writing he has not accepted the call.

At the last business meeting of the MARTINSBURG, Pa., church, if which Bro. Robert Miller is pastor, it was decided to adopt Mrs. Garner Hoyt as their own missionary; to set $400 as their goal for home missions; to insulate the parsonage and repair the roof; to reserve the right side of their church envelopes for home and foreign missions, six months for each; and to keep an attendance record of all members and visitors.

The First Brethren Church of WEST KITTANNING, PA., has reduced to $285 the indebtedness on the lots on which their new building is to be built.

From CHAPLAIN E. F. PINE of Ft. Mead, Md., come these interesting notes: "At the time I came here there were three chaplains working together in this chapel. Now one of them has been ordered out for foreign service, and that leaves me in charge of this chapel as the senior chaplain. That adds a little responsibility to my work, for I am responsible for all the activities of this chapel. It also shows how suddenly may come the orders to move out for service abroad. We are having a fairly good response in our regiment to all of the services. When we consider that most of our boys came from New York, and that the percentage of Catholics and Jews is unusually high, our response then is gratifying. We have probably the highest Jewish personnel of any division yet formed. On Tuesday nights I have a Bible class, on Thursday night I conduct a song-fest, and then the Sunday services. So you can see we have something for the boys all the time. There are a few really fine boys with a good Christian background, and they are helping out a lot. This week we are trying to organize a chapel choir. I don't know just how it will turn out as yet. We have some very good singers, and I hope they will respond. At the first Bible class I held, there were 10 present. I asked for volunteer prayers, and five of the 10 responded, giving exceptionally fine ones. As long as I can get a group of Sec'y Brethren Conference of Southern California.

The Annual Summer Camp for Brethren Young People of Southern California, opened at Tahquitz Pines, Idyllwild, Calif., July 25 with one week for those of Junior High age, and a senior camp the next week, Aug. 1-8. (See picture on front cover.)

Located a mile high, among the beautiful pines of the San Jacinto Mountains, Tahquitz Pines offers every inducement for our young people. The camp grounds used are those owned by the Christian Endeavor organization of Southern California. The buildings and tent houses are fully equipped for such purposes, the Endeavorers themselves conducting an extensive camp each year. This makes an ideal set-up for the Brethren Camp; for in place of renting camp grounds, which for the remaining summer season are used by those of the world for recreational purposes entirely, we have auditoriums and indoor and outdoor class-rooms, used only by Christian groups. In addition to a well planned course of Bible study taught by various pastors of the district each morning from 8:30 to noon, the young people have a varied program of recreational activity, including tennis, basketball, hiking, horseback riding, swimming, indoor and outdoor games, etc. The total cost for each camper per week is $8.00. This includes seven nights lodging and 21 meals.

The daily schedule of the camp may prove helpful to other groups in the Brotherhood in outlining a course for their camp, for which reason we print it herein:

fellows that will respond like they did, I will not fear the future of our work. Then, too, they don't have to be coaxed to do things like in our churches. They seem willing and glad to be able to help out."

From a letter from Mrs. Lorenz, which a friend has shared with us, we learn also of the activities of CHAPLAIN ORVILLE LORENZ at Ft. Bragg, N. C. At that writing he was holding a week's evangelistic service in a Presbyterian church just outside the fort, having been invited to do so by some of the members who had heard him preach. Meetings were conducted in the open outside the church. Mrs. Lorenz states, "The response is very good so far, and they seem to be thrilled at his message. They can't seem to understand why we have no churches of our denomination in the south The other Sunday Orville was asked to preach at a chapel that had no chaplain at that time. Those young folks just begged him to be their chaplain. Of course, he couldn't, as he is in the 9th division; so they asked if he would hold an evening meeting each week, which he did. I was there last Thursday with him, and the grandest group of nurses and soldiers were there. We had a "sing" and Bible study, which they thoroughly enjoyed. One soldier was there who had come in rededication at the former service. He said he hadn't been in church for two years, and there he was giving Scripture and his testimony that he was glad to come back into fellowship! This chapel received a chaplain this week, so I guess we can't go back."

In spite of sweltering heat, around 175 to 180 persons attended the closing exercises of the Daily Vacation Bible School at FT. WAYNE, IND. The school opened with an attendance of 64, and closed with an enrollment of 232, representing 42 different churches and 24 denominations. The average attendance was 122, and a large number made definite decisions for Christ.

The American Bible Institute of Detroit, Mich., has presented BRO. HAROLD PARKS of Garwin, Ia., with a certificate bearing the title, "Doctor of Divinity."

Introducing---Our District Presidents

For the Women's Missionary Councils of the Southeast District, I wish to extend greetings to our sister organizations throughout the country. We praise the Lord for His blessing upon us throughout all the activities of the past year.

Mrs. Grubb

There are ten churches in the Southeast District, located in three states: Virginia, Maryland, and Tennessee, and also the District of Columbia. Because these churches are so widely separated, our Councils are unable to meet all together except once a year at District Conference. However, separate rallies are held in each half of the district, and thus we are able to have fellowship with at least a few of the societies in our section. These rallies have been a source of inspiration and blessing to each Council taking part, and we regret the fact that distance prevents our meeting together more frequently.

We, in the northern part of the district, had a splendid time of fellowship at our spring rally held at the Grace Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Md., on April 16. There was a fine representation from two other churches—Winchester, Va., and Waynesboro, Pa. Although Waynesboro is not in the Southeast District, we invited them to take part in the rally because they are our neighboring church. The Councils of Washington, D. C. and Seven Fountains, Va., were unable to participate. The rally began at 11:30 a. m with an hour of business, special music and greetings from the different societies. From 12:30-2:00 p.m. we had lunch and an hour of fellowship. During this time the preachers, Rev. Crees, Dick, and Grubb, took motion pictures of the ladies lined up on the steps of the new Grace Brethren Church, passing bricks from the ground to the first floor level. Quite a sizeable pile was made, and we were glad to contribute a little toward the "manual labor" of our new mission church!

At the 2 o'clock hour we enjoyed an inspiring message from one of our own missionaries, Miss Ruth Snyder of Conemaugh, Pa. The group voted to contribute toward her new outfit for the field as our district project, and so the entire offering was given for this purpose.

The councils in the southern part of the district will meet together for their rally in the near future. Mrs. Edward Bowman of Buena Vista is in charge of this meeting. This will include the Councils from five churches in Virginia: Roanoke, Hollins, Red Hill, Buena Vista, and Covington, and also Limestone, Tenn.

The Lord truly has been magnified to us through our monthly devotional meetings, and it is our desire that we in turn might exalt His name together in our local Councils and in the district as a whole.

JANICE GRUBB, Pres., Southeast District.

Greetings from the Southern California District in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, who redeemed us with His precious blood.

Because of illness in my family, this report will not be as complete as we would like it to be.

Mrs. Gnagy

If I could take you over our district, which covers a scope of nearly 200 miles in length, we would indeed go from the mountains to the sea, our highway winding along beautiful orange groves, oil fields, thickly populated cities, and along the scenic Coast Highway to San Diego.

We have 13 Councils in our district, all of one accord, praise God! Each Council is well organized under capable leaders, and doing splendid work. Each Council is seeking to meet the objectives; and in addition to the four major offerings, each Council has some local project. Some are making garments for the Navajo Indians. Some are helping the Rescue Missions in Los Angeles, the Ruth Home for girls, Clayhole, etc.

We do have a wonderful day of Christian fellowship twice a year at our district rally. As many as 240 women have registered for these blessed days.

In addition to this, the morning and afternoon sessions of our missionary day at District Conference are in charge of the W. M. C. and are well attended and blessed of the Lord.

Many women in our district are working in the Child Evangelism movement, some having three and four classes each week. This is truly a home mission work in every sense of the word, winning the boys and girls for Christ.

We have stressed at each rally the great importance and privilege of soul winning and personal work. As each day passes, we realize more and more that there is:

Only one life, 'twill soon be past;
Only what's done for Christ will last.
Yours in His Blessed Name,

Mrs. John Gnagy, Pres.

Greetings from the Central District:

Our last rally was held at Dayton. A fine group of women representing the tri-state group was present. The fellowship enjoyed at these gatherings is very fine indeed, and we are sorry that we are so far apart that we cannot have them more often than just fall and spring. At this rally it was decided to continue the project of last year, that of a supply cupboard consisting of canned foods, staple groceries, etc., for our students at the seminary. The reports that have come as to the blessings received, just when a "lift" was needed, makes us realize how little we do to bring happiness to others, especially to "those of the household of faith."

Mrs. Polman

As a new project we voted to help purchase silverware for the African stations to be used at their conferences. Each Council was to send an offering to our financial secretary for this fund. A portion of the offering taken at the Rally also went to the silverware fund.

Phil. 2:13: "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do his good pleasure."

In Him we love,

Leila Polman.

Greetings in His precious name from the W. M. C. of the Midwest District:

The Councils of our district had planned as our project for the year the publishing of a Brethren tract. However, due to present conditions and circumstances in which our missionaries find themselves, we feel that there is a great need at this particular time for our missionary work. We have not definitely decided where our funds will go, but we hope to help where the need is greatest.

Mrs. Carter

We had only six Councils in our district, and we are so far apart we are not privileged to hold a rally, but we do enjoy our District Conference in the fall.

Our Councils have been unanimous in their praise for the lessons as they are given in the Herald.

May we all live more close to Him and serve Him better.

In His name,

Mrs. Gordon Carter.

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

If every parent would win his own children to Christ, there would be no lost souls!

Dear Sisters of the W. M. C.

In these days of 'all out' for defense, we are glad to report that the East Central District is 'all out' for the Brethren Women's Missionary Council, a very fine medium for the defense of the gospel. With the recent organization of two new Councils, we now have 13 groups of women who are willing to "tell the story of salvation to unregenerate men and women", making our district 100 per cent for W. M. C. Until recently we have had as our president our sister Mrs. R. E. Gingrich, who has led in many fine gestures in the promotion of the Lord's work. We have quarterly rallies with the entertaining church furnishing the program after delightful fellowship at a covered dish dinner. Among the projects carried out have been definite assistance to Grace Seminary and district missions. This year we are aiding in the outfitting of the Garner Hoyt's for their term of service in Africa.

Mrs. Cashman

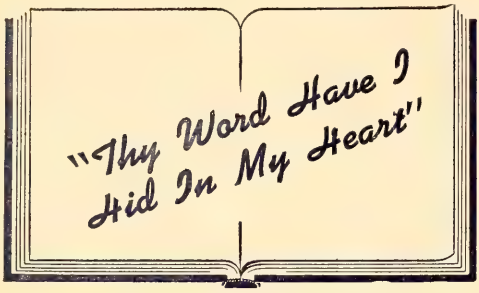
It is our prayer that all of us may be found walking more closely and working more consistently with our Lord Jesus Christ, Who has brought us salvation.

In His Name,

Mrs. Arthur D. Cashman.

The East District sends greetings to all. The W. M. C. of this district meets twice a year—at our district Conference in October and again in April. At the spring rallies we have a program in the morning and a covered dish luncheon at noon, and continue the program in the afternoon. Thus far, the attendance at these meetings has been around 20 council members.

There are 20 Councils in this district, with approximately 450 members in all. As a district we have not accomplished any project as yet this year, however, we are planning on adopting some project at our rally at Uniontown. Each member is to bring $1.00 as her offering for our district work. We feel quite certain that we can do something worth while just as soon as we meet and discuss several things already in mind.



Mrs. Lorenz

It has not been my privilege to meet with any Council in this district, but from all reports we have some of the best Councils within our East District.

We thank Him for the way He was blessed us thus far in our Council work, and trust that we may be used even more in the future till He comes.

In His Blessed Name,

Florence Lorenz.

STUDIES IN THE EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS—XII

"The Christian Armor"

Ephesians 6:10-24

By HOMER A. KENT, Grace Theological Seminary

As the apostle brings his letter to a close, he seeks to remind the church that their life in this world is to be lived upon hostile ground. It is the life of a camp in the enemy's territory. The Christian, therefore, must not only be a servant. He must also be a soldier. And if he is to be a good soldier he must be provided with the proper armor. The passage before us presents a description of this armor. Two types of armor are suggested: defensive and offensive. For victory the Christian soldier has need to put on the "whole armor". Anything less will decrease his efficiency in the spiritual conflict. The church faces mighty foes. There is a personal devil and he has many emissaries. Victory is only assured by use of the armor God has provided for His saints.

There are seven parts to this armor. This suggests the perfection, the completeness, the sufficiency of the armor. Let us look first to

The Defensive Armor

First, there is the girdle of truth (v. 14). Every Roman soldier as he was resting was provided with a long robe. But when he went into the battle he took off the robe. It would be a hindrance to him in the conflict. He needed only the girdle then. That girdle bound the other parts of the armor to their proper places and braced the soldier for action.

What the Christian soldier needs as he goes into the battle is the girdle of truth. If there are any hindering robes of empty profession, of mere formalism, or of insincerity, he should get rid of them and go forth with the truth. The Brethren Church claims to possess the truth. Our motto is, "The Bible, the whole Bible, and nothing but the Bible". It is a good motto. Let us abide by it. By the Word of God we can conquer.

Next is the breastplate of righteousness (v. 14). The breastplate on the Roman soldier was a metal vest that covered such vital parts of the body as the heart and the lungs. To what does this refer in the Christian's armor? Evidently not to the imputed righteousness of Christ. The Ephesians already had that. It refers rather to the godly walk that should follow faith in Christ. The believer is "created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them". The apostle Peter, in speaking of the walk of the Christian, said, "For so is the will of God, that with well-doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men" (I Pet. 2:15).

We need to give more heed to wearing the breastplate of righteousness in these days. When moral standards are being lowered on every hand, when even in many churches worldliness is allowed to take possession so that the church is little more than a social club, when the sanctities of the home are being utterly disregarded, we need to stress again and again the Christian virtues of righteousness, of godly living, of separation from the world.

Following are the sandals of evangelism (v. 15). The sandals that the Roman soldier wore were bound by thongs over the instep and around the angle to protect the feet. They had soles thickly studded with heavy nails to aid in getting a firm footing when going out to discharge some commission from the commander. The point here is that the Christian is to be ready at all times to proclaim the gospel of peace. The gospel is the only thing that can truly bring peace to the human heart. Why is it that a farmer will take his fine span of horses to the blacksmith shop to get them shod? He does it in order that he may put them to work. Likewise our Lord has committed unto us the gospel of salvation, the ministry of reconciliation, that we may share it with others. Are your feet "shod"?

The fourth piece of armor is the shield of faith (v. 16). The Roman shield was oblong in shape and quite large. The soldier who crouched behind it found safety from all the missiles hurled at him, in particular the fiery darts that were used in that day.

The Christian has the shield of faith. Faith in the Lord God of hosts, Whose purposes for this world are being fulfilled and will be fulfilled, is the believer's assurance. One day God appeared to Abraham and said, "I am thy Shield, and thy exceeding great Reward" (Gen. 15:1). That being true, nothing could keep all the promises previously given from being fulfilled. Such a God the Christian has today. If He be for us, who can be against us? There is no room for discouragement with a God like this working for us. Let us grasp the shield of faith more firmly and use it in the conflict.

The last of the defensive parts of the Christian armor is the helmet of salvation (v. 17). How imperial the Roman soldier appeared with his helmet! It protected the principal part of his body. It was made of stern stuff. Certainly there is need in these days for Christians to have protection for the head that they may be kept straight in their thinking. What is this helmet? If you will turn to I Thess. 5:8, you will see that the apostle there refers to the helmet again, and the context reveals that he is talking about the coming again of the Lord. "Let us," he says, "who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation". The hope of the coming of the Lord is a stabilizing hope. Our heads will not be turned by false doctrine and seducing spirits if we are constantly looking for Christ's appearing. It will keep us walking straight.

The Offensive Armor

Two offensive weapons are suggested. The Christian is commissioned to go forward to achieve mighty victories for Christ. If this is to be done the following weapons are absolutely essential:

First, there is the sword of the Spirit (v. 17). Every Roman soldier carried a sword for hand-to-hand fighting. General Pershing has a sword reputed to be worth $10,000. The Pasha of Persia has one worth $40,000. But these human swords are really worth very little. The Christian sword is the divine Word of God, capable of doing marvelous things. It is "quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit" (Heb. 4:12). There will be no victory for the church of God apart from the Word of God. "Take it," says Paul, "and wield it for the glory of God". But if we are to wield it with any effect, we must know how to handle it. We must know the Word. Let us therefore, give ourselves to a more diligent study of the Scriptures.

Last of all, there is the spear of prayer (v. 18). Jamieson, Fausset and Brown refer to it as such in their interpretation of this passage. "Praying always with all prayer and supplication." Mary, Queen of Scots, said she feared the prayers of John Knox more than any army of 10,000 soldiers. Prayer will win victories when all the schemes and plans of men fail. It is time the church realized more fully than she does the possibilities of the prayer promises of the Scriptures. The way the church can go forward to victory is upon its knees. If we would talk less to men about the work of the church and more to God, our progress in things spiritual would be far faster.

This is the armor for us to wear. Wearing it we shall be invincible. The victory will be ours. There is no armor for the back. The Christian soldier must never show his back to the enemy. He must march on and on through this world, until after a while he shall march into the presence of God to lay the garlands of victory at the feet of the Captain of his salvation, even the Lord Jesus Christ. Putting on the armor really means to put on Christ (Rom. 13:14) in all of His fulness. With Him there is no defeat.

W. M. C. News

Dear Sister Councils:

Another W. M. C. year has passed and it has been a blessed year with the Lord. He has been precious to us. We have much for which to praise Him.

We so much enjoy the W. M. C. letters published in the Herald. It seems we almost know you personally from seeing you at conferences and rallies. We try to send a representative to each so we can get acquainted, glean new ideas, and gather the information we need to carry on our work for the new year. This is a splendid way to increase interest in our Council, for all of our ladies are eager to go.

In November, we had a dedication service for new members and rededication service for the old. We like this way of revising our roll yearly. This service was in the form of a very beautiful candle light service and was very impressive.

When one of our members moves away, she is honored with a handkerchief shower. She usually requests her name to be kept on our roll, and we in turn keep in touch with her with correspondence through our Council.

Many a blessing has been received through the distribution of gospel tracts. Hearts are made glad as we hand them a tract. Yes, as a rule, they are appreciated, and although sometimes apparently not, we are consoled with the fact that our heavenly Father blesses our efforts. Let us just "keep on, keepin' on".

Gospel tracts and good reading books were sent to some of our boys in service. Expression of thanks was received from this literature, so we feel our efforts are well worth while in spreading the gospel in this way.

Each year, we have an all-day of prayer and mission study. This year our hearts were stirred as we studied "The Triumph of John and Betty Stam." This is a most enjoyable day as we pray, study and fellowship together.

Recently, more than 100 mothers and daughters gathered at the church for the banquet. The Sisterhoods and Councils gave a very interesting program before the banquet.

Our Council work is carried on somewhat the same as our sister Councils. We have meetings each month at homes, using the devotional topics, prayer circle requests and cards for daily prayer for our missionaries on which has been placed their names and pictures. The clothing and Sunday School papers are sent to Kentucky missions as they are gathered.

We have 28 members who are blessed with the giving spirit. They always want to be giving and doing. Much more could be said, but we'll say the rest in this: "It is truly a blessed privilege to give and do for Him Who gave Himself on Calvary for us."

"Open Doors" - - THREE MISSIONARY MARTYRS

"For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain" (Phil. 1:21).

Melanesia, or the Black Islands, are located east and north of Australia, and are a part of the Oceania or Pacific Islands. This group includes Fiji, Loyalty, New Caledonia, New Hebrides, Banks, Santa Cruz, Solomon, and Bismark.

These many islands have been called "spots from Paradise" because of their entrancing beauty.

The origin of the islanders is still unsolved. They are thought to be from Asia, and the main racial stock to be from India or the region of Persia.

"Where nature has achieved her best, man is often found at his worst." These islands are a good example of this, as they were the haunts of the lowest savagery. Cannibalism was frequent; from one-fourth to two-thirds of the children were buried alive, and the sick and aged were usually killed.

They were polytheistic in their religion almost to the point of pantheism, because nearly every object in nature was considered a god for good or evil. "Their religious ceremonies were accompanied with sorcery, human sacrifices, and bestial orgies such as might characterize the infernal regions."

As the European peoples began to explore the islands and trade with the people, many islanders were kidnapped and used as slaves. Some never saw their native shores again; and if they did, they returned with the vices of so-called civilization. Perhaps their last state was worse than the first!

All whites, however, did not treat them that way, as the life and work of the following missionaries will show.

JOHN WILLIAMS

John Williams is known as "the apostle of the South Seas". He was born in 1796 in England, and was sent out to work in the Society Islands under the London Missionary Society in 1817. He was a man of great vision, unusual resources and action, and a born leader.

The Society Islands are a part of the Polynesia (Many Islands), and were named in honor of the Royal Geographical Society. The largest of these islands was Tahiti which was the center of Williams' work.

Not content to stay on the Society Islands alone, he started a campaign for carrying the gospel to other islands. During the years of his ministry, he had five mission ships—purchased or built by himself. Due to this dauntless apostle, "no group of islands or single island of importance within 2,000 miles of Tahiti had been left unvisited".

He returned to England in 1834 for four years, publishing his Missionary Enterprise, of which 40,000 copies were sold. His visit created a great new interest in the missions of the South Seas. By his efforts, money was raised for a new ship, and helpers were secured.

Upon returning to his mission field, he set his heart to visit the New Hebrides. There are about 70 of these islands, of which some 30 are inhabited by people speaking 20 different languages.

He sailed for these islands in his new ship "Camden", taking 12 native helpers as pioneers. He landed at the island Erromanga on Nov. 20, 1839, with a young Mr. Harris. They were set upon by the natives before they reached the shore. Both men were clubbed, then speared, and their bodies dragged into the bush for a horrible cannibal feast. Thus "he became identified with these islands by his death rather than his life".

When the thousands of his friends and converts heard of his martyrdom, their grief was profound. Through his death 25 more volunteered to take his place. Six months later, the Camden visited Erromanga again and left two missionaries. After a year of suffering, they were forced to leave. More attemps were made; more hardships endured; more lives lost. By 1852, 100 had been won and two chapels built on the island.

Dr. A. T. Pierson says, "The changes which the apostle to the South seas saw defied description, and when described seem fables for the credulous. He himself was overawed by the proofs of the hand of God. At Tahiti over 14 years had gone by before one convert was made. Yet Williams witnessed changes nothing short of a radical revolution, within 20, 18, 12 months, and sometimes within as many days. He went to islands where all were heathens; he visited them later to find chapels with thousands of worshippers; he found them without a written language, and left them reading in their own tongue the wonderful words of God."

JAMES CHALMERS

James Chalmers was also a martyr, who worked on the Papua or New Guinea Island. This is the largest single island in the world. "If you were to place the map of New Guinea upon the map of America, it would stretch from New York to Omaha and from Canada to St. Louis."

Chalmers was born in Scotland and received a missionary vision as a boy. He has been called the "Great Heart of New Guinea".

He and his wife were sent to Raratonga in 1867, where the labors of John Williams had been closed some 30 years earlier. In 1877 they moved to New Guinea.

James Chalmers was a fitting man to help pioneer the new work because of his strength, courage, tact and ability. His policy was one of wide exploration, and stations were placed by him at intervals along the coast.

Twice he was permitted to return to England, and while there he presented missions with such enthusiasm and fervor that many thousands were aroused to the cause.

He was killed in action in 1901. A young man named Tomkins, several native helpers, and himself, landed on Goaribari Island to explore. Without warning, they were set upon by savages. Theirs was the same fate as John Williams and Mr. Harris—clubbed and eaten! A church stands on that spot today!

JOHN PATTESON

This remarkable person was born Apr. 1, 1827. His life was outstanding because of his self-denial, never tiring-labor, and perilous experience by land and sea. He was the grandson of the celebrated Samuel Taylor

Coleridge; and his own father, being a lawyer, was unsurpassed in that day.

In 1853, after returning from abroad, he was ordained to the ministry. While serving as a country parson, he met Bishop Selwyn of New Zealand, who was home on a visit, and who persuaded Patteson to return with him. Mar. 29, 1855 was the day of sailing, and his farewell was made "without parade of feeling or many words".

The young missionary assisted Bishop Selwyn until 1860 in the religious and mental training of native youth from Melansia. Later he was named Bishop of the islands.

He quickly learned the languages of the islanders and missed no opportunities for efficiency. He did much to improve the language of the people and gave them parts of the Scriptures in their own languages—nearly 30 in all. In the Mota (one of the Banks Islands) tongue, he rendered hymns which are considered of "singular excellence".

He was versatile and fitted for labor of all kinds, and no work was too high or too humble for him to turn to and effectively accomplish. This tireless worker encountered the servant of trials, having to visit a dangerous, untried island, or perhaps go through epidemics of dysentery or fever and be physician, nurse and pastor all in one.

Perhaps his "most laborious and exacting" duty was that of schoolmaster. His work was two-fold; that of opening the pupils' understanding and also of presenting Christian truth so they would accept.

He left Mota, which was his headquarters, in April of 1871 to visit the Santa Cruz group of islands. Visitations like this were always a great danger and hazard. Traders had in many cases ill-used the islanders. There was an added grave danger, for the traders had painted their boat the color of the Bishop's and on a visit enticed the natice aboard and carried them away. Patteson had been there before, but the natives thought the trader ship to be the Bishop's also. As the missionary party approached in their boat, four native canoes were noticed. The Bishop ordered a small boat lowered, as this was a good way to meet the superstitious natives. Patteson landed on the beach and "was seen no more alive".

Later his body was recovered and a smile still rested on his face. There was a palm leaf fastened over his breast; and when the mat covering was opened, five wounds were seen. This was the native way of showing his death to be the pay for five natives.

The body was lowered into the waters of the Pacific the next day. Joseph Atkin, one of his converts, read the services. Much more should be said to do justice to his career and character, but no summary can cover fully his life. "In Bishop Patteson were singularly combined the spirit of chivalry, the glorious ornament of a by-gone time; the spirit of charity, rare in every age; and the spirit of reverence, so seldom seen in our day."

"How Beautiful are the Feet of Them That Preach the Gospel--"

Greetings from all of us in Africa to all of you at home, in the name of our Lord and Savior.

"We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers; remembering without ceasing your work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God our Father; knowing, brethren beloved, your election of God."

We on the field have received the good news that your project for the year is the support of the African Bible Conference work. We wish to express our sincere thanks for your sympathy and help in this great work. One never can fully express her appreciation on paper, nor make those so far away realize just what their gifts accomplish; except by concrete illustrations, which we hope to send to you as the conferences are held.

Mrs. Foster

Native Bible conferences are a rather new venture in our mission. That is, they have been started during the past few years. Naturally a new project of any kind, especially in the realm of the spiritual, is not usually the big success at first that one would like it to be; but with repetition the interest grows.

The pastors hope to make these Bible conferences a real spiritual feast of good things from the Word for the Christians, and also to attract the unsaved. They expect to hold them in different centers, so as to make it possible for most of the Christians to attend. That is the aim, though we realize the fulfillment will not be accomplished all at once. The hope is that as the Christians shall get a taste of the "good things" from the Word; and that, as they enjoy fellowshipping with each other in prayer, they will make every effort to do their part in assembling themselves together, thus receiving the benefits that are intended for them.

There are many obstacles in promoting these conferences. The first one we mention is, we believe, the outstanding one. That is to decide on a suitable time. It is so seldom that the people are free, especially since the war. It is like everywhere else: working overtime and double time in order to provide the necessities for the war machine.

During the rainy season they have their cotton, coffee and food plantations to care for; and that means hard work every day from sunrise to sundown. When the dry season begins they have their cotton to pick, clean and prepare for the market. Then they have their houses to repair or new ones to build, and the villages to clean up. The men have their road tax to work out, either by repairing the roads or in many cases making new ones; also the bridges damaged or weakened by the heavy rains must be repaired or rebuilt. At the same time, in some sections of the country a great deal of wild beeswax is gathered and sold.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

FILLMORE, CALIFORNIA

Like the magacian that pulls a rabbit, a box and a can of corn out of that "empty" hat, so it is with the Brethren in Fillmore. They are continually pulling some "surprise" on their pastor. The latest thing to be "pulled" was a "surprise" birthday party on Mrs. Kriegbaum, at which time they literally showered her with gifts and "green-backs"; and the "preacher" was entering in to make it a happy occasion for her when a voice was heard to say, "Bro. Kriegbaum, we have a little gift for you too." We somehow thought it was just another joke being introduced for the fun of all. But, this was more than a "rabbit" that came out of the hat this time, for it was a "love offering" of nearly $60. We were stunned from the crown of the head to the sole of our feet. Shortly before this event they "went into that hat" and pulled a surprise birthday party on us. God bless them for their love.

The Lord has blessed our efforts together in Fillmore, and this year the largest offering in the history of the church was raised for home missions. The fourth largest foreign offering was raised, plus other offerings not raised previously. Then, last January, the church raised the pastor's salary by 10 per cent.

During the last quarter the Lord gave additional opportunity to spread his Word, and we delivered the Baccalauraate address for the Fillmore Union High School graduation; the Memorial Day address; and a Good Friday message at a union service.

At present we desire to remodel our building, but the war has made it impossible to secure material and labor to do the work. We are praying that the Lord will work in our behalf that we might see this work done soon.

The Fillmore church sends greetings to our Brethren.

Arnold R. Kriegbaum, pastor.

A LETTER FROM THE FOSTERS

We believe at present it is being sent to America. Rubber is also being cultivated and gathered again. This industry had been lying dormant for some time. Besides these, many other resources are planted, gathered both for home use and exporting.

Just now the people have quite a bit of time free. There is no special work of any kind going on. So now they are taking their vacations. That means that whole families and sometimes almost whole villages, go out in the bush to hunt and fish. While we were out this last time we passed some villages that were practically empty. Do I hear you say, "Now is the time to hold the conferences"? One would naturally think so. But conference or anything else would keep these people from having the freedom of the bush life. That is their natural environment, and they still like that free and easy life. They are never happier than when they are free and can do as they please.

Then, too, certain times of the year we have had some very severe epidemics during the past few years. Naturally when these come it is not wise to have crowds gather, not to travel from one place to another. Sometimes these interfere with our itineration work, as well as chapel visitations.

At present gas is a big problem. It is high in price and scarce. However, thus far we have had all that we have needed. We praise the Lord for that. Besides this, there are many other things which are not wise to speak of.

We praise the Lord for your gifts, but we need your prayers to follow them, so that they will accomplish the greatest possible good. We have but one desire, and that is to know the Lord and make Him known; but we need your prayers to accomplish this.

We pray the Lord's richest blessings upon all of you, your societies, and all the work that the Lord leads you to do for Him. May He find us all faithful when He comes or calls.

In His precious name,

Mrs. Foster.

W. KITTANNING, PA.

The First Brethren Church, West Kittanning, Pa., of which Rev. Arthur Malles, is pastor, has just had a splendid two weeks Daily Vacation Bible School, which closed July 3. 175 children were enrolled with several denominations represented. We had an average attendance of 150 including 15 teachers. At the close of school, a demonstration program was given. Surely there is a great privilege in training our youth for the world of tomorrow. Praise Him for the opportunity.

We realized much help and saw souls turn to Christ in our spring revival which our pastor, Rev. Malles, so ably conducted. There were 18 reconsecrations, 4 conversions, and 3 were baptised and received into the church.

May 17, we were blessed in a very special way when we had Brother and Sister Garner Hoyt with us for a service. We were much impressed when Rev. Hoyt spoke on his call to Africa. An offering of $40.75 was received for the Hoyts' missionary outfit.

June 7, our communion service had an attendance of 87.

Again on June 16-17, the blessing was poured on us when we had Brother and Sister Elias Zimmerman with us for two days' service. We're glad for such a missionary among "the chosen people." An offering was received for the Jewish missions, which amounted to $23.30 besides several dollars in pledges.

The debt on the lots on which our new church is planned to be built is expected to be cleared in the next few months. A new furnace has been purchased for our present church building.

We continue to praise our blessed Redeemer, Who is our hope in this time of need.

Mrs. Walter Jordan, Cor. Sec.

GARWIN, IA.

Our revival here with Rev. R. H. Kettell of North English, Ia. closed with a great blessing from the Lord. Bro. Kettell is well worthy of being a Brethren minister in a Brethren church. He loves lost souls and is a sincere, God-fearing man. While here, he worked tirelessly with both old and young, both saint and sinner.

At all times was the meeting well attended. The messages were straightforward from the Word. Only eternity will tell of the results. The visible results were three confessions for the first time: one girl in the church, and a man and his wife out of the church. This man was a terrible drinker. He had lost his job as a mechanic, and his home was in an uproar; but now there is that which Christ gives: peace and harmony and eternal life. There were many definite breaks with the world in the lives of our young people. Many prayer altars were set up in the homes here.

We pray for your carrying forth for Him, and ask that you return this for us.

H. S. Parks, pastor.

THINK IT OVER

Some spend time counting the cost of following Christ when they should consider the cost of not following Him!

The Sisterhood of Mary and Martha

DEVOTIONAL TOPIC FOR SEPTEMBER

"CHRIST IS THE VICTORY"

I've struggled hard to conquer wrong, and to do the right;
In ev'ry conflict I have always done my best
To overcome, and over sin to keep abreast;
And yet, I've ever faltered, fallen, lost the fight,
And felt disowned of God, cast out of sight;
Until, with all my powers wasted, vanquished, spent,
I felt my fight was lost; with grief my heart was rent.
'Twas then I came to Christ, and sought to know His aid;
Disowning self, I claimed the power of His life;
And thus, through Him, I put an end to all my strife;
I listened to the Spirit, and upon Him stayed,
I followed closely, and His ev'ry word obeyed;
'Twas then I learned to know, and do the Master's will,
His victory was mine, in Him my heart was still.

Hymn—"More Love to Thee".
Prayer.
Hymn—"Living for Jesus".
Scripture—I Corinthians 15.
Sentence prayers
Topic—"Christ is the Victory".
Chorus—"'Tis Glorious to be Victorious".
Business session.
Benediction.

This is the first meeting of our new Sisterhood year. Let us try from the very beginning to make this the greatest year we have ever known in Sisterhood. We can do this by working in our own society, trying to interest other girls in Sisterhood, and praying daily for our leaders and the girls in other Sisterhoods all over the land.

We have for our theme this year, "Christ, Our Victory". Our devotional study for this month was written by Mrs. Mabel Peek of Long Beach, California. Let us seek to make this a year of victory through Christ in Sisterhood.

MORE NEWS, PLEASE!!!

This month we have no news from societies. We would enjoy hearing from your society. How about writing a letter to your general secretary this month, so other girls can know what your society is doing?

REVELATION 4-19 Part III

By FLO MELLICK

This section of the book of Revelation reveals our Lord Jesus Christ as the great King of kings and Lord or Lords (Rev. 19:16, 17:14; cf. I Tim. 6:15; Ps. 2), as the righteous Judge and rightful Ruler of the nations (Rev. 6:10, 16:5, 18:8, 11:18, 19:2, 19:11; cf. Dan. 2:34-35, 44-45, 7:9-14; Isa. 63:1-6; Jno. 5:2, etc.), and as the victorious Lamb of God (Rev. 5:11-14, 5-7).

In Rev. 4-19 God unveils the future, and gives us a glimpse. a preview, of the horrible judgments which shall fall upon rebellious man and his corrupt world-system.

Chapters 4-5 serve as an introduction to chs. 6-19, giving the time of the judgments (after the rapture of the church, v. 1), the source (God's judgment throne in heaven), and the actions which precede the judgments (the Lamb moves to take possession of His purchased world, and make it His very own).

The breaking of the seven seals and the resulting judgments are found in ch. 6 and 8:1, ch. 7 being a parenthesis which is not necessarily in chronological order.

The judgments which follow the blowing of each of the seven trumpets are chs. 8, 9 and 11:15. The "little book" of ch. 10 (cf. Rev. 5; Jer. 32:7, 9-11), and the "two witnesses" of ch. 11 (cf. Mal. 4:5, Zech. 4:3, 11-14) are visions inserted between judgments, as are ch. 12 (cf. Gen. 37:9-10; Micah 5:2-3; Isa. 9:6; Job 1:6 et al.), and ch. 13 (cf. Dan. 7, 8, 9, 11, etc.) and ch. 14 (God's answer to ch. 13, and a series of visions and proclamations which forecast God's final triumphant victory).

Ch. 15 introduces the judgments of the seven bowls found in ch. 16, while ch. 17 and 18 (the double judgment upon Mystery Babylon, the final culmination of all false religions into a great religious world-system, and upon Babylon, the final center of the world's interest, commercially, etc.), and ch. 19 (the second coming of the Lamb with his bride, and the victoriees that follow) are inserts giving details of judgments.

Thus we have Antichrist rising as the little horn after the rapture of the church, and the beginning of Daniel's 70th week; the 7 seals and 6 trumpets taking place during the 1260 days; the middle of Daniel's 70th week, the death of the two witnesses, the broken covenant, the rise of Antichrist to supreme power occuring between trumpets 6 and 7; the 7th trumpet and the 7 vials and related events taking place the last half of the 70th week (42 months), and finally the coming of Christ in power and great glory to deliver his people Israel, and make an end of wickedness toward the setting up of his own righteous kingdom in the climactic battle of Armageddon.

Girls, no member of Christ's church shall go through this terrible tribulation. If we belong to Him, we have been saved from the wrath to come (Rom. 5:9, I Thes. 9:10); but others are lost faced with unspeakable doom. The hour is dark. Let your light shine forth to guide others home!

Christ is the Victory

In consideration of the year verse, "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (I Cor. 15:57), I would like to call your attention to several things. Notice that this verse and the next are a very wonderful finish to one of the most important chapters in the Bible. It can be truly called the 'keystone' in the arch of Christianity—'for if Christ be not raised, then our faith is vain and we are yet in our sins. . . . But now is Christ risen from the dead'—praise God! Why not read over this entire chapter and pray that the Spirit of God will quicken to your very heart the meaning of this great chapter?

While primarily this v 57 is referring to victory over death, we know that 'in all things we are more than conquerors through Him'. However, every individual in the world: past, present or future, must keep this appointment; and I am sure that every one at some time or another has considered this great fact . . . death—"to be or not to be" is greatly discussed. From God's Word, which standeth sure, we read this statement 'And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment' (Heb. 9:27). Therefore victory is needed in death. Victory is also needed in life; at home, school, work or play—whereever we are.

In connection with each phase of our lives, I am sure that victory is ours in just the same way that our year verse gives—through the living Word. So we come to that wonderful Person—God in flesh—the altogether lovely One, our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. No one can ever expect victory in any part of his life unless he first knows 'the Victor over death'. According to our verse, victory is given through Him, and that is true. Do you know Him? Are you sure He is yours personally? To know Jesus Christ is to have eternal life (I John 5:12, 'He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life'. Read also John 3:24.

Another question I would like us to consider. Just how can I know Jesus Christ? I realize in myself I shall never have true victory but I want to live a victorious life—but how? That question, asked by many Christians, if answered in the same way that first introduced us to Jesus Christ, will produce a victorious Christian life. In Rom. 10:17 we read "that faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the Word of God'. Read also II Tim. 3:15. Now, as Christians we are told in II Pet. 3:18, 'Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ'; also in I Pet. 2:2, 'As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby'. As you and I daily read and meditate on God's Word, we become more and more acquainted with our Lord. It is said that the longer husband and wife live together the more alike they become. There is a lovely chorus that expresses just what I would like to say!

More time alone with Thee, Lord Jesus, More time alone with Thee.
More time to know Thyself Lord Jesus; Thou hast done all for me.
Deep is Thy love, sweet is Thy peace,
Wondrous Thy grace, sufficient for every need.
More time alone with Thee, Lord Jesus, More time alone with Thee.

This is the greatest need of every Christian—a quiet time with Christ—daily. It is the secret of victory in our everyday life. Thus we come to know Him better and be more like Him—as He reveals to us just what He would have us be—through His Word.

Today we hear much of this phrase, 'all out for victory'. Not only is this true in the physical battle that each American is fighting, but also in the spiritual battle that has raged since before time began. America cannot hope to win unless each individual does his part. This is no less true of our individual battle, as Christians, against the world, the flesh and the devil. As you and I do our part—read and believe God's Word—victory is ours.

Let me ask you again in closing: Do you really know Him? Is He yours? If you know you have received Jesus Christ as your very own personal Savior are you becoming more and more like Him? Christ is the victory—through the Word!

Mrs. Mabel Peek.

RULES FOR DAILY LIFE

Begin the Day with God
Kneel down with Him in prayer
Lift up thy heart to His abode
And seek His love to share.

Open the Book of God,
And read a portion there,
That it may hallow all your thoughts
And sweeten all your cares.

Go through the day with God
What'er thy work may be.
Where'er thou art—at home, abroad—
He is still near thee.

Converse in mind with God.
Thy spirit heavenward raise,
Acknowledge every good bestowed,
And offer grateful praise.

Conclude the day with God
Thy sins to God confess.
Trust in the Lord's atoning blood
And plead His righteousness.

Lay down at night with God
Who gives His servants sleep;
And when thou tread'st the vale of death
He will thee guard and keep.

Pondo Sees the Light — Chapter 5

A continued story written for our boys and girls by MISS MARY EMMERT, missionary in Africa

THE TWINS

"The white ants are swarming! The white ants are swarming!" The shout went up from all sides. Pondo caught up his mother's sieve and ran with the rest of the villagers.

Two days of warm weather had been followed by a good shower of rain, and the earth had been fairly well soaked up. Pondo and his companions ran from one ant hole to another, wherever they saw the fluttering white winged insects struggling to get out of the ground and into the air. Swarms of them were whirling madly about, already out of reach. For only one mad night would their revelry last, then they would lose their wings and sink back to the earth again to become creatures of the dust

Everyone grabbed the ants and stuck them into his mouth, disregarding the wings. By putting his mother's sieve upside down over the ant hole, Pondo was soon able to satisfy that first craving for the famous African sweet meats. He had learned by experience that one did not dare to eat too many of the struggling creatures alive, for they were apt to make themselves felt later on. Yet, he kept popping them into his mouth, one after another, as you might do when eating peanuts. They were so good and sweet!

The rain had not been sufficient to soak up the ground well, so one of the boys brought a gourd full of water, and they all settled down at a large ant hill that would have made you think of an Indian mound. With experienced hands they formed tiny mud walls and roofs over the ant holes, then they beat a steady tattoo on their gourds to make the ants think the rain was still pouring down.

Soon there was a trickling stream of the winged ants making their way out of the little mud shelter. It was easy enough to catch them with the sieve and to stuff them into small pouches which they had hastily made out of large leaves and sewed together with the stems.

After a while the sun came out and the ants quit flying, so Pondo and his friends made their way down to the stream to take their daily bath. It took considerable splashing to wash off the last traces of the mud, with the result that a water fight followed, accompanied by much laughter at first, but later by angry words and quarreling. In fact, their days were filled with quarreling, for the only way they knew how to play was for the older ones to pick on the younger.

Finally, even tiring of this sport, Kombilly, the oldest of the group, suggested: "Let us take our arrows and practice shooting. It will soon be the season for killing field rats."

They all agreed. So one boy tied an old stump on the end of a short rope and swung it around and around him. The rest of the gang stood in a circle at a little distance and shot their arrows at the stump as it was swung past them. Never once did they hit the feet of their comrade in the center.

Finally, the game broke up and the boys wended their way to their homes, not forgetting the leaf pouches full of the still struggling white ants. The mothers would dump the insects into a cooking pot and roast them gently over the fire until the wings dropped off and the ants were dead. Then they would be stored away for many a delicious stew in the future.

But no one had time for white ants at Pondo's house. He had barely arrived when Kogara broke the news to him: "You have twin sisters! I always said Nana would bring misfortune to this family!" Kogara was like one who suddenly sees herself getting the best of a long argument. It was better to have no children at all, which was her misfortune, than to have twins as her husband's other wife had now. "Run and call your father quickly. You will find him at the next village at a mourning for one of the chief's wives."

Quickly Pondo made his way over the winding path to the next village, which was only two miles away. Twins! What would his father say? Everyone knew that twins in the family were bad luck. Just one more stream to cross now, and one more hill to climb, before he would see the first houses of the village. What was it people said about twins?

Pondo appeared unnoticed in the village clearing. The yard was black with people around the chief's house. An endless chant of many voices united in the death wail, rose and fell from the crowd packed within the house and around the door. Suddenly the chief rushed from the house, in a frenzy of grief, spear in hand, ready to hurl it at any victim he could find. His faithful friends rushed out after him to restrain him from actually killing anyone. Four of them seized him, and several others quickly caught five women and two men among the bystanders, tying a rope around their necks to hold them as prisoners, so that the chief's anger would be appeased. Here were the evil spirits that had caused the woman's death. They could be tried by a poison ordeal later.

Pondo had sighted Koly, his father, not far off from the string of prisoners, and lost no time in running to him and breaking the news about the twins.

Koly said, "Twins!!" and clapped his hand over his mouth, as the African always does when he is surprised.

One of the chief's wives ran out of the house and threw herself on the ground, turning a series of flip-flops to show her grief, and shrieking shrilly at the same time. Another followed her example. Koly and his son stood watching them a few moments, and then regretfully made their way out of the crowd and towards home. Silently they went, the boy following his father down the path. Walking single file, as the black man does, makes conversation difficult at best. But besides that, Koly seemed absorbed in his own thoughts.

The group around his doorstep made way for him to enter. Pondo followed as a matter of course. When his eyes became accustomed to the darkness inside the hut, he saw the two little babies, each held by an old woman. They were all waiting to see what Koly would say.

"So there are twins?" he said, at a loss what else to say.

"Yes, twins!" ejaculated one of the old women. "Why do you stand there doing nothing? Take one of them out and get rid of it, for if you do not, either you or Nana will die."

Koly looked at his new born daughters, but he made no move.

"You know that twins are bad luck. They are children of snakes, and will be the death of their parents," continued his adviser.

"So that was it!" thought Pondo. One baby must be killed or else one of his parents would die. Oh, why did not his father hurry to do something? Koly had heard all this many times, and had always accepted it as true, having no reason to doubt it. But now that twins had come into his own home, he suddenly felt uncertain. Something in him revolted. "We shall see what Gafo, the medicine man, says," he finally decided. The old women went off mumbling.

The next day when Pondo returned from gathering reeds for weaving rat traps, he saw that his father was busily preparing something in a small earthen bowl. Pondo said nothing, but sat down to watch, pretending to be absorbed in stripping bark from the reeds he had gathered, and preparing the strips for weaving.

"Give me an egg," said Koly to Pondo. So Pondo went to the nest in the corner of the room, took an egg from under the hen, and gave it to his father.

Without any explanation, Koly took the egg and the little black bowl with its contents, and left the hut. Pondo did not quite dare to follow, but he took note of the direction his father took. Koly soon returned empty handed. "Now," he said to Nana, "you do not need to worry about the twins. I have prepared medicine according to Gafo's directions, and the twins will not kill us."

Pondo and Nana both breathed a sigh of relief. It seemed that the grave danger hanging over them had been removed. When his father had gone out of sight, Pondo slipped out of the hut and down the path. Not far from the stream he found what he was looking for. His father had cut the top off of a small tree, leaving a three pronged crotch. On this natural pedestal he had placed the little black bowl covered over with leaves.

Curiously Pondo untied the leaf covering and looked in. His father had evidently killed some little animal, for there were some bones with meat on them, some wild berries, and the egg. He covered it over carefully, as he had found it, and went on his way.

So this was the offering to the spirits to keep away misfortune from their home? Would it be powerful enough medicine?

Rev. Kelford at present is director of the well known Sunrise Gospel Hour, radio station CFCN, 1010 kc, at Calgary, Canada. He has been assisting his father in the Cleveland revival campaign as song leader.

Welcome, Rev. Kelford, into our fellowship!

In another letter from CHAPLAIN E. F. PINE of Ft. Meade, Md., we learn that he has been spending quite a bit of time with the boys out on the rifle range and has had a fine chance to talk with them. The mid-week services were suffering at that writing because of the intensified training period, many of the boys being in school in the evenings, or drilling, or cleaning their rifles. Some of the boys have been a fine help to him and are giving their testimony among the others, and Bro. Pine is confident that the Lord is going to bless His Word in a wonderful way as it is given out. The former Senior Chaplain was taken suddenly for foreign service, 72 hours notice being all that is required to be ready to sail. Bro. Pine, now Senior Chaplain, may likewise suddenly be transferred, but is praying that he may be permitted to remain with his present regiment and be sent abroad with them, as it will be a decided advantage to know all the boys and to have them know him.

CHAPLAIN ORVILLE LORENZ wrote, just before the close of his two weeks' meeting at Spring Lake Chapel, that he was having a fine meeting and expected more decisions before the campaign closed.

It is reported that the EAST CENTRAL DISTRICT BIBLE CONFERENCE which recently closed at Sterling, O., was the best for some years. Dr. Kelford and some of our own pastors brought some wonderful messages, and Dr. Kelford's son, Trevor, gave some great message in song. There was a singspiration one night, and a campfire service was held a couple of other nights.

Bro. Leo Polman writes at the beginning of the campaign in which he is assisting Bro. R. Paul Miller at MANSFIELD, O., "The meetings got a good start. 125 were present Sunday evening. At the children's meeting Monday afternoon 41 were present and 9 adults."

The first report of CAMP INDISINEWA, the Brethren young people's camp for the Central District, has just come to us, showing an enrollment and staff totaling 64. There were four confessions of Christ as Savior and three baptisms, besides a number of rededications of life to the Lord and several who presented themselves for full time service. 165 were present on visitor's night.

The young married and college C.E. of the WHITTIER, CALIF., church recently gave $27.62 toward the purchase of white leatherbound Testaments, to be presented to those in government service through the Charles Fuller Broadcast plan. Young people in this church are being used in the C.E. hour, a weekly Saturday night broadcast from 7:15-7:45, over KPAS. Music, testimony, and a Bible quiz are featured.

The Daily Vacation School of PERU, IND., opened with an enrollment of 50 and attained an enrollment of 113. 16 different churches were represented. The average attendance, including staff, was 86 for the first week and 109 for the second. 32 were awarded gold stars for perfect attendance throughout the two weeks, and 37 received red stars for perfect attendance for 10 days. Five cars drove a total of 387 miles, bringing an average of 60 pupils to school each day.

The school was divided into two groups, the Reds and the Blues. Real competition throughout the two weeks resulted in the Blues winning 48,570 points and the Reds close second with 48,250. A news class was held this year, known as the Advanced High School Class, with 10 enrolled. Dr. Bauman's book, "The Faith Once for All Delivered unto the Saints," was studied.

A total of 92 certificates was issued at the close of the school. There were 15 decisions for Christ, and a total of $10.25 was received for missions.

Nearly 150 pupils, their friends and parents, were at the picnic held at the park on the closing day.

Talkativeness (1. Thess. 4:11) . Talkativeness is utterly ruinous to deep spirituality. The very life of our spirits passes out in our speech, and hence all superflous talk is waste of the vital forces of the heart. In religious conservation we soon churn up all the cream our souls have in them and the rest of our talk is all pale skim milk, until we get alone with God and feed on His green pastures. Then the cream rises again. It is impossible for even the best of saints to talk beyond a certain point without saying something unkind, or severe or foolish or erronious. James 3:1-14.

A stranger once approached a lighthouse keeper and said: "How do you save the lighthouse during a storm?" The keeper promptly answered: "I'm not here to save lighthouses, but to save ships." Sometimes we grow more concerned about the lighthouse than we do about the business of saving souls. The lighthouse will take care of itself, if it is founded upon the rock. and ours is the promise that "the gates of hell shall not prevail aaginst it."—Calendar, First Church, Long Beach, Cal.

Our Clayhole, Ky., Revival

SEWELL LANDRUM, Pastor

July 6, Bro. R. Paul Miller came to Clayhole for the first evangelistic campaign to be held here since the Brethren work was started almost three years ago. Up until he arrived we had had a shortage of rain. The following morning we were awakened by a downpour of rain on our roof. We had never seen it rain so hard. By noon the roads were blocked and the streams were out of their banks. In some localities homes were destroyed. Here at Clayhole we saw two schoolhouses and many bridges pass by. All the crops and gardens in the lowlands were destroyed. As we saw the water rushing down the valley, we at first thought our meetings would be closed. Wednesday evening the water was over the highway on both sides of the church. By Thursday the water had gone down so the folks along the highway could come to church. Satan was still determined to do his work, so some of the boys began to disturb. This continued for several nights until the boys who were doing the work accepted Christ as their Savior. From then on everything went fine.

Considering all the interference, we had good attendance. One night we had the largest crowd we have ever had in our church. There were 300 folks present. Some one asked where they came from. They came from along the highway and from homes hidden away back in the little streams along the highway. Some of the people who came had to wade mud and water knee deep. They would take off their shoes and wade out to the highway. After the meeting they would again remove their shoes, and as we say it here "split the mud home." Some places they had to walk around the hillside where there was barely room for one person to pass, and a slip of the foot would have sent them into the rushing stream below.

During the meetings we had 57 decisions for Christ, 11 of whom have already been baptized. The greater part of them were young people in the high school age. There was one young couple we have been trying to win during the past 18 months. When the invitation was given during the last service they did not waste any time making their way down to the front. Twenty-one young people followed them that night.

There was one old man who attended the last three nights. He had never attended a meeting like ours. He had not been to church during the last 40 years. As he was ready to make his way back home that night he said, "The meetings have closed too soon. Just when I was getting interested in the meetings they closed." We are praying that this father will come to Christ before very long. His wife was baptized a few weeks ago.

Before the meetings started we encouraged our Christians to make out a prayer list and to pray for those they would like to see won for Christ. Last Sunday one of our young Christians (Jesse Fugate, whose testimony was in the Herald a few weeks ago) brought me his list. He had six names on it. Four had been scratched off already. As I looked at it I told him there was one more that should be taken off that night. During the last service that name was taken off. Out of six names five were removed. Two were his own brother and sister. One of the young women came to me and said, "All on my list except two have been marked off." The two remaining on the list were her own brother and sister.

The Clayhole folks' faith in God and The Brethren Church has been strengthened. They have learned that R. Paul Miller is a mighty man of God. He presented the Word of God without fear. One young woman who is not a Christian said, "He certainly is not afraid to preach the truth. Every one loves him for it."

During the last week we had two of our Brethren friends with us: Mrs. Mabel Flora from Flora, Ind., and Mrs. Nettie Harris from Sunnyside, Wash. We were glad to have them spend the week in our home. My only regret is that after all the trouble I had gone to remove the slats from their bed it did not fall with them! Another group from Flora spent one Sunday with us.

As I was writing this article, my wife came home with the news that our oldest Sunday School member had passed away. Last Sunday she was in Sunday School and put her birthday offering in our bank, having just passed 80. Mrs. Landrum nursed her during her last sickness. She has been president of our woman's organization since it was organized several years ago. Wednesday evening she attended the service and went home happy and talking about what a fine sermon Bro. Miller had preached. Thursday morning she had an upset stomach. We thought she was improving until other trouble developed. When I was with her I always felt like a little boy. In speaking of me she always referred to me as her pastor. She was the youngest sister of my grandfather. We will miss her in our services, but we know that this morning she is in a land where she will never grow old. Those of our Brethren friends who have visited the Kentucky work during the past 35 years will remember her as Aunt Maggie Strong.

We are praying that Bro. Miller can come to Clayhole again before many months. The good he has done at Clayhole cannot be determined this side of heaven.

We would like to say "Thank you" to all our Brethren friends who have made this work possible here at Clayhole. We want it to be a real lighthouse that will guide lost souls to Christ.

Sincerely yours,

—Sewell S. Landrum.

My Fourth Trip to Kentucky

MRS. MABLE FLORA, Flora, Ind.

In complying to Brother Miller's request for a report of my visit to the Kentucky work, I would like to report the progress as I have seen it over a period of years. My first trip was a real inspiration. I marvelled at the way people walked miles over mountain trails and through streams of water to be present at services, many arriving at 8:00 a. m. At that time an open truck was used to bring those too far to walk.

Of course we are all human, and as such felt badly when the Landrums had to leave Lost Creek, where they had done such splendid work; but Rom. 8:28 is always true, and now we can see God's hand in it all and know He had a greater work for them to accomplish.

Last year I was privileged to attend the dedication services at Clayhole where the new work was located. One could easily see that many people in the community were responding to the work, but the response now, only one year later, far exceeds it then in many ways.

It has been a great desire of my heart to attend a revival service at the mission, and God so led and blessed me this year in attending the second week of the meetings just closed. Oh, how I thank Him for it! It will long be one of the mountain-top experiences in my life. I not only saw how the work had grown in numbers, but the growth of these people spiritually in God's grace cannot be expressed in mere words. You just have to see and behold with your own eyes the work He has done.

I would like to pass on to you what other mission workers and people for miles around are saying about the work at Clayhole. A lady missionary, not a Brethren, who is working among the colored girls at Jackson, Ky., said, "The work at Clayhole is considered the most outstanding mission work in the Kentucky mountains."

I was privileged to attend a new work that Brother and Sister Landrum have started. They have Sunday School in the afternoons, and the superintendent of the S. S. said, as he was encouraging and urging his people to "bring them in" to services, that only a couple years ago the Clayhole community was considered the worst place anywhere in those mountains, as every week or Sunday there would be a fight, and nearly always some one was killed; many were drunk and there was much gambling. He said he heard it was a completely changed community, and that he had made several trips there just to see if it was true, and it was. Now they are praying and working for a church and the Lord's blessing in their place. I think they should have it, don't you? If so, then it is up to each one of us to double our home mission offering this fall.

Then, too, there is a great need for a helper to Bro. Landrum, as the work is growing too fast for one man and his wife to care for in all its phases. Another bus could be used to advantage to save over-crowding and making two trips in one direction, even then permitting no one living closer than a mile and a half to ride. There are other needs, such as a building for the clothing that is sent, which is such an important part of the work. There are great needs everywhere, but this is truly home missions in every respect.

Many families had all their gardens and corn crop completely destroyed by the flood. No potatoes, no beans, etc., to lay up for winter! Surely nearby Brethren churches could do a real deed of charity by gathering together a load of potatoes, beans, corn for corn meal, etc., and send it down, that it might be distributed where most needed.

We Brethren need to pray and give much for this work which God has put His approval upon. There is truly a great future there if our Lord tarries, because a large majority are children and young people as fine as there are anywhere. May God use this report to stir hearts to a greater zeal for home missions.

Who's Who In Pictures

The "photographic report" on the cover of the last Home Mission number of the Herald brought such a favorable response from readers that another report is published on this issue. All sections of the brotherhood are represented. The first photo (No. 1) shows a group of S.M.M. girls at Winchester, Va., where Paul Dick is the pastor.

The next picture, No. 2, comes all the way across the continent from Tracy, Calif., and shows two popular members of Brethren Sunday Schools, one at Tracy and one at Rittman, O. They are Brant Carey, son of Pastor Arthur Carey, and Janet Hammers, daughter of Pastor Tom Hammers.

A group of converts in the recent revival at Clayhole, Ky., appear in Picture No. 3, with the Home Mission secretary, who was the evangelist. There were 55 converts in all. Mary and Lorraine Latshaw represent Bellflower, Calif., in No. 4. Note one distinct feature about this picture? A fine example for every Christian—carry your Bible to Sunday School and church.

A bride and groom of 50 years, with 10 of their 11 living children, are shown in No. 6. They are the Gotleid Mensinger family at New Troy, Mich. Lest we forget the dedication of the new North Riverdale church at Dayton, Sept. 13, we submit a photo (No. 17) of the cornerstone as a reminder.

The Daily Vacation Bible School at Hagerstown, Md., appears in No. 8. These Brethren also are preparing for a dedication service in September, on the 27th. Another D.V.B.S., from Flora, Ind., greets us in No. 9, and in No. 10 we see the Primary department at Waterloo, Ia.

The recent flood near Clayhole, Ky., did widespread damage, as evidenced by Photo No. 11. Another view from Hagerstown, No. 12, shows the teaching staff of their D.V.B.S., with Pastor Grubb. The closing day of Tracy's D.V.B.S. attracted an attendance of 53, in Picture 13.

The six girls appearing in No. 14 also hail from Pastor Hammers' Bible school at Tracy. No. 15 needs little, if any, introduction to Brethren readers, for every one knows the veteran Dr. J. C. Beal, Bible teacher and pastor at Waterloo, Ia. A view of our Modesto, Calif., Brethren Mission is seen in No. 16, with the pastor's wife, Mrs. Ralph Rambo.

A delegation from Flora, Ind., motored to Clayhole, Ky., for the recent revival and are shown in No. 17. The W.M.C. Officiary at Flora, Ind., are seen in No. 18. The final view of this pictorial report very appropriately shows one of the many Brethren boys in the service of our country. He is Boyd Peer, a member of the Brethren mission at Cleveland.

My First Visit to Kentucky

MRS. NETTIE HARRIS, Sunnyside, Wash.

It was my privileeg to be in Clayhole for the last week of the revival service conducted by Bro. Miller. The first service we attended was Sunday School, which had an attendance of 193. Due to lack of experienced teachers the classes are very large. That afternoon we went to a small church about five miles away to a Sunday School where Bro. Miller gave an object lesson. The children's attention was distracted by a black snake which was taking in the meeting from its perch above a window. The children were told they should be more concerned about another serpent, the devil.

Early Tuesday morning we were awakened by activities in the garage where Mrs. Landrum and her mother were preparing the used clothing, as Tuesday is used clothing day. People began to come at 6:30 A.M. At 8 o'clock the doors were opened and the ladies and children began digging in the boxes and on the tables for the clothing. When they found what they wanted they brought it to Mrs. Landrum. Some bring in wild blackberries, vegetables, or chickens for use at the parsonage. A clothing room is a project which the Central District W.M.C. is planning for. It will be equipped with shelves, drawers, and racks, so the clothing can be more easily found and with a minimum of handling. This surely is needed.

The bus is filling a real need at the mission. Before it was purchased Bro. Landrum used his own car. He asked us to go with him on one trip up the valley. We certainly felt like excess baggage on the return trip when the bus began to fill up. Mr. Landrum had to pass up some with a promise that he would make a second trip. Sixty-eight were counted in that first load. About 135 people were brought by bus that night. Three hundred persons were at that service.

We still wonder where so many people came from. Traveling on the main road we do not see many houses. Many people live up in the ravines accessible by "toe paths." We walked up one of these paths. It was beside the creek and led under a large overhanging rock which was dripping water. I don't think I would come to church at night if I lived up in this particular "holler." A little thing like that doesn't stop the mountain folk; they pay little attention to hardships. After church we could see them wending their way up these paths by lantern light. I asked one girl how her shoes could be so clean after coming down a "toe path" which I knew to be very muddy. She said, "We take off our shoes and wade, wash our feet in the creek and put our shoes back on." One young mother who must cross the creek by boat fell into the water, babe in arms. She went to a house, cleaned up as best she could, and came on to church in her wet clothes.

The revival attracted a number who had never before been in the church. Some of the new converts were people unknown to the Landrums. Bro. Miller denounced sin, and presented the only remedy in simple language which all could understand. The result was real conviction of sinfulness. Before the meetings Bro. Landrum urged the use of prayer lists. At the close of the meetings one list was handed to him with six names on it and all six were checked off. Another list had all but one checked off. I was impressed by the large number of young people who took a stand for Christ. Helping them to grow in grace and in the knowledge of Christ will be a real privilege for our missionaries there. Brother and Sister Landrum fill their place there as no one else could. Sewell was reared there and knows the people. He has a unique way of dealing with them. He might say something like this, "Hey, Mr. C. did you all forget to come last night?" or "Why didn't you come to Sunday School? Don't tell me your excuse, I know it already." or "You all tell your husband that if he don't come next Sunday I'm coming up and throw rocks in every one of his windows." The latter statement brought a smile from the wife, and also brought the husband out to church.

Mrs. Landrum has learned their ways and they love her. She is a real missionary who loves the work which God is blessing in such a big way.

"Philanthropy given in the form of pittances, donated out of a glut of abundance, makes mock of God. For if these "possessions" that we proudly count our own are really God's, and we hold them only as administrators, the amounts we give away for Him make God out to be a pretty miserly owner.

THE MOST UNGODLY PASSAGE OF SCRIPTURE—"Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of His saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him."—Jude 14, 15.

Across the Nation - - WITH OUR SECRETARY

Winning the Lost At Clayhole—

We have just closed our first revival campaign to be held in the Clayhole, Ky., church building. The meetings had been planned for a long time. Originally it was planned to hold a revival there last summer, but we were unable to do so. This year it seemed that everything was planned for just the right time for best results. The crops were laid by, there was no school, and there was a likelihood of good weather. We got off to a good start the first night with very fair attendance and interest. The next morning at 4:00 o'clock it started to rain. When the rain stopped, the heavens opened up and gave us a cloud burst! Then we had a flood; and when we say flood we mean flood! Four inches of rain fell in three hours. It was the first time we ever saw anything like that in our lifetime. In a short time the roads were blocked both ways and all traffic was stopped. All the mountain streams were raging. Troublesome Creek, which runs right back of our mission buildings, was over its banks in no time. The water swept down the stream at the rate of 25 miles per hour. Scores of people lined the railing of the big concrete bridge as huge drifts floated down stream. Logs, lumber, washed out bridges, parts of houses, sheds, fences, furniture, tables, chairs, fruit jars, jugs, and all manner of other things came floating down. The stream was truly a roaring torrent. The streams that fed into Troublesome Creek were tremendously swift. They did as much if not more damage than the main stream. Boulders weighing tons came crashing and ripping down the ravines, piling up in great heaps at some bend or some obstruction in the way.

The loss to the people is tremendous. The gardens are the years' work for the people of this section. They mean food for themselves and for their stock during the winter time. Most gardens and corn fields are planted on the river banks for fertility and accessability. These were all swept away. Only such plantings as were on higher ground escaped at all. There is a loss of fully 65% of all crops according to the estimate of an old resident.

We took pictures of the flood in its various stages and of the damage to houses and crops. It is a sample of what these people frequently have to endure, and what Christian workers must contend with.

Our mission buildings were not reached by the water at all. They are on ground that was assured to us as being above flood tide. So far, this is true. What future and possibly greater floods may do cannot be stated.

But the people are not discouraged. They are used to hardship. They are used to lean fare. There are many hungry stomachs in these hills in normal times. Seldom is there really plenty of anything. This calamity will simply mean drawing the belt a little tighter this winter and going hungry a little oftener, that is all. But not one word of complaint or of despair was uttered. Some homes were swept away. Some were completely gutted with stones and logs and mud. We talked to the residents of some of these homes, but not one seemed bitter. The only thought was to get busy and correct the situation. If such a thing had happened in Indiana near where we live, there would have been a howl gone up that would have reached to the Rocky Mountains!

Satan surely resists every effort to win souls in this country. He outdid himself in this meeting. First it was a flood. Then it was troublesome young fellows who kept milling about throughout the service, talking and shuffling their feet. This went on for several days but one night God took a hand in the situation and six key young men accepted Christ. This stopped the interference. That was a real night of blessing and joy. Many were the tears that were shed by these young men and for them. God still knows how to take care of every situation. A most unusual interference came on the first Sunday afternoon. As most of you know we have a new Sunday School of about 75 at Haddix, Ky. The Sunday School lesson was laid aside for the day and we gave them a blackboard talk. Just as we were about to close with a fitting illustration, a shrill voiced boy yelled as he jumped up, "There's a snake, there's a snake!" Well, that meeting was about done for right there! I tried to quiet them, for it was only a harmless 3 ft. black snake, but you can guess about how much they listened to me after that. The church was on the bank on the river, and flood waters had likely washed the snake up to the building. Such are the experiences of teaching the gospel in the Kentucky hills.

During the meeting on the first Sunday, a car full of folks from Flora, Ind., drove down for the day. They drove most of Saturday night getting there and most of Sunday night getting home. We have pictures of them. They were a real blessing to us while there. The love of the people of our Flora church for our Kentucky mission is well known. Mrs. Mable Flora of Flora, Ind., and Mrs. Nettie Harris of Sunnyside, Wash., were with us during the entire last week. We have a picture of them just as they were called from helping to make sauer kraut of the cabbage that had to be pulled from the garden to save it from the flood waters.

The new bus is a real factor in the work. We hardly know what we could do without it. Three loads were hauled to each service. The bus was made to carry 37 and 65 were jammed into it every day. We really need another bus. It takes too much time to get people. Bro. Bandy, a local missionary working out of Jackson, has been acting as S.S. superintendent, and he is a real blessing. The Sunday School attendance on our first Sunday was 193. The attendance at church services ran from 250 to 300. This was the largest attendance for any services since the new work has been started.

One thing that impressed us above others on this trip was the way so many people of high standing speak commendably of this work. The manager of a Hazard Lumber Co., who had been born and raised near Clayhole, said, "You are doing a wonderful work. My home country is being transformed through the influence of your missionary." An experienced Christian worker who is doing a fine work among the hills said to us, "Your work at Clayhole is the finest type of Christian work and the most successful in all these mountains. You are bringing converts into the church as members and this is essential to permanent results." A minister of one of the large local city churches told us the same. Our Brethren people everywhere have every reason to rejoice in the way God has blessed the prayers and sacrifices that they have made in behalf of the salvation of the people of these Kentucky hills.

There are still several needs in this field. One is for a clothing room to be erected near the parsonage and to cost about $400. The crowded and unhandy conditions in this part of the work make this imperatime very soon. The patience of Mrs. Landrum in trying to use the garage for a clothing work is remarkable. She is not one to complain for she is in the Lord's service. But it is easy to see the difficulties which she must face in having the boxes of clothing piled in heaps with no way of separating it for display. Brother Landrum has made it possible to hang up most of the coats and long articles along the walls of the garage. We trust that the Lord will provide sufficient funds for this room in time for the fall season, beginning Oct. 1, when there is such a tremendous need to distribute clothing for the people.

There is also a real need for a filter for the parsonage. The water is good to drink and to use in every way, but as soon as it gets hot it seems that a rusty sediment appears, which makes it impossible for use in the bath or the washing machine. In trying to use it, it has turned some of Mrs. Landrum's towels rust color. She has not complained, but we see what she has to put up with. We hope that there is a filter made somewhere to take care of this need.

Another need is for a large garage to shelter the bus. Continual exposure to all sorts of weather shortens the life of a bus. The other and very important need is for another missionary.

Attendance at the services grew from the start. About 150 the first night, then the flood struck us. There was no service that night. The third night we had a small attendance. The fourth night it was larger, and on Wednesday of the second week we had 300 present.

We had special features in an object talk by Mrs. Mable Flora on the harm of cigarette smoking. We had Prof. Romine of Lee's College in Jackson to play the piano and accordian for us. A group of colored girls from Jackson under the auspices of Mrs. Gowan, a Christian worker there, gave us several fine numbers. Talent is hard to find in this field, but we used all we could get.

The meetings in the Jackson prison and the W.M.C. meetings went right on during the campaign.

Public schools have now opened for the year, and this will mean that Bro. Landrum's work in teaching the Bible to the day school pupils, to the extent of the time he has, will now begin. The parsonage did not get its final coat of paint this year and he has this to do. There is also quite a bit of repair work on the septic tanks that must be done before winter comes. If possible the clothing room should be built, and this will take much of his time. If ever a Christian servant had plenty to do, this dear man has it. We trust that the Lord will raise up the right kind of help for this man before long.

Hagerstown Has a Great Bible School—

We have just received a report from Hagerstown's splendid Summer Bible School, together with pictures. (See front cover.)

This school is conducted for a full three weeks period, and its emphasis is not on manual training but on the spiritual side. Hagerstown as a city is a heavy defense manufacturing community and it is in the restricted gasoline area. This made transportation exceedingly difficult. But in spite of these things, the school had remarkably sustained attendance.

The work of the children is shown in that 95 received awards for meritorious effort, including diplomas and seals. The regularity in attendance is marked by 74 who received rewards for perfect attendance. A real picnic wound up the school when 105 were out for the happy ending. The crowd which attended the public program jammed 150 into that little house where they now meet. The high point of the school was in the remarkable number of decisions for Christ, 44. Following is the record of the school in summary:

Enrolled—133.
Average attendance—103.
Perfect attendance—74.
Awards and diplomas—95.
Decisions for Christ—44.
Offerings by children—$35.01.

This is certainly an inspiring report. The pastor and teachers are to be highly commended.

Good News From Juniata—

The Lord's blessing is upon this field and souls are being won for Christ. Eight souls have made confessions since Bro. Mayer came on the field early in May. There were two men, three boys and three girls baptised on Sunday, July 19.

Bro. Henry Rempel was recently there for a Sunday service. It was a high light in the work to date. Not only have we received praise for the splendid preaching of Bro. Rempel, but also we have received word that on that day $151.82 was raised to purchase a bus. They have a large number of people that can be reached if transportation can be provided. We trust that a bus may soon be found for them. Keep on praying for Juniata.

"THOU REMAINEST"—

The hills of Kentucky are among the most beautiful God has made. They are not the widest or the highest, but there is a characteristic about them that is all their own. It is inspiring to awake each morning and look out my window at the hills covered with God's beautiful green. It fills the soul and helps one to forget his troubles, heartaches, and disappointments. They seem to cultivate a sweet calmness and peace to those who look kindly upon them.

One morning after a troubled night of sleep I awoke, but I could not see my restful hills. Fog had covered them completely. My spirit was blue. It seemed that there was no uplifting prospect.

How often is life like that. When life is dark and burdens hang heavy and you look to God for help, and you find that clouds hang low and shut out the view of the only light that is given to brighten your pathway; when even the promises of God seem dull and valueless; when you can't seem to see the beauty of His Word as once you did, and it seems as though the end of the road has come to you and that God has left you to darkness; and you strain to find the old uplift you once found in His Word, but it doesn't seem to count: those are the testing times. Job knew all about these things.

But the grandest thrill came to me that morning about 9:00 o'clock. The fog lifted slowly until those lovely hills were fully revealed again. Then a grand thought came to me. My soul rejoiced.

The fog was a passing thing but the hills were always there.

That thought was worth a world of gold to me that day. No matter how many troubles and disappointments come in and like a fog hide the face of the Lord from the soul, they are only temporary. But God is permanent; He is eternal, and His promises shall stand forth and sustain you after the clouds have passed away. Even though the clouds shut Him from your sight, God is there. Even though His Word in His promise seems far away, yet it shall never fail.

"But unto the Son He saith, Thy throne O God, is for ever and ever; a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of Thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even Thy God, hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows. And, thou Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands: they shall perish; but thou remainest; and they shall all wax old as doth a garment; and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail" (Heb. 1:8-12).

How truly it is spoken,

"He that putteth His trust in the Lord shall be safe" (Prov. 29:25).

THE HIGH COST OF UNBELIEF—

Everything man has to gain in the sight of God is on the basis of faith. Everything man has to lose in the sight of God is on the basis of unbelief. There is no such thing as self merit in man so far as God is concerned. The natural man is full of Himself. Prof. Micklen says the truth: "Belief is hard for us moderns."

We approach the day of the Man of Sin—the man produced by complete devotion to sin. The great Satanic leader will be but the foremost of a world of men of sin—men who have rejected Christ—men who reject God's will over them. Dan. 11:36 says of Antichrist, "The king shall do according to his own will." Already devoted to Satan, his will is the will of Satan. So he defies the will of God. The Scriptures that surround the description of the Man of Sin are full of accounts of the deceit, sacrilege, blasphemy, wars, and terrors that such a world of men produces. It is the high cost of unbelief.

There is little doubt that the wars that are sweeping the world today are the sure result of unbelief.

"The wicked are like the troubled sea that casteth up mire and dirt. There is no peace saith my God with the wicked" (Isa. 57:21).

The world as a whole has rejected Christ, the Prince of peace, Who alone could give men peace. Christ in the hearts of men would utterly slay the spirit of war. That we are standing at the threshold of a visitation from God seems certain. A few days ago Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain, said to Parliament, "This is not just war, it is the judgment of God in the earth".

We wonder if Churchill has been reading his Bible! Are we in the days referred to by the Lord when He said, "When these things begin to come to pass . . . your redemption draweth nigh" (Lu. 21:28). Are God's judgments beginning in the earth? Is the world of Christ-rejecting men about to reap for their unbelief? Says John 3:36, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, but He that believeth not the Son shall not see life but the wrath of God abideth on him". It surely seems that the wrath of God on unbelieving men is beginning to be loosed upon the world. Mankind must soon learn that unbelief comes at high cost. It does not pay! Ask the world before the flood!

CHRISTIAN LIBERALISM HAS COLLAPSED

D. R. Davies, a champion of liberal theology and philosophy for 25 years, but who finally awoke to the futility of it all and its utter inability to meet the needs of man and the world, has renounced it and embraced New Testament Christianity. In his latest book, "On to Orthodoxy," he speaks of Christian liberalism as "a subjection to the dominent philosophy of a secular civilization"; again, "A philosophy which has so badly failed in a day of crisis and anguish". In other words the liberalist is one who, having cast off the Bible as the authoritative revelation of God's truth and will, has drifted along, championing one passing moralism and theory after another borrowed from the mind of the world. Little wonder liberalism has failed to heal the world. It is like a sick cat trying to heal itself by swallowing its own vomit.

Jude has truly described them, "These are spots in your feasts of charity, when they feast with you, feeding themselves without fear: clouds they are without water, carried about of winds; trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots; raging waves of the sea foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever" (Jude 12, 13).

God pity the simple hearts in the congregations who have trusted their church leaders and have had to listen to such men as the voice of God. When "the blind lead the blind both shall fall into the ditch" (Matt. 15:14).

No wonder congregations divide, and church buildings have been emptied wherever liberalism reigns. What a pity it is that this type of so-called Christian leaders has become known to state leaders as representative of the real Christian faith. When in time of crisis the statesmen turn to them for counsel, they get but the frothings of the guesswork of worldly minds and ideas.

IS APOSTOLIC CHRISTIANITY DEAD?

John G. Schroeder in his late book on "Modern Man and the Cross" speaks of the modern church as "the uninspiring spectacle of a docile and mild-mannered gentleman trying to persuade a docile group to be still more docile". This description would be humorous if it weren't quite so sickeningly true in so many cases.

Who of us has not been bored by listening to a drab and lifeless message from an apologetic preacher, who seemed to be reciting his sermon as a duty instead of as a man sent from God, set on fire of the Holy Ghost, with a message of life and death blazing out of the fires in his own heart as the result of his own personal experience with God?

In one of our cities recently we noted the crowds passing by a large church where a highly trained fundamentalist preacher was pastor, and they were pouring into a rough hewn tabernacle that looked like a good breeze would blow it down. We asked what was going on in the tabernacle and we were told that a young man was there preaching to great crowds. We found he had practically no education or theological training except what he had gotten himself. His language was faulty and his methods anything but conventional. But he had a fire in his heart. He loved lost men. Lost men believed in his sincerity. They trusted him. They came to hear him and believed his message, and hundreds were being saved. The hearts of men still want to hear a man who is on fire with his experience of salvation in Jesus Christ. The idea that you have to have a fine building and a finished education to preach the gospel is a mistake. But to have both plus a heart on fire for God is the greatest tool God has to use.

> Billy Bray, a mighty preacher in England two generations back, when criticized for his poor language used to reply, "I haven't been to college but I've been to Calvary".

The apostles and disciples were not men of conventionality but men of originality, fearlessness, force, and devotion. They didn't seek high spots or soft spots—they sought men. They were not jealous of the success of others. When men heard them preach, they embraced Christ. Wherever they went, things happened. No empty synagogues when they were preaching in them! When John the Baptist came through a country, men left their work, homes, and pleasures, and went by thousands to hear him. Nothing docile and mild mannered about him! The ecclesiastics didn't approve of him but the people did. It was the same with the Savior.

God help us as preachers to kick the sides out of our ruts, get out after men, preach our own sermons, and "turn the world upside down", for God knows it needs just that today!

NO HOPE IN WAR—

There is no doubt but that, when one nation is attacked by another with the intent to utterly crush her, there is just one thing to do, and that is to defend herself. There is no such thing as a Christian nation, and Christian ways and means cannot be prescribed for nations. As Christians, however, individuals have a very clearly defined course of conduct prescribed. It does not alter according to circumstances. Some Christian leaders today are seemingly having a hard time to maintain the things they have held and preached for years. Their devotion to Christian institutions that they have, under our beneficient government, been allowed to build up or enjoy, has made them to feel that they could not continue Christian testimony without them and that therefore war is God's way of protecting His church on earth.

But we feel that such men have completely lost their right judgment of the basic trouble of mankind. As Ex-President Hoover so ably and truly said in a speech in Chicago recently, "the trouble with this world is far deeper than Hitler. He is only a symbol of these evil ideas which threaten civilization. Ideas cannot be vanquished on the battlefield. These evils must die from within if the world is to be delivered."

America may raise a military machine so great as to utterly crush Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and all their sympathizers from the face of the earth, and yet the seat of the world's trouble would not be remotely touched. Getting rid of Hitler will not get rid of the dreadful conditions that menace our faith, our churches, our homes, our nation and all that we hold dear. Hitler is simply a product of a condition of the world—that condition is sin. That crowning sin is unbelief in Christ. Destroying Hitler will not produce faith in Christ. Unbelief in Christ will produce the same thing in America that it has produced in Germany, Russia, and other nations. Winning this war will not bring ease and peace to the world. We will still face the same trouble just as it has arisen twice in Germany in less than 30 years.

After all, the preacher of the gospel of the grace of God in Jesus Christ is the only man that is approaching this world's trouble with the true answer. The world's leaders, reformers and religionists have been just trimming the limbs of the old tree of sin. Shouted John the Baptist, "Now the axe is laid at the root of the tree". Cut her down—the old nature of sin must be overcome; men must be born again! When this is realized, battleships will sink at anchor through disuse, swords will rust, and battleflags decay. War will not bring this about. War will cease when Christ rules in the affairs of men. That is why we must preach today, "Christ and Him crucified," as never before. We must do it—that is our job.

"I DON'T LIKE TO RING DOOR BELLS"—

An earnest and faithful pastor was talking to the writer recently about his work and the difficulties he faced. He realized that souls were not being saved and that something was lacking in his ministry. There was no snap and fire in it. He is a lover of books and a fine student. We asked the amount of visitation he did. He replied, "I don't like to ring door bells. It is the hardest part of my work. I don't like to meet people. It is distasteful of me."

Such an attitude will utterly wreck any man's hopes of a successful ministry if it is not speedily overcome. How can a man win souls to Christ if he has a distaste for meeting them? How can he preach to men's hearts if he does not know men? How can he know men if he secludes himself from them? He may be ever so

HOME MISSION BANKS CAN NOW BE HAD AGAIN

There have been so many requests for the little home mission banks that we have arranged to supply them again. Undoubtedly they are far superior to the coin collectors for children's use. The banks are available free of cost to all children's workers who desire them for use in gathering our next and greatest home mission offering. The banks can be had at once by ordering through the office of the Council, at Berne, Ind.

earnest in his spiritual life and careful to seek deeper things with God, and yet be wholly fruitless as a pastor. We are reminded of the story of a monk who sought to draw close to God. He kept to himself in meditation. Finally he thought to climb the highest point in the monastery tower and talk to God, and then write messages to the people and drop them down outside the window. For days he stayed there with no message from God. Finally he cried in desperation, "O God, where art thou?" Back came the distant voice, "Down here where my people are".

With the exception of Paul the apostle there were no scholars among the early apostles and disciples. But they shook the world of God through their personal dealing with souls. The only preaching service of which we have any record in the New Testament is that in Acts 20:7-12. But we have countless records of personal soul-winning. While the Apostle Paul was a brilliant preacher with a brilliant mind, yet the account of his ministry is featured by his personal appeal to Felix and Festus, governors of Judea, and Agrippa the king. The three years he stayed in Ephesus were spent in pleading and tears, going from house to house day and night. The preacher who finds his weakest spot at the point of his personal ministry has two things to do to overcome it.

First, he should pray earnestly for God to reveal to him the real meaning to the soul of the one word L-O-S-T. Once he gets that he will never be the same man again.

Second, he should go out and start talking to men about Christ and eternity. Talk to the grocer, the insurance man, the service station operator, the next door neighbor.

That preacher will return to his study aglow with living illustrations and sermon material. He will enter his pulpit a man on fire for God. People everywhere like to go to a fire, and they will go to see a man burn up for God!

News from Brethren CHURCHES

DOINGS AT TRACY, CALIF.

The First Brethren Church of Tracy is rejoicing over the wonderful manner in which the Lord blessed our "first" daily Vacation Bible School. Not that we had never engaged in this work, for in former years we had shared in the "union" school; but we felt that it would be profitable to our work to launch a school of our own this year.

Beginning with an enrollment of 22 the first day, within 10 days the enrollment had jumped to 63. Our average attendance for the period was 38 with a peak attendance of 53 on the closing day.

Representation from the various denominations which follows indicates the fact that we have reached many homes not ordinarily touched by our work: Brethren—31, Methodist—12, Presbyterian—5, Pentecostal—3, Baptist—2, Church of Christ—1, Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints—1, Catholic—1, and there were 10 giving no church connection whatsoever.

Throughout the entire period we stressed the way of salvation and presented an opportunity for decisions for Christ on the last two days. In all, 25 boys and girls responded to the invitation to receive Jesus Christ as Savior. Of this number, eight attend our own Bible School, and we look forward to baptizing a number of them in the near future.

The offering received each day amounted to $10.17 and is being forwarded to Anne Celeste Kleiver in Africa.

A "victory" program was presented on the Sunday night following the Bible School, with many parents of the children in attendance. A fine display of handwork, all of which had some definite relation to the Scriptures, was on display for this program. Of particular interest were the fifteen "Gospel Walnuts" made by the Juniors, the story of which was told by one of the members of this class. "Bible Boats" made by the Primaries and "Colored Pictures of Old Testament Characters" by the Beginners indicate the nature of their work.

Much credit for the success of the school is due June Lehman and Bette Sasser who assisted the pastor in teaching, along with Rita Anastasio, Helen Harp, Naomi Reed, and Dewey Quigley as helpers. The fine spirit of cooperation and loyalty, backed up with much hard work and prayer by these girls, made our school a possibility.

We give all the glory to the Lord for victories won, and believe you too will agree that our school was truly a "victory" school.

"Unspotted From the World"

PAUL E. DICK, Winchester, Va.

"Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of Him in peace, without spot, and blameless" (II Peter 3:14).

The apostle Peter, in writing to these Christian people in whom he was vitally interested, points out very clearly the doctrine of the second coming of Jesus Christ. He also warns them of the false teachers who would deny such a doctrine, some even going so far as to say, "Where is the promise of His coming?" Realizing the importance of the second coming, Peter uses it as a means to induce the people to purity and godliness in their whole conversation.

Every truth in the Scriptures should be used for the Christian's advancement in practical godliness. If the knowledge of the second coming of Jesus Christ has not made an impression on us for more godly living, then we are none the better for knowing it. We must keep ourselves unspotted from the world in all our converses with it. We must be perfecting holiness in the fear of God, and in the love of God as well. We must exercise ourselves unto godliness of all sorts, in all its parts, trusting in God and delighting in God only. We must not only take heed of all spots which are not the spots of God's children, but we must be found of Christ without spot; we must be pressing towards spotless purity, absolute perfection. As Christians we should be perfecting holiness, that we may not only be blameless before men but before God also. This deserves and needs the greatest diligence. Someone has said, "He who does the work of the Lord negligently cannot do it successfully".

Yes, the Apostle Peter here is teaching separation from the world with the knowledge that there was One without spot, One who was and is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens, even Jesus Christ Himself. Modern cults and isms would teach us that, just like all inherently corrupt mankind, Christ was born with a "sinful nature"—in other words, that His heart too, was "deceitful above all things and desperatly wicked"! However, the Bible teaches prophetically, that through the overshadowing power of "the Highest", Christ was to be born of the virgin Mary as "that holy thing". It teaches, historically, that during His early life, He was acknowledged to be the "holy child Jesus," "the holy One of God"—that He "did no sin". In His being, the Son of God differs from all others, both men and angels, not only in degree but in kind. As for men, all, save Jesus Christ, have possessed the nature of evil, for all have been the offspring of their father, Adam. But Christ possessed the nature of holiness because He was procreated, not of man, but of the Spirit of God. Yes, He was God the Son—"God with us"—"God manifest in the flesh" (Matt. 1:23; I Tim. 3:16). Therefore, in His nature, He was more than human. He was Divine; and, as a result was immune to sin.

Only on this basis could the Lord Jesus Christ expect His followers to be separated from the world. Yes, the Lord would have us separated and unspotted from this present evil age. He is calling us to separation in these days of modernism and apostacy. If ever the church of Jesus Christ needed separation preached, today is the day.

Speaking of the "perilous times" which have come upon the nations of the earth in these dark, violence-filled "last days", a great statesman frankly admits: "The present situation is desperate—so desperate that it is beyond our capacity to deal with it!" Another clear-thinking world figure as candidly and as apprehensively observes: "The spirit that is coming upon us is a spirit of panic mixed with dread!"

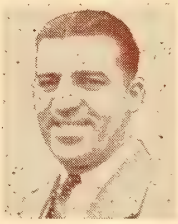
In this fearful time, everything in the political realm seems to be off balance, seems to be careening and tottering: and that which we call civilization appears ready momentarily to collapse in utter ruin. Why this mad, unprecedented, world-wide upheaval? Why? This is the eleventh hour forerunner of the prophesied "time of the end". This is the stage setting prelude to yet more terrible days—"that great time of trouble" such as never was! What a day for Christian ministers to proclaim the whole Word of truth, and that of separation and keeping ourselves unspotted from the world. The apostle Paul preached it, Peter preached it, James preached it, and most of all Jesus Christ preached it. We ought to preach it also.

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

Bro. L. L. Grubb writes from the Southeast District's GREEN MOUNTAIN CAMP: "We have just finished a great week in camp with about 90 altogether. Some 45 decisions were made for Christ. We expect another great victory this week. After being in the camp for a week, I can honestly say that I have never seen anything to compare with it."

The WEST KITTANNING, PA. church has just purchased and installed a new furnace.

BRO. ROBERT WILLIAMS, who has been trying to get to Africa ever since the ZamZam missionaries were landed in America, writes, "We have been having our ups and down. We got all ready to sail on a Portuguese boat, and couldn't get Portuguese visas. Now we just missed another boat sailing this week. When the right one comes, we will get on it." Keep praying that the Lord will speedily open the way for the much needed recruits to go to Africa.



The First Brethren Church of the Ellet District of AKRON, O., where Rev. R. E. Gingrich is pastor, has called Charley Bergerson of Racine, Wisc., to become its assistant pastor and music director. Mr. Bergerson has been pianist and baritone on the America Back to God Quartet, associated with Rev. John Zoller's radio work known as the America Back to God movement from Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Bergerson is a graduate nurse who will, no doubt, seek admission to the nursing staff of one of the Akron hospitals. These two fine, accomplished young people were members of the Camp Buckeye staff this past summer, and are well acquainted with the Brethren faith. Their acceptance of this position with the Ellet Brethren church will mean much to the growth and testimony of this church. They begin their ministry Oct. 1942.

Two decisions were made when the first invitation was given at the meetings at MANSFIELD, O., conducted by Bro. R. Paul Miller. The attendance has been good; and the evangelistic party which includes Bro. Leo Polman and Elaine, were scheduled for several broadcasts during the second week of the campaign.

"God Is Faithful"

I Cor. 1:9

HAROLD O. MAYER, Pastor, Juniata, Pa.

Departing from Antioch on his third missionary journey, Paul journeyed northward passing through Phrygia and Galatia, and then came to Ephesus where he remained over two years. It was during his stay at Ephesus that he received news of a distressing nature concerning the moral and spiritual state of affairs in the Corinthian church. Let us look for a moment at some of the charges which had been made.

"There are contentions among you" (1:11). The church was being divided by a party spirit, one faction adhering to Paul, another to Apollos, another to Cephas, and another party gave itself the name of Christ. "There is among you envying, and strife, and division" (3:3).

These are but a few of the charges. There was a serious moral charge against one of their number. There were others who would partake of the Lord's Supper and then eat meat offered to idols. There were irregularities in public worship, and mistaken views of the resurrection. Surely all of these must have grieved Paul to no end, and in some instances aroused in him righteous indignation — indignation that would cause the average person to rebuke these Corinthians severely. But not so with Paul. Notice his marvelous tact as he deals with the situation. He does not launch out into a tirade against them and remind them of their unfaithfulness. No, he calls to their attention the fact that "God is faithful".

Faithfulness is an attribute of God denoting the certainty in the accomplishment of God's promises. His very faithfulness distinguishes him from other gods. If our God were not faithful He would be no different than the heathen gods. "God is faithful," on these words we Christians stake our all both now and forever. "Were God to take away the promise all the miserable world would perish, for they can never lay hold of his mercy except through His Word" (Calvin).

In Deut. 7:9 we read, "Know therefore that the Lord thy God, He is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love Him and keep His commandments to a thousand generations". This word faithful in the original language is pronounced "aman", and means to be faithful or steady. How like "amen", you say? Yes for it is the very same word translated in the N. T. by the word amen. The faithful God of the O. T. is the "aman" God, Who is identical with the "Amen the faithful and true Witness" of Rev. 3:14. We know that "the Amen" of Rev. 3:14 is none other than our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now just what do we mean when we say "amen"? Literally we are saying "Let it be so, so it is, or may it be fulfilled." Twenty-five times in the Gospel of John, our Lord uses the expression "Verily, verily," which is to say more literally and more correctly, "Amen, Amen I say unto you." What was He saying? "Most assuredly it must come to pass." God is faithful and will not suffer his faithfulness to fail.

God's faithfulness cannot be voided because of man's unfaithfulness and unbelief. "Not for thy righteousness or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to possess their land; but for the wickedness of these nations the Lord thy God doth drive them out before thee, and that He may perform the word which the Lord sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Issac and Jacob." Regardless of their disobedience, their murmuring, and their grumbling in the wilderness, God kept his promise. Israel was to be permitted to enter the land because he had promised it to them 400 years before. "God is faithful."

How secure we can feel then in Him, knowing that He keeps His promises—not as the heathen gods who were unstable; gods who would cheat and lie; gods who were licentious and unchaste, spiteful and malignant toward men; gods who were quarrelsome and abusive to each other; gods who constantly had to be appeased with some gift in order that their wrath might be stayed or directed elsewhere. What a feeling of security to know that our God is faithful!

God's faithfulness is seen in those things which we are so prone to take for granted. We go to bed at night, set our alarm clocks for a certain hour, rise up in the morning fully expecting to see the sun, or to see evidence that it is shining down upon the universe. Suppose the sun should fail to rise some morning. Seven o'clock, no sun; eight, nine, ten, finally noon, and no sun! Can you imagine the consternation of the people? Many who had never prayed would be on their knees praying to the faithful God, seeking His favor and mercy. "He appointed the moon for seasons: the sun knoweth his going down" (Ps. 104:19) God created the heaven and the earth and they are still under His divine control. Down to the present day, and going back as far as history takes us, we find that our division of time is founded upon arrangements made at creation of the movements of the sun and moon in the heavens. From times untold until now they have never varied. They are still the only reliable marks of seasons and dates. Truly God is faithful.

Today on every hand men are questioning God's faithfulness. They are saying, "Why doesn't God do something? If there is a God, why doesn't He intervene?" Yes, even Christians have been heard to say, "I don't listen to the war news any more; I never even read the papers, because when I do I get so blue and discouraged that I don't know what to do" "My isn't it awful? What will we ever do? How will it all end?" Of course it is awful; of course war is ter-

Non-Combatant Service

An interpretation of Southern California District Conference of Brethren Churches in Conference assembled, as to the meaning of Non-Combatant Service

In harmony with the report of the Committee on the Attitude of the Brethren Church Toward War, which report was approved by the 31st Annual Conference of Brethren Churches of Southern California on July 26, 1941, and reaffirmed by this present conference on this 18th day of July, 1942, this conference desires to go on record further as holding that it is not inconsistent with the teaching of the Scripture for a Christian to engage in any service for his country that does not demand the bearing of arms for violent combat. For instance, we see no reason why the born-again child of God should not engage in the service of the Medical Department of the army or navy, inasmuch as this gives opportunity to heal the wounds of men whose bodies have been torn in combat or otherwise. Again, it would appear to us that to enter the service as a chaplain, which affords great opportunity to contact masses of unsaved men and make known to them the salvation of our God, as well as to contact many Christian boys who have been drafted into the army and to assist them in maintaining their moral and spiritual lives—this appears to us to be a service which would not only be a privilege but a duty of the Christian church. Moreover, we believe that it is no violation of our church for a Christian to engage in any form of non-combatant service as set forth in the Executive Order (No. 8606) of our President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, on Dec. 6, 1940, since non-combatant service as set forth in this order does not call for us to destroy human life. We maintain our Brethren idea that it is the supreme business of the Christian church to maintain the moral and spiritual values, which, if lost, would scarcely leave the war itself worth winning.

In the matter of the purchasing of Government Bonds, War Stamps, and working in defense industries, we hold that the line of Christian duty, as well as of Christian privilege, is sometimes a very difficult line to draw; and, in these matters it must be left to the individual soul to deal alone with his God. The exact line of division between the things that a Christian may do and which he may not do, is a line that in many cases cannot be drawn, even by the visible church of Christ. It would seem to us that the inspiration given to the Apostle Paul by the Holy Spirit, recorded in Rom. 14, must be recognized by us all:

> "For one believeth that he may eat all things; another, who is weak, eateth herbs. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth; for God hath received him. One man esteemeth one day above another; another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. . . . We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God. So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God. . . . And he that doubteth is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith; for whatsoever is not of faith is sin." (Rom. 14:2, 3, 5; 10-12, 23).

In the light of this divine revelation, we should exercise charity in a time like this, and be careful not to sit in judgment, where it is not ours to judge. However, in these things wherein God hath plainly spoken, we must obey, no matter what the cost.

rible. But did not our Lord say, "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye are not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet?" See that ye are not troubled—these things must come to pass because God is faithful. Not one "jot" or "tittle" of His word shall fail.

Christian, have you forgotten that "the most High ruleth in the kingdoms of men and giveth it to whomsoever He will"? God is still on the throne. He has not gone away and left this old world to run itself. No, sir! everything is going right along on schedule, for God is faithful. "The Lord is not slack concerning His promise, as some men count slackness, but is longsuffering to usward, not willing that any should perish but that all should come to repentance." Many are yet outside the fold. God is faithful. He is also longsuffering. Some day His longsuffering will end—then He shall keep His promise to us that are His. "The Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." God is faithful.

NON-COMBATANT SERVICE—

The Executive Order, defining non-combatant training and service provides:

"Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to require any person to be subject to combatant training and service in the land or naval forces of the United States, who, by reason of religious training and belief, is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form. Any such person claiming such exemption from combatant training and service because of such conscientious objections whose claim is sustained by the local board shall, if he is inducted into the land or naval forces under this act, be assigned to non-combatant services as defined by the President, or shall, if he is found to be conscientiously opposed to participation in such non-combatant services, in lieu of such induction, be assigned to work of national importance under civilian direction. . . . "

I hereby declare that the following military service is non-combatant service:—

(1) Service in any unit which is unarmed at all times.

(2) Service in the Medical Department wherever performed.

(3) Service in any unit or installation, the primary function of which does not require the use of arms in combat, provided the individual's assignment within such unit or installation does not require him to bear arms or to be trained in their use.

I further declare that non-combatant training consists of training in all military subjects except marksmanship, combat firing, target practices, and subjects relating to the employment of weapons.

Persons inducted in the military service under the above act, whose claim to exception from combatant training and service because of conscientious objection, has been sustained to non-combatant military service as defined in paragraph one.

Attitude Toward War

RESOLUTION ON SUBJECT OF THE ATTITUDE OF THE BRETHREN CHURCHES TOWARD WAR

The 1942 Conference of Brethren Churches of Southern California, convening at Long Beach, Calif., July 11 to 18, 1942, reaffirmed resolutions on this subject adopted at the 1941 conference which read as follows:

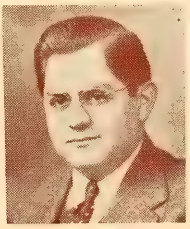
"WHEREAS, there has arisen misunderstanding in the minds of many concerning the stand of The Brethren Church regarding the matter of war, and:

"WHEREAS, many church groups have passed resolutions condemning war in general, and:

"WHEREAS, a great deal of confusion and misunderstanding has arisen concerning the true position of The Brethren Church in relation to war, and;

"WHEREAS, other religious bodies, some of similar name, have set forth resolutions concerning war which differ from the historic position held by The Brethren Church, and;

"WHEREAS, it is our desire to have fully understood our deep gratitude and loyalty to our government for the liberty and protection that we enjoy,



"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that we as the 31st Annual Conference of the Brethren Churches of Southern California go on record as declaring that we believe that human government is divine in origin and mission, having authority over physical life and property, having divine right and power to declare and prosecute war. We have no criticism of the governments of this world, a world that is far from being Christian, if they deem the use of the sword a necessity in defense of a free people.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that we hereby go on record as declaring that we further believe that every Christian should be a law-abiding citizen, faithful in allegiance and loyalty to his government; however, we affirm that the Christian has a dual citizenship, earthly and heavenly. If therefore there arises a conflict between the command of these, the Christian must obey the higher—the heavenly. We believe that the Scriptures forbid a Christian to ever use violence, engage in carnal warfare, or do anything that causes bloodshed or death. We are compelled to go on record as holding to the conviction that it would be impossible for us, as citizens of the kingdom of God, unless we would act in direct disobedience to the Lord Jesus Christ and violate our own consciences, to carry arms or to engage in any conflict where we would take human life. We recognize and appreciate the protection of our flag of the United States. To the nation that God has ordained to afford us protection we gladly offer our services, time, money, and life itself, if necessary, to bind up its wounds, or to heal its sorrows, by means or methods our Lord Jesus Christ has approved for the use of those who follow Him."

"Light for a Dark Day"

JOHN M. AEBY, Pastor, First Brethren Church

Fort Wayne, Indiana

The days in which we live are dark days. Instead of giving guidance and consolation to troubled hearts many clergymen are engaged in the creating of a "post-war world". The practical man is concerned with the winning of the war and the care of the souls who must endure it. It is certain that unless the war is won by the allies, humanly speaking, there will be no "post-war world" in which we as free peoples will care to live. The borrowed light from the doubtful dawn of an imaginary new day is not very encouraging to those who are sacrificing their lives and their loved ones today. They are looking for light in the darkness of the present.

In other days and in other emergencies, the church has almost always brought comfort and encouragement to those seeking it with an authoritive "thus saith the Lord"! But the church of the present day, for the most part, has substituted the uncertainty of man's opinion for the authority of God's Word. Is it any wonder that many are turning away from her uncertain voice in despair, and not a few in disgust? It is time that the inspired words of the apostle Peter are heard anew and put into practice. In 2 Pet. 1:19-21 we read, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts: knowing this first that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." The Holy Spirit here uses the veteran apostle to tell us at least three things.

1. The Scripture is a light for the darkness of the present hour. We are not in need of physical illumination. In fact we are preparing to blackout all the man-made illumination which human genius has given us in the last generation or two. But politically, economically, morally and most important of all, spiritually, the world is in indescribable darkness.

The Psalmist, the sweet singer of Israel, long ago said, "The entrance of thy words giveth light" (Ps. 119:130). Peter here affirms the same truth. There is not and can never be any light for the souls of men apart from the One Who said, "I am the Light of the world"! We are told further that the reason we are in the darkness of the hour is that we as a people have paid no heed to the Word of God.

Elsewhere in his writing, Peter informs us that there were and will be scoffers who will ridicule predictive

"The Church, the Bride of Christ"

Rev. 21:9, 10

By RANDALL L. ROSSMAN, Pastor, Grafton, W. Va.

"And there came unto me one of the seven angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will shew thee the Bride, the Lamb's Wife. And He carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God."

In Matt. 16:18 we have the first mention of the true church which is the bride of Christ. Much controversy and misunderstanding has long since prevailed among Christians concerning the exact meaning of the words of the Lord Jesus when He said, "Upon this rock I will build My church." It is quite interesting to note that Christ did not say that He would build many churches, but He did say that He would build at some future time "My church". He did not say that He would build a Baptist church, nor a Presbyterian church, a Roman Catholic church, nor any other of about an odd 200 other denominational and sectual churches. Jesus said, "Upon this Rock (Christ Himself) I will build My church."

Now then, since there is but one church of Christ there can therefore be but one bride. Christ is the Bridegroom and the true church is His bride.

Several years ago we read in one of our newspapers of a certain man, a "Reverend" and pastor of "The Church of the More Abundant Life". Evidently this man was a firm believer in what the world would perhaps call "the more abundant life," because of the fact that the law revealed him to be a bigamist. He had at least two or more wives between whom his attention and interests were divided. But our heavenly Bridegroom only has one bride, and that bride is His own called-out assembly of believers in this present day and age, even since the cross.

In spite of the prevailing world conditions of our day, and of all that possibly might happen in this old world of ours, Christ will always have His church, though perhaps small it may be, of true and devoted followers and worshippers of Him. The true bride will always remain true to her Bridegroom, Who Himself is truth. The powers of Satan and all his cohorts can never, no never, utterly destroy the church which is the bride of Christ.

The Bride of Christ Has Been Called With An Holy Calling

God in love, mercy and grace, has called us through the gospel of His grace. In II Tim. 1:9 we read of Him "Who hath called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began." He didn't choose us because of our abilities or because of our works. He chose us according to His own purpose in grace, which purpose He has definitely revealed unto us through the Scripture. The calling of the bride out of the world to be conformed into His image and His own likeness is a calling of infinite depths and heights. Called out from those below that we might be seated with Him above! In the heavenlies! The heavenlies being themselves an holy place demands of us also that holiness of daily living.

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose. For whom He did foreknow, He also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of His Son, that He might be the firstborn among many brethren." Yes, that we might be conformed to the image of His Son, hath He called us and justified us. Do we look like Christ? Does the world see Christ in us? Does the world see Christ living in you?

The Bride of Christ Is a Distinct and Peculiar People

"But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people." God means that we shall be a "peculiar" people in the sense of our prophecy (2 Pet. 2:1-5). Isn't it strange that men will pay high box-office admission to hear some fallible man speculate on the outcome of the war and the probable course of future events, and at the same time ignore completely the prophetic word of the infallible God! This is done in spite of the fact that we are told that we have a word of prophecy made more sure because of the prophecies already fulfilled. For example, those of the Old Testament which referred to the coming of Messiah in humiliation have been fulfilled literally, not spiritually as some affirm, in the birth and ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ culminating in His death, burial and resurrection. Therefore, it is only reasonable to believe that the prophecies regarding the return of Christ in personal glory and power to put down all rebellion against God will be fulfilled the same way. Those prophecies already fulfilled have come to pass with such accurateness of detail that the destructive critics of the Bible have tried to escape the responsiblity of the demands of the Bible by insisting that the writings are not genuine. They claim that they are fraudulent productions of later authors who gave their writings an earlier date and signed the names of the well-known prophets to secure their reception as Scriptures. To those who know anything about the care with which the Hebrew scribes guarded the sacred canon of the law, the prophets and the psalms, such spurious scholarship is ridiculous. The pages of history confirm the prophecies of God's Word and touch every man to depend on their accuracy for the future.

2. The Scripture is not to be interpreted privately, but studied in the light of the rest of Scripture. Man's opinion does not satisfy the troubled hearts of men, but the revealed Word of God does!

3. The Scripture is the product of the Holy Spirit through the channel of chosen men. Because of foolish statements by many who preach prophecy, many thoughtful people have concluded that prophecy is unreliable. However, we should remember to distinguish between what man supposes and what God has said!

Do you want a message of authority which will bring cheer, comfort and encouragement to you in these days? If you do, then wipe the dust off your Bible and search its pages with a believing heart, trusting in the guidance of the Holy Spirit, Who originally gave us the Word of God, and Who resides in the hearts of all who have received the Lord Jesus Christ as Savior to make known to us the unsearchable riches of God! In this way, and in this alone, can we have light for this dark day!

being a devoted and dedicated and different people, and not in the sense that we would be a "foolish" people. There are many "peculiar" people in the world today who do not belong to the bride of Christ. Many of them belong to the world and the devil. But we are to be unto Him a peculiar and distinct people "that we should shew forth the praises of His who hath called you (us) out of darkness into His marvelous light." Christ Jesus, the Bridegroom, "gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify (separated) unto Himself a pecular people, zealous of good works."

The Bride of Christ Is a Separated People

They are a people devoted to God and separated from the world. "And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people." "Wherefore come ye out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you." One of the greatest needs of Christianity of our day is that born again ones would separate themselves from those of the world and from the world itself. Yes, we must live here for a little while, but while we are in the world we must not be of the world. If we are to have a testimony for Christ (and that is His desire for us) we must be able to say with the Psalmist (Ps. 40:8), "I delight to do Thy will, O my God: yea, Thy law is within my heart." There must be both a desire and a willingness on the part of the believer to do the will of God at all times regardless of the cost that must be paid.

The Bride of Christ Is a Dedicated People

There is the laying of our all upon the altar of God for His use and service and glory. In the dedication of our all to God we necessarily must dedicate ourselves. We must yield ourselves to His will. We must present ourselves for His service. "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice unto God, which is your reasonable service." Our bodies, our possessions, our all, must be not only yielded but presented to Him—our talents, every member of our body yielded to His will full and complete control. "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." The love of Christ should be the constraining influence that would cause us to give God full and complete control and charge of our lives and to undergo a complete transformation through the power of God.

The Bride of Christ Is a Disciplined People

Suffering, affliction, and persecution, are the lot of the true believer today. "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world," said our blessed Lord Himself. Here is inferred that once we are taken out of the world our tribulations shall cease! Praise be unto our God, Who will deliver His bride from the tribulation period!

"Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you; but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when His glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy. If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part He is evil spoken of, but on your part He is glorified." Paul counted it a real privilege to suffer for Christ's sake. It would appear that even through all the intense sufferings which were his for the cause of Christ, that still he didn't know, neither could he appreciate, the depths and the fulness of Christ's sufferings. His cry was, "O that I might know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings". The bride of Christ is a suffering bride. But one of these days her suffering will be over forever! Soon the Bridegroom is coming to take out of this world of sin, sickness, and suffering His bride, and to take Her along home with Him to be with Him where He is! Therefore we rejoice even in the midst of our most bitter sufferings, counting it a privilege to suffer here a little while for our good and for His glory!

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

If a hypocrite is between you and heaven, then he is closer to Heaven than you are.

THINK IT OVER

Are you so unacquainted with God that you are embarrassed in church?

The Bride of Christ Desires to Be with Her Bridegroom

Before He went away, the Lord Jesus comforted the heart of His disciples as He said unto them, "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father's house there are many mansions: If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto Myself; that where I am, there ye may be also. And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know." The happily married couple seldom desire to be separated for any great length of time. The young couple betrothed earnestly and eagerly look forward to the time when they shall be living together and when they shall share their joys and their blessings. In these days of trial and of tribulation and gloom that is cast over the world now engulfed in this terrible war, the bride is looking up for the appearing of the Bridegroom, earnestly desiring to be with Him. Soon shall this desire become a reality, and then we shall together enjoy His presence and share His likeness. Like Paul, we desire to be with Him (Phil. 1:23).

The Bride of Christ Has a Glorious Destiny

"Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to Him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and His wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints. And He saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb." "For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first: Then, we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord! Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

May God help us to see our special and blessed position and priviledge as members of the true church of Jesus Christ which is the bride of Christ. May we willingly spend and be spent for Him, that we might always honor and glorify Him in all that we do until He comes to receive us unto Himself, and seek to win lost souls to Him ere His appearing at the parting of the skies on that first resurrection day!

GIFT TO SEMINARY LIBRARY

Next to a faculty, probably one of the most important items for a theological seminary is an adequate library for research. Grace Seminary began with about 100 volumes of its own, together with some 400 volumes loaned to the library by faculty, students, and friends. The library has increased until it now reaches approximately 2,000 columes. About half of these have been purchased from time to time during the last five years, and the other half has been given by friends and by the graduating classes.

At the last commencement the graduating class gave a very valuable set to the library, consisting of the Antenicene, the Nicene, and the Postnicene Fathers. And at the same time a gift of some 15 books was made by Mrs. Nannie B. Teeter of Dayton, O., in memory of her husband, the late Rev. W. C. Teeter. These, too, will be very useful to the work of the seminary. The latest gift was made by Rev. William H. Schaffer, Jr., of Berne, Ind. This consisted of a set of Alford's Greek Testament, 28 volumes of the Pulpit Commentary, and a two-volume set by Fairbairn on the Typology of Scripture.

We are indeed grateful for all of these books, for they help to make the library a very useful instrument in the preparation of young men and women for the work of the ministry to which they have been called. It is our prayer that the prayers of God's people will attend these gifts to the end that they may now be used to His glory. (H.A.H.).

SUMMER BIBLE CONFERENCES

At the outset of the summer, it was the privilege of the writer to enjoy a week-end Bible conference with the pastor and people of Sterling, O. I remember many experiences with those people and the young men who ministered there while I was a student in college and seminary. It was a joy to see even a greater love for the Word of God now than in those days, and to see how the Word of God sown by his ministers in those days has taken root and is now bearing fruit. There is not only an increased zeal for the Lord's work evidenced by growth in grace and giving, but many of the young people of that congregation have caught up the torch of the faith and are giving themselves in full time service. It was amazing to see the number from that small church launching out into the great work of saving lost men. From this church we are expecting many to enter Grace Seminary in the future.

This summer was the writer's second opportunity to fellowship with the Lord's people in Portis, Kan. There the same intense longing to know the Lord's book and to do His will was manifest. The joy of studying any part of the Bible was only surpassed by the joy of studying prophecy. Probably this is to be explained by the fact of the hour in which we are living, for everywhere today the Lord's people want to know whether the Good Book casts any light amidst the darkening shadows of earth. It was the writer's privilege to spend his sojourn in Portis in the pastor's home, and many were the hours spent there that were refreshing. It was in this home when he was a high school boy that he learned to believe the Bible and to love the things of the Lord. And under the ministry of Rev. Cone I came into The Brethren Church.

From this point in Kansas the way led to Dallas, Tex., where a Bible conference had been arranged with Dr. Floyd W. Shiery, pastor of the Winnetka Congregational Church of that city. This was a special blessing to the writer, for Bro. Shiery and I had grown up together in Iowa, and we had grown together in the things of the Lord. He preceded me by one year through college and seminary. And after several years in the pastorate, he matriculated in the Dallas Theological Seminary and has now taken both the master's and doctor's degrees. During the four years he has spent in school in Dallas, Texas, he has been the pastor of the Winnetka Congregational Church, and the evidence is abundant that he has been a faithful pastor and teacher of the word. The young folks of the church together with the older folks are ardent students of the Word, and have a growing passion for the lost of the city. So anxious were they for the Word that the writer spoke more than 20 times in the seven days there, and still they were anxious for more.

During the forepart of June a week was spent in Leon, Ia., with the pastor, Rev. Miles Taber and his people. In spite of rain every day, and roads that defied passage to some vehicles, there were some people who refused to miss the services even if walking miles were necessary to get them there. The pastor is now serving his second pastorate in this place in his short ministry, and the Lord is blessing the work with a thriving group of young people. On the last evening at the invitation to the unsaved, three of these young people came to the Lord.

For the third year in succession it has been the privilege of the writer to minister as Bible teacher at the Lebonah League Young People's camp in southern Ohio. This League was started by the late Mrs. Earl Eavey of Xenia, O., and consists of young people of high school age and up from all denominations in and around Dayton, O. This year there were a host of young people in camp who had never been there before, and many of them heard for the first time some of the precious things pertaining to our salvation—things which are almost threadbare to our ears, we have heard them so many times. And it was a delight to see many of those young people saved, and many of the saved moved to give themselves in full time service.

In the later part of July, Flora, Ind., was the next place of ministry. This is a home mission church, but it evidences all the industry of a full grown church. Though this conference came in the midst of harvest, there was usually a goodly group who were present to hear the word. It would startle many to know how rapidly this church, which is now just two years old, has reduced its debt. This is of real interest to the writer, for he and other members of the faculty were instrumental in getting this church started by conducting a two-weeks' Bible conference. And then it was one of the seminary young men, the present pastor, Rev. Henry Rempel, who took over as a student, and upon graduation took the work full time. Under his ministry the church has made great progress during the past two years. The fellowship with the Lord's people there was a blessing, and especially so in the Dyson home where the writer was entertained. (H.A.H.).

GRACE SEMINARY NIGHT AT THE NATIONAL FELLOWSHIP

Friday night at the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches is being set aside to forward the interests of Grace Seminary. The seminary rally and banquet are scheduled for five o'clock. A splendid program is being arranged for this popular gathering. Then at 8:00 o'clock following a service of praise under the direction of Henry Rempel, a graduate of the seminary, the sermon of the evening will be delivered by Robert D. Culver, the student of the class of '42 who graduated with the highest honors. The closing event of the evening will be the lifting of the annual offering for the seminary under the direction of Dr. L. S. Bauman. Those who have been present on former occasions have not forgotten the gracious manner in which the Lord's blessing has attended these occasions. This offering taken just preceding the opening of the new school year means much toward the successful operation of the school during the year. In past years it has provided a substantial portion of the needed funds for the year to follow.

The seminary wishes to express its appreciation of the loyal way in which the many friends of the school have been giving toward the financial support of the institution. During the past year, as in the preceding years, we have been able to pay all bills month by month. There has been no deficit. The Lord has been so good to us through the generous giving of His followers that as the past year closed there was a small balance in the treasury looking forward to the coming year. Surely this is an evidence that the Lord's hand is upon us for good. With the memory of the past years in mind, we are looking with expectancy to the forthcoming offering. We trust that our friends will come prepared to do for the seminary what the Lord would have you do. This is your institution raised up by God to serve the church in such a time as this. Let us be in prayer for its continued ministry and support.

PROMISING PROSPECTS

Many are inquiring as to the prospects for the opening of the seminary year in September. With the war taking so many young men and defense industries pleading for workers, it has been thought that the number of students might be considerably diminished. However, the Lord is abundantly able to supply workers for His vineyard, and if the number of applications already received is any indication, it begins to appear that there will be the largest entering class the seminary has ever experienced. Already a number of students have arrived and are becoming settled in Winona so as to be ready for the opening of the school year. This is most encouraging and we look forward to another successful year.

PROFESSOR KENT'S EASTERN TRIP

Beginning the latter part of June and continuing into the middle of July, Prof. Kent was engaged in a series of brief Bible conferences and speaking engagements in the East. He spent two evenings at the Brethren church of Juniata, Pa., where Harold O. Mayer of Grace Seminary is supplying during the summer. He was impressed with the fine, energetic work being done there under Bro. Mayer's leadership. Souls are being saved and a renewed interest seems to be developing in the things of the Lord in this place. It was a joy to experience the fellowship of the Mayer family during the brief time of this ministry.

From Juniata he went to Philadelphia where he spent several days at the Third Brethren Church, of which Rev. William A. Steffler is the beloved pastor. Bro. Steffler has a fine church. It is a beehive of activity, and such magnificent congregational singing one will go a long way to find! The speaker was accorded splendid attention in his messages, and he thoroughly enjoyed being in this beautiful church these several days. We shall not soon forget the happy fellowship in the Steffler home, where kindness and hospitality knew no bounds.

A week was spent preaching and lecturing in the Gospel Tent under the auspices of the First Brethren Church of Philadelphia, of which Rev. A. V. Kimmell is the faithful pastor. The tent is pitched on the location of the proposed new First Church. An earnest endeavor is being made to acquaint the surrounding community with the forthcoming project. Every effort is being made to start building operations this summer. The courage and vision of this people are to be admired. The speaker enjoyed a happy week under well-nigh perfect weather conditions, preaching to good audiences in the tent. It was his high privilege, not only to have been entertained in the Kimmell home but also in a number of other homes of the congregation. He will always remember the "prophet's chamber" in the Collins' home where his every need was met.

From Philadelphia he went to Washington, D.C., where he ministered for two evenings in the First Brethren Church of which Rev. Bernard N. Schneider is the hard-working pastor. It was a most interesting and delightful experience for the speaker to return to his former pastorate, where two splendid audiences greeted him on the two evenings he was there. It was indeed gratifying to see the good work being done by this congregation during these difficult times in this intensely war-conscious city. Bro. Schneider has the confidence of his people, and the prospects are for many victories among this people in the days that are ahead if the Lord tarries. When he was there, Mrs. Schneider had just recently returned from the hospital where she had been undergoing treatment for physical weakness. Prayer was offered in her behalf and we trust that she is much improved by this time.

On his way home Prof. Kent stopped off at Johnstown, where he attended the Wednesday evening prayer service at the First Brethren Church, of which Rev. Archie Lynn is the pastor. We were happy to note the fine attendance (over 120) at this meeting and to worship with these people in this spiritual service.

PRAYER REQUESTS

Pray for the incoming class of Grace Seminary, that just those whom the Lord would have to come may come.

Pray for the continued devotional, evangelistic, and Bible-loving spirit that has prevailed at the seminary from its very beginning.

Pray for the supply of all the needs of the students and their families during the coming school year.

Pray for the ministry of the students as they engage in Gospel Team work, jail work, supply teaching, and preaching and in student pastorates.

Pray for the physical strength of the members of the faculty, especially Dr. McClain, as another school year begins.

DR. CHARLES FEINBERG ON PRAYER IN RELATION TO ISRAEL

In an address at the Jewish Conference at Winona Lake, Ind., the week of Aug. 2, Dr. Charles Feinberg, professor of Hebrew and Church History at Dallas Theological Seminary, spoke on the subject of prayer in behalf of Israel. Speaking from Romans, chaps. 10, 11, he said that there are two kinds of prayer on their behalf. There is, first, prayer "for" Israel as referred to in Rom. 10:1. This is the kind of prayer that comes from the depths of the heart. It takes into consideration the place of Israel in the plan and purpose of God. It is the kind of prayer that ought to emanate from the hearts of the Spirit-enlightened children of God. We have need to pray "for the peace of Jerusalem." But there is also revealed the kind of prayer that is "against" Israel. This is exemplified in the prayer of Elijah as referred to in Rom. 11:2. It came at a time of despondency and lack of faith. Dr. Feinberg appealed for Paul's type of praying rather than that of Elijah in behalf of his people.

WHY DOESN'T GOD DO SOMETHING?

In a gripping message before the Jewish Conference at Winona, Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafer, president of Dallas Theological Seminary, sought to answer the question many are asking today in view of the present world situation. "Why doesn't God do something about it?" He referred to the words of God to Abram found in Gen. 15:16, "The iniquity of the Amorite is not yet full." God does not bring judgment to bear until wickedness has come to a head. Evidently, Dr. Chafer intimated, the inquity of this cosmic world is not yet full. When it is, we can rest assured that judgment will come; and in that day He will set upon the throne of David the true Messiah, Who will rule with a rod of iron and Who will bring peace to a disordered world.

From A Tither..

(Please don't read this if money talk bothers you.)

Three boys, as boys are wont to do, were bragging about their dads.

One said, "My father can write a poem and gets $50.00 for it."

The second said, "My father can play a violin in a concert and get $100.00 for it."

The third boy, the son of a minister, for the moment was hard put to it to know how to hold his dad's end up in company like that. Suddenly he triumphantly exclaimed: "Huh! My father can preach a sermon, and it takes eight men to bring the money in."

This must have been a tithing church, for only a tithing congregation could produce such results!

Did you ever see one?—A father was one day telling his little boy what manner of man a Christian is. When he had finished, the father received a surprise he was not looking for. The little boy remarked. "Daddy, have I ever seen a Christian?"—W. 10th St. Church bulletin, Ashland, Ohio.

I wonder if America is getting back to God! As you look around, you would not think so. We find it harder every day to get people to accept the Lord Jesus Christ. There is a hardness that is settling down on America which is deplorable. We are told that 128,-700,000 people in America do not go to any church. Many of this number are members of some church, but they are too indifferent to attend. America should wake up and prepare for the spiritual war now in progress waged by sin and Satan. In Ps. 17:9 we read, "The wicked shall be turned into hell and all nations that forget God."

60,000 churches last year reported not one soul saved. There were also 30,000 churches closed down, says John Zoller, great preacher of Detroit. Surely we need to pray for a spiritual awakening right here at home. —Uniontown, Pa., Bulletin.

Just one step away from God oftentimes has a greater result than we think. A step from divine order on the part of faithful Abraham, resulted in over 200,000,000 Moslems cursing Palestine and the world. Finney said, "Every step you take, you tread on cords that will vibrate to all eternity." That one step may be easily retrieved by you, but God only knows how it may effect someone else.

What would your reaction be if your son or daughter received the same type of training in the public school as they do at the average moving picture show?

IF YOU HAVE A TENDENCY to get light headed and dizzy in crowds you better make sure you will keep out of hell, for at the rate men are rejecting Christ as Savior the place is going to be awfully crowded.

—Berne, Ind. Bulletin.

What's the Matter with Us?

Isaiah 6:1-8

By REV. JESSE HALL, Pastor, First Brethren Church, Bellflower, Calif.

The story is told of a man who lived in Venezuela and who was a hard drinker. This man came home one night in such a condition that he could not for a time find his hammock. When this feat was finally accomplished, he tried in vain to get off his riding boots. After many fruitless efforts, he lay down in his hammock, and began talking out loud to himself. "Well," said he, "I have traveled all the world over; I lived in Cuba for five years, four years in Jamaica, and five in Brazil. I have traveled through Spain and Portugal, and have been in Africa; but I never yet was in such an abominable country as this, where a man is obliged to go to bed with his boots on."

Rev. Hall

We, too, have been all too ready to place the blame for those unsatisfactory conditions that prevail among us on the wrong thing. We have held up the surrounding physical conditions, and the seeming indifference of the people to the message of the gospel, and the dearth of consecrated workers, as the reason for our failure—when all the time we know that was not the real reason. Just what is the matter with us? Why aren't more souls being won for Christ? The answer is four-fold:

We Lack Conviction.

No, not doctrinal conviction. We have plenty of that. We pride ourselves on things which we believe. Our orthodoxy cannot be questioned. What is the trouble? I fear we are in danger of getting into the condition of a certain church that Dr. Bob Jones tells about. They were perfectly orthodox in their teaching, but so cold of heart and unresponsive that he felt certain that if he could pour a little chocolate over them they would make wonderful Eskimo pies. We have become so self-satisfied, so smugly comfortable just the way we are. How long has it been, my brother, my sister, since you cried out, as did Isaiah "Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I live in the midst of a people of unclean lips?" How long since your lips were touched with a live coal from off the altar?

How long since you heard His voice saying, "Lo, this hath touched thy lips, and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged?" We are in grave danger of becoming like the Laodicean church, "neither cold nor hot". Oh Lord, convict us of the sin of selfishness and indifference!

We Lack Vision:

"Where there is no vision, the people perish." We have eyes but they are centered upon selfish interests. The dust of our own material pursuits have so beclouded our vision that we do not seem able to lift up our eyes and look on the fields about us white already unto harvest (Jno. 4:35. O yes, we can see the hundreds of people all about us, in this block, and in the next, and the next; but do we see them as God does? "100,000 souls a day, are passing one by one away, in Christian guilt and gloom. Without one ray of hope or light, with future dark as endless night, they are passing to their doom."

The gospel still has power. Our business is to peddle the "dynamite of God", and urge men and women everywhere to touch the "match of faith" to it. If they will, it will blow the devil out of them!

Mr. Titbottom had a pair of magic spectacles. Whenever he looked through them at people, he ceased to see them as they ordinarily appeared on the street; he saw instead their real essential characters personified. Wonderful were the revelations that were made. He looked at one man and saw nothing but a ledger; another was simply a billiard cue; another a bank roll; another a great hog, or a wolf, or a vulgar fraction. On the other hand, he saw the good that others failed to see. The depth of Christian character—luminous, fragrant, and pure. We as Christians need to put on the "spiritual spectacles" that will enable us to see men as they really are—"filled with all unrighteousness," desperately needing Jesus Christ, hopelessly lost without Him; to see them as they may become—children of God, "new creatures in Christ Jesus."

We Lack Compassion:

"The love of Christ constrains us" (2 Cor. 5:14). We can come to Bible School week after week and enjoy the lessons, but we do it all alone. We attend C. E. and enjoy it, but satisfied with the fellowship of the few. We sit at the King's table in the regular services and enjoy the good things of His Word, but we eat our bread alone. My friends, we do not well. We have a pardon in our hands that will save our fellowmen, not from temporal, but from spiritual death. It is suited to all, it is sent to all, it is designed for all. You have enjoyed it yourself. What about taking it to your neighbor? A man accused of treachery was sentenced to death. Intercession was made for him by a friend. As a result a pardon was issued, but it fell into the hands of his worst enemy who locked it up and let him hang. What fearful turpitude! But wait! Is that any worse than what we are doing?

We Lack Consecration:

"I beseech you, brethren, by the mercies of God . . . present your bodies" H. B. Gibbud once said that he knew of a man who used to sing Miss Havergal's hymn, "Take my life and let it be consecrated, Lord, to Thee," in this way: "Take my wife and let her be consecrated, Lord, to Thee". That is all too often the way we sing it.

A clergyman was called upon to dedicate a building to the Lord. Used to only having a share with others in such a service, he asked, "What part do you want me to take in the dedication?" The man,, thinking that he was referring to the building, said, "Why, the whole thing! Take it all in, from the underpinning to the steeple." Oh, my brother, my sister, God is calling us to that kind of consecration. Will we give it to Him today?

Proofs of the Christian Faith

By ORD GEHMAN, Pastor Grace Brethren Church, Vinco, Pa.

The Lord Jesus Christ said, "Ye shall know them by their fruits" (Matt. 7:16). Those words are as true today as they were the day our blessed Lord spoke them to His eager disciples on the Mount. Even though centuries have elapsed since that eventful day and multitudes have acknowledged His Lordship, let us pause for a little time and ponder some of the proofs of the Christian life.

Rev. Gehman

In our Christian relationship to the Father above, we discover that the Father preserves His children by His grace and power in the things of our eternal salvation. It becomes our unspeakable joy to prove this aspect of our Christian experience by the many-times overlooked art of perservance. Perservance on the part of God's child becomes the evidence of that which has been vouchsafed unto us in eternal salvation. The Word states that "ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise" (Eph. 1:13c). Again we read in II Tim. 2:19a, "Nevertheless the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are His."

God keeps His children. Only the grace of an eternal God could do this. Even so, our salvation is manifested by the fact that we, as His children, walk true to that new life into which we have been led by the Spirit of God. By referring to the above verse, we find that counterbalance of the Christian's inestimable privilege. It is stated this way, "Let every one that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity" (II Tim. 2:19b). We also notice in Eph. 2:8-10, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God before ordained that we should walk in them." This same great truth is expressed in Rom. 4:4-5. Our work for the Master is not to obtain salvation, but out of thankful hearts we serve Him because He has saved us by His grace.

Further evidence of this truth of our Christian faith grows out of a consistent walk before the Father and an evil world. That arch-fiend, Satan, always watches carefully for a flaw in the life of the professed Christian. For the slightest error, he finds an emissary who is always happy to magnify that misstep. The word conversation is used many times in the New Testament, and it refers to the whole sphere of one's activity and very manner of life. Not only what you say must be guarded, but what you think, how you look, where you go and what you do. Paul said ,"Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ" (Phil. 1:27a). Again, "Our conversation is in heaven" (Phil. 3:20a). Peter states, "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" (II Pet. 3:11). The immortal words "Oh, Consistency, thou art a jewel" seem like a word from Scripture, their truth is so self-evident. Jesus said, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 5:16).

Again, let us note that further proof of our Christian faith is manifested by Christian growth. It is just as natural to expect growth in the realm of the spiritual as it is to expect it in the realm of natural things. A new baby comes into a home. Just as long as he grows and develops as a normal baby should, we are not concerned. But when he manifests loss of appetite, nervousness, and the like, we become alarmed immediately. We seek the services of a physician, and the best one we can find, regardless of the fee for his services. And that is exactly the thing we should do. But when a person becomes listless and inactive spiritually, there is all too many times little or no regard or apparent concern over the matter.

Hunger is a good evidence of normal growth. My friend, do you hunger and thirst after spiritual things? Jesus said, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled" (Matt. 5:6). Peter admonishes us to "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ" (II Pet. 3:1A). The New Testament is literally filled with admonitions to the Christian to feed upon the Word. And where else can God's children expect to find better spiritual nourishment? Dear reader, if there is no spiritual hunger in your life, perhaps it would be profitable for you to take inventory of your spiritual life and see what is wrong.

I marvel at many professing Christians. They seem to be so much like camels. They attend church services only periodically. Easter, Christmas, special seasons or events, evangelistic meetings, and the communion services, seem to supply all the spiritual food they want. They do not deem it necessary to make it a habit of their lives to attend the services with any degree of regularity and feed upon God's precious Word. And yet, I am made to wonder if their spiritual vigor is in a healthful state. Their soul apparently doesn't crave very much of the deep spiritual food of the Word. Perhaps on closer examination we would discover that their spiritual anemia is more of a liability to the church than it is an asset.

Even though it has not been possible to exhaust this vast subject in this brief article, one more factor must be taken into consideration in conclusion. That is the Christian privilege of fruit bearing as a proof of Christian faith. Christ's great message in the vine and the branches as recorded in John 15 very amply illustrates this great truth. We bear fruit because we abide in the vine. Pruning and purging may come, but only that more fruit may result. Paul delineates this spiritual fruition in Gal. 5:22 ff. When the Word of God and the Spirit of God really possesses the life of God's child, there will be evidence of Spiritual fruitage which becomes the crowning proof of our Christian faith. May God grant that it might be so in each life to His eternal glory.

World War 1 Veteran Saved from Drink

"I do thank and praise my Lord and Savior that He saw fit to lift me up out of the gutter of sin and drunkenness. In January, 1937, I really woke up to the fact that we ourselves can do nothing without the help of our Lord Jesus Christ. For years I tried to stop drinking and smoking, but the more I tried the worse I got.

"We read in Rev. 3:20, 'Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.' The Lord had been knocking at the door of my heart, and it took me 38 years to hear it. The trouble with me was that I was deaf. I could not hear and did not want to hear. But praise the Lord, the devil who kept me deaf and hardened to that knock has been defeated!

"In the year 1917 I enlisted in the infantry of the United States for the duration of the War. I served two years overseas and during that time was gassed twice.

"When discharged from the Letterman General Hospital at the Presidio in San Francisco, I was put on a very strict diet. My progress was very slow. But I gained sufficient of my health back that I was beginning to feel pretty good. So I had the idea that I could start in eating the various dishes of food that my eyes were looking forward to. Not heeding the advice of my doctors, my appetite ran away with itself. The result was that I was back in the hospital again. Year after year it was the same old story, one operation after another.

"After a number of operations I was getting very discouraged, and I made the horrible mistake of enlisting with the devil instead of with my Lord and Savior, Whom I did not know at that time. So during my enlistment period with the army of the devil, I made him a marvelous soldier. He pinned medals of sin all over me. I was having a grand time as the world calls it. Instead of being washed in the blood of the Lamb, I was being soaked in a barrel of liquor. I fell to the lowest depths of that damnable sin, drunkenness. And on account of my poor health I thought that the alcohol would decrease the pain I was suffering.

"Finally I came to the hospital in a very low condition. As I lay in bed, having one hemorrhage after another, one blood transfusion after another, the doctors said to me, 'We will try it once more, but a miracle must happen and happen right now if you are to live!' That miracle was performed. The Lord spared my life.

"But I did not give the Lord the credit. After recuperating several months, my health was partially restored. Then I started drinking again. I got to the place where it kept me busy keeping out of jail. I tried and tried to overcome the drink habit, but just could not do it.

"My loved ones at home were in constant worry every time I left home to go to work in my truck. My wife would say, 'Bill, don't drink any liquor today.' My answer would be 'I won't'. But in spite of my word I would come home drunk. They were even afraid to answer the telephone in the evening if I wasn't home, thinking I had probably killed someone with my truck, or was in jail again.

"In the meantime my daughter, at the invitation of a little neighbor girl, began attending Sunday School. Her class met every Sunday morning at 9:15 for prayer. She asked prayer for her daddy and they prayed for me and I heard that another group of Christians in the church was praying for me. That group was the Truthseeker's Class. The teacher, a wealthy woman, completely devoted to her Lord, is ever reaching out to bring needy ones into her class where she may teach them of the Savior. Hundreds of calls are made by her every month, and thousands of tracts distributed. The membership is well over 200. One of her able lieutenants is a little auburn-haired young woman who is adept at reading the Bible to those in need. She and her husband, Curly, called at my home. Others of the class called. Some even thought me hopeless.

"But finally I took a start toward God. In awful desperation one night, I staggered into 'Curly's' home. 'Curly' and his wife opened God's Word and read Rom. 6. The chapter ends with these words: 'But now, being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

" 'That's it! That's it!' I said seeing in the Scripture the very thing I had been grasping for. Shortly afterward I made a public confession, was baptized, and joined the First Brethren Church of Long Beach. My wife had done so a year earlier. Today, I am a new man. I know the meaning of Paul's words in II Cor. 5:17, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

Ed. Note: At the bottom of the manuscript, which was sent us by a woman in Long Beach, Calif., there is the notation that the above man, "sometime during the darkest part of his story, lost his job. After he became a Christian and was freed from the drink habit and also the cigarette habit, he secured a good place again. And you should see their present home! Its exquisite newness and neatness within and without, its crisply green little front yard, the spacious, carefully kept back yard—everything about it marks it as the ideal working man's home." What a testimony that, itself, is to what the Lord can do.

This will be the last issue of the Herald before National Fellowship. The Herald is published four times monthly, and inasmuch as there are five Saturdays in August, there will be NO ISSUE DATED AUGUST 29th.

Introducing---

Rev. Peter J. Stover

Philadelphia, Pa.

Nearly 14 years ago, when I came to Philadelphia to serve as pastor of the Third Church, I was asked to recommend a young man for the Brethren ministry. This young man was starting a work in this city and felt that he should be ordained. I suggested at that time that he place his membership in the Third Church, and in a year or so this church would call him into the Brethren ministry. Other plans materialized, and young Stover was ordained by the Independent Fundamentalists.

Mr. Stover was led of the Lord to organize a Sunday School in Philadelphia, August, 1931. It was soon evident that this Sunday School was to develop into a regular church organization. By October, 1931, Bro. Stover was preaching to increasing numbers. The name of the new work was Cedar Grove. Starting with an enrollment of 18 at Sunday School, it has grown until there are now 250 active members. The average attendance at the Sunday School is well over the 200 mark.

These people held services for almost 2 years in a small building, when in 1933 they purchased some land in the East Olney section of this great city. A two story stone building 22 feet wide and 50 feet long was erected. Since 1933 this group have been forced to enlarge twice, and today one will find the Cedar Grove church 45 feet wide and 90 feet long. The auditorium will comfortably seat 300 people.

Every department of the church is well organized, and there is every evidence of the blessing of the Lord.

It might be interesting to the readers of the Herald to know that this group practices feet washing.

I have personally known Bro. Stover for many years and have preached in the Cedar Grove church on numerous occasions. I always thought it would make an ideal Brethren Church.

Led of the Lord, Bro. Stover felt he should now connect himself with some good sound denomination. The Lord led him to select the Brethren. He was examined by the Ministerial Examining Board of the Eastern Fellowship of Brethren Churches. Brethren J. L. Gingrich, W. C. Clough, and W. A. Steffler constitute this board. We invited Bro. A. V. Kimmell to sit in with the board during the examination. The result of that examination is as follows:

"The Ministerial Examining Board of the Eastern District of Pa., has officially examined Peter J. Stover, who is a regularly ordained minister and an active pastor of the Cedar Grove Independent Congregation, and found him to be sound in doctrine, evangelical, thoroughly fundamental, and in hearty agreement with the practices and beliefs of The Brethren Church.

We therefore recommend that his eldership be recognized by The Brethren Church and that he be received as a member into The Brethren Church."

Since all this, Bro. Stover is now a full-fledged Brethren. We welcome him into the Brethren Fellowship, and trust that in the near future he may be able to guide the Cedar Grove church into our conference also as a Brethren church.

Bro. Stover is an earnest preacher. His ministry has been one of constant evangelism, and he has been used of the Lord to win hundreds of souls during his ministry.

His church is located in one of the finest residential sections of Philadelphia, and is situated in the center of the Third Church and the new location of the First Church.

Bro. Stover is planning to attend the Fellowship soon to be held at Winona Lake, Ind.

A HOOKED CROSS OR HIS CROSS

The great German-Jewish poet, Heinrich Heine, wrote an astonishingly prophetic passage in 1834. He said: "Christianity—and this is its most beautiful accomplishment—has mitigated to some extent that brutal German war lust, but it could not destroy it, and if the time should come when the Cross . . . should break down then the savagery of the old warriors will reappear, that blind Berserker-madness of which the Nordic poets sing . . . Then the ancient gods of stone will rise from their graves." Just a century later Heine's apprehension became a reality. The Lutheran State Church, says Dr. Arnold Frank, ceased to believe in Bible Christianity, in the divinity of Christ, in a future life. The greater part of the 13,000 Lutheran pastors preached morality instead of the Cross. The ancient paganism and war lust sprang up again, and the few pastors who spoke against it were treated as rebels. The nation lost its faith in His Cross and put its faith instead in the Hooked Cross, the Swastika.

A Letter to Brethren Student Life Volunteers

Dear B. S. L. V. Members:

We remember that just two years ago we were with you. Indeed, you have been on our hearts ever since. If we were in any way a blessing to you, we praise His matchless grace for the privilege. You have been a constant source of joy and blessing to us, as we remember your desire to let Christ rule, as we read of the way He is using you in His work and to His glory, and as we pray for you, thereby working with you.

There is no organized B. S. L. V. here, and yet many of the young people are living up to that which the B. S. L. V. stands for. They are Brethren, yes. They are students in that they study the Word. (Many of them are learning to read in order to understand as much of the Word as they have in their language.) Yes, they study us too. In Sango, "preach the gospel," is "show the affair of God". So, in Sango, one cannot preach by lip only; because we are able to show at least as much, if not more, by life. Life! They know Christianity is a life. Many of them have endured fierce persecution because of their determination to live for the One Who died for them. They realize it is Christ's life in them, and their life for Him. The dictionary says to volunteer is to enter into service of one's free will. They are volunteers: they have entered into the service of their king. Some are teachers, some are evangelists, some are hospital workers, some are faithful servants, some are trustworthy and responsible laborers. Each has his place, and each can do his work equally to the glory of God.

Won't you pray for these people that the Lord may be more and more glorified in them? "He that wrought effectually in Peter . . . and was mighty in me (Paul) . . . " can be the same to them. (Gal 2:8).

In the bonds of Calvary, —Harold and Marguerite Dunning.

It is good to hear of the activities of our youthful Brethren in far off Africa. Why not have more information concerning your activities here in the homeland? A complete list of all B. S. L. V. members is being compiled in the office of your superintendent. This list includes such information as activities of the past year and plans for the coming year. We want this list to be entirely complete by the time of conference. Rush a card or letter to us telling us what you have been doing during the past year and what your plans are for the future. Especially are we anxious to hear from those who contemplate entrance into college or seminary this fall.

We are looking for a large gathering of B. S. L. V. members during our National Fellowship. Headquarters will be at Bethany Camp. B. S. L. V. Singspiration services will be conducted as before. One afternoon session will be entirely devoted to B. S. L. V. plans and reports. See your Bethany program for time and date.

Please note the changed address of your superintendent. Drop us that letter or card today.

CAMP GRACE NOTES

The Annual Summer Camp for the Brethren young people from the Southeast District and Pennsylvania District was held for the first time in the Massanutten Mountains near Woodstock, Va. Many in this camp had formerly attended Green Mountain Camp and also Camp Bethel. The camp was ideally situated for a young peoples camp, because many expressed the opinion while there that they felt the cares of the world were forgotten and they could truly draw nigh unto the Lord.

Rev. R. D. Crees was camp dean for the first week, which was the Intermediate Week. He was assisted by the following teachers and counsellors: Bernard Schneider. Robert Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koontz, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dick, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Grubb, and Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson. Mrs. Mary Kingery was camp nurse for both weeks, as well as Mr. Parsell the camp cook for two weeks. There were some 70 campers the first week in addition to the regular staff and helpers. This truly was a most spiritual week: at the decision service several made first time confessions and others dedicated their lives to Him as He shall direct.

Rev. L. L. Grubb was Camp Dean the second week, with the following teachers and counsellors: Mr. and Mrs. Norman Uphouse, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dick, Ord Gehman, William Clough, and Mrs. L. L. Grubb. There were approximately 60 campers in the Young Peoples Week. The decision service at the end of this week was a real inspiration to those who could attend the camp fire.

Each week a camp paper was printed, and other high spots of interest were the awarding of the banner daily to the cabin which was declared the neatest by the judges. At the end of the week a camp letter G was given to those campers whose conduct during the week was acceptable, and a diploma was awarded to those whose notebooks were completed with the work given them. A fine camping spirit was evident at all times.

In addition to the regular camp services, there was a Bible conference held at the Trinity Brethren Church about four miles distant from the camp. The Lord blessed in a wonderful way in these services. Each evening a different minister from camp would go over and present the message to the congregation at Trinity.

We trust that the inspirations received at camp will only be an incentive for the young people to truly serve their Lord in a more earnest way, and may their lives be a testimony to others of the saving power of the Lord Jesus Christ.

In His blessed service,

—Mrs. Paul E. Dick, Camp Registrar

A Monthly Ministry by Mail

ED. NOTE:—In order to keep in touch with its members in these days when the industrial world is keeping them away by working them seven days a week, and also to combat other influences that would detach its members in these war times, the Whittier, Calif., church is mailing its members a message each month.

In June the pastor, Bro. C. H. Ashman, mailed a letter, reminding members that June was Loyalty Month. An attendance record wes kept, and every member present at both morning and evening church services for the entire month, unless kept away by sickness or work, were placed on the honor roll. All members were urged to tithe their money, time, tires and talent for the entire month, and really keep a record of it to check up on themselves.

In July, the pastor mailed two more mimeographed sheets to his members. Thinking that some other pastor might want to borrow Bro. Ashman's idea, and that it might be well for all of us to check up on ourselves, we are printing part of this July letter, as follows:

Dear Brethren:

We have missed you during the month of June at the church services. We have sought by the aid of several secretaries to keep an accurate record of the attendance of every resident member at the regular church services. All those present at every service, unless prevented by sickness or employment, have been placed on the "Honor Roll". We suggest that you examine yourself after the suggestive chart as before the Lord.

"LET A MAN EXAMINE HIMSELF" (I Cor. 11:28)

A suggestive "True or False" Chart for this self-examination:—

1. "I have not been present at one church service of my church during June."

True.....! False.....!

2. "I was not prevented from attending by either sickness or work or otherwise."

True.....! False.....!

3. "As a member of the church I ought to support it with my presence and prayers."

True.....! False.....!

4. "I have not contributed financially to the work of my church during June."

True.....! False.....!

5. "I desire our church to be kept open, alive, growing, spiritually strong."

True.....! False.....!

6. "If all the members had been absent as I have been during June, our church would be closed today."

True.....! False.....!

7. "For Christ's sake, for my own sake, and for the church's sake, I ought to have attended the services."

True.....! False.....!

8. "I promise my Lord that I will be present during July at as many services as it is possible for me to attend."

True.....! False.....!

9. "I promise my Lord that I will pray for our church, that the Lord will bless and prosper it."

"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some; but exhorting one another and so much the more as we see the day approaching. —Hebrews 10:25.

Whether we come by automobile or have to walk, we ought to come to church. The Spirit inspired the passage of Scripture (Heb. 10:25) before the day of the automobile when almost everybody walked. He knew all about the rubber shortage. He warned us against "forsaking the assembling of ourselves together," as He knew some would do. He commanded us to "exhort one another", and the word "exhort" means to "encourage". By our example we are to encourage one another in the matter of assembling together within the church ! Brethren, we exhort you to give heed to this inspired Scripture today.

Whether I have an automobile or have to walk, I am ready and willing to visit you to minister to you whenever the need arises. All you have to do is call us or write us or send word to us that there is a ministry that we can render, and we will be there regardless of the distance. As long as there are tires on our automobile we will use it to do the work of a pastor!

"So much the more as ye see the day approaching." (Heb. 10:25). The day of His appearing is rapidly approaching. We believe it is very near. The Spirit commands us to assemble together and warns us against forsaking this assembling within the church, "so much the more as ye see the day approaching." In view of the nearness of the coming of Christ, we ought to be regular and faithful in attendance at the worship services of our church.

Yours in the blessed hope!

—Charles H. Ashman, pastor.

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

Among the interesting items regarding the Bible conference recently held at the Trinity Brethren Church, SEVEN FOUNTAINS, VA., of which Bro. Paul E. Dick is pastor, are the following: The conference opened with an attendance of about 30 and ended with approximately 140, each evening showing an increase over the previous one. On the last night the ages ranged from four months to 90 years, and people present came from as far away as Philadelphia, Pa., and Youngstown, O. Interest was keen from the start, and the meetings were quite a success.

The following note comes from LIMESTONE, TENN.: "On Saturday, Aug. 1, the Sunday School observed its annual picnic in the beautiful Barkley Grove. On Sunday, Aug. 2, a Jewish missionary program was rendered by members of the congregation. An offering was taken for the Los Angeles Jewish Mission."

Word has come to our office that Bro. GLENN O'NEAL, pastor at Canton, O., has a new secretary in the making, a little daughter having made her appearance at his home early this month.

Has the Roman Empire Collapsed?

By DR. W. PERCY HICKS, F.J.I.

This is a question being asked today, especially by people who are fond of finding points upon which they can formulate a criticism of interpretations of prophecy. Has not Mussolini been hopelessly defeated? Has he not come under the control of Hitler? Then, apparently, we are told, the whole dream of a revived Empire has been wiped out, and the programme exponents of Daniel's prophecies has necessarily collapsed.

Friendly enquiries have reached me concerning suggestions in my booklet, "The Antichrist To-day," in which I deal with the subject of the Roman Empire, and Mussolini's plans, emphasising the international tension surrounding the future control of the Mediterranean, which has become one of the

MAJOR ISSUES OF THE WAR

It should be noted, by the way, that when I gave quotations from "The Times," and other papers concerning the great bronze statue of himself that Mussolini was stated to be preparing for erection in Rome to commemorate the founding of his Roman Empire, I suggested in the booklet that either the Italian dictator conceived himself to be the actual man of destiny or that he was preparing the way for the real person. But friendly critics are fearing that the whole picture is now discounted and that there must surely be some mistake in the interpretation.

But let us not be in too great a hurry. The war is not over yet. From the start it has been a war of surprises, and there are probably even greater in store.

The story has been revived of the interview with Mussolini which the late Mr. Ralph Norton, Founder of the Belgian Gospel Mission, had some years ago, when Mr. Norton described to the dictator how the prophecies of Daniel seemed to indicate the revival of the Roman Empire. Mussolini was keenly interested and asked for some books on the subject. At that time he had already launched his scheme for the rebuilding of the Empire, and Mr. Norton's explanation of Daniel's prophecies probably gave impetus to his plans, although he must have been puzzled with the idea of the Stone "cut out of the mountain without hands," which would GRIND THE IMAGE TO POWDER.

Probably Mussolini felt he would be able to frustrate that climax of the prophecy!

But, what after all, are the reasons for expecting the revival of the Roman Empire under the sway of a dictator during the latter end of "The Time of the Gentiles?" We must revert once more to the symbolic "image of a man" of Daniel 2, which has been interpreted by prophetic students for generations as indicating the political programme of the Gentile empires from the days of Nebuchadnezzar until the glorious appearing of Christ to establish His millennial kingdom. In that dream of Nebuchadnezzar four great world-empires were seen and history has fulfilled the succession—Babylon, Persia, Greece and Rome. Four were prefigured and four have appeared. The feet and ten toes of the image have always been considered as representing the final appearance of "man's day" with ten kingdoms in federation under one head, assumed to be the revived Roman Empire. "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed," (Dan. 2:44). For the stone of the image and grinds it to powder. And the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth."

It has been widely accepted that Daniel's dream of chapter seven symbolically describes the same political programme leading to the coming of Christ in power and glory to establish His millenial kingdom on the earth— "whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom and all dominions shall serve and obey Him" (Dan. 7:27. Ever since apostolic days many outstanding expositors of the prophetic Scriptures have believed that in some form—presumably in a federation of ten kingdoms—the Roman Empire will be in existence at the final setting of the Times of the Gentiles, and that it will come to its end at the manifestation of Christ. The renowned Matthew Henry, in his famous commentary, asserted quite definitely that "the stone cut without hands" represented the kingdom of Jesus Christ which should be set up in the world in the time of the Roman Empire. Like many others, he identified the Antichrist as coming when the Roman Empire is again to the front in a ten-kingdomed form, and hence, on that basis to perform its expected part in the world "in the latter days." Interpreters may make mistakes in the details of the way this combination of kingdoms may come, and whether their radius will be necessarily confined to the limits of Caesar's Empire, but as the interpretation of the image has been working out historically so far, it must surely be expected that the remainder of the prophetic symbolism will be fulfilled.

Mussolini's dream of reviving the Roman Empire may topple over like a pack of cards. He may not be the man of destiny, and may not accomplish his designs. But the unalterable purposes of God will be fulfilled in some way not recognized by us at the present time.

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform."

It is quite possible that students of prophecy may have been too hasty in trying to fit current events into prophetic symbolism. The tragic and surprising successes of Hitler have caused people to suggest his leadership of "the king of the north," and some have attempted to imagine that we have actually entered upon the period of world tribulation. But it is not wise—as we have several times pointed out—to be in a hurry to try to recognize fulfillments of prophecy

V FOR VICTORY IN JOHN 14

"I am the way, the truth, and the life." The Latin, Via for Way, Veritas for Truth, Vita for Life, gives the Christian the greatest "V" of the centuries. Through Him, there is victory over sin and the devil, and eternal life comes through victory in Christ.—Winchester, Va., Bulletin.

in the kaleidoscopic happenings around us. It would seem clear at any rate that the nations are "in distress with perplexity" and that events are shaping for

GREAT WORLD CHANGES

The present struggle is so complex, and its possibilities so uncertain, that even the wisest may not understand (Dan. 12:10). But God knows the end from the beginning, and we may be sure of this, that the foretellings of God's Word will be made clear to the "wise" in God's time. At present we see the world in a chaotic turmoil, sorrow and distress are all around us, but our hope is in God, and as we sincerely seek to live "in Christ" day by day we may be assured that "right the day must win," and that the darkness of the night will ere long change to the brightness of the Sun of Righteousness who shall arise with healing in His wings. (Malachi 4:2). "In the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength" and "He shall not fail nor be discouraged till He have set judgment (righteousness) in the world, and the isles shall wait for His law" (Isa. 42:4).

That is the "new order for Europe"—and the world—which will be inaugurated by Divine power when Christ comes. Hitler may design his new order. There may be a United States of Europe formed by force of arms; "Mystery Babylon" may come on the scene by an amalgamation of apostate churches led by the Papacy. But the stablishment of righteousness and peace on the earth will only be wrought at the personal return of Christ in power and glory, when of the world and all people, nations and languages shall serve Him. That will be "the Day of the Lord," and it will be indefinitely better in every way than the present man's day," symbolised in Daniel by the image of a man.

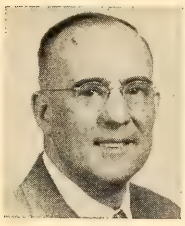
Man's day ends in judgment, but the day of the Lord will come in with unspeakable blessing to the world.

And so we remind ourselves of the words: "Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself even as He is pure" (1 John 3:3). To see God, we must be pure in heart.—"The Prophetic News."



COMMUNISM AND CHRISTIANITY

The Metropolitan of the Russian Orthodox Church sent a letter to Stalin suggesting that the Soviet system might be reconciled with the foundation principles of Christianity, says "Gospel Call." Stalin did not answer this letter, but certain statements in the godless paper "Antireligiosnik" seem clearly to be a reply to this suggestion. It says: "The repeated attempts to compare certain features of Christianity with the Communistic doctrine constitute a delusion, because Christianity or, for that matter, any religion, has nothing in common with Communism. Communism has never suggested that the workers patiently endure poverty, oppression, or self-sacrifice, nor has it promised them salvation after death. On the contrary Communism tells them to have their good time in this world." In conclusion it says: "Communism and religion are unreconcilable opposites. The planned, unrelenting warfare against religion, in keeping with the directions of the Communist Party and Communist International, is accordingly an inescapable requirement in the interest of the new man."—The Standardbearer.

A Real Menace

By DR. V. C. KELFORD

When Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, subjugated the Jews, he took the best to Babylon, but settled Palestine with a nondescript people from all parts of his empire. His purpose was to preclude insurrections due to patriotism. The people whom he left in Palestine had no patriotic interest in the country.

Dr. Kelford

Grace Brethren may well learn a lesson from old Nebuchadnezzar. A nondescript leadership will produce a nondescript program. To be "broadminded" and "cooperative" is good in its way, but it can militate against the best interests of our organization. If we are called of God for a specific message and ministry, then we must jealously guard the commission committed to us. If cooperation and broadmindedness are to be the watchword, then why not call off all bets and join up with one of the larger groups?

So, then, this is what's in our mind. As this writer visits various Brethren groups, he is impressed by the "family" spirit, and I mean "family." I have formed the habit of asking my hostess, "What was your name before you were married?" and immediately I obtain a cross-section view of the entire brotherhood. It would seem like the moonlight on Winona Lake had done more to create the family spirit in the brotherhood than all the teachings of the pastors—if you get what I mean. And if you fail to grasp the point, write my pastor, or visit Bethany Camp this year and observe the brotherhood ten years from now. This family spirit is all to the good, because in physical solidity you have spiritual solidity. But we are right now confronted by a danger which threatens to disintegrate rather than unify.

We have reference to the depletion of pulpits due to the war, and the makeshifts we'll have to make to get by until the war closes. Humanly speaking, the best safeguard is (1) a highly trained ministry, (2) a Brethren-trained ministry. What Nebuchadnezzar accomplished Brethren will accomplish, and by the same means nondescript leadership produces a nondescript program and emphasis. Without a common motive, there can be no successful cooperation or unity.

True, this all does sound strange from one who was so recently an outsider, but that's exactly what gives point to the argument. This writer has experienced the very things he forsees, and as surely as the principle worked to Babylon and other denominations, it will work among us.

THINK IT OVER

"When God asks you questions concerning your duty to the heathen, do you answer them in your favor, or in His and theirs?"

The Preacher's Vacation

The old man went to meetin,' for the day was bright and fair,
Though his limbs were very totterin,' and 'twas hard to travel there;
But he hungered for the gospel, so he trudged the weary way
On the road so rough and dusty, 'neath the summer's burning ray.

By-and-by he reached the building, to his soul a holy place;
Then he paused and wiped the sweatdrops off his thin and wrinkled face.
But he looked around bewildered, for the old bell did not toll;
All the doors were shut and bolted, and he did not see a soul.

So he leaned upon his crutches, and he said, "What does it mean?"
And he looked this way and that way, till it seemed almost a dream;
He had walked the dusty highway—and he breathed a heavy sigh—
Just to go once more to meetin,' e'er the summons came to die.

But he saw a little notice tacked upon the meetin' door,
So he limped along to read it, and he read it o'er and o'er;
Then he wiped his dusty glasses, and he read it o'er again,
Till his limbs began to tremble and his eyes began to pain.

As the old man read the notice, how it made his spirit burn!
"Pastor absent on vacation, church is closed till his return."
Then he staggered slowly backward, and he sat him down to think,
For his soul was stirred within him, till he thought his heart would sink.

So he mused along and wondered, to himself soliloquized—
"I have lived to almost eighty, and was never so surprised,
As I read the oddest notice stickin' to the meetin' door—
'Pastor off on a vacation'—never heard the likes before.

"Why, when I first jined the meetin', very many years ago,
Preacher traveled on the circuits in the heat and through the snow;
If they got their clothes and vittals ('Twas but little cash they got),
They said nothing 'bout vacation, but were happy in their lot.

"Would the farmer leave his cattle, or the shepherd leave his sheep?
Who would give them care and shelter, or provide them food to eat?
So it strikes me very sing'lar when a man of holy hands
Thinks he needs to have vacation, and forsake his tender lambs.

"Did St. Paul git such a notion? Did a Wesley or a Knox?
Did they in the heat of summer turn away their needy flocks?
Did they shut their meetin' houses, just to go and lounge about?
Why, they knew that if they did, Satan certainly would shout.

"Do the taverns close their doors, just to take a little rest?
Why, 'twould be the height of nonsense, for their trade would be distressed.
Did you ever know it happen, or hear anybody tell,
Satan takin' a vacation, shuttin' up the doors of hell?

"And shall preachers of the gospel pack their trunks and go away,
Leavin' saints and dyin' sinners git along as best they may!
Are the souls of saints and sinners valued less than sellin' beer?
Or do preachers get tired quicker than the rest of mortals here?

"Why it is, I cannot answer, but my feelings they are stirred;
Here I've dragged my totterin' footsteps for to hear the gospel word.
But the preacher is a-travelin' and the meetin'-house is closed;
I confess it's very tryin'-hard, indeed to keep composed.

"Tell me, when I tread the valley and go up the shinin' height,
Will I hear no angels singin'—Will I see no gleamin' light?
Will the golden harps be silent? Will I meet no welcome there?
Why, the thought is most distractin'—would be more than I could bear.

"Tell me, when I reach the city over on the other shore,
Will I find a little notice tacked upon the golden door,
Tellin' me, 'mid dreadful silence, right in words that cut and burn—
"Jesus absent on a vacation, heaven closed till His return?"

Why don't you attend church? asked the minister of a non-church going man. "Well, I'll tell you ,sir. The first time I went to church they threw water in my face, the second time they tied me to a woman, I've had to keep ever since." "Yes," said the parson, "and the next time you go they'll throw dirt on you."

Emperor Haile Selassie

Emporer Haile Selassie has been restored to the throne of Abyssinia. He was the first monarch to be driven from his country by the dictators, and he is the first to be restored. Is this mere coincidence or is it the hand of God, in whom Haile Selassie has trusted throughout these six years of exile?

A newspaper printed a story of Haile Selassie torturing with fiendish cruelty one of his rivals. R. V. Bingham, head of the Sudan Interior Mission, denies this story by telling how one of the Emperor's governors plotted against him and was arrested, tried by law, proved guilty and imprisoned, but how, on the night he was forced to flee, the Emporer set this rival free.

Mussolini affected to despise him as the ruler of a barbarian people. But it was the Italians who acted like barbarians by bombing the defenseless natives. The Italians, in order to wipe out Protestantism, shot all who could read, with the result that many native evangelists were murdered. The Italians had the little remnant of the former missionary body in prison, including the young son of the one United Presbyterian missionary there. Protestant missionaries were forced to leave the country after Mussolini conquered the country in 1935.

But now Haile Selassie is back on his rightful throne, and Italian power has been broken. And Protestant missionary work can again be carried on, for Haile Selassie is a friend of the missionaries. It was he, recalls R. V. Bingham, who before the Italian war was establishing schools as rapidly as he could secure trained teachers,, and in every school was insisting that the Gospel of John and the Psalms of David should form a part of the daily curriculum. It was he who gave the Sudan Interior Mission 500 acres of beautiful land for their leper work; contributed 1,000 pounds for their leper hospital; personally laid the foundation stone and officially opened the building on its dedication.

Haile Selassie is not bitter. In a recent proclamation to his people he said: "I charge you solemnly to receive kindly those Italians who surrender. Do not retaliate for the cruelty they have inflicted on our people, but show yourselves honorable and humane soldiers." He believes in loving his enemies, in doing good to those who hate him.

As in the past, he is giving God the glory. At the height of his power, when crowned Emporer in 1930, he had printed on coronation stamps the words of Psalm 68:31, "Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God." In the hour of calamity, when his throne had been taken from him, he said quietly: "If there is justice in this world, and I know there is, then I shall some day, in God's good time and when He considers it suitable and fitting, once again sit on the throne of Solomon." And now, at the hour of triumph, he begins his proclamation with the words, "Ethiopia stretches out her hands unto God."

As he stood before his people on his return to Addis Ababa he said to them: "Let us rejoice, but in the spirit of Christ. Do not reward evil for evil. Do not indulge in the untimely atrocities which the enemy, even in these last days has been accustomed to practice against us. Do not shame Ethiopia by acts worthy of our enemies. I shall see they are disarmed and given a safe passage to the place from which they came." Haile Selassie is a Christian ruler. Pray for him as he endeavours to restore a peaceful, righteous government in his war-torn land.

ON TIME WITH BUSINESS. BUT LATE WITH GOD

By WALTER E. ISENHOUR

We mean by this that they are on time when the whistle blows, on time when they have a business appointment, on time when the hour arrives to go to work—not one hour late; not even a minute late. They get up in plenty of time to go to work on time. If they have to do without sleep they are right there to meet their job on time. If they have to snatch their food and hurry away, they are there on time. If they feel bad they are there on time. If they have a headache and don't feel like work or like engaging in business, they are there on time. . . .

However, we find many people who are close observers of their time in the business life and world, but never seem to value their time much when it comes to serving and worshipping Almighty God. They drag along. They are late at Sunday school, late at preaching, late at prayer meeting. Late, late. It reminds me of something I recently heard. There was a man by the name of Jones who made a habit of being late at church—always late. So they named him "the late Mr. Jones." This would fit many people besides Mr. Jones. Have you not seen people you could always count on being late at church? If the weather is foul or fair, they are late. If they ride or walk, they are late. Even if they have a good automobile to ride in, and a fine highway to ride over, they are late. They just fall into the habit of being late. . .

It is true there sometimes come unavoidable delays, but these are the exceptions and not the rule, thank God. Somehow we feel better, we get along better, the church prospers better, and God blesses us better, if we are on time with Him.

We owe God our best in time, talent, work, money, and worship. But it seems that the great majority of people put business first and God last. They seek first the things of the world and God last, Whereas, Jesus said: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33). It always pays to put God first. This is His will concerning us, and when we do His will we may be assured that He will bless us and make us a blessing. Why would He not?

I had rather be an hour early at church, or at prayer meeting, or in meeting a religious appointment, and in the service and worship of God, than five minutes late. It is better for one to wait an hour for service to begin, because he is an hour early, than for a hundred to wait five minutes or even one minute. We realize it is a Mighty good plan always to be on time with business, but it is equally as good a plan to be on time with God, or even better.

"TIME ENOUGH YET"

Thousands are trying to persuade themselves:—

"There's time enough yet." Reader, are you thus being deluded?

"Time enough yet"—for settling matters between you and God?

"Time enough yet"—and your feet standing on the very brink of hell?

"Time enough yet"—and the shadow of death darkening round your path?

"Time enough yet"—and the dark thunder-cloud of wrath gathering thick and fast over your guilty head?

"Time enough yet"—and judgment nigh?

"Time enough yet"—and the Lord at hand?

"Time enough yet"—and the day of grace well nigh run?

"Time enough yet!" Yes, thank God! there is still time to be saved, but not a moment to lose. "Now," this fleeting moment, as you read these lines, "is the accepted time." Satan will say to you: "Tomorrow." That is his gospel. Will you be deceived by it? God says: "Behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Cor. 6:2).

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Gal. 6:7,8).

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).—The 11th Hour.

JAPAN'S PARLIAMENT MADE SIGNIFICANT STATEMENTS SOME YEARS AGO

"If we would make our nation superior to America we must not permit our children, who will be the future mothers and fathers, to smoke cigarettes." This should make some people in the good old U. S. A. really stop and think!

FOREIGN MISSIONS NUMBER

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

By LOUIS S. BAUMAN, Editor

DR. TABER RELEASED FOR MISSIONARY SERVICE

As most of the readers of the Herald know, our Bro. Floyd Taber, medical missionary in Africa, has been in the service of the French government at Bangui for some months, having gone there at the request of the French government. During this period of service, which it was feared would be for the duration of the war, Bro. Taber has been homesick to get back to the mission field. Now the good news comes that the French government has given him a sixty day notice that he will be released. As soon as this release takes effect, the Tabers expect to take their much needed furlough in South Africa, after which they are looking forward to their return to the mission field. For this good news we praise the Lord.

EINSTEIN WANDERS IN THE DARKNESS

Prof. Albert Einstein recently advised religious teachers to "give up the doctrine of a personal God, that is, give up that source of fear and hope which, in the past, placed such vast power in the hands of priests." Poor old Einstein! He may have the keenest mind in the flesh that ever was in the cranium of a living man! He may understand mysteries of the realm of science that no other living man can comprehend! At least, he may be able to make us believe that he understands them. However, his mind is the mind of flesh; and so far as things spiritual are concerned, he, being without the mind of the Spirit, staggers about in darkness as gross as ever overwhelmed darkest Africa itself.

Prof. Einstein would have us "give up the doctrine of a personal God." Well, if there is no personal God, then what kind of a God is there? To give up the idea of a personal God is to know no God at all. There is nothing whatever to worship but hard blind force; and force is anything but something that we can worship, as the entire world bears witness in this hour of the shedding of blood and the destruction of righteousness and innocence and sweet childhood.

Furthermore, Dr. Einstein says that to give up the idea of a personal God is to "give up that source of fear and hope." To give up that source of fear will turn loose upon the sons of men such tornadoes of wickedness, and immorality, and utter degredation, as this world has yet known. Where there is no fear of God and of coming judgment and of hell in the hearts of men, men sink to unbelievable depths of sin. Even a great French rationalist had to cry, when he saw the results of atheism in France more than 100 years ago, "If there be no God, it will be necessary for us to create one."

And, isn't it a terrible admission that Prof Einstein makes, when he tells us that, to ~ive up a belief in "a personal God," we would have to give up hope? That means that the human race will sink into the darkness of despair. Prof. Einstein is right; for, when his philosophies swept over France in those dark days in the latter part of the 18th century, we are told that French people wrote over the gateways to their cemeteries: "Abandon all hope, ye who enter here."

Prof. Einstein, you may have a great mind, but I would rather have the mind of an innocent little child, kneeling at its mother's knee, to say:

"Now I lay me down to sleep.
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

Yes, a thousand times yes—give us the mind of the innocent little child who does not stop to reason why or what, but simply believes. Perhaps, as a Christian, I am dreaming; but, if I am dreaming, let me dream on. I prefer the sweetness of a dream to the darkness in which Prof. Albert Einstein walks.

But once again, Prof. Einstein would have us believe that it is the "doctrine of a personal God" that caused the human race to place "such vast power in the hands of priests." Well, Friend Einstein, as we read the pages of history, we do not know but that we prefer "vast power in the hands of priests" to vast power in the hands of dictators, or even of science. Science has given us the awful instruments by which the human race today is committing suicide. However, it is not the genuine Christian faith and its beliefs in a personal God that has placed "vast power in the hands of priests" to the injury of the human race. The ordained ministers in our evangelical churches certainly are not in possession of what Dr. Einstein calls "vast power." Within our evangelical churches the power is in the hands of the members of those churches. Wherever you find the true church, it is the body of Christ, and it is a body that determines all things. The head of the church is Jesus Christ. The power and the glory are His own.

One trouble with Prof. Einstein is that he totally ignores pure evangelical faith, and things of a despotic, apostate ecclesiasticism as being the result of faith in the Scriptures and the personal God known within the Scriptures. If intellectual greatness leads into the darkness of Prof Einstein, then, dear Lord, keep us from that! We begin to understand what our Lord really meant when He said to the grownups of His day, as He sat a little child in the midst: "Verily, I say unto you, Except ye . . . become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 18:3,4). And no little child ever battled like Prof. Einstein, thank God!

MAN'S BOASTED INVENTIONS

The New York Sun, in a recent editorial, speaking of the inventor of the airplane, said:

"With a trace of wistfulness, Orville Wright, contemplating the havoc wrought by the airplane in the hands of barbarous men, declares his confidence that the great invention which he and his brother gave to the world will yet prove to be an instrument of lasting peace. Mr. Wright may console himself with the thought that there is nothing, however beneficient, that the hand and brain of man can devise, that may not be made somehow to serve a destructive purpose. When he invented the steam locomotive, Stephenson surely was thinking only of promoting human progress yet nothing more than the railroad has served to make total war possible. Those who contrived the internal combustion engine could not then know that they were fathering the tank, nor did Robert Fulton foresee the fearful engines of war that have developed from his steamboat. Nobel, in mortification at the ravages of dynamite, bequeathed all his profits to a foundation for promoting world peace, science, and letters."

Men of science have continually boasted in the past, and still continue to boast, of their handiwork in the way of marvelous inventions. An outstanding scientific magazine recently called our attention to the fact that 90% of this sort of handiwork from the great god of science is being used to tear our civilization to pieces. The instruments of science in the hands of regenerate men would be a blessing; but in the hands of the unregenerate, they become instruments of horrible destruction. Dynamite, in the hands of a man in whom the Spirit of Christ dwells, is made a real blessing; but in the hands of a demoniacal gangster it is dangerous indeed. Apparently the prophets of old envisioned the boasted inventions of our times.

Verily, it is written of man, "Thus were they defiled with their own works, and went a whoring with their own inventions" (Psa. 106:39). When one considers what man's "own inventions" are doing for our world today, we do not wonder that the Psalmist followed that statement by saying: "Therefore was the wrath of the Lord kindled against his people, insomuch that he abhorred his own inheritance."

THE GREAT PHYSICIAN PUSHED ASIDE

Dr. Bronson Ray, a well-known brain surgeon, was walking in a park one afternoon, when a little boy on a scooter scooted into a tree, and sustained a very severe scalp wound. Immediately Dr. Ray sent one of the bystanders to call an ambulance. He was administering first aid when a lad, only a couple of years older than the injured boy, pushed his way through the crowd. He stuck out his chest and said: "I am a boy scout. You go along, sir, and I'll take over."

Well, you may smile at that; but that is exactly what men in this old world have done. This old world has been scooting along pretty rapidly in the past few years. No one needs to ask whether or not the world has scooted "into a tree." Neither does anyone need to ask whether or not this old world has sustained any serious scalp wounds. Indeed, it has gone deeper than the scalp. Unless all outward signs mean nothing, it has sustained very severe brain injury. The Lord Jesus Christ is the great Physician. He has come to the rescue. Men of business, men of science, and modernistic preachers have practically waved the Lord Jesus Christ aside. They scarcely mention His name. They have practically said to Him: "You go along, sir, we'll take over." Verily, it is written; "He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh."

A MAN "WELL-NIGH HOPELESS"

Lycurgus is declared by men of the legal profession to have formulated the greatest code of law ever formulated by man. The only one who ever wrote a code of law surpassing his was Moses. Lycurgus, in his code of laws, laid down what he deemed a just punishment for every known sin, except one. Someone asked him one day why he had laid down no punishment for the sin of ingratitude. Lycurgus replied: "I have left that for the gods to punish." When children can forsake the father and mother that brought them into existence, and sacrificed and suffered to educate them —when men and women can turn from and easily forget those who have helped them, and been a blessing to them in years past and gone—well, Bob Jones, president of the Bob Jones College in Tennessee, was about right when he said: "When gratitude dies on the altar of a man's heart, the man is well-nigh hopeless."

WHAT ARE WE TO THINK?

President Ida D. Wise Smith, of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, tells us that there is a "rising tide of righteous indignation at the waste of critical resources" in the present war emergency. She then declares that the liquor traffic now consumes annually more than 174,000,000 pounds of sugar product, and more than 6,000,000,000 pounds of corn, barley and other grains. Quoting these figures, the Pathfinder comments: "Yes, and there doesn't seem to be any restriction whatever on the amount of liquor advertising the newspapers and magazines may carry." A Christian's first duty is to His God; his second duty to his family; his third duty is to his country. Every Christian should be an example in the matter of loyalty to all three. However, sometimes, as in the present case, when we go into a cafe and receive a mere leveled-off teaspoonful of sugar in our iced tea, and then think of the sugar that, with government approval, goes into the manufacture of intoxicating liquors which are under no circumstances food, but destroyers of the bodies and souls of men—well, sometimes we are sorely tempted to rebellion. To that temptation, of course, true Christians must not yield. But, if our Uncle Samuel expects the living God to smile upon him with divine favor in the present stress, there are some things in his habits and ways that call for repentance.

SOWING IN HOPE

Argentina has often been declared by missionary statesmen to be the most difficult mission field in the world. Therefore, we should the more earnestly pray for our faithful missionaries in the Argentine. Doubtless they sometimes "feel it," when they read of the large fruitage for their labor enjoyed by our missionaries in Africa—beside which, so far as numerical results are concerned, their own work seems so meagre. The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church understood, when it first selected Argentina as a mission field, that it was a difficult field. However, our Lord commanded us to "Go and preach the gospel to every creature" whether he will hear or whether he will forbear.

We have a mighty fine group of missionaries in the Argentine. You will "look a long way" before finding any better missionaries than Ricardo Wagner, Paul Dowdy, Hill Maconaghy, and their most excellent wives who are helpers indeed. And, then, hand in hand with them, work the fine group of national pastors.

"He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him" (Ps. 126:6).

JONAH UP AGAIN

According to the magazine Time, Chicago's well-known pharmacologist, Prof. Eugene Geiling, crawled through the gullet of a dead mammal to vindicate the story of Jonah and the "great fish." Prof. Geiling said: "It was a pretty slimy trip, but there was plenty of room."

Well, now, the story of Jonah would stand, even if no fish could be found through whose gullet Prof. Geiling could crawl. It stands, for the simple reason that the plain declaration of the Word of God is: "Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah" (Jonah 1:17). Now, if the Lord prepared the fish, we are quite sure that in preparing the fish to swallow Jonah, he knew Jonah's waist measure, and prepared the gullet of the fish to be sufficiently large to let Jonah slide through on his famous journey. A special creation of this fish for the purpose of furnishing the world with a marvelous sign would be no new thing at all. If you will turn to Ex. 10:14, you will read of the locusts that swept over Egypt: "Before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such." Those locusts had no ancestors, they left no descendants. And even so it was Jonah's fish. Don't be foolish enough to go hunting for the descendants of that fish. They don't exist. The God of Jonah was a Creator, your Creator and mine!

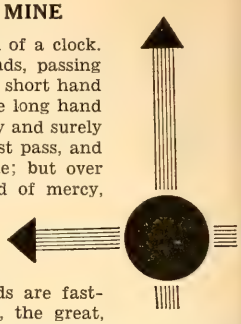
HITLER DEMON POSSESSED

The editor has long believed that Adolf Hitler is a character completely controlled by demons—such demons as are clearly described in the New Testament Scriptures. If demon possession is not true, then the Scriptures are not true. If demon possession is true, Adolf Hitler is an outstanding evidence of its truth. Nothing more clearly demonstrates this than a statement of Dr. Otto Strasser, a former official of the Nazi government and one of the intimate friends of Hitler. Dr. Strasser, however, fell into disgrace with Hitler and had to flee for his life. Strasser says:

> "I was present at a dinner given by Hitler some years ago, and in that wild gesticulating manner of his, Hitler shouted, 'If I die my enemies will die with me, even if I have to force a bacterial war and completely destroy my hated enemies. If a Nazi-dominated country has no right to live, the other countries have no right either'."

KINGDOMS OF CLAY VS. THE KINGDOM OF THE STONE

Adolph Hitler continually declares to the world that he has set himself to the task of carving out a "new order," not only for Europe but for the entire world. This "new order" for Europe, at least, will be controlled by men and women of "pure Aryan blood," which means that it will be Germanic. He declares that this "new order" will be for at least "1000 years to come."



Whatever else Adolf Hitler is, he is not a historian. If he were, he would know that tyrants of his sort, especially those who are anti-Semitic, are not immortal. In their earlier youth they may strut and boast and shout that "it will last for 1000 years," but that is nothing new for a Satanically inspired tyrant to do.

Not so long ago a traveler in Egypt discovered a broken statue lying in the sands of the desert. It had once been a statue of enormous proportions. All that was left was a piece of the trunk, two legs, and the pedestal. Engraved upon that pedestal was the inscription:

> "My name is Ozymandias, king of kings. Look on my works, ye mighty, and despair."

Well, there isn't much left of his mighty "works"—just two legs and a bit of torso. Hitler will do well to accept his invitation: "Look on my works, ye mighty, and despair!" There is only one King of kings, Whose reign in glory will know no end. He has not yet come, but signs clear as the noonday sun is clear in a cloudless sky, indicate that His coming is at hand.

YOUR LIFE—AND MINE

"Our life is like the dial of a clock. The hands are God's hands, passing over and over again. The short hand the hand of discipline; the long hand the hand of mercy. Slowly and surely the hand of discipline must pass, and God speaks at each stroke; but over and over passes the hand of mercy, showering down twelve - fold of blessing for each stroke of discipline and trial; and both hands are fastened to one secure pivot, the great, unchanging heart of a God of love."—Southern Churchman.

GRANDMA SCORES

Dapper's Weekly is sponsor for this story. A modern daughter of the East was listening impatiently to a long lecture from her grandmother. Her grandmother had been protesting, evidently, against a lack of modesty in her granddaughter's dress. The girl protested: "It's all very well to find fault with my clothes, grandma; but didn't you ever set your cap for a young man?" "Well," said grandma, pointedly; "Never my knee caps anyway." May the dear Lord pity any young man with mind so weak as to overlook the mind and heart of a girl, and permits himself to be ensnared for life by a well-shaped "knee cap." Ask the judges in our divorce courts whether we are right.

DR. GRIBBLE'S DEATH AND BURIAL

By MRS. JOSEPH H. FOSTER

Bouca, June 2, 1942

Dear, dear fellow-workers at home:

How very, very often we think of you, and pray for you daily.

We recently have had a letter from Bro. Jobson, Williamses and Sheldons. That has been the extent of news from home for about three months.

Of course, all of you have heard about Dr. Gribble's home-going. To us it still does not seem possible. She was not very well at conference. Then she slept between the Dunning and Kliever families, and did not get much rest. However, all during the conference she did not seem especially tired, but more so when the conference was over. On the way home, when they reached the bac at Bellevue, Andre left the car just on top of the little knoll and went into the bush while Miss Bickel and Dr. Gribble stayed in the car. They opened all the doors for air, which caused the car to start and run into the river. In getting out, Doctor was knocked down, and lay in the sun without her helmet. Then, too, it seemed (though no one is sure) that she was injured internally.

Florence and Doctor arrived home from conference on a Saturday, I think. We arrived the next Monday. Doctor was in bed then with a temperature of 100. It neither went up nor down. It stayed that way until Thursday, when we felt we had to get home because we had been away six weeks. However, Joe and Yasi had anointed her on prayer day, and generally she seemed better. Anyway, by Saturday she was up and about. Within a week she and Florence had planned to go to Bangui. We tried our best to persuade her not to go, but she felt she had to go. But the trip was certainly too much for her.

In the first place, when they started out, the road to Bouca was closed. They were putting in a new big bridge. That made them go the Bossembele road, and they only got as far as Bossembele the first day. Florence said that Doctor was completely done out when they arrived. They had practically no food, having expected to spend the night with us. On the way home she was sick in bed a week at Yaloke. When they arrived home (on a Thursday, I think, though it may have been earlier in the week—but anyway on Saturday) she and Florence made a trip to Bossongoa. It seemed that she could not rest quietly, but felt that she had to be on the go. It just did not seem natural for her to be wanting to be on the move when she was not well; for it has always seemed to me that Doctor, of all people, always wanted to be quiet when she did not feel up to par. Anyway, it seems that Sunday morning she had a temperature again and stayed in bed.

Monday morning, if I am not mistaken, they sent for the doctor at Bossangoa, who expected to return the following morning and give her a thorough examination. She suffered all day and until 3:00 o'clock the following morning, when the Lord called her home.

However, at no time, according to Miss Bickel, did she seem unusually ill until 10:00 P.M., when she noticed a decided change. It was then that she hurriedly sent Andre, Doctor's chauffeur, to call Marguerite and Harold. From all that Florence said, Doctor passed into the presence of the Lord very quietly and peacefully, which is, after all, the natural way we would expect her to go.

The Lord's hand was revealed in so many marvelous ways in connection with the different ones who were needed to lay Doctor away. Harold Dunning had been out on an itinerating trip, and fully expected to stay another week. He was homesick, but determined he would not give in to his feelings, but stick it out for another week. However, such a terrible urge came over him to get home that he decided he had better go. He arrived home in the evening preceding Andre's arrival at 7:00 A.M. in the morning.

Jake Kliever had been out and just gotten home the day before, but was called on an emergency trip to help a miner who had had an accident; or at least, trouble with his car. So he had just arrived home when Harold, who had been at Bellevue, returned to tell Jake to come quickly with the truck to take Doctor's body to Bassai for burial. There was not time to waste.

Joe Foster, who had gone with Harold, returned with Jake; and Harold went on down to Yaloke to get Mary Emmert and Elizabeth Tyson for the funeral.

We were just ready for a trip to Batangafo, but were delayed a bit by having to get the monthly report out first. We received a telegram 10:00 A.M. and left about noon, arriving at Bellevue at 4:00 P.M. Of course, we were detained at the poste at least a half hour. We met Harold on the way going to Bossangoa. He hoped he could telegraph to Jake so that the trip would not need to be made in the car to Bozoum, but there had been a terrific storm and the wires were down.

Tuesday morning at 3:00 A.M. Doctor went to be with the Lord. Now, Wednesday about 3:00 A.M. Joe and Jake returned from Bozoum with the truck, but both needed at least a few hours sleep, so they slept until 5:00 A.M. However, Florence, Marguerite, and I were up early trying to get everything in readiness.

It was a terribly hot night. We had fixed Doctor all up nicely the night before, and left the body on the bed to put in the casket that Florence had made for her; i.e., she supervised the carpenters making it. We had put cotton in it and lined it with a nice white sheet. However, our consternation was great in the morning when we saw the body. We had hoped to let all the natives see her before she was taken to Bassai. In the morning she could not be seen, and the casket had to be enlarged in order to get the body into it. This detained us about two hours.

In the meantime the Chef of the Department, and a friend of all of us—Monsieur Legru—from the Cotonaf, came to pay their respects. These people have proven themselves to be real friends indeed, and we greatly appreciate all that they did for all of us. Thus, instead of getting away at 6:00 o'clock as we had planned, it was 8:00 o'clock or after.

. . . We all met at Bozoum, then continued on to Bassai. When we arrived there the grave was not yet ready. Word had reached Bassai in the night; and Miss Myers had called the workers, marked the the grave, and they started work on it at once; but the ground was so hard and so stony that digging went very slow. Anyway, it was then already past noon, so we ate dinner; and by that time they had the grave finished, so we all went out to it.

There were not very many of the natives present, because it all happened so quickly that they had not time to get the news and be present. However, there were three of our native pastors there, and they had the services.

Personally, I thought the service was beautiful, just as Doctor would have had it; for she always did want native help to do everything possible for her instead of taking the missionaries' time. I will give, as I remember, the way in which the services were conducted. If I make a mistake, no doubt some of my fellow-workers who have a better memory than I, or who were feeling better that particular day than I was, will give the correct procedure of events.

As I remember, they first sang, "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me" in Sango; then, "The Eastern Gate;" then John Noetemo read and explained John 14:1-6 in Karre. After this Noel prayed and Yasi read and explained I Thess. 4:13-18, closing with prayer. For this service they had carried the casket to the grave, and covered it with a lot of beautiful green leaves, with a spray of beautiful red and green flowers on the top. The entire service and surroundings were very simple, but very impressive.

When we returned to the house, we held a short service there among ourselves. Joe read from I Corinthians. Then we all gave a short testimony as to that which we had seen in Dr. Gribble that had made an impression upon us. I will leave it for someone else to write of these, as well as of other things that we are not so familiar with.

Mrs. Ricardo Wagner, under date of June 12, writes: I have been wondering if you have gotten any of the details about our camp this year. I don't know when I have ever felt the power of the evil one as I have in connection with these camps. You probably remember what happened last year. Happily the attacks ceased by the time the young folks got here.

This year we were not so fortunate. There were forces at work trying to make the camp impossible or spoil it, and those same forces got right onto the campgrounds.

One group especially was dissatisfied with everything, and began criticizing and grumbling just as soon as they got there. To increase their dissatisfaction, it rained the first day, and the camp was thrown into confusion trying to keep personal belongings and bedding from getting wet. The most willing of the boys, dressed in overcoats and bathing suits, were busy digging trenches around the tents.

In the meantime, we ran out of water in the kitchen; and as the boys were all busy, I took advantage of the first let-up in the rain to go down to the creek to get a bucketful. But alas! With my first step on the downhill path, both feet slipped from under me in a flash, and I fell with all my weight on the left wrist, leaving it absolutely useless. The path was too slippery for me to get on my feet again, so there I lay in the mud until I could attract someone's attention with my calls, and got pulled out of there.

The nearest doctor was in Rio Cuarto, so Bro. Maconaghy took Ricardo and me just as soon as we could get ready. Result: no fractures, bad sprain, elastic cast, and orders not to do anything for at least a week. A nice situation for the head cook!

In the meantime the women were having a perplexing time in the camp kitchen. How much salt should be put in? How long does it take a kettle of this size to boil, etc., etc.?

Then, next day, our Elena developed fever and was in bed most of the day. Mrs. Dowdy, too, was scarcely able to be up. In the evening Bro. Siccardi's brother-in-law came to get him, as his little boy was most dangerously ill. That news upset camp not a little, for the little fellow had several near relatives there.

During the night Elena woke up screaming, and gave us a scare. About the same time, another camper got sick, and the next day Victor was feverish. With all of these things happening in rapid succession, not to mention a multitude of other disagreeable details, you can hardly wonder if we were inclined to feel a bit blue.

However, on Wednesday the tables turned. The weather, which had been very damp up until then, changed for the better. The dissatisfied ones left that morning, and from then on the spirit was much better. In short, the last half of camp was a time of joyous and profitable fellowship. It was climaxed on the last day, when we were able to have a baptismal service. That had not been planned on, and was not on the program; but it did not take long to make the necessary arrangements, once we found the candidates ready. That same evening there were at least three confessions of faith in the Lord at the closing service.

Our farewell came in the form of rain, and so nearly everyone made a hasty get-away, only a few of us staying by the baggage until the truck came to load up. As far as I know, every one of the young folks that stayed until the end of camp are looking forward to the next one.

Again Mrs. Wagner writes concerning the work in general,

To be sure, we have not made any tremendous leap forward, but we have seen things move. We give God all the glory, for we are very conscious of it being His work, and of the victories being won through prayer in His name. It has been, still is, and will be a real grind. There are many difficult places, many disappointments; but with it all, we have had two additions to the church by letter, and expect to have two more before long.

About seven are awaiting baptism, and five others have made confession of faith; but we are not sure about their being ready for baptism yet. These are apart from a number of confessions of faith by little children, and include only one person outside of Almafuerte.

Last night we had one whole new family in attendance, interested and brought in by one of the women awaiting baptism. And, by the way, this is the second family she has brought to the meetings, apart from

Remember

"We Treat Christ the way we treat the heathen!"

other efforts she has made, which, to date, have been fruitless. More homes are open to us than ever before.

In addition to these meetings we are having weekly young people's meetings, a teacher training class, and a music class that we did not have last year. These are all activities with the young folks.

Some folks may consider me a visionary, but my heart's passion and profound hope is to see these young folks consecrated, trained, and formed into gospel teams to go and take the message to the towns around us. I see no other way of evangelizing this vast field, for I am thoroughly convinced that Ricardo and I alone can never take care of it. That is undoubtedly what the Lord has been trying to show me, when He has permitted me to be laid upon my back time after time, just when I have been all pitched up ready to forge ahead . . . We earnestly covet your prayers for our young folks, for their consecration and training.

A letter from Mrs. Harold Dunning, written Mar. 28, reads:

Dear Herald Readers:

This has been a pleasant month, as we've had company three times. The night of Feb. 25 we were just getting Ruth's ten o'clock bottle ready when we heard a car coming up the hill. As we walked down the steps, we were praying that we might make ourselves understood and make our French guests comfortable. You can imagine our surprise and joy when we heard, "Is this where Mr. and Mrs. Dunning live?" with an unmistakable English accent. It was a doctor and his wife driving back to their field in Nigeria from the Cape, where they had been taking furlough. It was a real treat to have them, because they were the first English-speaking people we have had at Yaloke in a year, besides our own missionaries from time to time. We were sorry to see them go on the next morning.

Miss Emmert and I have been trying to hold this big station down by ourselves for several weeks. Miss Tyson is visiting the Tabers in Bangui, and Mr. Dunning (also having been to Bangui for car repairs) is out itinerating. This is the season when it is most advantageous to get out into the villages. We do not forget, though, that we are exhorted to preach the Word in season and out of season. We need your prayers that we will ever be faithful in bringing those who are dying to the One Who is life.

It was also during this time when another group of visitors came. Three ladies and one gentleman on their way to Bangui and the Cape came in the night of Mar. 20 and left the following morning. This time we became acquainted with the South African, Australian, and Canadian accents.

The little primers prepared by Miss Emmert are being used daily in nearby and distant villages as youngsters learn to read. Five hundred were put out the first time, and were all taken so hungrily that she is getting 1000 ready now to put into the hands of others. Please pray that these booklets may indeed be used to the glory of God and the salvation of souls.

One Sunday this month we realized again Voloungou's zeal, and thanked God for having given us a worker like him. It had been planned that he should preach that Sunday. He had been suffering with a cold, so Mr. Dunning suggested that he rest. But he had a message he wanted to give his people, and could not be dissuaded. One could see he was not well. He didn't do his usual prancing about for one thing, and his voice was faint. Finally he said, "My heart fails me. Monsieur Dunning will finish," and sat down. That was the first time Voloungou was ever known to give up. This week—he has been three weeks recuperating—he plans to leave on his bicycle to preach the Word in other places for about two weeks. Yes, thank God for him, and pray for him.

Yours in Christ Jesus,
Marguerite G. Dunning.

Special Notice

Concerning the Election of the Members to the Board of Trustees of The Brethren Church.

Objections have been voiced against the method pursued in the election of the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society. A word of explanation, the Board feels, is necessary.

For many years the Foreign Board made the nominations for the election of the Trustees. Their nominations were then submitted to the Annual Meeting of the Society for approval or rejection. At this annual meeting, the privilege was always given to any member of the Society to nominate any other member from the floor and before the vote was taken. This method for the election of trustees is the method that is used by many large and well-known religious organizations, as well as business concerns.

Several years ago, however, the Board felt that not only the members who are able to be at the Annual Meeting held in connection with the national meet of Brethren Churches at Winona Lake, but all members of the Society, wherever they may be, should have the privilege of casting a ballot for the election of the trustees. Therefore, the Board made nominations according to the Constitution of the Society and announced these to the members of the Society at the Annual Meeting. These members were privileged to make other nominations from the floor if they chose to do so. A vote was then taken to approve whatever nominations were made by the Board of the members.

Last year, the members present, being satisfied with the nominations of the Board, made no new nominations. Therefore only these names were sent out to the entire membership of the Society for approval or disapproval.

There has been some criticism of this method, some declaring it to mean a self-perpetuating Board. However, this is not wholly true; for, if any general dissatisfaction should exist with any member or members of the Board of Trustees, a concerted movement through the mails could effect new nominations and elections, bringing about within three years a complete change of the personnel of the Board.

At the present meeting of the Board, in session at Winona Lake as this issue of the Herald goes to the press, the Board is wrestling with this problem, and proposes to present a plan for the election of trustees whereby it will not be difficult for the members of the Society to make any changes on the Board of Trustees they may wish to make.

We wish to make it clear that we have heard no criticism of any one member of the Board or any desire on the part of any of our members to remove any certain man from its Board of Trustees. The criticism has all been directed merely at the method of the election. Sad experience has recently taught us the disaster that can come to any organization in the church whose board is self-perpetuating. The Board will probably work out a system whereby the members of the Society, by a popular vote, will make the nominations that are to be submitted to the Society for election or reelection. One thing sure, every member of the Board is anxious that the organization of our Society will be such that it will be in complete control of the more than 3000 members of the Society. We are opposed as much as any, to the system of self-perpetuation.

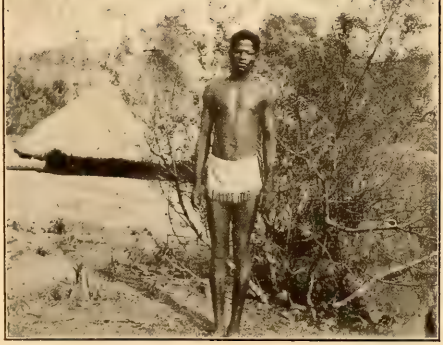
A Week at Patterson Memorial Chapel



By HAROLD L. DUNNING

It was almost sunset when the car churned up the hill, between the two rows of mango trees lining the auto road's entrance to Bossembele. I was glad when I could turn into the drive leading up to the Patterson Memorial Chapel and the missionary rest house located in the rear.

The natives quickly gathered at the chapel to greet me. Then began the interesting process of unloading. This is performed in the intimate privacy of about 50 natives, who are very much like the crowd you see at home gathered around a steam shovel.

Have you ever heard of the things a missionary travels with out here? When a native travels, he picks up his bed and his one or two other belongings, and walks to where he is going. But the missionary cannot do anything so simple. He is civilized, so he works one whole day or more getting the necessary paraphernalia ready. He then loads the car from floor to roof, and goes where he is going if the car can take it.

If you had been among that curious crowd watching us unload, you would have seen come out of the car, and disappear into the hut a duffle bag containing all necessary sleeping equipment—for, of course, the missionary couldn't sleep on the ground. A native mat is hard, and gets harder before morning. Then you would see a thermos jug of drinking water, for all his drinking water must be boiled. Next came the missionary's tin clothes trunk, for, of course, he can't travel native. Following this comes his delicatessen store, i.e. his precious chop box. In this, among other things, you would find some vegetables, for no high pressure American business man has yet sold the African the idea of the roadside vegetable stand. Consequently these things can't be found outside of the missionary's own garden. In this chop box is also securely packed all necessary kitchen ware.

An African convert, who has seen the light as it shines in heathen darkness.

Something of the heathen fear to which Bro. Dunning refers can be seen in this picture of the graves of the village fathers. Notice the spirit house and offering vessel where food is offered to appease the spirits.

Along with all this there is the necessary paper, typewriter, lanterns, kerosene, gasoline, etc. Finally the car is emptied, and the missionary disappears into the hut after his things. And you, if you are intelligent, wonder where all this was put, and how the missionary can find room in that house. So, to satisfy your curiosity, you join the others to try to see through the window. Finally the white man's "boy" will come and persuade you to go away, for the queer white people don't like company when they undress and bathe.

"When dawn lit her candle, and placed it on the window sill of the horizon," the dim light found us already beginning the week's activities with a prayer-meeting. Just four of us, but the Lord was present, and blessing and strength were experienced. It was Sunday, and the first service was at eight. The chapel was about full. The missionary spoke on the parable of the sower. They listened well, and thus the Lord's message was drawn from the speaker. After the service, the work of finding out who's who began. First the baptized ones moved into one section. Then the converts are moved into another section. The benediction was pronounced, and those who belonged to neither group left the building to go back to their several villages surrounding the poste.

Our work this week was two-fold: to give them Bible teaching and to organize the church. This meant examining former baptized ones, as well as candidates for baptism.

Immediately after dinner, the second half of the work began. Each baptized person was called and dealt with personally to ascertain his spiritual experience. A few were found sadly lacking, giving little evidence of spiritual interest. These were dealt with to win them back, and placed on probation to preserve the church's purity and power. Here there were no serious cases of discipline, as all of these had been carefully handled by the cathechists and believers at the time the affairs arose. It was a healthy group of Christians. The bulk were living Christ. How I wish you could have sat with us as we dealt with them one by one. There were transformed murderers and harlots. There were medicine men and women, upon whose faces their evil past was written, yet from whose eyes shone the light reflected from the face of Jesus, Whom they had seen. Our hearts were warmed as we met them. Their skins were black, some dressed only in leaves; but they had been washed in the blood, and were clothed in the righteousness of Christ—true brothers and sisters in Christ.

One is touched, by this picture, with the need of the gospel where our missionaries are laboring. At the grave of this one who died without Christ and without hope, notice the chair, trunk, etc. for use in the next world.

After three days given over to this work, we began to investigate converts. As I engaged in this work for the first time, I could not help but wonder how this process would be received in our churches at home. Certainly it would eliminate that which one pastor complained about when he said, "At our last revival we baptized 30 people and after one year we can find only one or two." This is true of Africa many times over. It is no great task to get the African to raise his hand or come forward. One high pressure evangelistic meeting such as those familiar to us at home would bring nearly every African in Oubangui Chari to the altar. But it is another matter when you begin to deal with him about Christ saving him from sin. He wants to be baptized and come into the white man's affair; but he also wants his plural wives, plus his promiscuous adultery, to say nothing of his scores of Satanic charms, all night dancing, and beer parties. Faith in Christ is not an emotional answer to an altar call, or a desire to partake of this new thing; it is that holy attitude of heart-trust in Jesus Christ and His atoning blood, as the means of loosing from sin's horrible guilt and soul-destroying power.

Missionaries who have dealt with Africans by the hour, seeking to lead them to the light, have learned by experience that this light generally comes after sitting under the teaching of God's word in a converts' class for a period of time. No special time is alotted. These classes are visited every so often, and during these visits the progress of the converts is tested. As soon as a convert reveals a reception of the light of the gospel of God's salvation, and a genuine faith in Christ, he is baptized without hesitation. As John said to those who came for baptism in his day, "Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance."

It was with this work we were occupied for the remaining portion of the week. Several came through with flying colors for Christ. One young lad especially impressed me. I feel a special caution with youngsters; and as I questioned this one criss-cross and otherwise, my heart was warmed by his knowledge of Christian things. His mother and father both appeared later to be examined for baptism. All three were led into the water at the end of the week. This young lad had won them both to faith in his Savior. This is the joy of missionary work. It has its disappointments, however; for many had to be refused and told to continue to come to the converts' class in order to have the light soon. Because of these that must be refused, the catechists speak of the day of baptism as the time of great joy mingled with sadness. How much the many converts' classes spread over the country here need your prayer help.

During these days, morning and evening, we gathered the members of the church and converts to teach them. That was the most joyous part of the whole week. We gave some teaching on church membership and its responsibility, using the last three days to teach them God's revealed way of obtaining power to follow Christ and fulfil these obligations. Personally, yours truly has seldom spoken to a more receptive group. They listened well. They ate the Word as a hungry man eats bread. The fruits will be revealed by eternity.

The last day of this series is a day long to be remembered. Patterson Memorial Chapel was jammed to capacity. The low brick wall which forms its border was packed tight with natives. The doorways in front and back were circled with those who could not get in. Others sat on the grass around the sides. Because the government had requested all chiefs to come to the poste at this time, we also had 30 different chiefs present in the meeting. The songs were sung with joy. Prayer went up from hearts filled with zeal to see many come to Christ. The missionary spoke on Matt. 1:21, revealing the great purpose of Christ's coming, and the fact that when He saves, He saves from sin.

After this service, all went to the river nearby, where the missionary baptized his first African. There were 29 who confessed Christ through the waters of baptism that morning. When the last one left the

Triumphs and Difficulties in the Argentine

By MRS. RICARDO E. WAGNER, Almafuerte, S.A.

It seems almost impossible that four months or more have passed since any news from this part of the globe has been sent in for Herald readers and prayer helpers, but such appears to be the case. Therefore, it is my duty and privilege to give an account of our work here so that you may rejoice with us in the victories won, and join us in fervent prayer on behalf of the vast, unreaped harvest before us.

Mrs. Wagner

If I remember correctly, I wrote last about the D.V.B.S. in Berrotaran. When we had finished there, we had a little over two weeks to prepare for the Young People's Camp. Not as many of our young folks were able to go as we had hoped: the peanut harvest had just begun for some, and others were detained because of sickness in the home. Of the seven who did go from our district, some had to be helped financially. We rejoice in the very special blessing that the Lord gave us during the last days of camp, and most especially when three of our precious young folks obeyed the Lord in the ordinance of baptism. One of the girls lives in Corralito, and the other girl and the young man are from Almafuerte. Certainly, the very definite victory won was well worth all that it cost to have the camp, and to get our young folks there. The two girls are faithfully following their Lord, and the young man has developed far beyond our expectations. Pray earnestly for them, for their responsibilities and temptations are great.

Getting back from camp was more of a process than anything else. Rain made a round-about route inevitable. The day after we got home, another trip had to be made for baggage, and still another day was spent to return borrowed goods, settle accounts, etc. That same week Ricardo discovered that our little group of believers in Elena were still desirous of having the D.V.B.S. there, in spite of the fact that the public school was about to open. Although we knew that the school would be small, I decided to go along and help, as there was not a great deal I could do at home. The wrist that I had sprained so badly at camp was still pretty much useless, and it was easier to teach than to take care of a house.

The D.V.B.S. at Elena exceeded our expectations. I feel certain that if we could have had it earlier in the summer, before mothers and children alike were absorbed in school preparations, the response would have been much greater. After school started, I had classes both morning and afternoon for several days.

A D.V.B.S. conducted at one of our Argentina mission points last year

You probably know that children in this country go to school only half a day—usually the older ones in the morning and the younger ones in the afternoon. This constitutes one of our biggest problems in having classes for children in Berrotaran and Elena: some of our children are always in school unless the day happens to be a holiday. Pray with us for the solution to this problem.

Not quite three weeks after we finished the special Bible School in Elena, it was time to pack up suitcases again and go to the General Conference in Rio Cuarto. A short time before, Ricardo had traded our Chevrolet sedan for a small truck, and fixed it up temporarily so as to be able to take a number of delegates with us to conference. Though we had considerable water, the missionary realized that he was very tired, but also that his heart sang with the victory song of the Lamb of God.

The day was not yet over, however, for within two hours all the believers had gathered for the love feast. 71 believers were present. There was great praise and joy. Several of those hearts as yet had not been touched, but who, out of curiosity, had come to watch, said, "This affair of God is the true affair" as they witnessed the love and blessing of the Spirit.

This writing is far inadequate to describe to you the events. How I wish you could see what your sacrifices are accomplishing for Christ. The pessimist would say, "Pooh, a mere 71 among thousands." But those who have seen the power of heathen fear and civilization's filth, which bind these souls to Satan's way, praise the God of power that can reach and save these few. Won't you pray for this little group of Christians gathering day by day at Patterson Memorial Chapel? They are in the field of battle. Daily they are attacked by forces filled with the power of all Satanic heathenism. Most of them can't even read. A fine group of them is now gathering after the work of the day is done, to learn to read. Only through your prayers and ours will these few people be able to stand against the wiles of the adversary. Unbelief says they won't be there the next time you return; but faith looks at the impossible as a platform for God to appear on, and is "fully persuaded that, what He has promised, He is able also to perform."

expense on the truck, we do praise the Lord for the blessing and inspiration which our delegates (to say nothing aobut ourselves) received; and we feel that our efforts were not in vain. We keep dreaming about a bus for this kind of service; not only for conferences, but also for what it would mean right here in our circuit. The truck, of course, is useful; but our trip home from conference was both damp and cold. Ricardo has seen a bus that is out of service, but has not yet had a chance to talk to the owner. In the meantime we are placing the matter in our Lord's hands, knowing that He sees best what is most needful for both His people and His work. We will appreciate greatly your cooperation in prayer on this matter.

After the conference—that is to say, after Easter—was the first time this year that I did not have to begin making preparations to go some place right after getting back from somewhere else, and it really was a relief to be at home again. Perhaps you can somewhat imagine what the state of affairs had gotten to be here. Canning had been for the most part neglected, my pile of sewing and mending was formidable, cleaning was urgent in every corner of the house, and the garden looked as if nobody lived here. I had not kept a girl after New Year because I was not home enough to make it worth while. The woman I was able to get in March is a very good worker, but could give me so very little of her time that I was left with a good share of the routine work. I am thankful for the short time that I had her here, for we had several helpful talks together; and I got an insight on some of her burdens, heartaches, and weaknesses, which enable me to understand and pray for her better. She is one of our believers here in Almafuerte. Now I have a young girl from Elena who is relieving me of much of the routine, so I have been able to get the most urgent tasks done. Maybe by the time winter is over, some impression will have been made upon the accumulation.

The girls' schooling was another detail that had to be taken care of this fall. While we were in Elena I began teaching them in my spare (?) time, and continued giving them as much school work as possible up to conference time. But it was soon perfectly clear to me that if I continued to try to take care of their schooling alone, in addition to all the other work I had on my hands, I would soon be a nervous wreck, and they would only be losing time; so right after conference I got them off to private school. This, of course, makes it difficult for me to take a very active part in the work out of town, for to do so would mean their losing at least 1½ days of school a week.

We are now in the months of routine work, and ever seeking the guidance of the Holy Spirit for the most profitable plan of caring for this field. Ricardo has started having cottage meetings in Berrotaran and Elena during the cold weather. In both places the groups are small, and can be easily accommodated in the homes. Moreover, it is easier to get new folks to go to a cottage meeting than to the hall, and in both towns new contacts have been made in this manner. Pray most earnestly for the work in these two towns. The believers are so few in each place, and the persecutions and temptations so great, that only the power of God can hold them. In Berrotaran the priest fairly runs the town, and is leading the public hilariously to hell. Pray that his influence may be broken down, and that the hungry hearts behind barred doors may be freed to feast upon the riches of His grace. The fanaticism is not quite so strongly felt in Elena, but the enemy has his devices operating there too. Pray especially that we may be given wisdom in making further plans for these two towns, that the special needs may be met.

Our hearts are filled with humble praise and gratitude to God for blessings received here in Almafuerte. A short time ago a family—or two families in reality, for the older son is married—moved here from Las Perdices. There are 13 in the family altogether, four of whom are baptized—fruits of Bro. Siccardi's work in Las Perdices. At about the same time, some other new folks were brought into the S.S., so that there has been a notable increase in attendance. The spirit amongst the believers is also good, and we are praying that it may break into real revival. Pray with us to that end.

Two new activities have been added to our list here in Almafuerte. The first is meetings for the young people. We now have five baptized young folks here. One girl is very worldly, and consequently of no help in the work. However, she comes to the meetings off and on, and we pray that the Lord will take hold of her life for His glory. The other four are sincere Christians, and a source of joy to us; and our prayer and purpose in the young people's meetings are that they may be given every opportunity and help for Christian growth. Aside from these, there is a far larger group who have not publicly accepted Christ Naturally, our burden for them is that they might be saved.

The second activity is a training class for teachers. The increased attendance in S.S. created an imperative need for teachers. The Lord graciously supplied this need in the person of one of the young men from Las Perdices. We still need another teacher urgently, and are waiting upon the Lord to make the choice. But any and all teachers need all of the help they can get, so a class was started the last Sunday in May, meeting immediately after S.S. The enrollment of eight was very gratifying, and we praise Him for touching these hearts. We believe that these are two very important steps in the progress of the work, and are not expecting that they will go unchallenged by the enemy. Therefore, we solicit your most earnest prayers that all difficulties and hindrances that may present themselves may be overcome, and that these activities may accomplish their purpose.

CHAPTER 6

A Continued Story Written for Our Boys and Girls By MISS MARY EMMERT, Missionary In Africa

AFRICAN EVENINGS

The bright African moon flooded Pondo's native village with its silvery light, and changed its drab everyday appearance into a wonderland of beauty. Gay voices and rippling laughter leaped from one doorway to the next, until the whole village tingled with one desire—the overwhelming longing for lighthearted revelry.

The tam-tams beat out a tantalizing rhythm. Soon the empty space in front of the chief's house was filled with swirling dancers—dusky figures of light and shade in the gleaming moonlight.

The noise and excitement of the dance inspired Pondo and his companions to a merry game of tag in the neighborhood of the older people. Only when some loud guffaw of laughter caught their attention did they pause a while to watch their elders. They might have escaped the blighting under-current of evil, of which the dance was only the sparkle of the moon on a dark and treacherous river, had it not been for the open discussion, the next day, of all the palavers arising from the dance.

African children are not sheltered from the hidden things of darkness, and they., too, soon become partakers in them. Danger stalks abroad in the moonlight, and rare is the young child of this dark land who is not contaminated by its all-enveloping sins.

But there were other evenings, when the moon withheld its light, which had a more healthful charm for the youthful Pondo. In the cool of these dark evenings, the little family always gathered around their small campfire before their doorway. There were no lamps, no evening work to distract, nothing but the talk around the glowing embers.

Most of all, Pondo liked to hear the folk-stories his father told—stories in which Mr. Spider and the little Grey Antelope were apt to be the heroes. He sat entranced as he saw and heard the lion, the rabbit and the monkey act their parts before his eyes.

Sad to say, Mr. Spider was not all that a hero should be. He was a very crafty hunter, and played all kinds of tricks on his victims and even on his friends. His greed and selfishness sometimes brought disaster upon his head, however; and then everyone enjoyed a good laugh at his expense.

One story that Pondo often asked for was the one about Spider's adventures when he was still young. Perhaps you will enjoy it too.

Spider had found a playmate. She was a frolicsome little girl, who loved to play hide-and-seek with young Spider. Her name was little Miss Rain. She said that her father was old King Rain, and that he lived up in the skies, for of course everyone knows that the rain comes from the skies.

Miss Rain was so sparkling and bright in her gayer moments! But sometimes she was a regular little whirl-wind, and chased Spider clear to his home. Then, as she retreated, he ran after her to see if he could find her hiding place. He ran as hard as ever he could to catch her, but just when he thought he could lay his hands on her, she disappeared altogether. It was most provoking!

One day, near the end of one of these exciting chases, young Spider was just about in reach of his friend when he tripped and fell on a weed. He was furious as he scrambled to his feet, and saw that Miss Rain was nowhere to be seen.

"You bad old Kougouloubakou!" he stormed at the offending weed. "You are always tripping people up! I'll slash you to pieces for your impudence;" and so saying, he drew his knife from its sheath and was going to cut the weed to pieces, as he had said.

"Oh, please! Spare me, and I'll tell you something you want to know," implored Kougouloubakou.

"What could you tell me?" growled Spider, still holding the knife threateningly, so close to the poor weed that it trembled exceedingly.

"I'll tell you how to trace Miss Rain clear to her home," said the weed.

"How?" he asked wonderingly.

"Make her a present of a basket of flour," said Kougouloubakou in a quavering voice. "Leave a very small hole in the bottom of the basket, so that the flour will trickle out in a tiny stream. Then when she disappears you can still see the way she has gone by the trail of the white flour."

Spider put up his knife, and Kougouloubakou drew a sigh of relief, "I'll do it," he muttered, as he strode off without a word of thanks.

So the next time that Miss Rain came skipping around his door, Mr. Spider hastened to make his appearance. He bowed and smiled his most ingratiating smile. "Would you accept of this basket of new flour?" he asked. "Take it home to your mother. She will appreciate it."

"Thanks," she said shyly. She balanced the basket on her head, and without further touching it with her hands, off she ran.

Spider light-heartedly pursued her. The chase was a long one. She almost allowed him to catch her, and then suddenly she was gone! But there before him Spider saw the tiny white trail left by the trickling flour. Carefully he followed it until it stopped abruptly in front of an ant hill, which looked like a giant toad-stool. Search wherever he would he could find no further trace of the flour. In disgust he kicked the ant hill over.

To his surprise, there was the trail of flour leading down into a narrow tunnel where the foot of the ant hill had stood. Joyfully Spider plunged down the narrow passage way. Dark holes in the ground aroused no terror in the heart of anyone of the Spider family, and least of all in our hero's brave heart.

The tunnel was long and winding, but suddenly it led out into a large place—a place all bright and shining, filled with strange creatures.

"Where am I?" gasped Spider. "Is this the home of Miss Rain?"

"Come look at the strange earth creature!" someone shouted. "Isn't he ugly?"

Spider was terrified. He could not make himself understood above the din. King Rain sent messengers to find out what it was all about, and Spider was finally led before the king. He pleaded to be allowed to see Miss Rain, but her father was firm.

"No," he said, "it is impossible for you to stay here, for you are only a creature of the earth. You must go back to the earth. Come here, I shall show you the way down."

Spider felt very dizzy as he looked down and saw how far he had to go. "I shall never reach the earth alive," he said despairingly. "Let me stay here."

King Rain had taken a fancy to the brave adventurer, so he said to him kindly: "Look, here is the way to spin a thread. Fasten the end of it here, and spin it as you go. You can slide down the thread safely to the ground."

Spider's gratitude touched the king's heart, so he added with a twinkle in his eye: "See, I give you this tam-tam. When you get to the earth, beat the tam-tam, and you will be ruler of everything upon the earth. Be sure you do not beat it before you touch the ground, though."

Spider could hardly wait to be off. His eyes gleamed. He said, "Goodbye" hurriedly, and slid rapidly down the silky thread which he manufactured as he went. It was a glorious ride, and he was thrilled by his new accomplishment.

When he approached the earth he could see the hills and the valleys, the streams and the woods. Then he saw the many animals waiting to own him as ruler. The spider is a born hunter, and is very fond of fresh meat, so he smacked his lips in anticipation of the good meals he was going to have every day. He became so excited as he got nearer to the earth, that he began to beat a joyous rat-tat-tat upon his drum, having forgotten entirely the king's warning.

To his dismay he saw everything turn tail and run wildly into the woods. But Spider is not one to give up quickly. He jumped the remaining distance to the ground, and grabbed what he could of the fleeing creatures and objects.

He caught the horse, the dog, the hoe, the fire, the chicken, and the goat. But the lion, the buffalo, the leopard, the monkey, and many other animals got away. That is why, today, some things belong to the village, but others to the forest. And if you leave your hoe or any other object out in the grass, it is soon swallowed up by the wildwood, and you never find it again, for everything still tries to escape.

NEWS BRIEFS — From Our Workers

The Aug. 16 issue of the bulletin of the 1st Church at Long Beach, Calif. reads: "The Jobsons have arrived safely at the Bozoum Mission Station in French Equatorial Africa, according to a cablegram addressed to the pastor. It also states that the Klievers have been transferred to the Bellevue Station. Let us thank God for answered prayer, and pray that the Sickels may be taken safely to their destination in Argentina. They are at present on board a steamer plying the dangerous Atlantic waters."

Another interesting item from a church bulletin comes from Cleveland, O.: "You may be interested to know that the average attendance at our revival meetings at Cleveland, Ohio was 89. The average was kept up through the many visitors who attended, 455 in all. Somebody must surely have been doing some personal invitation work. One night we had as many as 99 visitors. Our record attendance was 166, the largest in the history of our church. 19 of our members have a record of perfect attendance for all the meetings, and so also 3 visitors. We had 8 who accepted Jesus Christ as Savior, and between 15 and 20 dedications. Of these dedications, there were at least 2 who volunteered to the Lord for full-time service. You see we have much to thank our Lord for. Let's keep up the good work."

Our readers will be glad to know that Dr. Bauman's new book, "Russian Events and Bible Prophecy," is off the press, and all advance orders have been filled. If you have not secured a copy of this splendid book, send your $1.25 to The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. today.

The District Mission Board of the E. Central (Ohio) District is investigating the Cuyahoga Falls, O. area, looking forward to the establishment of a new church in that field.

During his absence from Winchester, Va., of which church he is pastor, Bro. Paul Dick filled the pulpit in the First Brethren Church and the Calvary Baptist Church both in Johnstown, Pa., and the Pike Brethren Church at Mundy's Corners, Pa.

Following the revival recently conducted at Mansfield, O., Bro. A. D. Cashman, the pastor, writes. "We had 64 people present at the services Sunday. There were 50 out for evening service, and the interest was fine. Gave a chart study on the resurrections." Bro. Cashman also reports that at Wooster, O., there were 82 present the past two Sundays, and that the pastor, Bro. John Squires, was much encouraged but worrying about lack of room. These reports from mission churches are certainly fine.

The final report of Camp Grace, conducted by the Southeast District for their young people, is that more than 75 decisions were made for Christ during the two weeks.

The Grace Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Md., is now occupying its new building, and is preparing for dedicatory services to be conducted Sept. 27.

The Ellet, O. church is making arrangements to paint their auditorium, plaster the kitchen ceiling and balcony where needed, paint the window frames and sills, repair the belfry, and do some work on the drain.

A son, Melvin Wayne, was born to Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Baker on July 28. Bro. and Sister Baker are now serving the Lord in Weed, Calif.

Bro. Phillip J. Simmons is to go to Listie, Pa. to begin shepherding the flock there Sept. 13, 1942. He follows Bro. H. W. Nowag, who for the last 17 years has pastored the group, and is terminating his work there because of health. Bro. Robert Culver, who has been serving the Ankenytown, O. church during his years in Grace Seminary, succeeds Bro. Simmons at Fremont, O.

At this writing Bro. Alva J. McClain is still confined to his bed with nervous exhaustion, but is somewhat better. Do not forget to pray for him.

The Daily Vacation Bible School at San Diego, Calif. closed recently with the following results: average attendance, 121; enrollment, 198; percentage attending their Bible School, 60; percentage not attending any Sunday School, 23; first time decisions for Christ, 35; certificates awarded, 108.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., 2nd

It is with praise to Him, Jesus Christ our Saviour, that we give you a report from the Second Brethren Church of Los Angeles, Calif.

We are expecting to burn the mortgage on our church by Rally Day or before. Rally Day is Home Coming Day & Dollar Day. We have a Bible School program, fellowship dinner, a special afternoon program, also something fine in the evening. It is a day full of good things, and this year we expect it to excel.

We had a Daily Vacation Bible School in July with an average attendance of about 200. Through this effort many were definitely blessed.

The young people of our church are living separated lives for Christ. They do deputation work occasionally. Not long ago they conducted the services at a Community Church at Elsinore, Calif., also at Lake Arrowhead. Everyone gives a sermonette or testimony, or sings. We have a very fine girls trio, several who sing solos and duets. Our pianist is a young man of unusual ability, who is a composer and a singer. Several of these young people contemplate going to Grace Seminary. One of these boys will enter this fall.

Paul Bauman, our pastor, is leaving us in September to teach full time at the Bible Institute in this city. Their gain is our loss. Our church is in fine condition spiritually and otherwise, for which we praise our Lord. The Lord was most gracious in sending Paul to us. His ministry has been a definite blessing to all, and many have been saved. He has preached the Word in its fullness and stressed separated lives. The influence of such teaching will yield its fruits in time to come. We pray God's richest blessing on Him in his new field. We know he will be greatly used there.

We feel that our work here will go on for His glory, as long as our main objective is the winning of souls. A Christian should be the world's "greatest optimist." Even though wars rage and nations crumble, we serve the God of the universe, Whose power is unlimited and Whose love is without comparison.

—Hazel Shively, Cor.

THINK IT OVER

You should give not from the top of your purse, but from the bottom of your heart!

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH

NOTE: This report covers all money received by the treasurer of the Foreign Missionary Society from July 1, 1941 to July 1, 1942.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

The Treasurer's detailed report shows annual receipts of $69,007.16. Expenditures for the year amounted to $54,980.44, leaving a balance of receipts over and above expenditures amounting to $14,026.72.. Our coming Board Meeting will determine whether or not the Treasurer's detailed report, which is quite lengthy, will be printed in the next issue of the Herald or printed for distribution otherwise. This is much the best report our Society has ever had to give, from the financial standpoint; and, this, in spite of the fact that we have had the heaviest expenditures of any year in our history. These expenditures were heavy, due to the heavy losses incurred by the sinking of the Zamzam, also to the traveling expenses of missionaries returning to the field and coming home. Due to the war, the cost of a missionary's furlough has almost doubled. Moreover, missionaries remaining at home on extended furloughs, of necessity, are at much heavier expense than when they are on the field.

The next foreign missionary issue of the Brethren Missionary Herald will contain a full report of the actions of our Board at its Annual Meeting, assembling at Winona Lake, Ind., just as we are sending the copy for this issue to the press.

From A Tither . .

(Please don't read this if money talk bothers you.)

A man came to Sam Jones, the evangelist, one day and said, "Pastor, the church is putting my assessment too high."

"How much do you pay?" asked Mr. Jones.

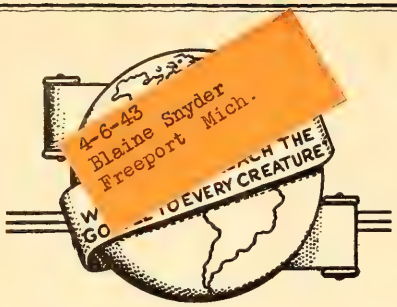
"$5.00 a year," was the reply.

"Well," said Mr. Jones, "how long have you been converted?"

"About four years."

"What did you do before you were converted?"

"I was a drunkard."



"How much were you worth?"

"Nothing, I rented land and did my plowing with a steer."

"What do you have now?"

"I have a good plantation, and I plow with horses."

"Well," said Jones, "you paid the devil $250.00 a year for the privilege of renting land and plowing with a steer. Now you are so stingy that you do not want to give the God Who saved you $5.00 per year for plowing your land with your own horses!"

Missions Or Munitions?

AN EDITORIAL From Biola Chimes

"Missions or munitions?" How these words have echoed in many hearts since the message Timothy Pietsch, a missionary from Japan, brought during a missionary conference!

In the past our answer as a nation has been munitions. What a different story we would have today if Christian America had been as busily engaged in sending missionaries with the Word of God to these people as business America was in sending oil and scrap iron. Missionareis would not go; now soldiers must go. Christians withheld their tithe; now they must buy bonds and pay heavy taxes. Instead of those to teach the Word of God, we have sent those to teach the people to build instruments of war. Today the world is suffering from the results. Some will say that Japanese leaders have always been of a crafty, war-desiring nature. By nature, true, but the Word of God is all powerful and would have given them a new nature just as it has to many others. This is no excuse for our neglect.

Since Oct. 1931, when Japan entered Manchuria, we have sent 21,000,000 tons of scrap iron to Japan. This is sufficient material for building 420 battleships each weighing 3,000 tons. 95% of all the aviation gas used in her death-bringing flights has come from the United States. Yes, 65% of all her war material has left our shores within the last 10 years.

Since July 7, 1938, the Japanese armies have killed 12,000,000 Chinese civilians, left 60,000,000 homeless and made 20,000,000 war orphans.

What a picture! What a shame to the church, whose Lord has commanded her to teach all nations to observe the things which He has commanded!

It is a matter for serious thought to consider how few missionaries have gone to Japan as compared with other countries. Bringing the comparison close to home, we find that only six Biola students have served their Master in this portion of His field. On the other hand, the number is more than 100 for Africa, and many have gone to other fields.

In the future, if our Lord shall tarry, as we face Japan and other nations, we must ask ourselves this question, "Missions or munitions?" Which shall it be?

CLOCKS WITHOUT HANDS

L. H. Hough, writing in the Sunday School Worker, tells of an experience that gripped him. "While walking along the street one day," he says, "I came across an extraordinary window display. It was a clock without hands. The pendulum was moving. The works were in motion. Everything about this clock seemed to be in the very best of condition with one exception. Its face had the number of all the hours, but no hands moved upon it. It was doing everything except indicating the time. And that was the one thing for which the clock was made.

"I walked past the window, thinking. I was thinking of people whose lives are full of motion and activity. But the motion never comes to anything. The activity never really works out in a definite achievement. They are like clocks without hands.

"Then I thought of the people who, with all their fully occupied days and hours, miss the very purpose for which they are in the world. You can hear the 'tick, tick, tick' of their lives, but you never can tell the time from them. Their lives are as empty of moral and spiritual meaning as a clock without hands."

Marcus Dodds, the famous globe trotter, is reported to have said: "I have been in every land on which the sun shines and never have I anywhere seen a single happy hopeful face among women where the gospel of Jesus Christ has not been preached."

The Challenge of Ignorance and Witchcraft

Read Rom. 1:18-25

By MABEL CRAWFORD

In the passage of divine Scripture just read, we are face to face with our Lord's warning and indictement upon those who turn from Him and fail to give Him the first and foremost place in their lives. From this warning of Scripture, as well as from the countless examples round about us in daily life, we are brought to a realization of the calamity that settles down upon the heart and mind of the one who turns his face from the Light. In the first chapter of John, we are reminded of the fact that Christ is the true Light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world. In addition to the living Word Who was given as the Light of the world, we have given to us the written Word which is "a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our pathway. God has made full and ample provision to light every man who cometh into the world. Why then is it so sadly true that millions go through life, utterly blinded and with no gleam of light within their hearts? Another glance at our Scripture will answer this question for us. "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified Him not as God." If there are millions in the world today who are in the darkness of ignorance and superstition, it is because they have not followed the light that they did have. They have not been willing to act upon the knowledge they had of God, and the Lord has finally permitted that knowledge to be superceded by all manner of worldly things.

We who are Christians are often appalled and amazed at the apparent ignorance of so many in the world today. To us the plan of salvation and God's mercies are so evident that we wonder how or why any person can fail to see their truth, until we remember that "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned." That, then, accounts for the tremendous ignorance of spiritual things in our every-day world. We here in America are tempted to think only of heathen lands when the question of ignorance comes up, and we fail to realize how many ignorant there are in this land. Are there not many Americans, even Christians, who are influenced by fears and superstitions arising from the ignorance of generations? How many people there are in America who let their lives be influenced by black cats, rabbit's feet, four-leafed clovers, and a thousand other things just as foolish? People who let themselves be so influenced need to remember that they have become "vain in their reasonings and their foolish hearts are darkened." It is not alone in Africa that people are affected by ignorance and witchcraft.

In Africa, however, it seems to be more general, because there is no one to offset the effect of the sorcerer and his influence over the lives of his people. Here in America there are a few right-minded people to offset the gullible crowd who stand open-mouthed before the tricksters at fairs and street shows. In most such instances, as in the case of the African, the trickster owes his popularity to the ignorance of his following. The African sorcerer, playing upon the ignorance and fear of his people, has succeeded in building up for himself a place of power and great authority. In many localities he is much more influential than the chief. Does he not hold in his hand the power of life and death? Can he not produce charms certain to bring affliction or death upon anyone, even the chief himself? Can he not exorcise the evil spirits and force them to do his bidding? Such a man is to be feared mainly because he holds his people slaves to his own will through ignorance. I do not mean that the sorcerer does not oftentimes have great power, for many of them get their demon power from him who is the prince of demons. But even that power could not be kept over anyone completely free from the ignorance and fear that grows out of the unknown.

In the life of the African every incident from the moment of birth until that of death is full of dark and sinister meaning. Because of his ignorance of the spirit world, the African native lives in daily, hourly fear. No sickness or death ever comes from natural causes, but one must always seek the cause in an evil spirit inhabiting some living person. Or perhaps the evil spirit may have taken up his abode in the body of the patient himself, causing rheumatism, swellings, or some other visible symptom. In such cases the witch doctor must, of course, use his incantations with perhaps a bit of cutting or beating, to get rid of the evil spirit. He always has a stick, stone, feather, animal tooth, or some other similar object at hand, to show those interested that the operation has really been successful. Power of suggestion is a formidable weapon among an ignorant and darkened people. Some have gotten well when such an evil spirit was removed. Some have been known to die slowly simply because they felt themselves doomed and under the evil eye.

Even those who are well must ever have uppermost in their minds the appeasing of the spirits. When a person dies, he must be buried with his head in a certain position; things his spirit may need in the other world (chair, dishes, etc.) are placed upon the grave or buried in it. In former times even wives were buried alive with a dead man, that his spirit might have the necessary companions in the spirit world. The living relatives must be diligent in seeing that the deceased is properly treated as he enters the spirit world, if they wish to be free from "haunting."

THINK IT OVER

In 1931 there were 962 missionaries in Japan. In October 1941 there were 104! Are we reaping what we have sown?

Imagine how dark must be the mind of the woman who, through neglect and sometimes deliberate ill-treatment, will watch the life of her baby slowly waste away and rejoice in that slow death. Some years ago at Bellevue station twins were born. Both being girls, they were named Mary and Martha. Mary was by far the prettier baby, but misfortune soon overtook her. She received mysterious burns; there were evidences of her little body being tortured; she was starved and barely given anything to eat until her little spirit departed. The day of her death the mother showed no grief, but was completely absorbed in the joy of caring for the remaining twin; for now the curse had been removed from her home, together with the terrible calamity of having a divided spirit residing in two bodies.

We perhaps stand in amazement and wonder before such pictures of deep ignorance and superstition; we are amused at the amulets worn on necks and arms to insure health and happiness; we smile at the thought of putting one old bead on a string around baby's neck so his teeth will grow in straight; we shudder as we listen to a converted witch-doctor unfold some of the satanic experiences of his life or marvel at his revelations of canny craftiness; we never fail to laugh at the taboos which surround the people; we scoff at the native who believes he absorbs the craftiness, cunning, and power of the wild beast whose flesh he eats (or in olden times his human enemy); we grow white with horror when we thing of men who dress in skins and claws to prey upon their fellow-men. Yes, we in our enlightenment get no farther, oftentimes, in our reactions to the many evidences of ignorance round about us.

Ignorance—fear, superstition, witchcraft and the many sister ills arising from it—should present to the Christian church and to us Christian women a real challenge. What are we doing to lesson that ignorance? Here in America there are thousands of boys and girls, thousands of men and women, completely enslaved by ignorance. Through long years they have been darkened until Light has no room in their hearts. On the mission fields there are other countless thousands bound unto Satan by the iron bands of ignorance and witchcraft. What are we doing about it? Mere civilization—teaching of hygiene, of ethics, of morals—will not dispel that pall of ignorance. If we would see it lifted, we must with renewed vigor dedicate our own lives wholly to the Lord, root out the most innocent-seeming superstitions and fancies in our own minds. Then we must consecrate ourselves anew to the emancipation of others. "The entrance of Thy word giveth light." As we send forth the Word of God, it will gradually dispel and drive away the clouds of ignorance and rout the evils which have kept so many bound in slavery.

In Memoriam

In memory of all those dear sisters whom we have lost this past year, this little poem is lovingly dedicated:

A STAR IS IN THE SUNSET

By ANGIE M. GARBER

The sun descended o'er the western hills
And left the earth enshrouded in the gloom;
But in it's fading light, I saw a star,
A sparkling gem to mark the lost one's tomb.

A star! 'twas there at daylight's weary close;
A star will greet the sun at early dawn;
And, as in nature, so in life we find
Hope lingers yet when deep despair comes on.

When loved ones, who in Christ, have gone to rest,
And western skies are flushed as they depart,
A star is in that sunset, though the gloom
Of sorrow and of anguish fill the heart.

A star is in the sunset, and sweet hope
Yet lingers through the shadows of the night;
For Christ, the Star of Morning, shall be there
When in the dawn they rise with joy and light.

START AGAIN

A Christian man was giving away gospel tracts on board a steamer. A gentleman who accepted one in a gracious way, said, "I have not much faith in that kind of work." Said the Christian, "It was through a Gospel tract given to me in Glasgow twenty years ago that I was converted." The gentleman showed considerable interest, and asked for particulars. On hearing the young man's story about the tract, the gentleman said: "I am the one who gave you the tract. For years I ceaselessly distributed tracts but I saw so little results from my efforts that years ago I ceased scattering them. But by the grace of God I shall start again." "My word . . . shall not return unto Me void." (Isa. 55:11.) Start again, Christian friend, or if you have never handed anyone the message of salvation in printed form, commence today to engage in this blessed ministry.

From Those Who  Serve Abroad

Bozoum, A. E. F.

Dear Fellow Laborers:

This is the rainy season and it rains without half trying. One looks out of one door and thinks it is going to be a nice day to work outside, but on going to the other side of the house, one sees great black clouds gathering on the horizon and all our plans change. In less than an hour the storm will be here.

This is one of those lovely stormy mornings. First I shall write to you, and then I must make the marmalade for which I cut up the oranges yesterday. I also canned three quarts of pineapple and two quarts of guinea yesterday.

At this time I am canning everything I can in the way of fruit and vegetables, and making jam and jelly, and putting in the rainy season garden in preperation for the time when the Bible school starts in July. There will be two other missionaries here at Bozoum helping in the Bible school for the term of four months. Mrs. Kennedy will be here the full four months, and Miss Meyers, Miss Emmert, Mr. Dunning and the Fosters for one month each. One of my jobs will be to keep the teaching staff fed physically, which isn't a hard job with a little preparation beforehand.

I also hope to teach the evangelists wives again this year. This is a hard job, and I want you to pray that I may be able to get them to see their responsibility as wives of one who gives forth the Word of life. Preparing spiritual food is ever so much more difficult than preparing physical food; especially so when those for whom you prepare it are not willing to take it or do not feel the need of it.

During these rainy days I spend a lot of my time at the sewing machine. Somehow, after one year in France and three and one half years on the field our trunks are rather depleted and our old things are getting older and older. A stitch in time has saved more nines for us than I'd like to count. In the past few months I have made five work shirts, two pairs of pants, three pairs of shorts, one sport shirt for Jake, eight dresses, four slips, two pairs of pajamas, eight pairs of panties for the girls, three dresses and some etcs. for myself—all of this because Montgomery Ward couldn't fill the most important part of an order. And of course as you all know, there is always mending to do.

Many, many times I have thanked the Lord for the friend who sent me the gift for the sewing machine, and for the ones who were instrumental in my getting a pedal machine for less than the price of a hand machine. The money came just a few days before the offer of the machine. A man of the world would say, "How lucky," or "What a coincidence;" but to us it is neither coincidence nor luck, but one of the many provisions of an all-needs-supplying God. This just makes me think of Dr. Hubbard of Biota, who used to say, "Coincidence? Allright, you have one." Truly He is faithful. He has provided even our very little needs.

It seems this may be getting too long, so must close for this time.

Yours in His blessed service,

—Freda Kliever.

Dear Sisters of the W.M.C.:

Greetings to you all, with the words of Paul found in Phil. 1:2-6. There are many striking things in these verses, but the one that appeals to me this evening is the phrase: 'Your fellowship in the gospel." Truly, this is the most wonderful fellowship in the world; one that we can share in spite of seperation of miles, oceans, wars and the other things Satan would throw in to hinder it if we'd but let him. Praise the Lord, he is the conquered foe, even though it doesn't look like it at this time.

I often wonder if you helpers in the homeland realize just what "your fellowship in the gospel means to us on the field at this time. We thank the Lord for those of you who remember the work and the workers in your prayers. We surely do need this prayer help, as the workers are few and there are still many who need to hear the gospel for the first time, and ever so many who have heard and accepted and now need to be builded up in the faith. Surely, the Lord will hear your prayers and ours, and send out the workers who are ready and willing to come.

How I wish you could see how your prayers and gifts are working in the African Church Bible Conference. Your hearts would be encouraged, as ours are, to give and work as never before. Jake has been out practically all of the past three months holding these conferences at the central chapel points. He came home just long enough to do up his books and the business that has to be cared for, replenish his chop box and see how we were faring at home, and off he'd go again. Other missionaries have been doing the same in their respective fields. You will probably be hearing about these conferences from the different missionaries who have held them soon. If we would follow the admonition of the Psalmist in Ps. 105:2, it would fill a book—and who am I to write a book!

The fact is, I'm only writing now because my husband asked me to write some letters to you, which he'd been asked for and doesn't seem to have the time to write. I trust that I shall be able to help you see, in a small way, how much we need your fellowship in this great work as I try to bring before you a few happenings of our everyday life.

Yours for a greater fellowship in the gospel,

P.S.—I wish to take this opportunity to thank the different W.M.C's for their cards, letters and gifts which we have received from time to time. We do appreciate everything so much, especially the letters. News from the homeland is the most welcome item on the field, I believe. And I want to add that your number of the Herald certainly is fine. The programs and material give us inspiration clear over here; so you see your influence is farreaching.

Have you held your fall cabinet meeting yet? If you haven't had one, that should be taken care of immediately. Let's have each society start at the very beginning of our new year, to really work for the Lord in Sisterhood. Don't forget to write to the general secretary about your plans for the new year! ! !

"But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (I Cor. 15: 57).

Victory is the blessed privilege of every child of God. But we must first experience the new birth by letting the Lord Jesus come into our hearts (Jn. 1:12). Then we should present ourselves unto the Lord as living sacrifices, remembering that we are not our own, that we are bought with a price; and allow Him to be Lord of our lives, and live out His life within us (Rom. 12:1; 1 Cor. 6:20). We must reckon ourselves dead unto sin, and alive unto God (Rom. 6:11).

Mrs. Wang heard this message while she was attending a Bible class. Her home was up in the hills in a little village in north China. She had heard about the Lord Jesus and given her heart to Him. But there were times when she was tempted and gave way to sins of the tongue, or to outbursts of temper; and when under persecution she became discouraged. At the close of the meeting, she came up to the missionary who had presented the truth and asked for help. We climbed to the loft above, in order to find a quiet place, and after further opening up of the Word, little Mrs. Wang knelt in prayer and she said, "Dear Lord Jesus, I am changing managers in my heart today. Self has been on the throne, and has been a bad manager; and I have not been a glory to your name. Today, I ask you, Lord Jesus, to take over full management. Amen." And so in simple faith the transaction was made, and Mrs. Wang went away to her home rejoicing that the Lord Jesus Christ, the Victor, was on the throne of her heart, and that He was her victory."

Mrs. Yang came to the missionary and said, "They have taken my husband." "You mean military police?" "Yes. They were looking for our nephew, who has been connected with the Chinese government; and when they couldn't find him they took my husband. They (Jap M.P.) came crawling over our roof in the early hours of the morning while we slept, and dropped down into the courtyard. There was no warning and no chance of escape. O teacher, pray." We knelt and told our Lord that we had no might against this great enemy, and asked that He might deliver the husband, if that was His will. The sad-faced little woman went away. Her face had always seemed sad, and there had seemed to be a lack of spiritual life and joy. But when this great trial came, God began to work in that life. Was Mr. Yang delivered from prison? No! But we can only hope that there in prison he repented of his backsliding. But we did see a miracle wrought in the life of Mrs. Yang. One day she came and said, "Teacher, he is gone." "Gone!" "Yes, praise the Lord, I know he will not suffer any more. A Chinese connected with the Jap M.P. sent me word through his wife that he is gone." All efforts to reach him had proved vain. From that time we saw a change and a steady growth take place in that sad-faced little Chinese woman; and the day came when she came with a bright and shining face, and told how the Lord had been speaking to her, for she had carried the constant fear in her heart that perhaps some morning they would come again and take away the only child, a boy of 12. "But teacher, I realize that I have been carrying this heavy burden and all these fears, and it is sin. Now I have committed Hong-teh to the Lord, and I have perfect peace in my heart." Ps. 37:5. Victory, yes, and joy and peace and rest, because the living Lord had been given His rightful place in her life, and her will had been given over to Him, and also her most precious possession, her only son.

"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? . . . Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us" (Rom. 35.37).

There was a large congregation that beautiful summer morning in the little chapel in a town in the Japanese occupied section of North China. It was a soul-winning church; and there was a number of new people out, who were hearing the good news of a Savior from sin, and fear and darkness, and superstition and demons. During the service, several Japanese women came in and sat down and then left; also some men. They would come and stand in the doorway listen a while and then go away. At the close of the service as the crowd filed out into the narrow little street, their hearts began to beat faster; for there, lined up on each side of the street, were a large number of Jap M.P. What was wrong? Why, they were stopping the people! Yes, and every member of that congregation was marched away to prison or places that had been prepared for them. And even as Paul and Silas of old were able to sing praises even in prison, these Chinese Christians sang and praised the Lord. Yes, Christ is Victor!

"Praise the Lord, it was Sunday when we were taken, and we had our Bibles and hymn books with us." What about the unsaved in the congregation? As they saw the victory, lack of fear, and the joy manifested in the lives of His children, many of them asked, "What shall we do to be saved?" Did they suffer? Yes, many were beaten and tortured to make them tell things that were not true; but in spite, of suffering they refused to tell untruths. Two were given a martyrs crown. As we heard the story from many of their lips there was no word of complaint, but only praise and joy that they were counted worthy to suffer for His name's sake. We too lifted our hearts in praise to God that again Christ was Victor over suffering, and over persecution and trial and every adverse circumstance.

—Helen E. Scoville.

Who?

Open eyes to see the need!

Open hearts to feel the need!

Open hands to supply the need!

Open ears to hear the call!

Open doors to respond to the call!

Who has these to give?

Dear Girls:

In such a day as this, Rev. 20, 21, 22 should make the hearts of the King's daughters lift in joy and thanksgiving to Him Who is the Author and Finisher of our faith, our great Emancipator.

A Christian has much to look forward to, such as:

1. The thousand year reign of Christ on earth. (Make a list of the things that "shall be" when the Lord rules in righteousness from Jerusalem, and the things which "shall not be" during that same period. Cf. Rev. 20:1-6, Old Testament prophecies, etc.).

2. The final doom of all Christ's enemies including Satan and sin. We shall be judges in that day instead of being judged—all because of Calvary.)

3. The new heavens, the new earth, the new state of the redeemed, in fact "all things new."

4. Then, too, there is the new Jerusalem. As you study the description of it, recall the time when you saw lights in a multitude of color played upon a beautiful waterfall or fountain, or the northern lights displayed in all their glory; and remember that our eternal home is just as real, but more beautiful, more gorgeous than anything we could ever imagine.

Notice Rev. 21:22. One day we shall worship, not in a temple made by hands of men, but at the very feet of Him who is the Light, the Life, the Hope of the World.

Girls, our inheritance in Him is beyond our comprehension, and as real as it is eternal. But think of the lost! Our life is light now and forever; theirs is darkness. We shall have the river of life; they, floods of judgment; we have His presence eternally, they shall be separated from His beautiful face forever! The Godhead has made possible and extended the great invitation, "Come!" Shall we not obey the great commission, and persuade the lost to come to Jesus before Jesus comes? Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

The privilege of writing to you each month has been a source of blessing and joy. Thank you so much for the opportunity, for your prayers, your interest, and your appreciation. I know you'll continue your daily visits to our Library, there to meet with the Author in order that as the King's daughters we may be "all glorious within." May the Lord richly bless you and make you a blessing.

In Him,

—Flo Mellick.

The Necessity of the Cross

By ROBERT W. HILL, Pastor, Osceola, Ind.

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief" (I. Tim. 1:15).

There are many proofs today that there was such a man as Jesus Christ, and that He lived in the regions of Galilee and performed many miracles to prove that He was the Son of God. Critics will argue over the diety, humanity and other doctrines of Christ, but nearly all will agree to the fact that he died. History proves to us that this man died, for in all the trend of the ages no death has had such a mighty influence over the course of the world. All felt the power of this death, from the peaceful brooklet of a single life to the mighty torrent of an empire. Christ's death was different from all other deaths.

Rev. Hill

As Christians, we say that without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins. We understand the death of Christ to the extent that we have felt its effect; but this world cannot understand the death of Christ, and tells us that our theology is that of a butcher shop, and a picture of old-time tribal gods whose vengefulness and wrath can only be satisfied by the blood of a victim. The world asks today, "If Christ was God, couldn't He save mankind without dying?" "Is God a God of love to require the death of His Son?" We sometimes ask the question ourselves, "Why did Christ die?—Was it necessary?"

In the Word of God we find two important reasons for the death of Christ.

The Holiness of God demanded the death of Christ.

God is a holy God, and cannot stand the presence of sin. Holiness is an attribute of God and is the opposite of impurity. Because of sin, God's very nature cries out against the impurities of humanity. In Ex. 19 there is a wonderful contrast of God's holiness and man's sinfulness.

"And the Lord said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and sanctify them to day and to morrow, and let them wash their clothes, and be ready against the third day, for the third day the Lord will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai. AND THOU SHALT SET BOUNDS UNTO THE PEOPLE round about, saying, Take heed to yourselves, that ye go not up into the mount, or touch the border of it; whosoever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death."

Here in vs. 10-12 we have the holiness of God and His utter contempt for the presence of sin. Even Moses, a chosen servant of the Lord, could not see God or converse with Him face to face, for God had said, "No man shall see me and live." No man in his sinful condition could ever stand in the presence of the holy God. In contrast to God there is that of men:

"And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually" (Gen. 6:5). "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23).

Yet, God loved the world, and although man was lost in sin, God desired to save him.

The problem therefore is, how was God to pardon a guilty and sinful world without in any way compromising His righteousness? Was God to appear merciful toward sinful man in the granting of forgiveness, pardon, justification? The genius of man fails him when he tries to think of a solution; and as a result of his feeble efforts, we have the confusion among the critics. Yet God knew the answer, for if God is to forgive unrighteous men, some way must be found of making them righteous. Before the foundation of the world the infallible God had His mind made up. There was only one way to save mankind and still satisfy God's holiness, and that was by the atonement. Christ had to die to satisfy God's holiness.

Yet, just how does Christ's death satisfy God's holiness? Rom. 3:25,26 tells us that "Christ was set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood— that he might be just." The Greek word for propitiation is "hilaserion," which refers to a means of appeasing or expiation, or propitiation, or covering. God's wrath must be appeased because of sin. In the Old Testament, the well known cover of the ark of the covenant in the holy of holies was sprinkled with the blood of the propitiated victim on the annual day of atonement. This signified that by the blood of the offering, their sins were expiated or covered. But Heb. 10:4 tells us that "it is not possible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins." There must be something more, and thus was the death of Christ necessary. God could not make an idol or image that would save mankind. God could not make any bull or goat with blood that would suffice for a sacrifice for mankind. God could not make anything to save mankind, for only God himself could do that. Christianity is distinguished from paganism in that God appeased His own wrath by shedding His own blood. The New Testament never tells us that God is propitiated, and never are we told that Christ propitiates God or satisfies Gods' wrath. God is always pictured as self-propitiated and therefore Christ had to die, for Christ was God and no sacrifice less than God could ever redeem the lost. Thus to satisfy God's holiness in saving mankind without compromising His holiness, Christ died.

The Sinfulness of man required the death of Christ.

We first looked from God to man to see why Christ had to die; but let us now look from man to God to see how the death of Christ was required from man's viewpoint. Man, in his own strength, had failed utterly in coming back to God. Due to sin, man's thinking had been warped, his temple had been polluted, his hope of salvation ruined. Man was helpless, and he looked forward to death with fear and trembling. Someone has said that "death is the blackest and most shameful blot upon the face of the earth;" yet something happened in the wild career of man that caused him to glory in death—that of the cross. When Christ came down to die, He knew that man could do nothing to merit salvation, so by His matchless grace He supplied those things that man lacked.

YOU be the Judge

"The wrong side of the bed for most of us is that side where we never kneel down and ask God's help at the beginning of the day."

By His death, our Lord became the necessary ransom. Man surely lacked that. The meaning of a ransom is clearly set forth in Lev. 25:47-49, where a person is delivered by paying the price for which he is held captive. Man was held in the slave markets of sin and under sentence of death Rom. 7:14 "sold under sin." Man had no ransom with which to be freed, but Christ by His death bought sinners out of the market, loosed the bonds and set the prisoner free by paying the price—that of His own precious blood.

"Forasmuch as ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold . . . but with the precious blood of Christ" (1 Pet. 1:18). "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us" (Gal. 3:13). "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many" (Matt. 20:28).

He breaks the power of canceled sin,
He sets the prisoner free;
His blood can make the foulest clean;
His blood availed for me.

By His death, our Lord reconciled man to God. Man had failed in this respect, for "the carnal man is at enmity against God" (Rom. 8:7). There was a state of enmity between the two—God and man—and man could do nothing to remove the barrier, for reconciliation is the removal of God's wrath towards man and not man's wrath toward God. For example, Matt. 8:23,24:

"Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother (i.e. remove his enmity, not your own, and then come and offer thy gift."

The offender reconciles the offended and not himself. Thus the death of Christ was required, for "when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son" (Rom. 5:10).

By His death, our Lord became man's substitute. "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed" (Isa. 53:5). No wonder the Christian can say with Paul, "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." We were doomed by the curse of the law, but Christ became a curse for us, became our Substitute that we might not be made subject to the law. "Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree" (1 Pet. 2:24).

Upon a life I did not live;
Upon a death I did not die;
Upon another's death; another's life,
I risk my soul eternity.

The meaning of the death of Christ to the Christian.

We have thus discussed the necessity of Christ's death because of God's holiness and man's sinfulness, but in one sense of the word His death was demanded by the Christian. No one who accepts Christ by faith is left to drift about without any guidance. The sea is rough and the cargo light, but the cross of Christ acts as an anchor to hold each Christian in place. Thus it is the cross that gives the Christian a motive for service and love.

When we fully realize the meaning of the cross and why Christ had to die, we still realize immediately that the price that was paid for our salvation far exceeds anything that man can fathom. It is not for the Redeemer to magnify the cost of salvation, but the redeemed. "None of the ransomed ever knew." We can never fully understand why God would want to save us sinful creatures, and thus we sometimes fail to see the great love manifested for our salvation.

In England, it is said, over the burial place of a Crusader, lie side by side in effigy, their arms crossed over their breasts in everlasting stillness, the forms of a knight and his fair lady. Clad in armor, and complete from head to foot, rests the figure of the stalwart knight. The figure of the lady, however, while in all else perfect and entire, is marred by a missing hand. The curious traveler is told the following story in explanation of the handless arm. During the Crusades the knight was captured by Saladin, the Moslem leader. When asked to give a reason why he should not be put to death, the knight replied that he had, back in old England, a lady loyal who loved him; and if he were killed her heart would break. Saladin, who had a scorn for a woman's love, mocked, "She will soon forget her friend, and will soon be married to another." "Not so," said the knight. 'She would give her right hand for me." "Ah, we shall see," said Saladin, "I promise thy life if thy lady send to me her beautiful white hand." The message was sent, and the young lady had her right hand sent to Saladin. The knight was freed by the sacrifice of his lady. Could anyone doubt this love? So with the love of God. Why should He love us we do not know, but He paid a great price for our souls.

It is the cross of Christ that thrusts us out to win souls for Him. Not only does the cross mean "substitution" but "sharing." With this in mind let us share the burden of the cross, and tell others why Jesus Christ died at Calvary.

Must Jesus bear the cross alone,
And all the world go free?
No, there's a cross for every one,
And there's a cross for me.

SHINGLED HEADS

Speaking of shingled heads for women, whatever we may think of it today, it is of interest to know what was thought of it in days past and gone. The New Zealand Reaper, has unearthed and published a 17th century criticism of our 20th century practice. This criticism was written by William Prynne, a well-known Puritan father—one of the famous pilgrim fathers that landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620:

"Even nature abhors to see a woman shorne or polled. A woman with cut hair is much like a monster; and all repute it a very great absurdity for a woman to walke abrode with shorne haire; for this is all one as if she should take upon her the forme or person of a man, to whom short cut haire is proper; it being naturally and comly to women to nourish their haire, which even God and nature have given them for a covering, a token of subjection, and a natural badge to distinguish them from men. Yet not withstanding our English gentlewoman (as if they all intended to turn men outright and weare the breeches, or to become Popish Nonnes) are now growne so farre past shame, past modesty, as to clip their haire like men with locks and foretops, and to make this whorish cut the very guise and fashion of the times, to the eternall infamy of their sex, their nation, and the great scandall of religion."

Advertising the Gospel

By R. I. HUBBARD, pastor, Martinsburg, Pa.

"They advertise Jesus up here," said a little negro girl who had come 'up north' to visit.

And so, for several years, my signs have warned the passerby and witnessed to the traveling public. "Prepare to meet thy God," "Is it well with your soul?" "Is your heart right with God?" "Where will you spend eternity?" "Jesus Saves," "Jesus is coming soon," "Christ died for our sins."

For a year or so a sign gave forth its testimony, and then someone whitewashed it. After securing permission from the farmer, I proceeded to repaint the sign; but had hardly begun when some little children came out and hooted and jeered at me until I was glad when my task was done.

Picking at the Preacher

Do we question the atmosphere of a Christian home that can produce such children? And yet, how many are the homes where the preacher is discussed, pulled to pieces, and devoured at will. And how little do father and mother realize the fearful hurt to the souls of their children, and that they themselves are treasuring up wrath against the day of wrath to their own sorrow.

God took Elijah to heaven without dying. Elijah was dean of the Bethel Bible School and known everywhere as a mighty man of God, and such an event should have moved the whole nation to humility and great searchings of heart. But, alas! such was not the case.

Children reflect the atmosphere of the home. Thus we might visit a home in Bethel that night.

Father Sows the Seed

"Well," says father, as he reaches for another piece of bread, "I hear that Elijah went to heaven today. I hope he will be welcome up there; he didn't seem to get along very well down here. I'm right glad he's gone. He was always causing trouble, making famines, and was never satisfied with anything the people did."

"Yes," joins in mother, "but I guess we are in for some more of the same, for I hear that the spirit of Elijah rests upon Elisha."

"Ah," says father, "I wish that fellow would take his bald head and go up too."

But father did not realize that little ears were listening; he did not know that childish hearts were responding.

The Children Bring the Harvest

A few days later the children were playing in the alley, when Elisha came walking down the street. There was whispered conversation.

"You're afraid to say that out loud."
"No I aint either."
"I dare you to say it."
"Go up thou bald head."

Ah, that was fun; and soon the neighbor children joined in with the evil chorus, as they followed Elisha down the street—"Go up thou bald head."

One of the Gospel Signs

A block or two farther on, some other children caught the spirit of the times and shouted, "Go up thou bald head." It was fun. Some of the mothers of Bethel, hearing the confusion, paused in their work and went to the door. Soon taking in the situation, they smiled and encouraged the children in their blasphemous exercises.

Elisha said not a word, but moved on slowly down the street, while from every home and every block there came more children to taunt and jeer at the man of God.

God Brings the Judgment

It was evident that there was little welcome for God's servant in Bethel that night, so Elisha moved on down main street and out on the country road. Suddenly he paused; he uttered a few short words. But those words were freighted with such power that the homes of Bethel were thrown into the very depths of sorrow. "There came forth two she bears out of the wood, and tare forty and two children of them" (2 Kgs. 2:23).

And why is this story recorded in holy writ? Simply because God hates disrespect to His ministers. "The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me" (Rom. 15:3). Verily, these things happened unto Israel "for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition" (I Cor. 10:11). Beware—"Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm" (Ps. 105:15).

Human Hatred of God

"The rains descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew" upon another of my signs, and it fell not for it was anchored to steel posts. But that sign was not able to withstand the depravity of the human heart, so the iron posts gave away: and the sign, all battered and torn, fell heavily to the ground, only to be picked up and thrown behind a neighbor's milk house to rust away. Rust? But was not that rust a witness against them? And did it not eat their "flesh as it were fire?" Conscience is a fearful executioner.

When Conscience Strikes

Once, 10 sons of Jacob stood before the prime minister of Egypt.

"You are spies," he charged.
"We are honorable men," they pleaded.
Honorable men? But just then, memory awoke; and conscience, like an ugly giant, came stalking forth —conscience, whom they hoped was dead; conscience, whom they thought lay buried beneath the rubbish of the passing years. Conscience came forth and compelled them to stand hopelessly by, as a scene of former years passed in review.

There was a young lad in mortal agony, his face torn with anguish, his eyes wild with fear. His breast was heaving, his throat was sobbing, his voice was quivering and pleading for mercy . . . "We are very guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear."

And so it was that centuries later—was it conscience that awoke? Was it conscience that poked and prodded? Was it conscience that brought out the battered sign and stood it up again? And why did the young folks "join the church?"

Verily, God's Word shall not return unto Him void. "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord" (I Cor. 15:58).

Ten Suggestions for Public Prayer

1. Make your prayer brief; others want to take part.

2. Get to the point: you don't need to beat about the bush with God.

3. Be specific: generalizations are valueless.

4. Express yourself as clearly as you can.

5. Limit the number of your requests; leave something for others to pray about.

6. Speak up; God hears your whisper, but the man on the other side of the room does not.

7. Don't speak to the floor; hold your head up so your voice will carry.

8. If you are near the front, turn so that your voice will reach the most people.

9. Don't wool-gather; follow others in their prayers.

10. Pray in the Spirit; keep silent until you can.

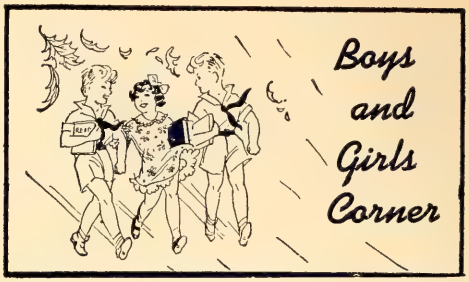
The Faith of Our Fathers



The Declaration of Independence concludes with this sentence:

"And for the support of this Declaration; with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

It is well to remember that the founders of the Republic were men of strong religious convictions; that they had faith in God, and that they put "a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence."—Selected.

Pondo Sees the Light

CHAPTER 7

KOLY AND PONDO GO TO WORK

A continued story written for our boys and girls by MISS MARY EMMERT, Missionary in Africa

Nana's little sister, Yadoly, had come to live with her since the arrival of the twins. Taking care of twins complicated Nana's work so much, that it was necessary to have someone to help her. Even Pondo was often asked to take care of one of the babies while his mother went to beat the cassava roots into flour.

But Pondo was not fond of staying home with the twins when his friends were out hunting field rats or having a good time in the stream, so he ran off whenever possible.

"It just seems that everything has gone wrong since the twins were born," Nana would say. "They surely are bad luck."

In fact, anything bad that happened would all be blamed on the twins, whether Yadoly stumbled and broke the water jar, or the leopard came in the night and killed the dog. By the time they were four, they were quite accustomed to being accused of whatever misfortune came to the family.

Koly had been sent to work on the new road which the white man had ordered. Sambey had chosen him, together with a number of other villagers, for steady work on the road. Work day after day clearing the ground and chopping dirt was not to Koly's liking, especially without pay. But Sambey's word was law.

"A white man's road is much work," he complained to his wives. "I don't like it."

"Those twins," grumbled Kogara. "You have had nothing but hard luck ever since they were born."

Nana could not say much, as she had often remarked the same thing. It made her very angry, however, to hear Kogara say it, so she flung out: "Is that your affair? You've never had any children!"

The taunt was too much. The quarrel that followed was long and bitter. Both of them talked at once and kept it up endlessly, never stopping to listen to what the other one said. Koly walked away, as was his habit. What was the use of ordering them to stop when they would not listen to him anyway? Pondo disappeared, too.

By evening, when they ventured to return, the wives had settled into a sullen silence. Koly ignored it philosophically, and started talking about the guard.

"That guard has taken a liking to me," he said. "He has made me a captain over the other men. Perhaps I shall get to be a big man."

His family looked at him with a new respect; but they did not think of crediting the twins with the good luck, which would have been just as reasonable as blaming them with every misfortune.

As time went on, Koly grew in favor with the guard. as he understood more and more the work of road building, and showed himself adapted to overseeing a gang of workmen. The guard could leave the work in Koly's care while he went to inspect another part of the road. When he returned they invariably got together in the evenings and enjoyed a pot of beer. Soon they became very good cronies, and the beer flowed freely.

The morning after one of these drinking bouts, Koly appeared much elated. "What do you think?" he bragged. "The guard has made me a big captain over the whole roadway, and I am to travel with him. You two are to be released from the village work, too. You will no longer need to work in Sambey's gardens."

"Really?" Kogara exclaimed. "Do you suppose it could be true?"

"He was probably drunk when he said it," chimed in Nana. They knew that all the village women had to work in the chief's garden. Even the chief's 20 wives were not exempt, except his first wife, of course; and then any woman with a tiny baby was also excused for six months or so; but it was almost too much to expect that they would be relieved of all work for Sambey, and free to work in their own gardens all the time.

"Oh, he means it all right," said Koly. "He has already given the order to Sambey. When everyone is called together to report for work in the morning, you two just sit still. Do not go to the chief's doorway with the others."

Nana and Kogara were delighted with their new freedom, and of course lost no time carrying the news to their friends. It made quite a stir in the village, and not a little envy among the other women.

"They think they are Madames!" the villagers said about them, meaning that they were privileged like the guard's wives, who did no work whatever. The guard's wives called themselves "Madames," probably patterning after some government official's wife they had seen in their travels.

The guard and his wives were originally from a distant colony where civilization of a sort had long since touched. They were the forerunners of the half understood and much abused manners of the white man.

"Theresa, the guard's first wife, wants you to work for her," Koly abruptly announced to Pondo one day. "You are to be a boy," she says.

"What is that?" said Pondo.

"She means you are to be her servant, to carry wood and water, to sweep and to work in her garden."

"But that is woman's work," objected Pondo.

"You know the guard's wives do not work. That is why they need a boy to do their work. It is a new way of doing things."

"I do not want to be a slave of anyone," Pondo declared with feeling.

"But she will give you clothes for your work. Think what a big man the white official's boy was. Besides the guard may not like it if you refuse."

So Pondo was finally persuaded to serve as boy to Theresa. The thought of owning some real cloth was a big inducement, for he had worn nothing but a strip of bark cloth all his life. But the guard and his wives had cloth all over them; and even the chief, Sambey, had been given a blanket by the white man, which he proudly wore wrapped around him, the upper corners tied together back of his neck.

It took some time for Pondo to overcome his dislike for steady work for he had always been free to come and go as he pleased. But Theresa was kind to him, and he found that he still had many hours of free time. What he liked best about his job was that he daily learned many new things, and heard much of the outside world.

One day when he was taking the heavy water jar off his head, and setting it in the corner, it slipped from his hands and broke like an egg shell. The water ran all over the dirt floor. Pondo expected a storm of abuse like that he had often heard in his own home when anything was broken. But to his surprise, Theresa only said: "Nzapa ayeke" (God exists).

The boy was puzzled. "Why did she not beat me, or at least scold me?" he thought. "What does she mean?" Finally he asked: "Who is Nzapa?"

"Oh," she said, "don't you know? Why he is the one who lives up in the sky, and makes the rain come."

That is all he heard about Nzapa that day, but he thought to himself, 'Nzapa must be very good to keep me from getting a beating."

QUESTIONS

1. Would you like to be a twin in Africa? Why not?

2. In what way were the parents inconsistent in their reasoning?

3. What is meant by an African guard? by a "boy?" by a "Madame?"

4. Who were the forerunners of civilization in the far inland regions?

5. What did Pondo like and what did he dislike about being a "boy?"

REST AND CHANGE

Archbishop Magee of New York, after staying at a hotel, had an extortionate bill presented to him by his host, who after receiving his payment, solicitously inquired if his lordship had enjoyed the change and rest. "No, I have had neither," replied the Archbishop; "the waiter had the change, and you've had the rest."

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Here's what the interested parties got from a bushel of corn back in the good old days:

The distiller got four gallons of whisky which retailed at $16.50. Here's what the other got out of it. The farmer got 25 cents, the United States got $4.40, the railroad got $1, the manufacturer got $3.70, the drayman got 15 cents, the retailer got $7, the consumer got drunk, his wife got hungry and the children got ragged.

Is there much difference in these days?—Long Beach (1st) Bulletin.

Suppose someone were to offer me $1000.00 for every soul I might earnestly try to lead to Christ, would I endeavor to lead any more souls to Him than I am now endeavoring to do? Is it possible that I would attempt to do more for money, even at the risk of blunders and ridicule, what I hesitate to do or shrink from doing now in obedience to God's command??? —Selected.

COMFORT FOR DARK DAYS

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL

Fellowship Corner

Southern California

The Southern California District of Women's Missionary Councils have had a very busy year.

Three district meetings have been held; the first one in October at the LaVerne church, at which time the election of officers took place.

The spring conference was held at the 2nd Church of Long Beach. This meeting was attended by 218 women of our 13 Councils. These meetings were all in charge of the president, Mrs. Gnagy, who is a most efficient leader.

The program of the Spring Conference was full from the start, and was enjoyed by all who attended. The speaker of the morning was Mr. Olvey, a missionary to Venezuela; and for the afternoon Mrs. Cecil Jackson, missionary to India, was the speaker. Colored talking pictures of the work being done by the Jacksons in India, were shown by Mr. Cecil Jackson at the luncheon hour. Mrs. Leila Polman, sponsor of national Sisterhood work, brought greetings from the Mid-West Tri-state Conference.

The third meeting was held on Thursday of Southern California District Conference week. This is "Mission Day" at the conference, and for several years has been in charge of the W.M.C. Mrs. Gnagy was presiding officer for the day. The women voted to give $15 to help a Sisterhood girl attend National Fellowship. The speaker for the morning was Mrs. K. Hawley Jackson, who took us through an imaginary day with a missionary in India.

Mabel Crawford, our missionary to Africa home on furlough, was the afternoon speaker.

An offering was taken, which goes into the district funds to further the missionary work carried on by the W.M.C. here in Southern California. This offering amounted to $61.89.

This very briefly sums up the work of our district for the year, but by no means tells of the benefits and blessings received, or good accomplished, by the devout women of this district endeavoring to do His will.

—Mrs. Ray Runyon, Dist. Sec'y.

South Gate

Dear Sister Councils:

July 24th was our council meeting and the annual election of officers. Although our membership list is from 25 to 30, about one-third have attended the meetings due to the blackouts. Some have small children and feel they cannot be away at night. We never know how long a blackout will last nor how serious it might be, so we have now changed to afternoon meetings; and all feel that it is for the best, although there are some who work daytime and cannot be with us.

July 16th was Missionary Day at our "District Conference" held at Long Beach First Brethren Church. It was truly a day of great blessing to all who attended. In the morning we heard Mrs. K. Hawley Jackson, missionary to India. Hearing her we felt the need to give more and more, and to pray that some may be called and a way provided to go with the gospel to that land of darkness and misery. In the afternoon we had the pleasure of hearing Miss Mabel Crawford. She was the speaker at our "Mother's and Daughter's" banquet. She always has a wonderful message for us.

When we learned that the money from our dime collectors was to be used as we saw fit, we decided to divide the proceeds, $20.76, between the Jewish Mission in East Los Angeles and tracts to be used in Claude Pearson's work at Fort MacArthur among the service men. Our local council has been interested in the Jewish Mission, sending some of our "work day" clothing there.

We also have a "Sunshine Fund" to be used for medical supplies by our missionaries to South America, our goal being $50.00 a year. Last year we had around $45.

We are praying for a goodly sum this year. Originally this was the money we spent on Sunshine Sisters. But we decided to put the money into real missionary work, thus our "Sunshine Fund."

We have pledged to give $1.00 a month toward supplies for our local "Child Evangelization" classes.

We feel the Lord has truly been with us in every effort put forth. We enjoy hearing what the other Councils are doing.

Joyfully yours in His service,

W.M.C. of First Brethren Church,
South Gate, Calif.

FOUR WAYS TO READ THE OLD TESTAMENT

"When reading the Old Testament it is well to read it four times. First, from the historic viewpoint; second, for types; third, for spiritual truths; fourth, for practical lessons."

THE TWO SHOVELS

They asked Captain Levy of Philadelphia how he was able to give so much to the church and still have much left. "Oh," he said, "As I shovel out, God shovels in; and the Lord has a bigger shovel than I!"

A small river carries a great deal of water to the sea, if it keeps running. A little deed for Christ each day will finally bring a reward of great richness from God.

I have known God to use people who never had a chance, but I have never known God to use a person who had a chance and would not take it, or could make a chance and would not do it.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

LONG BEACH, CALIF.

After having heard much of the Bible School at 5th and Cherry, the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Cal., we were much interested in watching the people as they entered the wide open doors of the Bible School building, and disappeared into the various departments.

None were more smiling and eager than the tiny tots, but there were so many of these, we wondered what would be done with all these babies. A nursery perhaps! We decided to look in the Cradle Roll Room where these 2, 3 and 4 yr. olds entered.

Just inside the door Mrs. Merle Wilcutts, and her secretary, Mrs. Drew Davis, gave us smiling welcome. There was a rustle of wings of gay birds; and butterflies, suspended from the ceiling, fluttered in the breeze just over our heads. A tiny illuminated church seemed to be the first objective of most of the children: into it they dropped their pennies and listened to hear the little bell ring as the coin was dropped.

Wraps were removed and hung on cleverly labeled racks, which swung out from the wall at the rear of the room. At the end of each row of 10 or 20 tiny chairs sat the "teacher," and away went the child to his "row." The teacher is responsible for her row, but does no teaching, as the entire program is for the whole group.

We were amazed to see those 50 or 60 children, really all babies, as they sang their songs (most of them motion songs), and recited Bible verses (they are supposed to learn one each month). We thrilled to see them kneeling with heads bowed on the little chairs as they recited their prayer. Most of them sat quietly while an illustrated lesson story was given. Occasionally a child would have its feelings hurt, or suddenly remember to miss mother or daddy and begin to cry; then the teacher would gather it into her arms and disappear into a side room, from which they usually emerge very soon consoled.

We were told that the program, with the exception of the lesson story, is the same from week to week, with only minor variations.

Last October 90 children of 3½ and 4 yrs. were promoted to the Junior-Beginners, leaving only the 2 and 3 year olds in the department. But there is probably never a Sunday that some new child does not enter the department; and by Promotion Day this year, it is expected to have another large group ready to send onward.

The enrollment at present is about 90, with about two-thirds in attendance. Special care is taken that each song or exercise has some spiritual significance; and so for an hour these wigglers are both entertained and instructed, with the hope that they will thus early love to come to God's house, and love to hear of His love for them, and respond by loving Him, too.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Dear Sir:

The Daily Vacation Bible School of the 2nd Brethren Church of Los Angeles, Calif., was held from July 29-Aug. 17. The enrollment for the school was 225 including teachers and officers, with an average attendance of 111 for the 15 days.

One of the outstanding features of our school that helped to keep up the attendance was a fisherman's contest for new members. The first prize, a large scripture plaque, went to Donald Cuttler who brought 11 new members.

On the closing day a picnic was held for the entire school. In the evening a program was given, with 270 parents and scholars present, at which time awards for perfect attendance, memory and hand work were given to all who made their goals. 40 students received all three awards.

Helen Reuter as superintendent, Jayne Reuter as secretary, and 26 faithful teachers giving of their time and talent, enabled us to have a very successful school this year.

Yours in His service,
Second Brethren Bible School

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

To seek the full support of God while relying in part on worldly aids is like trying to swim with one foot on the bottom.

One night a half drunken man came into a meeting and asked the question. "Preacher," he said, "since you are so mighty, could you walk on water?" "Yes," the preacher said, "A great deal better than I could walk on whiskey."

WHAT ABOUT TIRES?

Everyone knows about the shortage of tires. We believe that the people of our church should drive carefully, preserve tires and use the cars to the honor of the Lord in regular church attendance and in bringing others to the services. God's work must go on. God has promised to bless the land in the measure that His people are true to Him. See 2 Chron. 7:14. Let us not be among the number who stop driving to church to save tires. Let us stop driving other places first—W. 10th St. Bulletin, Ashland, O.

EXCUSES

A man refused to lend a rope because he was going to tie up a heap of sand with it.

"But you can't tie sand with a rope!" exclaimed his neighbor. "Yes you can," he replied, "you can do anything with a rope when you do not care to lend it."

What surprising uses we often claim for the time which Christians are supposed to spend in church! Let's stop making excuses for not doing the things we ought to do. Let's try doing them!—Compton Bulletin.

The Last Reminder

The coin collectors can still be circulated in our congregations to profit before Thanksgiving time. After September the period is too short to make them of very much value. So we make one more reminder before the home mission offering is taken. Pastors and Sunday School superintendents, order now, from THE BRETHREN HOME MISSIONS COUNCIL, INC., Berne, Indiana

HOW TO BUILD

"Let every man take heed how he buildeth (1 Cor. 3:10).

Our business is not to build quickly, but to build upon a right foundation, and in a right spirit. Life is more than mere competition as between man and man; it is not he who can be done first, but who can work best; it is not who can rise highest in the shortest time, but who is working most patiently and lovingly in accordance with the designs of God!—Joseph Parker.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN—

The "bottom sixth" of America's population furnished the present administration with its overwhelming control of the nation's affairs. The neglected classes and groups who, though they had voting power, had hitherto been ignored, turned the trick. They were catered to, flattered, pitied, fed and feasted —hence, they swept like a tidal wave into the New Deal camp.

It is these same "forgotten men" who have been ignored by the great denominations. The large church groups have been running mad after culture, and have been depending on religious education to bring in members. They have been seeking "nice people," who have position and character and who will be "assets" to the church. This quest has narrowed the church's field of work and as a result such groups are shrinking.

Power and success will go to the Christian churches which will seek the "forgotten men" of whom there are millions in America. There are groups, smaller sects, today, who use methods of teaching and preaching that would be scoffed at by the larger denominations, but they change the lives of these people, they are winning men, they crowd their meetings, and they hold their people with enthusiasm. They do it by preaching a supernatural gospel, embracing the very elements that used to be the main tenets of the older churches. There is a great future for the fundamental and evangelistic denomination which has not surrendered the "faith once and for all delivered unto the saints," and which recognizes this opportunity, and steps into the breach for God. May God awaken and stir The Brethren Church to do so. This constitutes the most tremendous home mission challenge and it faces The Brethren Church today!

ROME IS RISING—

Those of us in America who have so greatly enjoyed the free privileges of spreading the gospel in this land and foreign lands, cannot but look with heartsickness on the sure and deadly advances of modernism, liberalism, and communism in the ranks of organized Protestant groups. The leadership of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, having forsaken the evangelical faith and embraced a philosophy that appeals to an unbelieving world, have jockeyed themselves into the position of national representatives of all the Protestants of the land. They don't represent all of the Protestant churches by a long shot, but they are so powerful that it is made to appear so to our political leaders. Naturally when our statesmen desire to consult with spiritual forces in the land, they go to this organization to get the Protestant view, to the Romanists for their views, and to the Rabbinical Association for the Jewish view. There is little doubt that the other two groups can speak for their people truly, but the Federal Council cannot speak for all Protestants by any means. We dare say that we believe that less than 5% of the churches they actually represent do not realize what they stand for, or what they are doing. The modernistic churches are swiftly becoming a hollow shell. If ever the charge of the church being a rich mans' affair were justified, it would be more properly fixed on them. If it weren't for wealthy donors, who supply the cash, there would be nothing to keep them going, for they close up and dismiss their Sunday Schools most of the summer, and the preachers go on two and three month vacations. Their pews are getting emptier each year. The common people don't like their line of stuff for it has no power in it. But nevertheless the modernists have captured the leadership of the larger denominations, with the resultant loss of respect for the Protestant cause on the part of the world.

In running through some filed material we found the note of a statement made by Michael J. Walsh, secretary of the State of New York. It struck us as being based on more than passing fancy.

> "Protestantism, as a Christian influence in the United States is almost dead. The future of America, and Christian civilization in this country depends upon Catholic college graduates."

There is no doubt but what such Christian civilization as America shall have in the future will largely be that of the Roman Catholic Church. The Old Book undoubtedly declares that Rome shall sway a dominating influence in world affairs as the days of the man of sin draw on. Mr. Walsh certainly made a true statement about the growing weakness of the organized Protestant church and the mounting strength and position of the Roman church. But there is another word to say on this. The portion of the Protestant churches that is fading, is the modernistic crowd. The Roman church is getting stronger, but politically, not spiritually. But there is a mighty portion of the Protestant churches whose strength is not fading. They are getting stronger every day. The Spirit of God is working in a mightier way through them than ever before. Their leaders are not politicians, but preachers of the gospel; they are not statesmen, but soulwinners! Their interests are not in making over this lost and passing world, but in getting men ready for an endless eternity. Rome will undoubtedly get this present world along with the Communists and Magog, but we look for the next world wherein is "a city that hath foundations, whose Builder and Maker is God!"

FEAR OF DEATH—

We have been mightily impressed with the many reports from the battlefront which reveal the apparent utter disregard, if not the desire, for death manifested on the part of the Japanese soldiers. Reference to squads of "suicide troops" carry the impression that such soldiers are magnificent and are sort of envied by their fellows. Stories of Japanese aviators driving their flaming airplanes directly at enemy warships, which means a certain and awful death, are characteristic.

The question arises again and again, "Why do they do this?" Without Christ, without a knowledge of sins forgiven, with no knowledge whatever of life after death, so far as their religion is concerned, how can they thus recklessly plunge into the awful darkness of death? How can men be filled with a mad passion to die under such circumstances? Apparently the reasons are two-fold. First, this life holds so little for them that anything in the next life would seem to be better. Poverty, suffering, disease, hunger, misery, injustice, serve to give little incentive to hold on to this present life. In the second place, they are taught that death in behalf of the emperor of their country means immediate ushering into the presence of the son of heaven for eternity. "Son of heaven" is one of the names for the Japanese Mikado. A belief in these things undoubtedly makes death attractive for the Japanese.

Content for death, or even eagerness for death, is not a new thing, but rather is characteristic among heathen. The dying Annamese sleeps in his shroud and superintends the making of his own coffin in anticipation of a pleasant experience ahead of him. For a small sum a criminal in China may purchase a substitute to die for him. Life for millions of poor Chinese is so cruel and poverty-stricken, that a sum of money that will allow a spasm of spending and pleasure for a little while is attractive even when followed by death. In Senegambia, Calabar and Central Africa youth and maidens, men in their prime, and mothers with babies at their breasts, welcome death believing that it leads to something better. A missionary in the Fiji Islands tells of being asked to assist at a native funeral. He was amazed to find the prospective corpse, an old lady, tripping cheerfully, in the procession to the appointed place where she was dutifully choked to death by her sons.

These people think little of giving up this life, for it has held so little for them. Those in civilized countries shrink from death, for it means the end of a pleasant life and a reckoning with judgment and punishment for sin because they have heard the gospel and rejected it. They know there is nothing good ahead for them.

How different is the outlook for the faithful Christian. He knows that nothing in life can keep him out of heaven. He knows that suffering is only for a while, "for the sufferings of this time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us." That is why martyrs sang at the burning stake. They knew that "when our earthly house of this tabernacle be dissolved, we have a building of God; a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens" (II Cor. 5:1). His faith and confidence are not based on blind superstition but on the death and resurrection of the Son of God. He does not seek death, for life here and now is sublime even in suffering, because Christ dwells in his heart. But for him death has lost its sting. Praise God for the rock of our faith.

THINK IT OVER

Science has ears to detect the fall of a snowflake. How do you suppose some of our little slips must echo in heaven?

READY FOR THE MARK—

Increasing attention is being drawn these days to the need of a mark for all defense and government workers and soldiers which cannot be duplicated. All other tags and cards and passes can be imitated successfully. Now the famous Hall Commercial Laboratories of Pittsburg, Pa., affirm their perfection of an invisible mark produced by a secret process that can be fixed on the forehead or hand of the person, and which can only be revealed by the use of exposure to ultra-violet ray. These marks can in no way be removed once they are imbedded in the skin. It appears that Satan is getting all things ready for the day when his lieutenant Antichrist shall be the world's dictator.

"And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand or in their foreheads, and that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name" (Rev. 13:16,17).

We are made to think that Satan is not satisfied with lip service—no mere empty profession with him. If you are his you must submit to his mark of possession. And we are also wondering how many there are among us today who outwardly profess Christ, and who associate with His people, yet who, if we but had the ultra-violet ray insight of the Spirit of God, would be shown to have the tell-tale and secret mark of loyalty to Satan in their forehead and in the right hand.

But when God looks His people over He doesn't look for the forehead or the hand, but the heart.

"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart" (1 Sam. 16:7).

When the heart is right with Him, and wholly yielded to His will, the hand and the lips and all the body and the life will bear witness to the world as to whom we belong. Every man must choose the type of mark he will bear, and who his master will be.

THE SOURCE OF GERMAN ARROGANCE—

What makes Germany so war-minded? During the previous world war British and American statesmen repeatedly stated that they had no ill will toward the German people themselves, that they were as peace-loving as any nationals. The need was to crush the warlords that controlled the nation under the Hohenzollerns. So the German rulers were overcome and removed. The world expected Germany to settle down as a peaceful republic. Instead, it was but a few years until, in spite of the restrictions of the Versailles treaty, they were building another war machine and seizing French territory. Today they have the greatest war machine ever assembled, embracing every avenue of economic, social, political, educational and religious domination over conquered peoples. It simply staggers the mind with trying to embrace the fabulous system of war-making they have evolved. The cost to the people of Germany in blood, suffering, and money is beyond all calculation, and yet they continue on in a spirit of total devotion, of selfish abandon, that is astounding. All this but shows that it is not the former leaders, nor is it the present leaders, but the spirit of the German people themselves that is back of all this warring. But why should they be thus possessed? It is easy to see once you look at the teachings they have had for generations.

They have been taught that they are the one dominating race of the world, the super-men of the world, born to rule and prosper by crushing the weaker nations. Von Gottberg, one of their most vigorous writers, wrote:

"War is the most sacred of human activities. Still and deep in the German heart must the longing for war endure."

Not only has war been glorified as the life devotion of the German people, but it is shown as the way to success and growth. Karl Wagner set forth this before the German heart in great force.

"The efficient peoples must secure themselves elbow room by means of war, and the inefficient must be hemmed in, driven into reserves where they have no room to grow, where they may crawl slowly towards the peaceful death of early and hopeless senility."

Such callousness could not be embraced by any but a people crazed and blinded by self-worship to the point where the value of any human life but their own is inconsequential. It was Treitchke that first drove this idea into German breasts.

"The German is a hero born. He can hack and hew his way through life."

In view of these things it is little wonder that the spirit of the gospel of grace in Jesus Christ soon became obnoxious to German leaders. Little wonder that they began to cut away at the Bible and to cast aspersions upon the deity of Christ. Little wonder that the teachings of Christ that His disciples should be known by the way they love one another and manifest the spirit of forgiveness toward all, were talked down. It is easy to understand Hitler's attitude toward Christianity the moment he started to bring to realization the ideals that had been held up before the German people for so many years. Christianity was in his way. It would destroy all he sought to accomplish. Thus a people are shown to be made by their teachers.

We tremble as we think of the harvest of the spirit of antagonism to the Bible as the Word of God, and to Jesus Christ as the Son of God, and to the doctrine of the atonement, and to the whole idea of belief in the supernatural that has swept through American institutions of learning for the past two generations. That teaching is now in the breasts of thousands of men and women in our national life, and is controling their influences. Germany was once the cradle of the Reformation, the mightiest movement for the release of the gospel to the world in history, but look at that nation now. How has the mighty fallen! God forbid that our America, which has been such a great friend of the gospel, should finally repudiate Christianity in a mad idea that Americans are supermen fit to rule the world! God help us to preach the gospel to America now as never before for a thousand reasons.

"If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do" (Ps. 11:3).

LEARNING FROM THE MOVIES—

It was recently brought to our attention that the Methodist church in South Pasadena, Calif., has borrowed the "bank night" idea from the movies and

Tent Campaign at Mansfield—

The Bible class which Bro. Arthur Cashman has been teaching since last fall in the Prospect Park Pavilion, at Mansfield, O., has grown into a real congregation. They were organized into a Brethren church in April. At once they began planning a tent meeting with the purpose of reaching the people of the city with the whole gospel. Leo Polman and Elaine were obtained to have charge of the music and children's services. The secretary did the preaching.

Bro. Cashman had done a fine piece of work in getting his people in the spirit of the meeting and in placing the services before the people of the city. The advertising was well done over the radio, in the newspapers, and from house to house.

The tent was located in a fine section, and a splendid type of people attended the services. The meetings drew people of all classes and some of all classes responded to the invitation. The location is undoubtedly a choice one. We only hope that the Lord will open the way to purchase the ground on which the tent was pitched. We could hardly ask for a better site, or one where so little Christian work was being done. Much prayer is going up for this angle of the work, which is so very important.

The meeting had the usual ups and downs of a campaign in a new field where we have so few to support the services. But there was always a fine interest present. As the meetings drew to a close the attendance grew consistently larger. We greatly appreciated the fine encouragement from the people of Danville, Ankenytown, Fremont, Wooster, Ashland and Rittman who came often, and also from the U.B. Church in the city of Mansfield, who came often with their pastor. All these people helped us a lot.

Bro. Polman's work as song leader and children's worker was of a very high order. It added much to the attractiveness of the services. The children's is having one each week for the purpose of raising funds for the church. We wonder if the pastor of that church has ever read in 1 Cor. 16:2 where it reads, "Upon the first day of the week let everyone of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him." Do you suppose the apostle Paul got his idea from the local theatre or stadium and adopted it in the Corinthian church?

It is evidently God's plan that making offerings to Him should be an act of worship (Matt. 5:23,24). When the men of the church do not love the Lord enough to lay their offerings upon the altar as a testimony of their devotion to Christ, but must be wheedled with some worldly scheme of entertainment to support the church, it is a dishonor to Christ. It is a reflection on the pastor and the weak way in which he dishes out the gospel message when it does not inspire his men to adequately support the church as a direct act of worship. God pity the pastor who depends upon 'bank nights', 'bazaars', 'strawberry festivals', 'suppers', and what not, in order to obtain his support. When such shifts are resorted to, it is usually the first sign of a spiritually decadent church.

meetings were a bright spot in the campaign. They were charged with enthusiasm and much Bible was taught. There were about 40 who made decisions in the meetings, but of course the majority of the parents were either disinterested or members of other churches. But many parents who had no knowledge of the gospel came and heard it through the influence of the children.

Bro. Cashman has done a real work of sacrifice in supporting himself mainly by selling Bibles and giving half of his time to the work of the church. He has gone from house to house dealing with souls, early and late. Too much could hardly be said of the unselfish work he has done in the effort to establish this new congregation. Every new congregation has been born in the sweat and sacrifice of some man with a great passion to carry the cross on beyond. We greatly enjoyed our fellowship with him in this meeting.

The people who constituted this new group showed us the finest hospitality. They stood by the meetings faithfully with their presence and their offerings. There is a real future for them. Our home with Brother and Sister Will Kissell was a most happy one.

If it be possible to get our Mansfield work on the air, we can shorten the period of dependence for this work by half, we believe. The local radio station is friendly and it constitutes a real opportunity.

We received the finest kind of interest and co-operation from the district churches. With such a spirit continuing, we believe that not only at Mansfield but also at many other places strong Brethren churches can be successfully and quickly established in northern Ohio.

Baptism at Clayhole—

Since the revival meetings closed at Clayhole, the congregation has been enjoying some mighty good times according to a letter from the pastor, Seweli Landrum. Souls are still coming to the Lord. A local school teacher accepted the Lord on a Sunday morning and was baptized after that same service. A total of 24 have been baptized to date as a result of the meetings.

The parsonage is being washed and painted, and will be finished by conference time. God is blessing our Kentucky mission.

Wooster Sunday School Grows—

A note from John Squires, pastor at Wooster, reports an attendance of 82 for two consecutive Sundays. This is making it necessary to provide more rooms for classes. Already one class is meeting in the rooms occupied by the pastor and his family. Either the building will need to be enlarged or the pastor will have to move. Wooster is now beginning to appreciate the gospel The Brethren Church has to give.

Hagerstown Building is Almost Finished—

We are glad to furnish a snapshot of the Hagerstown church building. It was sent us by Bro. Norman Uphouse, who was recently in Hagerstown during his vacation. It is a marvelous building for the price. This congregation is now busily planning for an evangelistic campaign to begin Sept. 13th. Pray that there will be a great harvest of souls there.

Flora Reduces Debt—

On Sunday, Aug. 16, the secretary of the Council assisted the pastor at Flora in an effort to reduce the remaining debt on the building. In two years this splendid group of people has reduced their debt from $10,300 to $4,000. This is a most excellent record and one it would be hard to duplicate by any mission point. Not satisfied with this progress, the folks appointed a committee to formulate a program to reduce this at once. The committee laid plans and began work. Then to spur the work on they planned a day for a real drive. We were glad to have a part in it. On that day the Secretary spoke at morning and evening services, and at a special service at the close of the evening service, in about 15 minutes an even $1,000 more was raised to be paid by Oct. 1. This will then leave a balance of $3,000. This giving was done heartily and quickly and everybody was happy. We hope to be with them on Oct. 1 when they celebrate this reduction. We would not be surprised if $500 more was raised at that time. We had a good time with the folks at Flora, and always look forward to going back.

New Church at Huntington—

For about a year there has been a group of Brethren and others gathering in the public library in Huntington, Ind. The various members of the faculty of Grace Theological Seminary have been teaching this group each Friday night. Interest has grown steadily, but the feeling has continued to be that it would be better to have just one teacher to act as pastor and shepherd of the group.

Feeling that they were about ready to expand, the Secretary of the Council was asked to visit their class and look over another location, with a view to better quarters and perhaps coming under the Council.

On Friday night, Aug. 21, Bro. Wm. H. Schaffer, treasurer of the Council, accompanied the secretary to Huntington. Bro. Schaffer brought the Bible lesson much to the profit of the class. We viewed the building under consideration, and had a meeting with the members after the class was over. Ways and means were discussed for discovering the best location for a church in that city. There are some mighty zealous souls in this little group. We "wonder whereunto this might grow."

Juniata Has a Bus—

This field has taken on new life this summer, and attendance and finances have greatly increased. They have also been completing their basement and fitting it for Sunday School classes.

They have had a real opportunity in an outlying district where many could be gotten for Sunday School and church services if transportation could be provided. We had been looking for a bus for them, and finally, through Arthur Carey, we found a bus in good shape in Poland, O. We put Juniata in touch with it and they bought it at once. We expect real results from this added help.

Around the Council Table

GOD IS WORKING IN KENTUCKY

When we began working with the people at Clayhole about eight years ago there was no Sunday School here. Very few of the people had ever been in Sunday School. The young people would spend their Sundays loafing along the highway or wherever there was a suitable place. One day one of the parents realized the need here at Clayhole, so he asked me to get a truck and haul them to Lost Creek where we were then working. A truck was secured, and we began to haul them down to our place at Lost Creek. Each Sunday we wondered if our efforts were worth while. The greater part of those we hauled were young people, and each one seemed to be a special problem for us. Through much difficulty we continued the work. It was not long until they realized their place, and some of the young people began to unfold like a beautiful flower. After about seven years we were forced to give up the work at Lost Creek. We asked God to open another field of service for us. It was not long until we were very definitely called to Clayhole.

During the past 30 years the reputation of the Clayhole community has been clouded by ungodly men. Within one mile of our mission more than 30 men have been shot and killed. Wherever I go people will say, "I have heard about Clayhole." They will mention some of the awful things that have happened here. I am glad I can say that that is not the Clayhole of today. We are enjoying better things. The light of the gospel is spreading throughout these Kentucky hills, and men's hearts are being transformed.

In the Clayhole community we often find people who are indifferent and do not want to attend the services. I have asked some why they do not attend the services, or when they were coming. The answer: "I will never be there, I do not believe what you teach!" I do not accept excuses of any kind, so we continue to deal with them in a kind way. Before we realize it we have them in Sunday School. I have been surprised more than once this way. We have had several homes that were very much opposed to our work, and yet in these homes some of the leaders are now living. During this summer we have baptized 31 people. Out of this group two are more than 30 years old. The most of them are near the age of 20. It has cost some of these young people something to take the stand they have taken for Christ. Even their own folks have laughed at them.

Three months ago one of our young men was drafted into the army. The letters we have received from him have been a real blessing to us. He always has a word of praise for his Savior. After he went to camp he wrote home to his brother and persuaded his brother to accept Christ as his Savior. At the present time he is at home visiting his sick mother. He told me that since going to camp he has led three of his buddies to Christ. Last night this boy was married to one of the Brethren girls of Clayhole. Another of our boys who had planned to attend Moody Bible Institute has gone to the navy. We are hoping that when the war is over this boy can go into Christian work somewhere. I believe that within the next few years some of the leaders in the Brethren Church will come from Clayhole.

Every week we have the privilege of visiting the public schools to teach the Bible to the children. In the seven years I have visited the schools, I have never found a teacher who was not glad to have the Bible taught in his school. In most of the schools most of the teachers take as much interest in the lesson as the students. Each week when I go to the schools I find the children anxiously waiting for the class. If it should be necessary they are willing to give up their recess period in order to have the class.

Two years ago we were granted the privilege of going into the Breathitt County Jail at Jackson for a service each week. At first the jailor was afraid for us to approach the men. We were told some of the experiences some other workers had some time before. She said the men did not like the services. When we started, the jailor told us we would have to stay where the men could not see us. This continued for three or four weeks. We did not want to antagonize the jailor, so we asked God to open the door that separated us from the men. One night when we went, sure enough the door was open. Only a few iron bars separated us from the men. It was easy to make friends with them. We realized that if it were not for the mercy of God we could have been there too. We have tried to present the gospel, truly and simply, to the men. During all of these months we have never had any disturbances unless a drunk happened in during the services. I often wish our church people were as reverent as the men in this jail. Almost every Thursday the men make a special effort to have the jail clean when we get there. They look forward to our coming. More than 100 men and a few women have accepted Christ as their Savior since we first started this work in the jail. There was a young man one night who had a death sentence. He did not make any decision, but he did sit on the very front row and listen as attentively as any man I have ever seen. I have seen some hardened criminals stand up with tears running down their cheeks and make their decision for Christ. I have seen very few in the jail the second time. Last Thursday night was the first time

SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL AT THE FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH OF COMPTON

"The best ever" was the unanimous agreement concerning the Summer Bible School this year, as far as attendance, accomplishment, and program were concerned. From a first day start of 77, the school reached a peak of 119 in attendance, with the average for the two weeks 107. The enrollment was 162, and many of the children reached did not attend any Sunday School. Nearly 60 children were picked up each day on the S.S. bus. The attendance overtaxed the chair and table capacity of the church, and every moveable chair and table was brought into service. Five classes met daily, and each teacher had at least one helper. The children ranged from 3 to 14 years of age. The school met late this year, from Aug. 10 to 21. On the closing Friday night, all the parents and friends were invited to the closing exercises, and a crowd of approximately 250 were present. The entire program was good; and at its close, refreshments were served in the church basement, where the handwork was displayed. Everyone concerned is tired and happy.

WHEN YOUR KNEES KNOCK

There is a church still standing amidst the debris of bomb-shattered London. In front of this church there is a sign which reads, "When your knees knock, kneel on them." Could a more timely word be spoken in a quivering, knock-kneed, despairing old world?

During the war of 1914-18, an old clergyman met a wounded soldier who was coming along a London street on crutches.

"Thank you," said the clergyman earnestly, "for being wounded for me.

The soldier stared in amazement.

"I can tell you of Someone who was wounded for you," continued the servant of God.

"Wounded for me, sir?" said the soldier.

"Yes," said the old man, and quoted Isa. 53:5, telling him the story of Calvary.

Isa. 53:5 states: "But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed." Yes the Lord Jesus Christ bore all this, that you and I might be saved from sin, Satan and death. Be saved today by placing your trust in this great Savior. He is waiting for you. He wants you.

A lot of Christians are living on crackers and cheese when God has prepared for them three square meals a day.

Without Me ye can do nothing—John 15:5.

In the "British Weekly," a few months before Sir William Robertson Nicoll died, he wrote an article with this strange title: "Why Not Try God?" He was speaking of the difficulties of the hour then, and he was looking at what men were doing. They were trying this, that and the other, trying organization, cleverness, wit and wisdom, and they were not getting anywhere. "Why not try God?" Why not get back to the one fundamental thing of our faith? "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit," saith the Lord!—G. Campbell Morgan.

Why wait until it is too late to urge that neighbor, that friend, that grocer, that milkman, that brother, that sister, that father, that mother to accept the Lord Jesus Christ? Have you even asked one unsaved soul to come to Jesus?

Tragic Loss of the Christian Church Today

By J. KEITH ALTIG

That the Christian church of today has lost something is very evident as we compare it with the early church. We view, almost with awe, the power of the preaching and witnessing of the early church, the fervancy of her praying, the generosity of her giving, the purity of her living, her patience in persecution, and the ease with which she settled her problems and difficulties. Truly that was a wonderful day in her history, and we cannot help but ask God why it is that the church of our day should be so feeble and impotent. What is it that they possessed and we have lost?

I believe that the answer will be found to be that we have lost not just one thing but a series of things, each contingent upon another and each working with the others to lead us farther and farther away from the place of power and blessing. But perhaps the one thing above all others which contributes most to the impoverished condition of the church today is the loss of personal devotion and love to the Lord Jesus Christ.

There is nothing in all the world that will give a man more power and urgency in his preaching than to realize that he is speaking for and representing his Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. In Jer. 20:9 the prophet said, "Then said I, I will not make mention of Him, nor speak any more in His name, but His Word was in my heart as a burning fire shut up in my bones; and I was weary with forbearing, and I could not stay." the thing that made Jeremiah a great prophet and preacher was the fact that he realized that he was speaking and preaching for his God. So when the ministers of our day, and the ones who preach and witness for Him, center all their message and all their witnessing in Him, there will be power.

A personal devotion and love to the Lord Jesus Christ will make itself manifest in our prayer life just as it did in the prayer life of the people of the early church. "They all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication," and Pentecost was the result. "They continued steadfastly in prayers, and the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." Peter was on the housetop praying when the vision came to him which called him to go to the Gentiles with the message of salvation. Peter was in prison, but "prayer was made without ceasing, of the church, unto God for him" and God sent the most marvelous earthquake the world has ever experienced to release Peter. We today are powerless because we are prayerless, and we are prayerlss because we do not love our Lord Jesus Christ as we should. How we need that love for our Lord which will fill our prayer meeting rooms, which will enable us to establish family altars, and urge us to meet Him regularly in private devotions.

The members of the early church were so devoted to the Lord, and to the cause of making Him known to men, that "they did not call the things that they possessed their own," but "they sold their possessions and brought the money and laid it at the apostles feet." We are complacent if we give a tenth to the Lord, and we feel that our work has been done and our responsibility discharged, while some of us don't even do that, but cheerfully spend all we have on ourselves. If we could but realize that the hand into which we put our money is the nail-pierced hand of our Savior, that the message which we proclaim is the message of the One Who loved us and gave Himself for us, that the gospel which we preach is the only message of hope and life which the world has, I am sure that there would be a great difference in our giving.

Where is the purity of life in the church today which characterized the early church? In that day, so pure and sinless was the corporate life of the church, as well as the individual lives of its members, that sin could not exist in its presence; and Ananias and Saphira were stricken dead for soiling and defiling that purity with their lies and hypocrisy; but today, too often it is the case that the members of a church can live in open and unrebuked sin because their preachers' lips are sealed by his own worldly and sinful life, while the unsaved, far from being won to the Lord, stand by in high glee, mocking and deriding His holy name. Such a condition could be brought about only by one, whether he be minister or layman, who had forgotten his first love for his Lord and had lost his devotion.

That we would be more patient in persecution, if our love for the Lord were more real and vital, hardly needs any more comment than that of Peter in I Peter 2:21-23: "For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps: Who did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth: Who, when He was reviled, reviled not again; when He suffered, He threatened not; but committed Himself to Him that judgeth righteously."

And when difficulties arose in the early church, as recorded in Acts 6, their love for the Lord was so

HEAVEN

A city never built with hands, nor hoary with the years of time; a city whose inhabitants no census has numbered; a city through whose streets rushes no tide of business, nor nodding hearse creeps slowly with its burden to the tomb; a city without griefs or graves, without sins or sorrows!—Sel.

great, and their devotion to Him so complete, that when the solution was offered, instead of half the membership leaving and vowing never to return, we read that "the saying pleased the whole multitude" "and the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith."

If the church of today is ever to recover the ground lost, if we are ever to carry out the great commission of our Lord and preach the gospel to every creature, if we are ever to win the lost ones of our own day and age, we must recover the love for our Lord and the devotion to Him which was the great source of power and strength in the early church.

REPENT AND TURN

Repent and turn! God calls today,
Oh, do not close thine ear, I pray!
Listen! It is the voice of love—
Grieve not that tender Heart above.

Repent and turn! Now is the hour,
The time of God's redeeming power;
To-morrow it may be too late,
Just now wide open is the gate.

Repent and turn! Christ shed His blood
To reconcile thy soul to God!
All has been done; for refuge flee,
Apply the blood, He'll pass o'er thee.

As when the ancient Israelite,
Upon that dark Egyptian night,
Put on his door the mark of blood
And so escaped the wrath of God:

My friend, I plead, do thou the same
Put all thy trust in Jesus' name
Not all good works, nor prayers of thine
Can save apart from blood divine.

But that will save! Before Him bow;
Repent and turn and trust Him now.
For soon will end the day of grace:
God's wrath is coming on apace.

An old colored lady described a young member of her church as having "jes' enough 'ligion to make her misable—too much to be happy at a dance, an' too little to be happy in prair meetin'." Alas; the type is common—a troubled spirit that halts half way, afraid to go back and unwilling to go forward. There is no place in the borderland. The half-way Christian is a torment to himself and no benefit to others.—Foreward.

THE PRECIOUS BLOOD OF CHRIST

It is of great importance to note what the New Testament teaches the believer has through the blood of Christ.

I. The blood of Christ is the price of the believer's redemption (Eph. 1:7, I Pet. 1:18-19).

II. The blood of Christ is the means of the believer's access unto God (Eph. 2:13).

III. The blood of Christ is the means of the believer's cleansing (1 John 1:7-9).

IV. The blood of Christ will be the means of the believer's victory in the last great conflict with Satan (Rev. 12:11).

The blood of Christ is precious because it represents the very life of the Son of God poured out for sinners. It further represents the fact that He bore our sins in His death on Calvary. We dare never depreciate the importance of the blood for "without the shedding of blood is no remission" of sins (Heb. 9:22).

From A Tither..

(Please don't read this if money talk bothers you.)

"But first they gave their own selves to the Lord, and to us by the will of God." II Cor. 8:5.

It is often debated by Christians whether or not they should give a tenth of their income to the Lord's work. Perhaps if we notice what our relationship to God is, we will have no difficulty in finding the true answer to the problem.

When we accepted the Lord Jesus, we gave ourselves to Him; henceforth we "are not (our) own, but are bought with a price." Therefore, all that we possess belongs to Him. We are stewards of the whole of our income, not merely of the tenth. If we consider the matter logically, we discover that we have the right only to the necessities of life. The principle is laid down in the command: "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn." As bondservants of the Lord, all the rest belongs to him. Our concern should be, "How much must we allow for ourselves?" rather than, "How much must we lay aside for the Lord?"

Now, since there are many Christians in the fold who did not realize what was desired of them when they accepted Christ, the Lord says to them: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God." The mercies of God are manifest in the Lord Jesus Who gave his all for us. Is it not the least that we can do to give our all to Him that He may use it to His glory?

"Why is tithing an antidote to selfishness?" Because it is the practical demonstration of putting God first! For tithing means the first tenth of your net income given into the Lord's treasury. Give God a chance!

HIS VOICE

His every word of grace is strong

WE'LL WALK TO CHURCH!

Coffee and tea are soon on ration,
We have no gas for our vacation.
Sugar's scarce. No tires this season.
No week-end trips—the war's the reason.
Don't cry if plans are in the lurch;
Just take a walk and come to church.

Though there's no gas to fill the tank full,
For many other things we're thankful:
Our ancestors' determination
To fight all foreign domination:
The great ideals they set before us—
The stars and stripes still flying o'er us;
The right to form our own opinions,
To be free men, not other's minions,
To set the goals toward which we plod—
Freedom and truth and faith in God.

So what care we for sacrifices!
We'll pay for these whate'er the price is.
Our homes are ours and worth all taxes
Our country needs to beat the Axis.
Nothing worth while in life is free,
And precious is our liberty.
Joy rides are gone for the duration,
But what is that to save a nation?
We have our homes, our schools, our sod,
We'll walk to church and worship God!

MILLIONS IN NEED OF SUNDAY SCHOOL

Thirty-six million boys and girls in America are in need of the Sunday School.

A portion of these are in our community. We must win them for Christ before they are won for crime.

Justice Louis L. Faucett, of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, declares that during his 23 years experience on the bench, in which time more than 4000 boys were brought before him, he found only three who were members of a Sunday School at the time they committed their crime. He says:

"This experience has satisfied me of the value of the Sunday School to the community in helping to safeguard it from the growth of criminals. In fact, I regard our Sunday Schools as the only effective means to stem the tide of vice and crime among our youth."—From The Sunday School in Action.

AFTERWARDS

One little hour for walking with the Master,
Eternal years to walk with Him in white.
One little hour to gravely meet disaster,
Eternal years to reign with Him in light!
One little hour for weary toils and trials,
Eternal years for calm and peaceful rest!
One little hour for patient self denials,
Eternal years for life, where life is blest!

When Queen Victoria first came to the British throne, the whole of India was not under British rule, and it was only during her reign that Punjab became her possession. At that time the Maharajah was a mere boy. In order to show his allegiance to the Empress of India, he sent Queen Victoria the wonderful jewel known as the Koh-i-noor diamond. This magnificent offering was placed in the Tower of London, among the other carefully guarded crown jewels.

Some years later, when the Maharajah was a grown man, he paid a visit to England, and of course, went to Buckingham Palace to pay his respects to the queen. He was taken to the state apartments; and after bowing to her Majesty, he requested that he might be allowed to see the Koh-i-noor. Greatly wondering at his request, the Queen, with her usual kindliness and courtesy, gave orders that it should be brought under armed guard and shown the Maharajah.

After a little time, the priceless jewel was brought in and presented before the young Indian Prince. Very reverently he took it in his hands, and then walked over to the window, where he examined it carefully. Then, while all the onlookers gazed in wonder, he turned and knelt at the feet of the queen, saying, "Madam, I gave you this jewel when I was too young to know what I was doing. I want to give it again, in the fulness of my strength, with all my heart and affection and gratitude, now and forever, fully realizing what I do."

What a lesson we may learn in this story! You, perhaps, have always heard about the Lord Jesus, Who loved you and gave Himself for you. You have known of Him all your life—but will you, now that you are old enough to know what you are doing, kneel before Him and give Him your life, your all? Jesus said, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." —Compton, Calif., Bulletin.

GOD OR THE DEVIL

G. Campbell Morgan says, "My father came into my house soon after I was married, and looked around into every room, and then he said to me, 'Yes, it is very nice, but nobody will know, walking through here, whether you belong to God or the devil.' I went through and looked at the rooms again, and I thought, 'He is right.' So we made up our minds straightway that there should be no room in our house, henceforth, that had not some message by picture or wall text, for every corner should tell that we serve the King."

You would be surprised, could you know the things that greet the eyes of many a pastor upon entering the homes of some professing Christians. Does yours look like a Christian home?

GOD STILL IS ON THE THRONE

When life is full of sorrow
And heavy burdens roll,
When sin is all around us
And weary is the soul,
There's One Who knows, remember,
The feeling that's within,
And He can cheer our sadness
And keep us from our sin.

Though friends may have forsaken
And lonely seems the road,
When life is at its darkest
And heavy is the load,
There's One Who sees, remember,
Our needs, however small.
Through darkest night He'll lead us:
He will not let us fall.

There may be some who've wandered
Far from the Shepherd's fold,
Whose lives to them seem worthless
Out in the bitter cold.
There's One Who cares, remember,
For each and every one Enough that He saw fit to give His own beloved Son.

Though Satan's fiery darts are hurled
Within our path each day,
The Shepherd will not lose one sheep
Nor let one go astray.
He is the One Who knows and sees;
He cares, and loves His own;
Be not dismayed, nor e'er afraid—
God still is on the throne.

—Jo L. Morris.

Is there any hurt of the heart equal to the hurt that comes from being accused for something that is utterly foreign to you and to your spirit? Yet, our blessed Lord must endure this constantly. One would think that when Jesus bore our sins upon the cross, His bearing the sins of others ought to have ended. But, alas, He is still compelled to bear the sins of others. The preacher does something that he should not have done. You drop from the ranks of the church. The Lord Jesus has to pay! Some church member wrongs you. You drop from the place of prayer. The Lord Jesus has to pay! Some missionary didn't do right. You won't give another cent! The Lord Jesus has to pay! Did you ever thing of it—how often men offend, but we "take it out" on the Lord? Lord Jesus, forgive this, our sin, also!

The Word is not to be preached by fits and starts, but according to Paul, during two seasons—"in season and out of season."

Do It Today!

IF I COULD ONLY UNDO IT!

Few of the followers of Darwin's theory of evolution realize how he later felt about the results of his own speculations. Lady Hope tells of calling upon Darwin and finding him reading the book of Hebrews, which he described as "a royal book." Lady Hope spoke of creation and of the treatment the Genesis account of it has received at the hands of some. Darwin fairly wrung his hands as a look of agony came over his face. "I was a young man," he said, "with unformed ideas. I threw out queries, suggestions, wondering all the time about everything. The ideas took like wildfire. People made a religion of them. Oh, if I could only undo it!" A few weeks after he went to his reward.—Selected.

IS YOUR CHURCH 100%?

"Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask and ye shall receive, that your joy may be made full."—John 16:24.

If a poor farm laborer died and left his widow with many children to support—and if a kind neighbor offered her all she could use from his gardens if she would only go and tell the foreman her needs—and if she never availed herself of his generosity, but rather said to her friends that her children were hungry and she didn't know what to do because she was not able to earn enough money—surely we would think she did not have good sense. Yet, we, as Christians, are doing the same thing. More than a few of us are grievously poverty-stricken spiritually, but it never occurs to us to ask God to supply our needs out of his abundance.

We suffer torture through so many things unnecessarily, because we have so little of the food of the spirit of Christ. We endure in ourselves jealousy, hatred, temper, irritability, melancholy, fear, doubt, discontent, uselessness, selfishness, meanness, touchiness, unkindness, unfaithfulness, weakness, impurity, slandering, pride, and many other things. These habits are like the pangs of hunger, and destroy our happiness and peace of mind. Yet God has promised to remove all poverty and fill us with the abundance of the Spirit of Christ. And, if we ask God for anything in Him, we know that we shall be filled. We need no longer live in distress, but in receiving we can know the joy of the fullness of the riches of Christ.

CALL THEM BY NAME

Unless we realize our sins enough to call them by name, it is hardly worth while to say anything about them at all. When we pray for forgiveness let us say, "My temper," or "untruthfulness," or "pride," "my selfishness, my cowardliness, indolence, jealousy, revenge, impurity." To recognize our sins we must look them in the face and call them by their right names, however hard. Honesty in confession calls for definiteness in confession.—Sel.

BRETHREN MINISTER'S HANDBOOK

One of the crying needs among Brethren ministers for the past fifteen years or more has been a handbook. And for this reason the conference of 1941 appointed a committee to care for this matter, and instructed this committee to use their own discretion in preparing a new handbook, which work was to be submitted to the conference of 1942.

This was a large order. But the committee met, divided up the work, and after considerable labor, offered at least a partial report to the conference. As conference time neared it became evident that it would be impossible to include in the report the material of the old handbook dealing with Brethren polity. And after consulting with a lawyer it was deemed wise not to touch this portion of the old handbook for the time being. However, all the material dealing with ordinances and practices was prepared. And to get it before the ministers at the conference it was put into mimeograph form, covering thirty-three typewritten pages legal size.

At the first opportunity copies were distributed among the ministers at the ministerium, for it was felt that since the ministers primarily were interested in this material they ought to consider it together before it was brought before the conference. And while each minister received a copy of the work and was urged to read and study it for a later meeting of the ministerium, time passed so rapidly and was so full of duties it never came up for discussion. But the ministers did pass a resolution that copies be made available to each minister in the church, and that throughout the ensuing year the material be studied and discussion be delayed until the conference of 1943.

So the committee submitted its partial report to the conference and recommended that a committee be continued and be instructed by the conference concerning further work on the handbook. The conference passed this recommendation and instructed the same committee to continue its work and report back to the next conference.

Since a great many ministers were unable to be in attendance at the conference of 1942 because of tire rationing and other reasons, if they desire a copy of the work that was done, they may write to Herman A. Hoyt, Winona Lake, Indiana, including twenty-five cents for mailing, mimeographing, etc. and a copy will be sent to them.

DR. GRIBBLE MEMORIAL SERVICE

At the close of the evening service on Foreign Missions Day at the conference a beautiful memorial service was held for Dr. Florence Newberry Gribble. So effective was the memorial that there was scarcely a dry eye in the assembly when the service was done. Rev. R. D. Barnard, pastor of the First Brethren Church of Dayton, Ohio, to which church Dr. Gribble belonged, was in charge. Rev. Henry Rempel, conference song director, led the congregation in singing "Goodnight Here, Goodmorning Up There." Mrs. Arthur Cashman sang "To Do Thy Will" which in a most appropriate manner expressed the deepest heart's desire of our beloved sister. Miss Mabel Crawford, missionary on furlough from our African field and the last person in this country to have seen Dr. Gribble, then spoke of some of the outstanding characteristics of Dr. Gribble's life; her prayer life, her devotion to her fellow-missionaries, her ability to see the good in every one, etc. This message was followed by an address by Dr. Louis S. Bauman, secretary-treasurer of the Foreign Missionary Society, who reminisced upon the early days of his association with James and Florence Gribble and upon the opening of the Oubangui-Chari Mission in which the Gribbles played such a vital part. Dr. Bauman set forth the greatness of Dr. Gribble in a way which proved a challenge to all of us who are left to carry on.

The services closed with a message in song by Mrs. Herman Baerg, a candidate for service in Africa, who sang "Beyond the Sunset." Upon leaving the auditorium each one present was presented with a memorial card containing a late picture of Dr. Gribble which is the favorite picture of her only daughter, Marguerite, who is now upon the same mission field for which her mother gave her life. Such gatherings are not soon forgotten.

MISSIONARY ATMOSPHERE AT GRACE SEMINARY

The Seminary is to have the blessing this year of the presence of several missionaries of our church. While home on furlough Miss Mabel Crawford, of the African field, is devoting her time to study. She will also teach two courses in the languages necessary for the African missionaries to know. Her courses will be in French and Sango. Rev. and Mrs. Chauncey Shel-

SEMINARY RALLY AND BANQUET

A large crown of alumni and friends of the Seminary filled the large dining room of the Winona Hotel on Friday evening of Conference week to enjoy an inspiring time of fellowship and profitable entertainment. Rev. Kenneth Ashman, president of the alumni association, was the master of ceremonies and in his characteristic fashion kept things moving so that there was not a dull moment in the occasion. Following the delicious meal, Rev. Arnold Kreigbaum led the group in singing favorite choruses including the Grace Seminary theme song, "Marvelous Grace." Special musical numbers were presented by Mrs. Keith Altig who played upon the marimba, Keith Altig who played the saxaphone accompanied by Mrs. Herman Baerg, and Miss Ruth Berger, of Canton, Ohio, who played a flute solo accompanied by Mrs. John Aeby.

Short after-dinner speeches were made by members of the faculty and the present status of the alumni association and their plans for the future were briefly discussed. A special prayer for the speedy recovery of Dr. McClain, president of the school, was offered by Dr. L. S. Bauman and an offering was taken for a floral presentation to our beloved leader.

The outstanding feature of the program was the address by Dr. V. C. Kelford who spoke on "The Call of the North," presenting in a most challenging manner the great opportunity now offering itself to give the Gospel to the multitudes who are now moving into Alaska and the adjacent country due to the opening of the new Alaska highway and the war emergency.

As a result of the growth of the alumni association of Grace Seminary, some most worth while projects are being contemplated to help the school in very definite ways. Any educational institution cherishes the support of its alumni. It is gratifying to note that Grace Seminary is fast developing a fine group of this character which in days to come will prove of untold blessing to the school if the Lord tarries. We understand that the association is arranging with Dr. Kelford to act as their spokesman for the Seminary as he travels in Bible Conference work throughout the country.

ANNUAL SEMINARY OFFERING

The largest single offering for educational purposes in the history of the Brethren Church was lifted on Friday night of Conference week. This offering was given for the support of Grace Seminary during the ensuing year. The offering was taken at the conclusion of the day which had been set aside on the Conference program for stressing the work of the seminary. The evening message was delivered by Rev. Robert D. Culver, a recent graduate of the Seminary, At the close of this message Rev. A. V. Kimmell, president of the board of directors of the Seminary, presented Dr. L. S. Bauman who proceeded to lift the offering in the same manner as he has done in previous years. Without undue pressure being applied, out of the fullness of hearts who appreciate what Grace Seminary is doing for the church, the people responded in a manner which was truly the "abundantly above." It was a hilarious offering.

When all the cash and pledges were counted it was discovered that the magnificent sum of $11,294.03 had been given. No wonder the congregation arose and lustily sang "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." God had again shown that His hand is upon Grace Seminary for good. May it ever be that she will prove worthy of the trust committed into her hands. It should be said again that Grace Seminary is deeply grateful for the support it continues to receive from its friends and to the best of its ability it will seek to fulfill its God-given task.

As one traces the record of this service through the past five years it reveals definite growth each year in the faith of the people. The first year the offering approached five hundred dollars. The second year it neared three thousand. The third raised it to four thousand five hundred dollars. And the fourth year, which amazed everyone, it reached the large sum of seven thousand six hundred dollars. But this year was the most amazing of all, for the sum given in cash and pledges exceeded eleven thousand dollars. People are still tossing their heads to shake off a bit of dizziness which it produced. Those who have attended this service through the past five years know the joy that has been experienced by everyone present. The victory of each year has strengthened the faith of God's people and has encouraged and enabled them to step out just a little farther upon the promises of God.

There were certain things this year that presented real problems to the people assembled in conference. But the offering demonstrated that problems do not hinder the exercise and progress of faith. If anything faith becomes more active at such a time as this. One thing especially caused everyone to hold his breath, and that was the reduced attendance at conference. It is true that there were almost as many delegates as last year, but the number in attendance from the outlying churches was reduced to a minimum. And then the condition of our Brother McClain was also another cause for wonder. But God, who is able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think, was present to supply and undergird the faith of His own.

Only God can properly reward the saints for their deeds in the flesh, but the faculty and students wish to express again their gratitude for the remarkable way in which Brethren people have rallied to the support of the seminary.

THINK IT OVER

A certain man said, "Show me a church with a real live prayer meeting and I'll show you a church that means business for God." People, the first sign of discouragement is a failing prayer meeting. Get back to God's House for the mid-week prayer service.—Sel.

PRESENT PLANS FOR THE SEMINARY

The illness of our beloved Brother McClain has greatly disturbed all those who have received the information. At first we did not fully comprehend the seriousness of his condition. But as time has passed we have all come to realize that he has suffered a complete nervous collapse. And this realization has sent all who know it to their knees in prayer on his behalf. Moreover, we must daily bear him up in prayer before the throne of grace, that he may be restored to us and to the work of the Lord which he so much loves. We are facing the future with confidence and with the expectation that he will be restored to health and activity in the very near future.

However, his present condition made some temporary arrangements necessary. So the board of directors called Professor Herman A. Hoyt to the position of temporary acting president until Dr. McClain is able to assume his duties once more. And they also called Rev. John M. Aeby, pastor of the Fort Wayne Brethren Church, to supply temporarily the vacancy made by the illness of Dr. McClain. Rev. Aeby will give up his pulpit in Fort Wayne for the time being in order to carry on this work in the seminary. Professor Kent will continue his duties in the seminary as formerly.

But the absence of Dr. McClain lays new and greater resposibilities on every member of the faculty. And they feel deeply the need of prayer. With a larger student body than any previous year of the school, and with the duties multiplied, it is evident that only the grace of God can enable for these tasks.

The student body will be greatly increased over previous years. During the past year between 33 and 35 students were in attendance. But at this writing the prospects are that the incoming class will be larger than the entire student body of last year. And with fifteen old students returning the seminary will be larger than any previous year. We account for this in part by the fact that the program now under the direction of Rev. Kenneth Ashman is just beginning to bear fruit. Then too, there was a great burden of prayer among the students last year that God would send at least 25 new students into the ranks this year. But God has answered exceedingly abundantly above what could be asked or thought.

SEMINARY TO ENJOY DR. V. C. KELFORD

Previous arrangements of Dr. McClain made with our brother, Dr. Kelford, makes it possible for the seminary student body and faculty to enjoy his teaching ministry in the word for a period of two weeks this fall. He will be with us from Sept. 29 to Oct. 9, speaking twice daily. He has selected as the basis of his lectures the Gospel of Matthew. His first lecture will be at 9:30 Tuesday morning, Sept. 29th. The faculty extends to any who may be near and able to attend a very earnest invitation to enjoy this man of God and his messages from the book of God.

It will also be the privilege of the seminary students to enjoy the presence of Dr. Kelford since he has kindly consented to speak at the opening chapel on September 15th.

PRAY FOR THE SEMINARY THIS YEAR

It has previously been reported in these columns that the most important need of Grace Seminary is people who will hold up the faculty and students of the seminary in prayer. And we are certain that the success this school has enjoyed through the past five years is due to the fact that many have gone down upon their knees in prayer. We are now beginning an unusual year. Our responsibilities are greater and our needs have multiplied. So there is even a greater need for prayer than ever before. While we believe that all our supporters are conscious of this increased need, still we feel led to send out a new appeal that you remember us in the great undertaking before us. Pray that the faculty may have greater efficiency in the ministry of the Word, that the student body may grow in grace and knowledge of the Lord Jesus, and that the devotional and spiritual atmosphere of the entire school may be deepened.

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

Some people are like buzzards! they never go near a church unless somebody dies!—Sel.

FIRST GENERAL CONFERENCE COMMUNION

For the first time in 53 years of General Conference fellowship a Brethren three-fold communion service has been observed. Many persons expressed the feeling that it was the greatest service which we have experienced! For several years requests have come that such a service be held but this year was the first in which it was planned and executed. We believe that a brief account of the service will not only be enjoyed by those who read these pages now, but that it will serve as a historical record of a history-making communion.

At the request of the Executive Committee for 1942 the faculty of the Grace Theological Seminary assumed the responsibility of making adequate arrangement and preparation for the meeting. The facilities of the Winona Lake Presbyterian Church were graciously opened to us. So far as we know, this was the only building on the grounds suited to such a meeting. A committee of seminary women together with several deaconnesses of our Brethren churches was appointed to plan the meal and make the communion bread. A number of ministers of the conference and several deacons who were present made the preparations for table service and foot-washing. Dr. Louis S. Bauman of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach was chosen as the one to preside at the service. At 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening, September 6th, all the folk gathered in the auditorium of the church where instructions were given and appointments were made. Following this all went to the lower auditorium. There were 23 tables prepared with a capacity of 224 places available. The ministers were seated at the tables on the platform and the table immediately in front of it. The laymen and women occupied the balance of the auditorium so that when all were seated there were only 4 empty places.

Dr. Bauman gave a very helpful and devotional message as to the nature and meaning of the service. Following this the footwashing service was observed. During this part of the service many splendid testimonies were given which in the opinion of many were the greatest they had ever heard. It was a real thrill to hear Brethren from all parts of the country and from the service of the chaplaincy and the African field rise to tell of the blessing which this fellowship was to them. Testimonies were also given during the meal and following the observance of the Eucharist. At about 11:00 o'clock, Dr. Bauman called upon Moderator Roy A. Patterson who presided over the closing business session of the conference and declared the 53rd General Conference of Brethren Churches adjourned sine die. Following the singing of the hymn "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" Elder Russell D. Barnard of Dayton First Church pronounced the benediction. No conference in the history of the Brethren Church ever closed with a sweeter feeling of the Lord's presence and blessing or a closer bond of fellowship between the Brethren. May this be the first of a series of such blessed love feasts till He comes and we then gather around the tables in a better land with not just a representative group of Brethren, but with the redeemed of all ages!

In asmuch as we believe this Communion Service has been a truly historic meeting, we are giving herewith the names of the persons who communed together

PRESSED OUT OF MEASURE

To those who are wondering in these critical times why they are so sorely pressed on all sides by apparently adverse circumstances, we pass on the following verse by an unknown author:

"Pressed out of measure and pressed to all length;
Pressed so intensely, it seems beyond strength;
Pressed in the body and pressed in the soul,
Pressed in the mind till the dark surges roll;
Pressure by foes, and pressure by friends;
Pressure on pressure, till life nearly ends,
Pressed into knowing no helper but God;
Pressed into loving the staff and the rod:
Pressed into liberty where nothing clings;
Pressed into faith for impossible things.
Pressed into living a life in the Lord,
Pressed into living a Christ-life outpoured."

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

Youth: Too happy to think—time yet.

Manhood: Too busy to think—more gold.

Prime: Too anxious to think—worry.

Declining years: Too aged to think—old hearts harder to get.

Dying bed: Too ill to think—weak, suffering alone.

Death: 'Tis too late to think—the spirit has flown.

Eternity: Forever to think—God's mercy past. Into hell I am righteously cast. Forever to weep my doom!

Accept Christ Today!

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

Too many folks think that hell is not as hot as it was forty years ago. Do not be deceived.

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

The Church at Waynesboro, Pa., Rev. Robert D. Crees, pastor, reports 42 public decisions in the first 4 days of a children's revival conducted by Miss Rae Serio of Dalton, Pa. With four days in this revival there should be a great harvest of young souls. Our churches could well spend some money and effort in the salvation of these young lives who so many times are neglected in our services until it is too late. The time to reach them is in their youth.

Miss Grace Allshouse, who for many years has been associated with Brethren literature and editorial work has accepted a call of missionary work among the neglected sections of the State of Montana. She will be glad for your prayers on her behalf.

Miss Isobel Fraser, comes into the staff of the Brethren Missionary Herald Co. Miss Fraser is a member of the First Brethren Church of Fort Wayne and has held a responsible position with The Lincoln Life Insurance Co. of this same city. Miss Fraser has desired to use her talents and time in the work of the Lord and feels that the Lord has definitely called her to this work in our Publication office. Your prayers for her as well as the other members of this office will be appreciated.

The Brethren Young People of Southern California are going to hold their own convention, October 16, 17 and 18, at the First Brethren Church, Compton, Calif. From advance notice received in this office we venture to say that these young people will have a great time. A Y.P. chorus is already practicing for this convention.

The Brethren at La Verne, Calif., have recently begun a testimony and praise service to be conducted each Sunday evening after their regular Sunday evening church service. These meetings are to be conducted on a downtown street corner. A great way to witness and testify for Christ.

Christmas Greetings to Missionaries and men in the service, ought to be mailed now. Due to delayed mail service, mail your greetings early. Enclose a package of seed in your letters to missionaries. These will be appreciated too.

"Walk in the light! So shalt thou know
That fellowship of love
His spirit only can bestow,
Who reigns in light above.
Walk in the light! thy path shall be Peaceful, serene and bright;
For God, by grace, shall dwell in thee,
And God Himself is light."

"Do you feel your sins are forgiven?" a man once asked Martin Luther. "No, I don't feel they are forgiven, I know they are forgiven, for God's Word says so!" was Luther's answer. John 5:24 is a good verse for all believers in Christ who lack assurance.—Ex.

Religious Hysteria

By REV. NORMAN UPHOUSE, Dayton, Ohio

Preached at the Central Brethren Conference assembled at Dayton, June 16-17, 1942

Hysteria is known by psychologists as disteleological overt action. They mean to say that it is behavior that has no controlling purpose. Hence it is purposeless, aimless and irrational. People are irrational or become so as they are pressed for decisions against better judgment and unfortunately choose the wrong way or thing.

I heard of people who became hysterical in Baltimore. They had crowded into an elevator beyond its capacity. Even tho the operator urged them to stop, they kept crowding in. The elevator began to go down. The brakes were applied but it kept descending. Then the operator turned on the lifting power and it stopped and started to rise again. When it came to the open door, some jumped and pushed others over. Several were caught between the elevator floor and the ceiling of the room. The operator was pushed out and the elevator climbed up thirty stories and stuck at the roof. All the people were trapped for the night. It was a time of crisis for them and they did the unreasonable thing.

We are in a world crisis now. The soldiers that will return shattered and torn will not be called shell-shocked but victims of war hysteria. Authority urged them on in face of open fire and yet the law of self-preservation tells them to keep under cover. As they go amid bursting shells and screaming bullets, they crack up and become mad.

We are in a crisis religiously too. There are enemies without and within. Never since the founding of the Christian church have we witnessed such an organized onslaught against truth. Some can not see it because we have lost little or no blood. Nevertheless it is upon us. I know that the pagan persecution of the early Christian centuries and the inquisitions of the dark ages nearly wrecked christendom. But out of the fires of martyrdom and the secrecy of the catacombs arose an institution to defy and challenge the greatest known power in the world, namely the Roman Catholic Church. The Reformation finally came. Warriors and champions for God arose and the Protestant church flourished. Most of the enemy could be isolated and seen and then attacked. It is not so today. We have something more deadly and more subtle than anything of the past. It is a combined effort of the forces of evil to destroy orthodox testimony among men by sabotage and internal decay. It's universal in scope. It's a charge against the Messiah of God and therefore against the Jews and Christians of the Book as well as against the Land of the Book.

Why do the nations rage and the people (Jews) imagine a vain thing? They have taken counsel against God and His Anointed. God-hate is folly. It's hysteria. It's suicide for them to fight God. He has power to put up and to put down. He can create and He can destroy. He shall laugh at them for He shall have them in derision. This has something to do with the course of events today. Dictators and war lords aspire to a world kingdom. They have taught the superiority of their race. They propogandize their people to crush the unprepared and weak. Yet in the annals of history which are the archives of the past, God has declared, "I have set my King upon my holy hill of Zion." "I will tell the decree, Jehovah said unto me Ask me and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."

What shall men gain by madness? Nothing. The fruit of their toil and achievements of the years shall plunge into confusion.

Egypt led the world in civilization but withered as a plant on the Sahara.

Greek glory shone under Pericles but was smothered by Roman conquest and devastation.

Rome flourished under the Caesars but perished as the Vandals sacked the city and plundered the countryside.

German culture came up under Charlemange, Clovis and the Hohenzollerns. It reached a dizzy height under the Kaiser and shocked the world as it devoured little nations on all sides. He was bound to lose and the ambitious aspirant fell as his vaunted Hindenburg line melted in the heat of allied artillery fire.

Now another has appeared who has recklessly and ruthlessly enforced slavery upon millions and slaughtered the innocent. Drunk with power, Hitler has no logical stopping place until he has gained world power. He is the Devil's henchman. A forerunner of Antichrist and a son of perdition. He dare not win and can not win. God has other plans of universal proportions. He purposes to set up His Son on the next world throne. As long as Orion and Pleadies streak across the constellation, God will bring to pass His eternal purpose which He purposes in Jesus Christ.

Why do sinners fight God? Why do Jews fight Christian testimony? Do they presume to get along without God? Do they think that they can ignore God's final revelation and look for more? There won't be any more. Now is the time to weigh the evidence and if it is worthy of decision, decide it. If it is worthy of acceptance, accept it.

I. Jewry is Hysterical

This is religious hysteria too. They are the people of Psalm 2. They imagine a vain thing when they think that they can get along without Jesus of Nazareth. He is the prophet like unto Moses, the virgin Child of Isaiah's prophecy, the Shepherd of the Psalmist and the King of Zechariah. Self reliance and self sufficiency have robbed them of God's good pleasure.

The Jews were hysterical in Moses' day. Deliverance and supplies were promised in sight, yet they grumbled and threatened Moses and Aaron. The undisciplined and irrational mob got out of control and forgot God while they longed for the garlic of Egypt.

They were hysterical when they crucified Jesus too. They surged about the place called the Pavement and demanded his blood. All testimony was in favor of Jesus' release. Judas said, "I have betrayed innocent blood" Pilate said, "I find no fault in Him." Good men said, "Surely He is the Son of God." One Nicodemus declared that no one could do the mighty works He did unless God were with Him. However the bloodthirsty mob brushed aside such testimony and cried in their hysteria, "Crucify Him." Barabbas could go free, justice was ignored, truth was crushed to earth, while they like Gallio cared for none of these things.

II. The Nations Are Hysterical

Warlords, dictators and infidel statesmen are fighting against God today as the Jews did in their ascendancy. Throughout central and northern Europe nations have blasphemed God's name. Germany and Russia are locked in a battle that will decimate their population and prostitute their resources. It is all very significant that they openly expressed opposition to God. The present seems as the answer that these two bullies should waste the fruit of their labors and waste each other in battle.

England and America in a sense are different. There has been a feeble attempt to recognize the true God. In spite of the prevalent evils and needed reforms in both lands, we have led the world in mission enterprise. We have defended the faith. We have spread the printed Word. God has smiled on us so far, while the shock of war is felt in other places.

This is essentially a religious war. Some think in terms of trade or the survival of other things but back of these there is a spiritual aspect. Because Russia is fighting our common enemy or that Italy is a puppet of Germany should not change the main contention that in general the forces at war are divided into the defenders and the destroyers of the true faith.

Look at Japan. She has committed the frightfully presumptious sin of regarding her emperor as the emanation from heaven. Like the Egyptians, they say he is the descendant of the Sun God. Japan has murdered Christian missionaries, closed her doors to true testimony, blacklisted the Bible and settled her doom. She is going down. Even in this war for survival I look for Japan to be punished severely. Surely God would have it this way and not that America and England, the remaining bulwarks of Christianity would come under the heel of paganism. Of course if the rapture of the church occurs before the war is over it might be otherwise. While the Bride is here, the Bridegroom will care for her.

III. Are Christians Hysterical ? ? ?

No not the real ones. The truth frees us and perfect love casts out fear. On the other hand some that operate under the name of Christian are hysterical.

The mushroom growth of pentecostalism and the holiness movement are forms of hysteria. They approach the real and deceive some of the elect but that is the way of counterfeits. Talking in unintelligent tongues, undue shouting, rolling on the floor and shameful conduct are not of the Lord. God is a God of peace and order, not confusion

Demon possession is hysteria. Not all unbalanced people are demon possessed but all possessed and unbalanced. N. T. demonology teaches how the demons subdued personality and individual choosing to make the person hysterical.

Modernism is hysteria. It is lack of good judgment. It fights fundamental preaching which has power to save and offers nothing of value in its place. It is empty, aimless preaching that will drive people mad at the end.

Worldliness is hysteria. The young man who spent his all in riotous living was in pursuit of worldly pleasure. Finally he came to himself. When a man is beside himself he is mad. So this person was mad for pleasure. At last he came to his senses and said within himself that he would go home to his father.

The conclusion of the whole matter is that we have only one sane, sensible view of life. It is the God-centered life. Sin is madness. It is all vain and worthless. Let us carry the word of reconcilation that others may come to know about our Christ Who is able to save from all hysteria and give a settled peace and satisfaction to the souls of men.

HE LEADS RIGHT

(Psalm 107:7)

He leads round, but He leads right.
All the way is in His sight:
Be it rough, or be it long
Void of joy, or set to song,
Bringing much, or mite by mite.
He leads round, but He leads right.

Just read this.

HATS OFF TO THE JOHNSONS!

(Tune—Mary Had A Little Lamb)

The Johnsons' had a little pledge.
Its value was at par,
Because the Johnsons' paid their pledge
At church when they were "thar."

They stayed away from "thar" one day,
Which left it in a lurch;
It made the treasurer sweat and pray
For funds to run the church.

On Sunday next the Johnson group
Was back with smiling face.
The pastor almost gave a whoop
To see them in their place.

And when the offering plate was passed
The treasurer wore a grin,
For the Johnsons' well-filled envelopes
Had all been placed therein ! !

ACTS—NOT MERELY RESOLUTIONS

"We read of the acts of the apostles," said Moody, "But nothing of their resolutions."

So many of "the pillars of the church" are nothing but caterpillars.

One Shall Be Taken---The Other Left

By R. I. HUMBRED (From a Tract)

"Two men shall be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left" Luke 17:36.

Emanuel Edmons moved nervously and shifted in his seat. He had always prided himself in his charity. He had given liberally to the community chest and had joined all of the organizations for world peace and social betterment.

But this was different. This speaker ignored all these efforts to make the world a better place in which to live. In fact, he had even said that all human effort would fail and the only hope of the world was in the second coming of Jesus Christ. How foolish and narrow a man can get.

He wished he had not come. Why should he, Emanuel Edmons, prominent business man and head deacon of First Church, come to a prophetic conference? Of course he had to come to please his wife . . . or was it for the ride in his nice new car?

But something the speaker was saying caught his attention. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air."

"We might wonder," continued the speaker, "how long it will take the Lord to raise every Christian that has ever lived and gather them, together with all living Christians, to Himself in the air. But Paul tells us that it will be "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye" 1 Thess. 4:16; 1 Cor. 15:52.

This was too much for Emanuel Edmons. He glanced at his wife. Her face was aglow with joy. He knew she believed every word the speaker was saying. It made him angry. He frowned; closed his eyes and passed his hand across his face.

There was an instant of deadly silence and then a shriek from a woman on the other side of the tent. Instantly Edmons was on his feet. But . . . where had the speaker gone? . . . and where was the congregation? Only a moment ago the tent was filled with people . . . now only a score or so were scattered about and they seemed dazed and frightened . . . what could it all mean?

His eyes moved rapidly over the tent and back to where his wife had been sitting . . . but his wife was gone . . . why had she left him thus? A cold deadly fear gripped his heart. She was gone, and there on the seat at his side lay her clothes in a little disheveled heap. Her wrist watch and wedding ring lay on top where her hand had been resting in her lap. Her hand bag had fallen to the floor . . . but she herself was gone . . .Gone . . . his wife was gone.

A nameless horror seized him and he fled blindly out of the tent where another distress awaited him. Only an hour ago he had parked his new car in front of the tent, but now it was a wreck. Another car had crashed into it. A woman was just getting out of the other car. She seemed dazed and was angry . . . terribly angry. Her husband had insisted upon attending the prophetic conference. She had not wanted to come and her date at the hair dresser's shop had made them late. Her husband had been in such a hurry that he had not even taken time to park the car. Rather had he jumped out while it was still in rapid motion. Somehow he had left his clothes beneath the wheel . . . she could not understand it all, but one thing sure she would sue for a divorce just as soon as she could find a lawyer.

Emanuel Edmons, sick at heart, returned to the tent. There lay his wife's garments. He gathered them together and was turning to retrace his steps when a figure dodged stealthfully behind the piano. But not before he had seen his hands full of watches, handbags, and other articles of value.

"They are even now looting the garments of the departed," thought Edmons, too disgusted to utter a word of protest.

Outside the tent a big bus had just arrived from the city and was preparing to leave again. He would take the bus and send a man after the car.

An hour later he entered his office. The office force was all there and business was going on as usual. His partner, however, was very much annoyed at the carelessness of the janitor. A customer had stumbled over a mop and a pile of old clothes that the janitor had left lying in the waiting room. If he had not been so faithful in the past, this would certainly call for his dismissal.

It was too much for Edmon. He reeled; caught at a chair and fell heavily to the floor.

To the Reader

"I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself" John 14:3.

"This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" Acts 1:11.

"When ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand" Luke 21:31.

Christ is coming back. We do not know when, but current events seem to point to a very near fulfilment of these words. Thus it is well that we consider our ways.

Before The Rapture

If you are living before Christ's return do not neglect your salvation. Split seconds may count for eternity. Come to Christ as a sinner. Remember that the wages of sin is death, and that Christ died for our sins. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Good works will not avail. Trust Christ; depend on Him; count on Him; commit yourself fully to Him.

This may be your last chance for after Christ comes it seems that there will not be another opportunity. "For this cause God shall send them strong delusion . . . That they all might be damned who believed (past tense) not the truth" II Thess. 2:11. That is, if any definitely reject Christ in the church age, God Himself will give them over to the antichrist.

After The Rapture

If you have not definitely rejected Christ, there is hope for you. Untold millions do not know the true way of salvation, and out of them God will save a great multitude Rev. 6:9 and 7:9.

You have missed the rapture and I know that your heart must be tender and your mind filled with anxiety about the future. Thus I offer the following suggestions for your guidance during the dark days that are just ahead.

1. Immediately give your heart to the Lord. If you are deeply sincere He will save you, for, "him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out" John 6:37.

2. Read your Bible; especially the Gospel of John John 20:31.

3. Be a friend to the godly Jews. They will be terribly persecuted and your own reward will be according to your treatment of them. Matt. 25.

4. A Roman prince will arise who will finally demand and receive the worship of the entire world. He will devise a mark that will control all buying and selling. But do not receive this mark at any cost. Rev. 14: 9-11.

5. Troublesome days are ahead for you Matt. 24:21. There may be a short time when men will be saying "Peace and safety," but it will end suddenly I Thess. 5:3. Peace will then be taken from the earth and mobs, strikes and violence will be the order of the day. This will be followed by a great scarcity of food and later by a terrible pestilence Rev. 6. In fact the Book of Revelation will now run its course.

6. This period will last about seven years. Then the Battle of Armageddon will be fought, and after that Christ will rule in peace and righteousness. Be thou faithful unto death and God will wipe away all tears from your eyes and give you part in the new heaven and the new earth. Thank God for such a hope.

BIBLE STUDY

Would it not be a foolish thing
To die of thirst, with this clear spring
Of living water at my feet?
To starve when there is bread and meat
And wine before me on the board,
A table spread by my dear Lord?
And would we think he had much sense
Who hoarded only copper pence
When at this feet, and all around
Were diamonds sparkling on the ground?

"WILL A MAN ROB GOD?"

This question was asked by the prophet Malachi. This is most certainly a heart-searching question for us all. There are some people who think this to be a foolish question, but let us not forget that man will and has robbed everyone else. A man will rob his brother. He will rob others who have entrusted their wealth to him. He will rob banks, and state, county, national, and other treasuries. Once in a while we hear of those who will go so far as to rob the church. Children will rob their parents. Parents will rob children. Of course they always do these things in hope of getting away with their evil deeds. But there is no hope of getting away with it when a man will rob God. He sees, and He knows all about our stewardship and our financial affairs as well as he knows all about us in every way. Nothing whatsoever is hidden from His view, and His ear is always open to our plans and conversation. Yes, man will rob God! Many rob Him unintentionally. Still others will rob Him wilfully and deliberately. "You have robbed God," said Malachi, "in that you have refused to give Him tithes and offerings."

God's way of financing His work is by tithes and offerings; man's way is by begging, cooking, sewing, stewing, banqueting, and worrying where the money is to come from. Now then, which is the better way?

With Christian Endeavorers

(Another Home Mission Church rejoices in its gift of hymn books as provided by The Brethren National Christian Endeavor Union. Our National C.E. Union supplied 75 hymn books to The Grace Brethren Church, Hagerstown, Maryland. This has been one of the projects of our National Union for the past three years and continues to be this coming year. Many of our Home Mission churches have been the recipients of Hymn books made possible by gifts that have been sent in by Christian Endeavor societies from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The following letter tells its own story of how these Home mission churches feel about this project. (Leo Polman, C.E. News Editor.)

August 21, 1942

Brethren National C.E. Union,
Rev. Leo Polman, Executive Secretary,
3326 South Calhoun Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Dear Brother Polman:

As the pastor of the Grace Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Md., and for all our people, I wish to express my deep and sincere appreciation for the gift of seventy-five hymn books. At such a critical and needy time in our history this gift has meant the most to us. As we sing the songs of praise and glory to our blessed Savior, certainly the National C.E. will be realistically joining in this ministry.

It is such a genuine Christian spirit of cooperation and helpfulness among our various Brethren enterprises that will continue to greatly broaden and deepen the ministry of the Brethren Church for the glory of Christ.

In His Precious Name,

L. L. Grubb, Pastor.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S COSPEL TEAM REPORTING OF THEIR WORK

Beaver City, Nebr., Aug. 12, 1942

Dear Sirs:

I thought it might interest the young people of some of the other of our Grace Brethren churches to know some of the work being done by the youth of our church, myself included. I am sure all of the others who have taken part in these undertakings were as rewarded as I.

Our greatest accomplishment has been a gospel team composed mainly of Betty Beeler, Metta Beeler and myself. We were aided in some of our services by other of the young folks.

We have so far given four services in four different churches which have no full time pastor. Although we have had no confessions as yet, we feel we have accomplished a definite work in touching souls.

We have tried to balance our services with a half hour of song and testimonial service and the rest in the message. Metta is our songster while Betty is our specialist. My task is the sermons which I prepare with the aid of one of the ministers in town.

We followed this general plan in our services and found it worked out well:

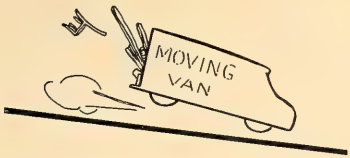
Songs—Two or three peppy ones.
Special—Musical or vocal.
Choruses—Every good Brethren knows some.
Testimonials—Be sure and include these.
Song—A quiet prayerful one on sermon subject.
Scripture and Prayer.
Sermon.
Invitation.
Benediction—Be sure and shake hands at the door.

This is a work which any you young people can do. Try it or ask your minister about a gospel team. You will have no trouble in booking your meetings once people find out that a group of young people are in the service of the Lord.

My blessings on all who try,

Tom Inman.

If your C.E. society has not been doing anything about these National C.E. projects, why not get them busy now. During the months of September, October and November is the time that C.E. societies, cooperating with our National Union, keep before their society this Home Mission project of supplying Hymn Books and Communion sets for Mission Churches. Our goal for this project this year is $100.00. What part will your society have in this? Send your monies to our new Financial Secretary, Mrs. Paul Dick, 649 Berryville Ave., Winchester, Va.



A LITTLE WHILE YET

"Yet a little while, and He that shall come, will come, and will not tarry." Heb. 10:37.

Only a little longer must we tarry,
And then the rest, the peace, the joy of home.
Only a few more burdens must we carry
And in this world of change no longer roam.

Only a few more heartaches, few more partings,
And we no farewell words shall have to say;
Only a few more tears and bitter smartings,
And tears, and pain, and grief shall flee away.

THE MOVING VANS HAVE BEEN BUSY THESE DAYS. The following men and their families have moved recently: J. Ruskin Garber, of West 10th Street church, Ashland, Ohio, has accepted the call to The First Brethren Church, Spokane, Wash.; Rev. Arthur Carey, formerly of Rittman, Ohio, has accepted the call to the Pike Brethren Church, Mundy's Corner, Pa.; Rev. Ord Gehman leaves Grace Brethren Church, Vinco, Pa., to take up the work at The First Brethren Church, Rittman, Ohio; Rev. Trevor Kelford, who recently came into the membership of the Brethren Church at Cleveland, Ohio, has accepted the call from the Brethren Church in Covington, Va.; Rev. Paul Davis has taken up the pastorate at The Brethren Church, Portis, Kansas; Rev. George Cone, formerly of Portis, Kansas, succeeds Rev. Robert D. Culver at the First Brethren Church, Ankenytown, Ohio. Rev. Culver has taken up the work of our Home Mission church, at Fremont, Ohio, where Rev. Jack Simmons was pastor. Rev. Simmons has taken the pastorate at Listie,, Pa. Rev. Nowag was pastor here. Account of ill health the doctor advised brother Nowag to give up his pastorate here. Rev. John M. Aeby, has moved from Fort Wayne, Indiana to Winona Lake, Ind., leaving the pastorate here at the First Brethren Church to take up teaching at Grace Seminary, temporarily, due to the illness of Dr. Alva McClain. There may be others who have moved or are going to move, however we think that this certainly has been an abundance of moving and we pray that every move will bring forth an abundance of fruitage as new men in new fields of service labor and harvest souls to His Glory.

THE TWO BEARS

There are two bears that should have a place in the life of every Christian: Bear and Forbear. Many times our fellowmen injure us, sometimes intentionally, sometimes unintentionally. Someone has asked the question, "What should my attitude be toward personal injury on the part of either my friends or my enemies?" The answer is to be found in the Word: Luke 23:34; Mark 11:25, Rom. 12:19; Matt. 18:22, Luke 17:4; Matt. 6:15, Jas. 2:13; Matt. 18:23-35.

BIBLE PRESCRIPTION . . .

The Bible is God's apothecary shop. Here are prescriptions for:

Care: "Be careful for nothing."

Doubt (as to doctrine): "If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine," etc.

Doubt (as to duty): "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God."

Fear: "Perfect love casteth out fear."

Greed: "Seek first the kingdom of God," etc.

Pride: "Be clothed with humility."

Lust: "Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh."

Selfishness: "He that loveth his life shall lose it," etc.

Ambition: "Seekest thou great things for thyself? Seek them not."

Anger: "Let all anger be put away from among you."

Heartache: "He bindeth up the broken heart."
—War Cry.

"Admonish the Disorderly" (I Thess. 5:14 R.V.). Inasmuch as this is a command, we dare not disobey. We looked up the word here translated 'disorderly' ('unruly' in the King James) and here is what we found:

Ataktos—"Disorderly, out of the ranks (often so of soldiers) Out of order, especially not in battle order; not in one's place in battle, hence taking no part in the war Undisciplined, disorderly, unbridled."—Waterloo Ch. Bulletin.

How About It?

"No one does his duty until he has done his best."

This does not sound like "historic Brethrenism" to me. The National Statistician of the conference which met recently in Ashland reported to that body that only 29 churches out of 97 reporting held regular mid-week prayer meetings. Think of it, out of a total of 16,590 members, only 722, or one-half of one percent attending each week, this most important service of the church. Brethren, we have a feeling that more time in prayer meetings and less time in legal conferences is the need of God's people in these perilous times. Yes, it's something to think about—and then we ought to act! Amen? Amen! (L.P.).

"Stir me, oh, stir me, Lord, till prayer is pain.
Till prayer is joy—till prayer turns into praise!
Stir me till heart and mind and will—yea, all—
Is wholly Thine, to use through all the days.
Stir till I learn to pray exceedingly:
Stir till I learn to wait expectantly."

Do It Today!

CHRIST

Christ, the altogether lovely!
I can find no word to tell
All the wondrous, matchless beauty
Of that One I love so well.
O. how marvellous Thy mercy!
O, how great Thy loving heart!
'Twas boundless love that made Thee
Such grace to me impart.

Looking at the earth six days in the week, let us take one day to look up and get our bearings.

THE MISSIONARIES' MOST DIFFICULT PROBLEM

Missionaries' children educated at home do not, as a rule, make missionaries. Missionaries' children educated on the field almost invariably become missionaries." Thus there is an exceedingly timely and important article appearing in this issue of The Brethren Missionary Herald and coming from the pen of our beloved Dr. Florence Newberry Gribble, who, but recently, departed for glory and whose body now sleeps beside that of her husband on the soil they loved so well. If our Lord shall tarry and mighty changes shall sweep over the great negro population of French Equatorial Africa, the names of James and Florence Gribble will be hallowed names in the minds of the people whose lives they blessed.

Perhaps there is no message left us from the pen of Dr. Gribble that she would rather we would print and scatter abroad over the church once more than this message dealing with the greatest problem facing missionaries to whom God has given little children.

Let this sentence sink down once again into our minds and let it never be forgotten, "Missionaries' children educated at home do not, as a rule, make missionaries. Missionaries' children educated on the field almost invariably become missionaries." No one who knows a real missionary can doubt but that one of the deepest desires of a missionary is that his children shall follow in his steps and continue to make Christ known to a lost world. The conclusion of Mrs. Gribble was not made in haste, but only after a life study of missionary problems and of missionary experience. We must accept it as being true and being true it certainly presents not only to the Foreign Board, but to the entire church, a tremendous task. It would seem to us that if this statement stands the test of absolute truth, we should face the issue squarely. That means we are facing our bounden duty in providing the necessary funds, equipment, and teachers to educate the children of our missionaries on the fields. Mrs. Gribble sets forth "the remedy." It is not necessary for us to repeat it here. Read it elsewhere. After reading it, let us think and let us pray and may God give us the wisdom and the courage necessary to face this task also.

FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES CONDEMNED BY BAPTISTS

Inasmuch as our own National Fellowship of Brethren Churches has several times exposed and warned against giving any support to the so-called "Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America," it will be interesting to know the stand that has been taken by the Arizona Baptist Convention, and all the more so since this convention is not made up of independent Baptist churches, but Baptist churches that are still "in affiliation with the Northern Baptist Convention." We thank God that the Arizona Baptists have their eyes wide open as is indicated by the following circular latter we recently received from the President of the Arizona Baptist Convention, which we print in toto:

ARIZONA BAPTIST CONVENTION

In Affiliation with the Northern Baptist Convention

R. C. Kaster, president, 827 No. 9th St., Phoenix, Arizona.

John Milton Newsom, Th.D., Executive Secretary, 407 First National Bank Building, Phoenix, Arizona.

L. W. Coggins, Treasurer, Phoenix, Arizona.

June 10, 1942.

Dear brethren:

Arizona Baptists have just observed the fiftieth session of the Arizona Baptist Convention. We met this year with the First Church of Prescott, May 6-9th. It was a memorable gathering with the evident blessing of God upon the people.

Among many fine things accomplished was a constitutional amendment wherein the convention repudiated all connection through the Northern Baptist Convention with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. This action was carried by unanimous vote and without the slightest dissention in discussion on the motion. As a result of this amendment the State Board and the Executive Secretary will be governed accordingly in their administration of the affairs of the convention.

Too long has our convention been embarrassed by the Federal Council with its socialistic, communistic, pacifistic and modernist tendencies.

As President of this great Convention, I wish to take this opportunity to highly commend our churches and our Baptists throughout the state in feeling that in this crucial hour they could no longer be linked up

MINISTRY OF WOMEN ON FOREIGN FIELDS

This problem was again faced by the Foreign Board this year, even as it is continually faced by our missionaries on the fields. We desire to call special attention once again to the decision of the Board in this matter, which appears in the "Minutes of General Interest" on page 11. Without question, the woman missionary on our foreign fields must assume greater authority over the native church than she would assume over a church in the homeland. "Circumstances alter cases." We believe that every woman missionary we have on the field, and we think we know them well, has no desire except to be within the perfect will of God concerning her. Perhaps if our young men at home could have a greater vision of the foreign field and its tremendous opportunities, there wouldn't be so great need of women assuming authority upon the foreign fields and over the native churches, but as long as we are compelled to man our churches largely with women, as seems the case on all foreign fields, we must not limit them in authority when such action would certainly be to the detriment of our work. Most assuredly the Scriptures give to women the right to tell the story of redempion to all the children of men without regard to sex. However, the assuming of headship as belongs to a bishop or an elder is another matter. However, in handling this difficult question, it would seem that no sensible person would fail to realize that there is a difference between a church in the homeland and a church that is just being hewn out of the blackness, ignorance and superstition of heathenism. If our Lord shall tarry, the time doubtless will come when we must deal with the native church even as we deal with the church in the homeland—but that time is not yet.

THEY GO TOGETHER

"Bottles and rags! Bottles and rags!" called the ragman.

"Why do you always put these words together?" asked a passerby.

"Because, madam," said the ragman, courteously touching his hat, "Wherever you find bottles you find rags."—Woman's Journal.

They Are Off Once Again!

Elder Williams

Probably no missionaries whom our Society ever sent to the field have gone through greater trials and tribulations than Brother and Sister Robert S. Williams. It is to be remembered that nearly eighteen months ago they boarded the ill-fated SS Zamzam and, instead of landing in Africa or at the bottom of the sea, were finally cast by a German ship of war on the French coast and, much against their wills, were compelled to return to the United States.

Ever since they landed back in the United States, they have been engaged in preparing themselves for still greater service in the great dark continent. Likewise, they have unceasingly battered at the doors that seemed to be irrevokably closed against them. They simply wearied the listeners on the other side of the doors until both State Department and steamship companies heard their pleas and yielded. While we must keep faith with the authorities and at the present time reveal absolutely nothing concerning their ship, time of sailing, time of arrival, etc., we can say that some of these days in the not distant future we shall be able to announce the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Williams on our African field, there to relieve some of the very much overworked missionaries who have refused to leave the front line until reinforcements arrived.

In a time when foreign mission boards everywhere are declaring it is impossible to get missionaries, and especially when lady missionaries are involved, across our dangerous seas, we are thankful that there is a God in the heavens Who is still able to accomplish the seemingly impossible when His children pray in faith believing.

Now let us besiege the powers that be, as well as Heaven above, to open the pathway for Brother and Sister Garner Hovt and Miss Ruth Snyder, who are likewise standing before the "closed doors," as missionaries are prone to call them these days. However, no door will refuse to open when once the hand of God lays hold of the knob. Keep on praying.

Mrs. Williams

The Education of Missionaries' Children

By FLORENCE NEWBERRY GRIBBLE, M.D.
—of the—
Oubangui-Chari Mission French Equatorial Africa

"She, being dead, yet speaketh."

Matt. 18:2: "And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them."
Mark 9:36-37: "And he took a child and set him in the midst of them, and when he had taken him in his arms he said unto them, Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me."

To the mission fields, earnest young men and consecrated young women are going forth. Behind them are lives of busy preparation; the memory of a tender, pleading call: the renunciation, not only of father, mother, brother, sister, and friends, but ofttimes of lover or sweetheart as well.

Dr. Gribble

On China's teeming plains, or Tibet's lofty plateaus, in Africa's jungle forests, they labor; and there is One Who loveth "to set the solitary in families," Who sees to it that they labor not alone. Sometimes upon the young girl, a sweet companion of her own sex is bestowed; sometimes, to the young man a chum is given. Often, however, love finds its way on the mission fields, as lover woos sweetheart, and that experience to which every young man looks forward, of which every girl dreams—marriage—is the result.

And then a home is established on that mission center—that ideal home where woman's weakness is supplemented by man's strength, and where her sweetness complements his virile vigor.

But not yet is that home complete. And the two who so dearly love, and have been so closely united, long for the fruit of their love and union with a longing as simple and natural and sweet as though they were not missionaries.

And so, in answer to their prayer frequently yet unspoken, the Lord Jesus takes a little child and sets him in the midst—in the midst of that home, in the midst of that mission station, in the midst of that heathen tribe.

Thus we hesitate not to affirm that missionaries' children should be. We go further and affirm that they must be. No one has a better inheritance to give his child than he who has presented "his body a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is his reasonable service." The son of a preacher, says the writer of "The Fruit of the Family Tree," has ten times the opportunity to make his way in life than the son of a day-laborer has. The missionary blesses the world with his offspring.

Elaine Morrill, Donald Sheldon, Anne Kliever

But not alone is the missionary's child a potential force for righteousness in this world—he is an actual means of blessing to the natives among whom his parents labor. The attraction of a white child upon an isolated mission station, where only adults have hitherto been known, is far greater than can be estimated.

Such a child, the only white child at that time in all the Sangho-Mambeli region of the Moyen Congo, French Equatorial Africa, drew crowds to the mission and the sound of the gospel. They came for no other motive than to see her little white face with its flashing black eyes, and to admire her curlless golden hair.

Who can estimate the influence for Christ wielded by the six children of the saintly, and now sainted, Joseph Clark, born on the lower Congo?

Who can tell what the Frederickson children, born in Norway, France, or Congo, meant to their parents, their parents' colleagues and their neighbors, in those early years of their residence on the mission fields?

And what wonder?—were not these, and the children of other missionaries, consecrated even before their birth, to their parents' God, with the prayer that somewhere in His great harvest field they might be a blessing?

Yet need we defend the child in the midst when Jesus Himself has set him there? What matter if some who undoubtedly are His disciples rebuke us? Did they not rebuke Him too?

Matt. 19:13: "Then there were brought unto Him little children that He should put His hands on them and pray; and the disciples rebuked them.

14 But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

15 And he laid His hands on them and departed thence."

"CHILDREN TOSSED TO AND FRO"

The missionary's child must be educated; and where? The first six years of the child's life have passed happily on the mission field. But now the child is of school age, and though unconscious of the fact, presents a problem. Father and mother discuss it in brief intervals when the child sleeps or plays, oblivious of their presence. They speak in the hushed, strained tones, not of desire, but of necessity. There is no school in their remote district. Their child is perchance the only one; or if not the only one, at least the only one of school age.

Must he be educated there on the field alone? On most fields it is obvious that the curriculum of the native school is unsuitable for the missionary's child of different language, different nationality, different citizenship. The parents weigh the possibilities, scan the probabilities. What shall be their plan? Shall the mother teach the child on the field? In most cases this would be possible but not feasible. The mother is perhaps a physician, perhaps a nurse, perhaps a teacher in the native school. Or she may be an accountant, treasurer of a station or of the mission itself; for we must not forget in these days the truth of Paul Rader's statement that the foreign mission fields today are "manned with women." And so this plan is rejected. Both she and her child might as well go home, as for mother to try to teach her child upon the mission field. Shall she, then, do this? Again they weigh and ponder. Father then must remain alone. He will have no home, no home-maker, no such assistance as he has hitherto found in wife and child. And the wife herself rejects this. Someone perhaps might take her place in the care of her child; no one can replace the wife in her care of her husband. And the second plan is alike rejected.

There is a third. For a period of years the family can forsake the mission field, remain at home with the child or children until the education is completed, then return a united family. It is ideal, almost idyllic; but like most ideals, hard to realize. Who is going to take the missionary's place in this isolated region for twelve years at least? No one is clamoring for the position. This plan, too, is rejected.

And now the plan which they have foreseen but have refrained to voice, the plan which in mute agony they have all the time realized to be inevitable, they must at last face. It is the only way. The child must be educated at home. In some way that they know not, God will raise up care-takers, foster-parents for their child. They vaguely face problems but dimly realized—the reflex action on the child, the embittered heart, the worldly influences—all these things must affect the child. And there will be the agonizing loneliness of the mother heart throughout the years, the heart wrench for the missionary father. But through it all they must remember that "God is love."

And in the reaction that must come to suffering, they pray God that they, the parents, may bear the heavy load, and that the child's tender heart may be spared.

"I see nothing but a life of suffering before me," said one such missionary child. "Mother," said the same child, "didn't God call us to preach the gospel?" "Yes, my child," responded the mother. "Then why am I going home?" The parents break the alabaster box of ointment for themselves, and pour out the precious ointment at Jesus' feet (Mark 14:4). But, alas, it is broken, too, for the child. Has the child no part in the pouring out? May not the renunciation of the childish life be beyond the measure of grace to which he or she has yet attained?

God bless and reward the dear foster fathers and mothers who in sweet renunciation, care for children not their own, and do it for the Lord's sake. God bless them as they contend with the radio, and its sometimes insidious infiltrations. God bless them as they fight the flood of fiction overflowing from English and French school curriculums into homes hitherto pure.

For though the home may be pure, the school is not; and the missionary, who has wisely reckoned on the strength of the Christian home, has perhaps remembered Timothy, who in the story, "Mrs. Wiggs and the Cabbage Patch," would have no other home for little Gay, except the one with a little h.

But, because of the school, the missionary's child does not escape the claims of superstition, the influence of the rouge box, society make-ups, and cosmetics in general—if a girl.

If a boy, he still finds the glamor of worldliness in his greater freedom to attend the movies or perhaps the dance—and the prayers of the father, perhaps long since dead, are yet unanswered. And the prayers of the widowed mother must needs continue.

Where is the school-child, though a missionary's, who escapes the contamination of modern slang? Where is the girl, though a missionary's daughter, who retains her first shocked impression of the painted faces of civilized lands? "Mother, are those people heathen? Don't they know Jesus?" said a little girl from the mission field, on a street car laden with Hallowe'en rioters.

Yet, it is not the fault of the child that she loses the pureness of her English diction—not her fault that she calls conformity to the world being true to life.

She is still a Christian, even as she was in those days when she gave away her copy of "Little Jetts" to a small girl on the train, remarking calmly, "that child isn't saved! I am! She needs 'Little Jetts' more than I do!" Yet her school life has robbed her of much of her testimony.

The fault lies in the exclusion of the Bible from the public schools, and in the crowded curriculums which have a tendency to exclude its private study also in the home.

Shall this fault be overcome, or shall it lead into non-missionary vocations for the boys, non-missionary marriages for the girls? To my mind the danger is too great to repeat the experiment where it can be avoided, or to continue it where there is a way of escape. Missionaries' children educated at home do not as a rule make missionaries. Missionaries children educated on the field almost invariably become missionaries. Prayer will do much to overcome the evils of mal-education where it has been inevitable.

But there is a remedy—let us apply it.

The Remedy

Our missionaries' children are not becoming missionaries. What is the remedy? "Look at me, mother," said a little girl, whose mother was just leaving for Africa. "Just look at me the last one! Look at me as long as you can!" And the essence of the mother's sufferings was not in her own, but in her child's agony.

The preventive medicine for loss of missionary desire in those who have been consecrated to the Lord's service is education on the field of service. Why should a child be consecrated to a work, and then contra-educated for it? And this brings us to a central school for missionary children in each missionary district of sufficient size.

First of all, we must obtain for the children the most healthful conditions possible. In malarial districts, whether of Africa, India, China, or other lands, the Anopheles mosquito has a tendency to disappear with cultivation and increase of population.

The possibility of proper protection from the sun is another problem. In most tropical climes young children, as well as older ones, must be kept indoors from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M. Sun produces a toxemia—a poison to which, however, immunity may be fortunately acquired. A minimum exposure in the early days of the child's residence may be gradually increased until considerable tolerance has been acquired. Those who have once acquired sun-toxemia seek subsequent immunity in vain.

Then, on each field possessing a central school, there must be a missionary family possessing a sufficient degree of surrender, ("a double degree of consecration"), to enable them to be wholeheartedly willing to devote their whole time and service to the education of missionaries' children. This family need at first only have quarters with sufficient bedrooms to care for children who are boarders from other mission stations. Later the erection of a special academy building has been found feasible on some of our older mission fields. All these quarters must, of course, be screened; and where it is possible and feasible, verandas also should be screened. With these precautions, children who need not suffer the emergency exposures which come to adult workers may have even better health than their parents, and may even be spared some of the endemic and epidemic diseases of the homeland.

But not only must there be a competent family in charge of this work; there must also be teachers who are willing to forego the pleasure and joy of teaching the heathen, to teach the children of their fellow-missionaries. Those who are not missionaries will smile at this. Missionary readers will understand the intensity of joy amounting almost to glamor which results from all direct work with the heathen, and which makes indirect work a cross. Many a teacher has said, "Had it been my purpose to teach white children, I could have remained at home!"

I know of one extremely successful school which has solved the very great problem connected with a dearth of teachers in schools for missionaries' children, by requiring all teachers to serve one year of apprenticeship in such a school before being released to the desire of their hearts, the native schools. But it would seem that a better plan would be to pray for volunteer workers for these schools. What more beautiful than that they should come from the ranks of missionary children themselves!

And then there are the nurses, and the physicians as well, who will in time learn to think it as natural and necessary to care for children of school age as for the missionary babe.

The labor of caring for missionaries' children upon the field may be greatly lessened by cooperation. Older children may be taught to take pride and joy in teaching younger children; and, while not sharing in the actual nursing, they may be a great aid to the missionary doctor in assisting in the administration of preventive medicine.

The influence of a well-regulated school for missionaries' children is all for the good on the minds of the natives. The native learns by imitation; and a well-trained missionary child becomes a marvelous and natural leader of young native life. Indeed, the tendency to "boss" must be curbed in the missionary's child, so unquestioningly does the native child follow his leadership. Children will, however, follow their parents and teachers in this, and the missionary who is kind and deferential to the natives will find his children, or his pupils (as the case may be) following in his footsteps.

And thus the child who shares his parents' home, his parents' thought, his parents' problems, will eventually share his vocation.

This has been found markedly true when missionaries have been on deputation work in the homeland. "Tell them about the man-eating leopards, mamma," piped up a little girl of six as her mother paused in a missionary address.

"We must speak American now," said a child to her mother, as she realized that her pure diction, acquired on the mission field, was but little understood by the small audiences habituated to slang, which she loved to gather around her.

"Many, many men believe in Jesus," a little child of three was accustomed to say in Sango, whenever she met a strange group of natives.

"I'll make the tune for you," said a little girl gifted in music, as she looked complacently up into the face of her doctor-mamma, to whom music was an unknown quantity. And she did; and the village service following the out-door dispensary went smoothly on!

The experiences of the mission field inculcate early in life not only the theory, but the practice of piety.

A missionary's child was endangered by passing traffic as she fell from a bus while dismounting. "Praise the Lord you weren't injured," said the mother, as they reached the pavement in safety. "Mamma," replied the child bravely, "if the trucks had run over me, and if all my bones had been broken, I would have wanted you to say, 'Praise the Lord' anyway!" How often on the mission field she had heard these words fall from her father's lips in times of testing!

Review them if you will—these suffering children, tossed to and fro—and tell me if you find a child, separated from both parents for its education, who does not pass through a temporary or permanent period of indifference as to missionary desire.

Witness the Clarks, the Fredericksons, and others. Review those other children, educated on the mission field; and see them flocking back to the field of their parent's choice, impelled by a strong desire—not by necessity—to follow in their parents' footsteps, or to share their vocation.

Witness the famous Westervelt family—including the Barnetts, Davis, Stauffachers, etc.

Witness the Hurlburt family, every one of whom became a missionary. Witness the Downing sons; and tell me, if you will, how great is the total percentage who become foreign missionaries.

Does not our Lord Jesus have a reason when he sets a child in the midst on foreign fields?

News from Brethren CHURCHES

Sunday night, September 20th, brought to a close our third Prophetic Bible conference with Dr. V. C. Kelford as speaker. The week began with Dr. Kelford speaking at the Men's Fellowship of the Church as they gathered for a dinner meeting just before the evening public service. Services were held each night throughout the week with challenging, and timely messages each evening. The attendance was not as large as hoped for, but a number of our people are kept away by present day working hours. The average attendance for the week was 108. However, a splendid spirit prevailed and a large number of the congregation each night was made up of friends and visitors outside the membership of the church. Many of these, as well as members, expressed their appreciation for the spiritual and scriptural program of the church and its stand on the Bible as the only hope for the world at war. Dr. Kelford won many new friends and listeners by his clear, interesting and positive presentations of the Word.

Thursday night was Grace Seminary night beginning with a Rally-Banquet reported elsewhere in the Herald and continuing with the public service to follow. We pray God's richest blessings on Dr. Kelford as he continues from coast to coast and the doors of the Peru Church are always open to his ministry.

In His Grace,

NEWS ITEM

In the town of Three Oaks, Mich., stands a little brick building, unpretentious but attractive and comfortable, that contains a group of Christians who are still rejoicing in God's rich blessing upon the evangelistic services conducted by Rev. Henry G. Rempel from Sept. 6 thru Sept. 11, 1942.

Many of the people that constituted a part of the excellent attendance that prevailed through-out the meetings, rejoiced to hear the "old-fashioned" gospel preached in simplicity, with conviction, and in the power of the Holy Spirit. And with equal joy they received the messages of the "squeeze-box" and the flannelgraph stories. One little girl in describing the flannelgraph to her family joyfully exclaimed, "The man down at the church pastes pictures on the wall without any glue!" It takes a child to say it, doesn't it?

"Children's Church," which immediately preceded the regular adult service, resulted in a total enrollment of seventy-nine children with ten decisions for Christ. Undoubtedly, the excellent adult attendance can be attributed in part, at least, to the enthusiastic response of the children who advertized the meetings in the home by tugging at mother's skirts with the cry, "Let's go see the man at the church tonight, Mama!"

The church (which is not Brethren, but of the Christian denomination) is praising our Lord and Savior for the good work of Brother Rempel but, of course, the ultimate praise belongs unto the Lord himself, and unto Him it is ascribed.

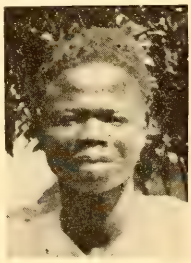
ANNUAL REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF

Bozoum-Bassai and Bemiller Fields

Year of May 1, 1941 to April 30, 1942

J. P. KLIEVER, Sup't.



"As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God. If any man speak,, let him speak as the oracles of God. If any man minister, let him do it as of the ability (strength) which God giveth;

That God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen. 1 Pet. 4:10-11.

As the year came to a close, we had taken our Field Superintendent, Rev. O. D. Jobson and his wife, to Bangui in order that they might take their furlough. We were sorry to see them go, but felt that it was of God, especially since new re-enforcements were on the way. So our hopes were fairly high, and a large program was laid out for this section of the field, as four of the out-coming missionaries were for this section.

The first part of May, Noel, one of two of our ordained elders in this field, left for a trip through one section of the field. He baptised believers at 5 points and held communion services at two, besides preaching and teaching along the way.

A few days after Noel's departure, John, the other elder, left for another section, baptising believers and holding communion services in three different centers.

I also left to see the Catechistes, gathering them at the different centers, sandwiching my visits in between theirs. That gave me the occasion to make clear to the Catechistes that Brother Jobson and I had exactly the same end in mind, and that they were not to think they were now starting to work for someone else, but that they were still as always to consider theirs, the work as "Stewards of the manifold grace of God, that God in all things might be glorified."

After seeing all but one little group, I further took on the joy of going into the Laka tribe. I had only been in this field once before about 4 months ago. I had found believers here and there that had been to other places, and like Priscilla and Aquila, they had gone back home with the tidings of salvation. It was a real joy to come back, and instead of seeing little altars to idols here and there, to be confronted boldly with the "sticks of God." (Sticks of God are the logs about 6 inches in diameter and 8 to 9 feet long, laid somewhat parallel on the ground, furnishing seating for those who come to hear the Word of God.) I ran over into June just a wee bit on this trip and came home with a little bit of a guilty conscience at having delayed the book-keeping and report work for a few days!

June:—Arriving at Bassai just before reaching home I heard news that almost unbalanced the joy of the past few days. A boat by the name of "Zam Zam" had been sunk! I immediately asked all I could get in touch with, as to what they had heard via radio. It was fully substantiated. We, of course, anxiously waited to hear the outcome. Would they continue on out to the Field, or would they have to go back home?

Finally most of the missionaries came to the conclusion that the news was true, and it was time for the planned Executive meeting in which we were to make final arrangements about the new party! Just before going to Bouca, John, the Elder at Bassai held another baptismal service at Baloa.

Somehow, the fellow-missionaries were judging my ability by my size, and they thought that Bible School should be kept, and at Bozoum. The thought of it almost staggered me, and then the thought of comfort came, "Let him do it as of the ability (strength) which God giveth." Thus we made ready to go to Bouca for the meeting.

July:—On arriving at Bouca we found the news that the missionaries were all back in America except the Williamses who were due in a few days.

After the Bouca meeting it was found necessary to convey some of the missionaries to Bangui for dental care. I, of course, was the chauffeur.

We rush and hurry back in time to start the Bible School on schedule.

August:—Bible School is in full swing! Burning the lantern at both ends, relying on the above mentioned strength, we went from blessing to blessing in the School. I am sure I got a whole lot more out of it than the students. This was one of the richest months of the year. Toward the end of the month, John baptised at Bassai.

September—Palaver Month! It never rains but what it pours. This month was almost the low-level. News came of the fall or desertion of several Catechistes and aide-catechistes. Trouble also at Bekoro after a forced missionary absence of 4 months. But all is well that ends well, and after a quick trip to Bekoro, and at the same time taking a quick look at the Chapels, we got back to Bozoum to continue with the Bible School. I must add here, that Noel, the Elder at Bozoum, was a real aid in the Bible School work. He taught several courses and carried the burden of keeping the student body content and working together. He did a real work in a fine Christian manner showing forth a devotion and love for the work that was really heart-warming.

October:—Dr. Taber had been waving a red flag, saying there was danger at Bozoum, the Klievers were playing out ! ! ! ! At the same time news came that three tons of supplies were waiting the Freight Agent, yours truly. That meant customs declarations and trucking, involving another trip to Bangui.

In the midst of this, orders came from Field Headquarters at Bouca, that we must take a month off. I have been accused of many things in my young life, but open disobedience to orders has very seldom been hinted at; hence we went. I was sure that Noel would be able to carry on after seeing him work.

Taking Miss Crawford, who had now closed French School at Bassai, to Bellevue, we continued on to Bouca. After 3 weeks of rest and wonderful fellowship with Brother and Sister Foster (Mom and Pop to the Klievers) we left for Bangui to take care of the job awaiting. While at Bangui we got word that the Kennedy-Emmert-Byron party was at Leopoldville. We immediately closed up our bags and took what we had finished to Bozoum, leaving the rest for the return trip to bring back our most welcome reenforcements.

December:—John starts on another trip, holding communion service where he had not been able to hold them before, due to rains and seasonal difficulties.

We finish up our business at Bangui, taking Miss Crawford to her boat leaving for America for furlough. On arriving at Bozoum we find Miss Myers doctoring up the rest of my family. They had all come down with fever. Miss Myers was about all in, and Freda was still in bed. At the sight of the arrivals, she almost immediately arose and walked. I would like to think it was my presence, but I am sure it was the joy of seeing Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Byron again!

We have a yellow fever scare, and all of us are asked to take the inoculations against it. All survived the treatment; there seems to be nothing to taking it. The disease itself is certainly nothing to play with. Thus ended our month of December after a happy time of fellowship and a Christmas with presents, thanks to the arrival of the party.

January:—The month before Field Council Meeting! Bassai was in need of an oven to make possible the preparation of the good things planned by the Entertainment Committee.

This month we also had the blessing of the Dunnings agreeing to give us a Bible Conference for the native Christians and workers near Bassai.

After this, Brother and Sister Foster came to visit with us in preparation for Conference and also to visit the other Stations. Brother Foster and I went to see Bemiller Station after which he and Mrs. Foster went to Yaloke. The rest of the month was spent in preparation for the Council Meeting.

"He gathered the people together in the evening and preached Jesus to them."

February:—After a blessed time at Field Council as to messages and fellowship, and a hard time as to finding enough hours in a day for all the things planned, we were glad to return to our various Stations for a breath or two!

The rest of the month was spent in taking care of after-Conference business and getting ready for a season of itinerating.

March:—In March we found a way to respond to a call from a Mining Camp not far from here. We went to look over the prospects and to send a worker there on week-ends. We also re-opened a chapel point that had been deserted by the worker.

We took a survey trip to see all the chief workers about preparing for a season of Bible Conferences. One section of the field was unaccessible due to the precautions against infantile paralysis. The evening of my return to Bozoum brought word that Dr. Gribble was near death.

In the death of Dr. Gribble, the work lost another soldier-ess of the Lord. Other pens have and will write this up in a manner worthy of her life.

The two Bible Conferences held on the last part of the trip were very encouraging as to interest, and we trust will be, as to continuing results. This should have been mentioned in order before the death of Dr. Gribble.

April:—The last month of our field year is upon us. After the burial services for Dr. Gribble, we went to Bekoro to get Mrs. Kennedy's things so that she could help with the work at Bellevue where Dr. Gribble had been. We took this occasion to hold a short Bible Conference among the Kabba.

After placing Mrs. Kennedy at Bellevue with her household goods, I continued with the Bible Conferences. As an introduction to the Conference at Baibokoum, I placed three Catechistes in the Laka tribe. I was again thrilled with the apparent progress that the work has made in this tribe.

After a Bible Conference at Baibokoum combined with a baptismal service and the Love Feast, we went to Kounang and placed a Catechiste in that district.

Motion prevailed that we appoint a committee to reconsider Resolution No. 44, as quoted below, and give it careful study, giving further interpretation or clarification as to the matter of the position and ministry of women relative to the indigenous church in Africa.

"44. Certain Biblical Problems in Africa (From the Minutes of the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society, June 4, 1937).

Inasmuch as there have been some differences of opinion among our missionaries on the African Field, touching the questions of the 'prayer covering' as is set forth in I Cor. 11:1-16, and with regard to the relation of Christian natives who have not been baptized by trine immersion; and with regard to the ministry of women; THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the African Field Council be notified that it is the decision of our Board.

1. That men only are eligible for eldership in the church; but, we hold that women have the God-given right to 'preach', in the New Testament sense of bearing witness of Christ for the purpose of winning the lost; that women did 'prophesy' and 'preach' in the meetings of the early church where men must have been present (I Cor. 1:1-2), else the question of the 'covering' would not have been raised at all (I Cor. 11:1-16. The prohibition in I Tim. 2:12, qualified by the words 'over the man', must be understood in the light of the whole of the New Testament teaching touching the ministry of women; and, therefore, this passage refers, we hold, to asserting authority over the authorized teaching elders in defining dogmatically and officially the system of doctrine to be taught by the church.

2. That, in the matter of the 'covering' referred to in I Cor. 11:1-16, the Board recognizes that there may be an honest difference of opinion as to its character—whether the artificial covering or the natural hair, or both, and for this reason the Brethren Church has declared against the ecclesiastical imposition of any set rule as binding upon the whole church and its servants. Furthermore, regardless of the individual conscience upon this matter, the Board must insist that even the head, in his teaching on this point, must be careful not to introduce disunity, and thus set a bad example to the native church.

3. That it is the sense of the Board that every missionary, regardless of other activities, should surely have the largest possible opportunity for teaching and preaching the gospel, for thereunto they have been sent.

4. That, in the ministry of prayer, it is the earnest desire of the Board that regular and stated prayer meetings shall be conducted by the missionaries, and that every liberty must be given in the matter of prayer in any prayer meeting, regardless of the sex of the person leading.

5. That, in the matter of the authority of an elder, when he has been officially placed by the Board at the head of a work, or if he has been officially placed by the Field Mission Council at the head of any work, such authority must be recognized by all missionaries connected with said stations as long as said elder himself does not depart from the recognized rules and practices, doctrines and ordinances of the Brethren Church, nor from the decisions of The Foreign Missionary Board of Trustees, which also strives to make its decisions in harmony with the rules and practices, doctrines and ordinances of the Church. The Board feels that the New Testament scriptures themselves clearly define the authority of an elder in spiritual matters; and, while the Board calls the serious attention of all missionaries to their duty of being submissive to the authority of the elder, who, under Christ, is the head of the Church on earth, it also wishes to call the attention of all elders to the exhortation of the Holy Spirit in I Peter 5:1-3: 'The elders which are among you I exhort: feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof . . . not as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock.'

6. That, in the matter of receiving into communion native Christians who have not been baptized by trine immersion, it is the sense of the Board that our missionaries should receive at all times, wholeheartedly, into their spiritual fellowship all believers whom they believe have been born again and are dwelling in Christ; but, it is the sense of the Board that such fellowship shall, in no sense, be considered as a membership in the organization of the Brethren Church, nor should any of the official privileges of membership be extended to non-members of the Brethren Church."

65. Dorothy Wolf Application

Motion prevailed that we look with favor upon the application of Miss Dorothy Wolf and encourage her in further preparation for the field.

66. Committee on Conference Appeals Representative

Motion prevailed that C. W. Mayes be the representative from this Board on the Committee on Financial Appeals.

69. Vote of Thanks to Balzers

Motion prevailed that we extend a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Balzer for coming back to this Board meeting from California at their own expense.

70. Balzer Applications

Motion prevailed that we look with favor upon the applications of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Balzer, which applications are to be turned in formally; and suggest that they attend Grace Theological Seminary for further preparation.

71. Committee on Minute No. 44, 1937

Motion prevailed that the report of the committee on Resolution No. 44 be received. (Report is quoted, as follows:)

"Regarding Minute No. 44 contained within the Minutes of the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church at its meeting on June 4, 1937, and touching 'Certain Biblical Problems in Africa', the Board wishes to clarify any misconceptions that may have arisen in the minds of our missionaries in service in Africa, or of the candidates still in the homeland.

In the passage of the Resolution contained in Minute No. 44, referred to above, it is hereby explained that the Board of Trustees when passing this resolution did not have in mind in any sense the native; but it had in mind the relation between our duly appointed missionaries, (male and female) and not between our missionaries (male and female) and the members, official or otherwise, of the native African Congregation.

The Board wishes to remind the African Field Council and all missionaries under its direction in Africa that, in the case of white women missionaries who have been ordained and sent out by the Board, the Scriptures are not to be interpreted in a way that will place a native elder in authority over them in any way. The woman who has been ordained by the Board as its missionary and ambassador to the natives of Africa must be regarded as a personal representative of the Foreign Missionary Society and its Board of Trustees. Over her, only the Field Superintendent or a duly appointed white American elder may exercise official headship. Over all must be recognized the authority of the elders who compose the Board of Trustees in the homeland who have been appointed and authorized by the Brethren churches in America to carry on the work of making known the Gospel to the natives of Africa. The woman missionary, therefore, is not without the man as her head, even as the elders in supreme command are not without their head, even the Lord Jesus Christ. 'That in all things He might have the preeminence' (Col. 1:18).

The woman missionary, ordained as a missionary and sent forth by the Board, must certainly be recognized as occupying a higher and different position from the women of the native church. While the day may come when the native church may be recognized as having greater authority within itself, the Board does not believe that the African Church has yet developed to the place where we can think of the native woman as being on a par with the American woman missionary. However, in the native church the relation between members and elders should be the same as is the relation between members and elders in our churches in the homeland.

BE IT RESOLVED that this ruling of the Board shall be considered part and parcel of Minute No. 44 of the Minutes of the Board passed on June 4, 1937, and again submitted to all our missionaries as being the order of the Board in this important matter.

It is to be hoped that all of our missionaries will conform to this order. The Board does not wish to regiment the mind of any missionary. If any missionary feels that he or she is out of harmony with this order or does not clearly understand the intent of it, he should report this fact to the officers of the Board, and immediately confer with them."

72. Explanation to Missionaries on Field

Motion prevailed that the explanation, as presented by the committee on Resolution No. 44, be sent to each of the missionaries on the African Field.

73. Explanation to Missionaries at Home and Applicants

Motion prevailed that the explanation of Resolution No. 44 be presented to all missionaries at home and to all applicants.

74. Resolution for S. A.

Motion prevailed that between now and our next annual Board Meeting a resolution similar to Resolution No. 44 be drawn up to conform to our work in South America.

The Board interviewed Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Sheldon, Garner Hoyt (who also spoke in behalf of his wife) and Miss Ruth Snyder, all of whom agreed to conform, without reservation, to Resolution No. 44 and the additional clarification thereof.

75. Thanks to Hotel

Motion prevailed that the Secretary be asked to convey a vote of thanks to the Westminster Hotel for the use of their rooms for our Board meetings.

76. Adjournment

Motion prevailed to adjourn the meeting of the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church.

PRAYER OF A TIRED CHURCH WORKER (?)

Oh, Lord, I come to Thee in prayer once more:
But pardon if I do not kneel before
Thy gracious presence, for my knees are sore
With so much walking. In my chair instead
I'll sit at ease and humbly bow my head.
I've labored in Thy vineyard, Thou dost know:
I've sold ten tickets to the minstrel show;
I've called on fifteen strangers in our town,
Their contributions to our church put down;
I've baked a pot of beans for Saturday's spree,
An old-time supper it is going to be;
I've dressed three dolls, too, for our annual fair,
And made a cake which we must raffle there.
Now, with Thy boundless wisdom, so sublime,
Thou knowest that these duties all take time.
I have no time to fight my spirit's foes;
I have no time to mend my husband's clothes;
My children roam the streets from morn till night—
I have no time to teach them to do right.
But Thou, O Lord, considering all my cares,
Wilt count them righteous, also heed my prayers.
Bless the bean supper and the minstrel show,
And put it in the hearts of all to go;
Induce the visitors to patronize
The men who in our program advertise,
Because I've chased these merchants till they hid
Whene'er they saw me coming; yes, they did.
Increase the contributions to our fair
And bless the people who assemble there.
Bless Thou the grab-bag and the gypsy tent,
The flower table and the cake that's sent.
May our whist club be to our service blest,
The dancing party gayer than the rest.
And when Thou hast bestowed these blessings, then
We pray that Thou wilt bless our souls. Amen.

REPORT OF BOZOUM-BASSAI AND BE-MILLER FIELDS

We also held Communion there and then went on to Bocaranga for another Bible Conference.

I hope to write these Conferences up in a little more detailed manner later. After the work at Bocaranga, I had again borrowed some of another month's time! So I had to hurry home to make out monthly and annual reports!

Again, we must say as we look back; certainly the Lord has kept His Word, He has given the strength, and we trust that it has and will all be to the Glory of God.

I probably should have named this, "High Points in the Superintendent's Diary for Bozoum-Bassai-Bemiller."

I will make a more systematic mention of the status of the work in an accompanying sheet. As I have said, this is more in form of a diary than a report, but I thought it would give you all an idea of what had happened. I am sorry Bassai work has been so little mentioned, but I asked in vain for a word to accompany this, and we have been too busy to visit with each other to see what the other fellow was doing!

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest to send laborers."

I am sorry that the report is so scant and incomplete, but we were obliged to allow many things to fall into native hands, and records suffered as a result.

How we wish that there would be some way in which our strength and time would give us more opportunity to write to you in the homeland, that you may rejoice with us in the victories seen, and to share with you our defeats that you might the more intelligently pray with us.

As ever, your brother in Africa,
J. Kliever.

Pondo Sees the Light

CHAPTER 8

A Continued Story Written for Our Boys and Girls By MISS MARY EMMERT, Missionary in Africa

AN AFRICAN FUNERAL

Pondo had received his first lesson about the goodness of God from the guard's wife. At nearly the same time, his father, Koly, was receiving a different idea of God from Toulougou, the guard, himself. In their long talks in the evenings he had learned many things about the white man, and a little about the white man's God.

"There were some white people of God where I came from," the guard told him one day.

"What is their affair like?" asked Koly.

"I did not hear much of it," Toulougou replied, "but I know they say one must not drink beer, nor gamble, nor steal. And a child of God must have only one wife."

"That is a bad affair," decided Koly. "My father taught us not to steal, but this affair of not drinking beer, nor taking more than one wife is foolishness."

"Not many of your tribe have been taught not to steal," remarked his friend.

"That's true," admitted Koly. "But old Sambey will not look upon stealing either. Did you never see that little boy with his ear cut off? Sambey cut if off to cure him of stealing."

"Did it really cure him?"

"No. I don't suppose it did. But at least it brands him as a thief, so everyone can watch out for him." Koly and his friend laughed and clapped each other's hand, as though this was very funny.

"I have yet to hear of any way to cure a thief," was Koly's comment. "Why does not some medicine man make medicine to take away the hunger for stealing out of a man's heart?" he added thoughtfully.

"Oh, medicine men! They never really cure anyone, but they kill plenty. They deceive us to get our money. But then, they come in handy to make people obey, too." Toulougou fingered the fancy leather charms hanging on his chest. They were flat little blocks of wood, neatly covered with tooled leather. "I got these charms from the Mohammedans," he added. "Their power is greater than that of the ordinary sorcerers. So everyone is afraid to disobey me."

The two men had lowered their voices, for it was not very safe to scoff at the sorcerers or to make light of their power. Many a man, under similar circumstances, had had a dose of poison slipped into his food.

Koly mechanically prodded the fire. "You know," he said slowly, "when my father died, he burned all his magic. He was a medicine man, but he said that he did not want his sons to learn the trade. He left us charms to protect us, of course, but he burned his things for divining. I have often wondered why."

"That is strange," said the guard. "Perhaps he knew it was a very bad affair."

They were still discussing all angles of this queer action of Koly's father, when they saw Pondo making toward the campfire around which they were sitting. He was exhausted from what had evidently been a long hurried trip. Koly looked at him anxiously. "What is the news?" he asked.

"Kogara is very sick," answered Pondo.

"Kogara sick? She was all right the day before yesterday when I left the village. What is the matter with her?"

"She has a very great pain inside her," said his son. "She went to work as usual this morning in her garden, but at noon she came home very sick. She is moaning and groaning a great deal. We sent for Gafo, the sorcerer, and I came for you."

Koly arose. "I must go at once," he said to the guard, partly by way of asking permission, and partly as a statement of fact. Toulougou grunted assent. "Go well," he added. "Pondo can take your sleeping mat after you tomorrow when he is rested."

"By the time that Pondo returned to the village the next day, he found everyone much excited. "Your father's first wife is dead," they told him as he passed along. Pondo could scarcely believe it. He found his father sitting in stunned silence. A small crowd had gathered around and were raising the usual hubbub, chanting the responses to Nana's wild plaints in the approved style. But Koly was clearly brooding over something. He looked desperate. Pondo had never seen him that way. Nor did he find out what it was all about then.

He joined the group of wailing ones gathered around the still form of Kogara, lying on the one mat in her house. From little up he had been accustomed to the death wail, and had often mimicked it in his play. But now it had come to his father's house, and he joined in it, as if by instinct. Death was horrible. He wanted to flee from it, but he could not. All day they mourned. The air in the hut was stifling, for everyone was packed inside that could possibly crowd in, and the rest were close around the door on the narrow little porch that encircled the house.

They were hot and dusty, but no one went to the stream to bathe. Their tear-streaked faces and continuous wailing bore witness to their ever-losing fight with death. Finally someone reported that the grave was dug, so two of Koly's relatives picked up the body and carried it out of the house, followed closely by the little band of mourners. Nana shrieked louder than ever, redoubling her efforts to show her grief. Koly followed numbly, his head lowered, his hands locked behind his neck. They came to the freshly dug hole. The body was doubled up, so as to fit in the short space, and lowered in without ceremony. The cold clods soon covered the cold, stiff body.

Koly, who had stood by in stony, bitter silence, suddenly aroused, uttered a terrible shriek, and then sobbed out his grief in a flood of tears. His relatives joined in with him; the bystanders looked on curiously.

WORD FROM GRACE SEMINARY ALUMNI FIELD REPRESENTATIVE

It so happened, or did it happen that we were in a Bible Conference with Rev. Robert Ashman and the saints at Peru, when we received an invitation from Acting President Hoyt, to speak at Convocation? I'll never forget it!

The largest enrollment so far, and the spiritual enthusiasm is rising higher and higher. Perhaps, they saw that we needed a "shot in the arm" and that is why they asked us to come and imbibe some of the overflow. Anyhow, we thank God for the privilege.

It was an inspiration to see the faculty going down before God, and rising to the great task of carrying on in the absence of Dr. McClain. A seriousness and yet a holy joy, seemed to pervade the entire Seminary family. The Lord has made it possible for us to see the intimate life of a number of Christian schools, but the Brotherhood has cause to thank God that nowhere in all our travels, have we observed a more marked evidence of Christian consecration and divine blessing than obtains at Grace Seminary this year.

After classes our junior professor, John Aeby, invited us to lunch. Incidentally Joann is attending classes. They have just arrived at Winona Lake; the furniture is topsy turvy, and the paper-hanger has the run of the place. Personally, it didn't matter what the house looked like since we were getting a free meal, but you can imagine what Mrs. John looked like to find "Bob" and me waiting to be fed when she arrived from classes. We, that is Rev. Robert and I, had a lovely time, but we tremble to think of the kind of a time Rev. John had after we'd left. Let me see, what's the first line of that song which goes . . . "The trumpet sound is ringing out, the cry to arms is heard afar and near?"

—Dr. V. C. Kelford.

GRACE SEMINARY ALUMNI RALLY AT PERU

We are indeed glad to report that the first Grace Theological Seminary Alumni Association rally of the 1942-1943 season was a success. It was held at the First Brethren Church, Peru, Ind., Thursday night September 17th, with the pastor, Rev. Robert A. Ashman, as master of ceremonies.

Dr. V. C. Kelford, the new Field Representative for the Alumni Association, and who during the week of September 14th thru 20th conducted a Prophetic Bible Conference in the above church, was the speaker at the Banquet Rally. He presented the projects which are being sponsored this year by the alumni, vis., providing the following for the Seminary: 1. adding machine, 2. hymn books, 3. a communion set. Cash and pledges, thru envelopes provided by the Alumni, received at the rally totaled $51.99 with indications of more to come in.

We were happy also to have a fine group in attendance from the Seminary itself. Prof Hoyt, acting president of the Seminary this year, spoke briefly about the seminary and reported a total enrollment to date of 51, which is the largest enrollment since the organization of the school. Truly the Lord has been blessing our Seminary and its leaders and student body. Special music for the rally was provided by an instrumental quartet from Winona. More than 100 friends of Grace Seminary were present at the rally. Prof. and Mrs. Homer Kent, Prof John Aeby were also present from the Seminary along with fourteen students. Rev. Vern Stuber represented his church from Sharpsville. Brother Wm. Schaffer and a number of Brethren from Berne expressed their intentions of coming but did not arrive and at the date of this writing we are still wondering why. So that the Brethren at Berne will not be as disappointed as we were, we have forwarded them a supply of Alumni Association offering envelopes.

A banquet was prepared and served by the ladies of the W.M.C. groups and the S.M.M. girls of the church. The tables were decorated in gold and white the Seminary colors, the gold representing the Diety of Christ and the white His purity. Cut flowers were placed on the tables and about the room.

It was a real evening of fellowship and we want to take this opportunity to encourage pastors and friends of Grace Seminary to schedule similar rallies with Dr. Kelford as he goes among our churches from coast to coast.

INTERESTING FACTS

Gleaned from Dr. Bauman's Message in the Conference

1. The war is costing $4,000,000,000 a month and will cost $6,000,000,000 a month by December.

2. If the war continues until 1944 it will cost our government $300,000,000,000.

3. The whole Civil War cost but $4,000,000,000.

4. 700,000 Jews were put to death in Poland alone

5. A Jew would be shot if seen walking on certain streets in Paris today.

"If the Christ-Life is there it will come out through the new glory on the face, and the tenderness of the touch, and the new love for everybody. The very best testimony that you can ever give to the power of Christ is to live His life over again, not in your own effort, but by the propulsion of that same life within you. 'For me to live is to reproduce Christ'."

A NEW RECIPE FOR KEEPING APPLES!

An editor says that apples may be kept two years by wrapping them in newspapers in such a way so as to exclude the air. The newspaper must, however, be one on which the subscription has been paid in full or the dampness resulting from the "due" will cause the fruit to spoil. (Better look right now and make sure that your subscription is expired, or soon will be.)

NEWS BRIEFS — From Our Workers

Word comes from our pastor, Rev. Phillip J. Simmons, Listie, Pa. He writes, "Much encouraged with the fine start with which we are getting off in this our new field. Attendance and response fine thus far. Wednesday evening the folk gave us a grand reception. One hundred twenty-five present. The former pastor, Rev. H. W. Nowag, was equally honored at this same reception."

Rev. Thomas Hammers pastor of First Brethren Church, Tracy, California, writes that last Sunday they had 63 in Bible School attendance, this being the best attendance since May 24. Rev. Chas. Ashman, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Whittier, Calif., is going to be the evangelist in a campaign with Brother Hammers and his people in October. Brother Hammers requests prayer for these meetings.

The West 10th Street Brethren Church of Ashland is conducting two Bible courses under the direction of The Akron Bible Institute. Rev. Chas. Mayes is one of the faculty members of the institute and teaches one of the classes. The two courses offered are: "The Christian Doctrine of Salvation" and "The Book of Romans." Another faculty member from the Institute will assist Brother Mayes. "The first night the classes met there were 27 enrolled in each class, and more coming," writes Brother Mayes. Classes are held each Tuesday evening at 7:45 and 8:30.

Our church at Waynesboro, Pa., Rev. Robert Crees, pastor, reports that there were 86 public decisions in their children's revival which was conducted under the direction of Rae Serio. Many new homes opened up to the church as the result of this effort in soul-winning.

News flashes from 1st Brethren Church, Dayton, O. "Our new church looks pretty—I mean the new coat of paint," so writes Brother Barnard, the pastor of this up and going church. The whole church has been redecorated. The next job we are told, before the furnace is fired, is to be an insulation job. Plans are to insulate the ceiling of the main auditorium. Then they are going to fire up more ways than one. First fire up the furnace and then fire up the church in an old-fashioned revival meetin', beginning October 6th through October 18th. Dr. Harry Vom Bruch is to be the evangelist and Johnnie Hallett assisting in the young people's work and at the piano. At present the Miami Valley School of the Bible began its second year. Three 12-weeks' terms are scheduled. Forty registered the first night. Sixty to seventy-five are expected. It looks like Brother Barnard and his people have been and are going to be plenty busy with such a program outlined already besides all their regular activities of the church. A good motto for such a busy group we would suggest, would be, "We would rather wear out than rust out!" Keep it up Dayton. Your next big program will be to get the Brethren Missionary Herald magazine into the home of every family of your congregation. Polman, the Publication Secretary, is coming your way one of these days to get this order. Get it in before he arrives!

Just Think — FOOD, for which we failed to give thanks, may soon be unobtainable.

ISN'T IT TRUE? — THE DARKEST WORD is sin. The meanest word is hypocrisy. The shortest word is time. The longest word is eternity.

Our fast growing church at Glendale, Calif., Rev. Geo. Richardson, pastor, is announcing a program to burn their mortgage. Now we are not much for pagan rites of burning, but we are for any church that is ready and willing to burn a $1500 mortgage. This is a good time to burn lots of mortages. Brethren go and do thou likewise.

Here's a record that we would like to know if it can be matched by any other church in our brotherhood. The reports of the various church interests showed that the 2nd Brethren Church of Los Angeles, Calif., Rev. Paul R. Bauman, pastor, to be high up in the list regarding the offerings given during the past fiscal year (1941-1942). That live and awake church gave to Foreign Missions $3302.41, this being second largest offering in the brotherhood; $1550.41 to Home Missions, this was third place; $521.05 to Grace Theological Seminary, this also was third place; $145.00 to Brethren Publications, this was second. And for good measure, became one of our 100% churches as to Brethren Missionary Herald subscriptions. Every family of that church receives the Herald each week, which has been paid for by the church. How does your church match up to this?

The Challenge of Superstition and Idolatry

By MISS JOHANNA NIELSON

"If therefore the light that is in them be darkness, how great is that darkness!" Matt. 6:23.

"The entrance of thy word giveth light. Ps. 119-130.

"Ye are the light of the world. Let your light . . . shine." Matt. 5:14,16.

Wherever darkness exists, it presents a challenge to those who have light. Idolatry and superstition can thrive only in spiritual darkness.

The Roman Catholic Church is guilty of consistently striving to keep the peoples of Latin America from having access to the Word of God—the Bible. Through political prestige, direct teaching, or whatever means possible, they have opposed, and even persecuted, those who dared carry the printed Word to these benighted lands. Sometimes it is accomplished openly, sometimes through underhand processes, but always seeking to keep the Bible out of the hands of the people. Nevertheless, the Bible societies and evangelical churches are scattering the seed far and wide, knowing that "It shall not return void." Perhaps thousands of tracts, gospels, and scripture portions may be destroyed, but other thousands are read and the changed attitude of many is due to this propaganda of the printed page.

Francisco Penzotti, Argentina's flaming evangel, who travelled over South America, often persecuted, but always opening the way for the further spreading of the gospel he loved and proclaimed, became interested through a Gospel of John bought from a colporteur. Such instances could be multiplied many times. In our own churches are not a few who can testify that the turning point in their lives came with the reading of some tract or scripture portion.

But preachers and teachers are sorely needed in every land, more so where the people have never been taught to think for themselves on matters of the spirit. The reason many a Bible or Testament lies hidden away in some chest or dark corner is found in the Ethiopian eunoch's answer to Philip's question, "Understandest thou what thou readest?"—"How can I, except some man should guide me." If those who have heard the Word expounded Sunday after Sunday for years, still need teaching, how much more do those who have never heard! The responsibility of sending workers is ours. What will we do with the challenge?

Wherever ignorance exists, it presents a challenge to those who have knowledge of the truth. Idolatry and superstition thrive on ignorance.

Latin America is ignorant of the scriptures; therefore ignorant about God and salvation; Christ's power to save and keep; God's love for the lost, and the Christian's blessed hope. Comparatively few homes contain a copy of the Bible. They do have an abundance of legendary lore of saints and virgin. Instead of the Lord Jesus receiving the prayers and adoration, it is to these that the people pray. The Virgin Mary is doubtless the object of the greatest devotion. Travellers who have visited these lands tell us that she is the most prominent figure in many of the churches. In one there is this inscription, "Come unto Mary, all ye who labor and are heavy laden, and she will give you rest." To them there is nothing irreverent about this.

There is a saint for most, if not all of the days of the calendar year. When a child is born, if it is not considered of great importance, a glance at the calendar will tell the saint for the day, and that name is given. Very frequently this name is given as a middle name, if another name had been selected. It is very convenient, for in Spanish the "a" ending makes the name feminine, and the "o" ending masculine.

Festivals for the more important saints are common. Then the saint, often a life-size image, will be taken from the church with altar boys and black or brown robed priests or friars preceding. A mixed multitude surges around following as it is carried on the shoulders of certain privileged ones through the streets. In these processions, many wear scapularies; venders pass through the throng selling little medals of the saint, to be worn to ward off sickness or whatever evil against which this saint is supposed to have power. Girls and women are often seen with a heavy veil (shawl) of brown or white or some other color peculiar to some order. This means they are under a vow and wear this for a month or a year for some hoped for benefit, or in gratitude for some benefit received.

Miraculous images are not uncommon, and on certain days, set for pilgrimage to that particular shrine, thousands throng the churches where these images are, leaving behind coffers filled with their offerings.

Gleanings From Winona

NATIONAL PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE AT CONFERENCE

By MRS. HOMER A. KENT

Dear Sisters:

It is a very great pleasure to greet you one time more in the name of our blessed Lord. I am quite pleased, and I know you are, to see so many in attendance. The stress of the days through which we are passing has kept many of our women at home. We miss many a familiar face that we have been accustomed to associate with our conferences. Your staff of officers is quite depleted. Our esteemed Vice President, Mrs. Ogden is not with us. Our Secretary, Mrs. Lorenz could be here for a day only and then had to fly to Ft. Bragg, North Carolina in order to be with her army chaplain husband before his battalion moves. We miss her and remind you to pray for her. We miss Mrs. Myranna Coon who led us in our song service so beautifully. So we might go on and on, as these familiar faces come to our memory.

I want to speak to you briefly in an informal way this morning. I shall use a portion of scripture as a basis for my remarks. We find in I Samuel 7:12 these words; "Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying; Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." On several occasions in the sacred narrative we find where a stone was set up as a witness to a particular blessing.

"Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." This word "hitherto" is like a finger pointing to the past in great assurance and remembrance. And I would call you to look with that same feeling of rejoicing in victory as we recount some of the things you have accomplished in His name.

I. God has poured many temporal blessings into our lives. We have been granted so much to bless us as individuals. There has been so little real poverty among us. When we contemplate the conditions of the world today and visualize the wandering children terrified and hungry in China and other bomb ridden countries; when we are reminded that starvation faces hundreds in Europe and even whole nations are fearful lest they be wiped from the face of the earth, when we realize that even our beloved missionaries are called upon to sacrifice in distant lands far beyond any known in our generation, we begin to sense the goodness of God to us. We bow humbly before Him and confess our own unworthiness. Yet He has blessed us with so much. And so today we erect a stone of praise as a witness to these many blessings.

It is true that into all lives much joy has come. Into, perhaps, all lives some sorrow has entered. There has been much joy and a little disappointment. There has been much victory but also some defeat. But above it all we sense the pointing finger. "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." What is true in our individual lives has been true of our councils.

We often have left our mind's eye rove from one end of the United States to the other and have seen the approximate two thousand women devotedly serving Him. We have seen a deepening of the spiritual lives. More prayers have ascended when our young people have been called to serve their country. Our women who have remained have drawn closer to Him in prayer. We have thus cultivated our prayer life a little bit more faithfully. We have been constrained to pray more often for the missionaries who have been compelled to serve in such hazardous places. I have pictured you many times on bended knee, pleading that God would take Brother and Sister Jobson across safely. He has done that. Praise His name. I have pictured you on bended knee praying for Brother and Sister Sickel as they returned to South America, the land for which they have yearned for so long. God has answered that prayer also. Just yesterday word came to Winona to their daughter Lorraine that they had reached Chile and now needs go overland. The hazardous waters in both cases were safely crossed. Praise His Name.

Not only have those for whom you prayed been blessed, but you have been greatly strengthened your-

Some go in performance of a vow to do so, if some blessing for which they have prayed has come. Some go there and make vows. Many go out of mere curiosity. Some of these "pilgrimages" have more the appearance of a street carnival, with booths springing up near the church where vice and gambling and foolishness and sin are rampant. It is sad to think that anyone can feel that merit in God's sight can be obtained in any such way.

The adoration, worship, and love that should be given to God is lavished on images of wood and stone, or if the suppliant sees beyond the image, to the saint or virgin it represents who can have no power to help or to save. "For there is no other name under heaven, given among men, whereby we must be saved" . . . no other name but Jesus.

Shall we meet the challenge of idolatry and superstition, and help "send out thy light and thy truth."!

self. With this same mind's eye, we have seen our sisters reading the Word. What a source of inspiration that has been! I heard one of our British friends say a few days ago on the Bible conference program here in Winona, "All Britain is reading the shelter psalm these days." As they seek the shelter against the bombs they turn to Psalm 91 and read "Thou shalt not be afraid of the terror at night or the arrow that flieth at noonday." We have felt after such fashion many new readers have come to love the Word. And so we erect another stone of praise unto Him.

We look back across the year and see the eighty-five councils not only reading the Word but emphasizing Bible study. It has been quite heartening when word has came from you that you have been greatly blessed by the studies in Ephesians, that wonderful epistle which speaks of the church. I have been in a position to know something of the prayer in which the preparation of those studies were steeped, to say nothing of the hours so graciously given. But when you report that they have been used with blessing, we set up another stone of praise as a witness to His goodness.

The "Hitherto" finger reminds us that through the years loving hands have collected clothing to be used by less privileged persons in Kentucky and elsewhere Much new clothing, as well as many used articles in good condition, have cheered a mountain dweller or met a real need. I have visualized you bowing in prayer for Brother and Sister Landrum, as they faithfully carry on in Clayhole, Kentucky. How we have rejoiced to see the enthusiasm for that work sustained and endeared as the days pass. Another stone of praise can well be erected here.

"Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." I have left my mind's eye watch you giving. Month after month you have brought your gifts unto Him. You have co-operated in every undertaking we have offered you. You have given us $1000 for Foreign Missions, when we add to the major objective some isolated sums. You have given over $1000 for the furtherance of the work at Grace Seminary, and so graciously it has been given. The Pennsylvania District added the abundantly above all to this gift by giving $116 with which to purchase books for the Seminary Library. You have given in like fashion approximately $1000 to Home Missions. When we asked you in faith believing for this offering, we had confidence that you would seriously undertake the task, and you have done so in a beautiful way. You have been so cheerful and willing and have planned attractive meetings. Surely there has been a fine spirit, and we humbly set up a stone of praise here also. Our W.M.C. does not intend to make money our primary motive for service. We need not do so. If we put God at the head of all our ministry, His grace will be sufficient for all our financial program.

Now on the other hand the "Hitherto" can be extended to mean "Henceforth." If He has proven His faithfulness so completely in the past, can't we trust Him "Henceforth"? As we look down the vista of the year ahead, we stand ready with confidence to erect monuments of praise for victories ahead. Let us consider a few responsibilities we have undertaken for the ensuing year, although we are not changing our program too violently. You will be reading a minimum of 365 chapters a year as your Bible reading assignment. You will be studying "Bible Truths" by Dr. Alva J. McClain as your devotional study at each meeting. You will be provided with Mission Studies carried in the Brethren Missionary Herald to be used at your regular meetings or accumulated for an all day meeting as you prefer. You will be filling "coin savers" to be sent to the National work to build up an emergency fund.

You will be giving $1000 to National Expense.

You will be giving $1000 to Foreign Missions.

You will be giving $1000 to Home Missions.

You will be giving $1000 to Grace Seminary.

In addition to the above program you will undertake District projects. I trust the ones you choose in the various districts will bring the joy that you experienced during the past year. California contributed to hospitalization for Mrs. Chauncey Sheldon. Mid-west made a generous gift to the Sheldens also. East Central Ohio provided much toward the outfit for the Garner Hoyts. Indiana sent in several hundreds of canned goods for the students. Southeastern contributed to Miss Ruth Snyder.

May God richly bless you as you dedicate your lives anew to Him and undertake to serve to His glory.

From A Tither . .

(Please don't read this if money talk bothers you.)

"Stewardship (Tithing) is building a service station on one's lot in life, wherever that lot may be."

Or——

"Stewardship means that life is a great ship, loaded with a rich cargo of many things to be delivered to many peoples in many places. God is the owner of the ship but I am the captain of it. Everything I have aboard, all my possessions, my talents, my time, my health, my strength, my capacity, my personality, my privileges, my money, is a cargo to be delivered. God has entrusted it to me, for his children in every place. I do not own what I possess; I owe it. God has made me the captain of the ship (his steward), and it is my job to bring the ship to the right port and discharge the cargo. That's stewardship. Everything I have on board is for delivery.

3. That a consecration service for membership be observed by each council, preferably at the September meeting.
4. That all councils endeavor to use the Bible Study and Mission Study provided by the National W.M.C.
5. That we urge all W.M.C. members to become subscribers to the Brethren Missionary Herald.
6. That we continue our contributions of clothing to the Clayhole, Kentucky Mission.
7. That a portion of Home Missions money be used by the Home Missions Council in the support of Jewish Work.
8. That Mrs. Raymond E. Gingrich, our W.M.C. Editor, be appointed as our representative on the Publication Board.
9. That Mrs. Herman Koontz serve as Literature Secretary.
10. That Mrs. R. D. Barnard represent the W.M.C. on the Home Missions Council.
11. That the National President and the Financial Treasurer represent us on the Foreign Missionary Board by request of that Board.
12. That Mrs. Arthur Nickel serve as Financial Secretary-Treasurer.
13. That Mrs. Edward Bowman serve as prayer chairman for 1942-43.

A revival is only temporary said someone. Yes, and so is a bath, but it is certainly necessary occasionally. A dying spiritual life makes a stench in God's nostrils that Lifebuoy Soap won't help, but a Revival will!

Introducing Our National Sisterhood Officers

Loraine Sickel

Since it is impossible for your national officers to meet you personally, we are going to introduce ourselves to you through the Herald. This month we present "the two Loraines"—Loraine Sickel, National President, and Lorraine Dyer, General Secretary. Now that we have introduced ourselves we both would enjoy hearing from you. Please write and tell us what you are doing in Sisterhood.

Lorraine Dyer

A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Dear Sisterhood Girls:

"But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." I Cor. 15:57,58.

Truly, we have had many things for which to thank the Lord this past year, for He blessed us above all that we could ask or think, not only spiritually, but also materially. With the dawn of a new year upon us, my earnest prayer is that each Sisterhood girl will realize as never before that Christ is the only hope for this sinful world, and that through Him alone will we obtain victory! May each and every one of us be drawn closer to our wonderful Lord and Saviour as we study and meditate upon His Word this year. If we put Him first in our lives, all our other problems will be solved. If Christ is preeminent in your society you will be an honor society.

May the Lord richly and abundantly bless you as you seek to serve Him! Although I cannot meet every Sisterhood girl personally as I would like to do, I shall be delighted to hear from you.

Lovingly in Him,

Loraine Sickel,

National S.M.M. President.

Prayer Box:

1. Praise the Lord for the wonderful salvation He has provided.
2. Pray for all Sisterhood societies, as we begin a new year.
3. Pray for your national officers.
4. Pray for the newly organized Sisterhood societies.
5. Pray that the Lord will be very near to Kathryn Jobson during her illness, and that she might be healed speedily if that is His Will.

NOTE: If you have requests for our prayer box, send them to the General Secretary, and she will be glad to include them in our requests.

CHRIST OUR VICTORY FOR SALVATION

By Mrs. Leo Polman

"Christ in you the hope of glory." Col. 1:27.

Salvation is a two fold work in one, God's part and our part. God's part is finished, completed at Calvary. It is not the attempt of people to lift themselves up to God, rather God reaching down to man to transform that life and heart. God's great and powerful transmitter was established and working "even to the uttermost parts of the earth" in eternity past. It is man that needs to tune in his receiving set to hear the words of God, "Ye must be born again." "This is the work of God that ye believe." One cannot even have the desire for the new life except God give it to him. He truly is the author of our salvation. A person does not try to live or try to become a child of their parents, anymore than one can try to be a Christian and a child of God.

Paul says, "Even when we were dead through our trespasses, God made us alive together with Christ."

We receive salvation, eternal life, when we do our part. "He that believes on the Son, has everlasting life." Just as the Israelites were told to look upon the Brazen Serpent to be saved from the snakes in the wilderness, so we are saved by looking to our Savior that hung on Calvary—Look and live!

John said, "He that hath the Son hath life." Paul says, "Christ is our life," again "For me to live is Christ," and "Christ liveth in me."

When we say "yes" to Jesus and open our heart's door, then He comes in and brings with Him all the grace and power necessary to enable that one to live the Christian life, and that is our "Victory in Salvation," not self will anymore but a yielding of our wills to a new supremacy. When entering into this new relationship of being children of God, every believer acknowledges Christ Jesus as Lord of his life and accepts His will as rule of life. When Christ is crowned as Lord, then the responsibility is His to keep us from falling.

Without the musician a piano is of no use, only a big box, in the way, but under the trained hand of a musician the piano becomes useful and fulfills the purpose for which it was made. When Christ is invited to come in and play on the human heart, the chords of spiritual harmony, then it is that the individual begins to live as they were intended to live.

"Christ in you" is our strength.

How can I have Victory? Remember, it is His strength we depend upon. Christ in us can give us victory in every circumstance. Christ is the Christians center; Christ is the Christians circumference; Christ is all in between. "Christ is all and in all."

Juniors

SISTERHOOD OF MARY AND MARTHA

Hello, Everybody!

We are now beginning another year for our Lord. We were all very pleased with the reports of Sisterhoods at conference. Read this issue of the magazine carefully for all information concerning our work for next year, so that you might begin the projects and the merit system on time. Also, use the material written for the Seniors for October. By November 1 your patroness will receive new material for Juniors to be used every month. This will no longer be printed in the Herald, but will come by mail. Just the same, we will have something of interest and bits of news in the magazine monthly. So, be sure to read that too. But your lessons and articles for your meetings will come in the mail beginning November 1.

Write to me often, and, especially, if you are in need.

With lots of love to you all,

Aunt Mabel.

Remember

Dwight L. Moody wisely said, "There are a good many lean sheep in God's fold, but none in His pasture." You will find the "pastures" of His Word eternally green and most delightful. Eat and be spiritually satisfied. Time spent in His presence at church will give you that spiritual "pause that refreshes."

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

All those living in and around Washington, D. C., will be interested in the coming revival campaign to be conducted by Evangelist Walter MacDonald (Happy Mac) at The First Brethren Church, 12th and E. Sts., S.E. Rev. Bernard Schneider, pastor, extends a cordial invitation to all visitors. The prayers of the Brethren will be appreciated on behalf of these services, which will be held from October 20 to November 1.

The Grace Brethren Church, Sharpsville, Ind., Rev. Verne Stuber, pastor, had set Oct. 11 for the final payment of the church indebtedness. However, the people there could not wait that long so they got busy and raised the money ahead of time and now will conduct a Thanksgiving and Praise service instead. The Bethel Brethren Church, Berne, Indiana, held the note. In fact this church made the purchase of the building for the Sharpsville Brethren, and now the child is paying the parent back. We rejoice with you Sharpsville, in that the deed is now in your hands. To those who might not know, this church is but less than three years old. Not large in numbers but a growing and going church it is!

We found out that Rev. Albert Flory, pastor of the First Brethren Church, San Diego, Calif., has been chosen director of The San Diego County Young People's Chorus. Good work, Brother Flory. This is a day when much harmony is needed. Keep singing and smilin', young people.

Brother and Sister Clarence Sickel, missionaries to Argentina, S.A., arrived safely, in Argentina, September 8th. This is certainly welcomed news in view of the dangers through which they passed.

Victory celebration and Mortgage Burning ceremony was held at The First Brethren Church, La Verne, Calif., a few weeks ago. Rev. Donald Carter, the pastor, and the people of this church are to be congratulated.

It seems like this column is a financial report of church building, paying off mortgages, etc. However, we feel it is a good sign when we see such fine interest manifested in God's house. Here is another report that comes to us, The First Brethren Church, Los Angeles, Rev. W. A. Ogden, pastor, will be dedicating their new church home on October 18. We understand this church has built a $27,000.00 edifice —all paid for except $3,000. Of this $3,000 the church has $1200 pledged. So in reality they need raise only $1800 and have a church home free of debt. We believe this will be taken care of before dedication. Let those in and around 2400 West 85th Street, Los Angeles, visit this dedication service.

And so, what's the news from your section, neighbor? We would like to have news and more NEWS from our churches!

News from Brethren CHURCHES

CHILDREN'S AND YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK AT WAYNESBORO, PA.

THE CHILDREN'S REVIVAL

We have just closed a unique and successful meeting. Upon the recommendation of Rev. Wm. Steffler of our Philadelphia Third Church, we engaged Miss Rae Serio of Clark's Summit, Pa. to conduct a ten-day series of meetings for children of school age, advertising it for those from six to eighteen years of age. Services were held week-nights from 700 to 8:15. Miss Serio also spoke at both morning and evening services on the two Sundays included. Our dates were September 2-13.

Her program consisted of Bible stories, object talks, pictures, Bible memory work, and evangelism. She played her large concert harp at most of the sessions. Souvenirs were given the children each night, with prizes awarded for Bible memory work and for bringing the most new members... A demonstration program was held the closing Friday night, with Miss Serio telling her life story.

The average attendance week-nights was 129 per evening, and for the four Sunday services 152.

The visible results were eighty-six public decisions, with decisions being made at every service the invitation was extended. Of the eighty-six, there were twenty of our own members coming in reconsecration; ten first time confessions by children from our church families; two confessions of Christ by adults; and fifty-four decisions of various kinds by children not attending our Sunday School or Church, and ranging in age from five to fourteen years. This gave us valuable contacts in many new homes in the community.

Miss Serio is a graduate of the Eastern Baptist Seminary of Philadelphia, and we recommend her highly for meetings with young people and children. Those interested may address her Miss Rae Serio, Ledgewood, Clark's Summit, Penna.

CAMP GRACE

We supported Camp Grace in Virginia, this past summer, just ninety miles south. It is a beautiful government built camp, fully equipped. A fine staff of Brethren workers made the camp a real success.

Seventeen intermediates attended the first week,

July 27 to August 3. They made the trip by truck in a "straw-ride," together with Mrs. B. L. Stains, who was one of the cooks, and the pastor, who acted as camp dean.

Ten young people attended the second week. It was wonderful to work with youth in the out of doors, and the Holy Spirit blessed us.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Christian Endeavor services during July and August were held in the form of outdoor gospel services in a beautiful park one mile out of town. Each Sunday evening an amplifier was used to bring the Word to picnicers on the grounds. One of the services was conducted by the C.E. the most of the remainder being conducted by our young men's gospel team.

SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL

Our fifth annual Summer Bible School was held June 15-26. The enrollment was 176, including 155 pupils and 21 officers and teachers. The average attendance was 135 pupils and 20 officers and teachers.

In a public decision service in the junior department, 14 boys and girls made a public decision for Christ.

Pictures were taken of the school, a picnic held, diplomas awarded, and a graduation program rendered. Departmental teaching was used. Stereoptican pictures on the LIFE OF CHRIST and on MISSIONS were shown, each group by Mrs. J. Edward Cordell, Jr. Flannelgraph studies were used in two departments. The pastor acted as superintendent. The total cost of the school was twenty-four cents per pupil, most of which was covered by free-will offerings during the two weeks period.

As we begin our sixth year of ministry here, it was interesting to us to note that with the Lord's help we have received 202 members into the church in our five year pastorate. Pray for us.

R. D. Crees.

FROM A SOLDIER—BOY

From the Sublime to the Ridiculous—But Better Than Medicine!

(We Laughed Too!)

Dear Mom,

I am one of the fellows who is going to try to make the world safe for democracy. What a crazy thing to do! I fought and fought, and I had to go anyway. I was called in class "A." Next time I want to be in class "B." (Be here when they go, and be here when they come back.)

I remember when I went to register. I went up to the guy in charge, only to find that he was my milkman. He said, "What's your name?"

I said, "August."

"Are you an alien?"

I said, "No, I'm feeling fine."

He asked me where I was born and I said, "Pittsburgh."

"When did you first see the light of day?"

I said, "When I moved to Fort Wayne."

"How old are you?", he asked.

I said, "Twenty-one the first of September."

"The first of September," he replied, "you'll be in Ireland, and that will be the end of August."

Then I was examined by a vetinary who asked if I had ever had the measles, smallpox, St. Vitus Dance, or had ever had fits. I said, "No, only when I stayed at my tailors too long."

He then inquired, "Can you see all right?"

I said, "Sure, but I'll be cockeyed if I pass this test."

Then listening to my heart with his ear to my breast he said, "I think you have a wart around your heart."

I retorted, "Wart, me neck, that's my vest button in your ear."

The doctor said that he had examined 140,000 men, and that I was the most perfect physical wreck he had seen. Then he handed me a class "A" card.

I went back to camp and I guess they didn't think I'd live long, for the first fellow I saw wrote on my

A Continued Story Written for Our Boys and Girls By MISS MARY EMMERT, Missionary in Africa

KOLY LOSES FAITH IN THE SORCERER

Remember last month, Koly, Pondo's father was speaking with the guard when Pondo came with the news that Kogara was sick. The next day Pondo returned home to find everyone mourning because of the death of Kogara. Then, Pondo with their relatives buried Kogara according to their tribal custom.

* * *

That evening they sat long around the campfire outside the door. A few villagers came to sit with them a while in silent sympathy. Ever and anon throughout the whole night, the mourning would break out again, continue for a long time, then die down again while the little group rested out of sheer weariness.

Pondo

The next day, they visited the grave and placed bits of broken pottery, and some grain, and a few yams on it to show the departed spirit that they meant to share the produce of the garden with it. The broken pottery was to bewail the fact that she would never use it any more, so it might as well be broken. These were the only "flowers" put on Kogara's grave. After this ceremony, Koly sat with his family again by the campfire in his yard to receive any visitors that came to sympathize with him. But unlike the usual mournings, the number that thus came to sit with him was very small. He fell to brooding again. Toward evening he got up and stalked angrily away, muttering as he went.

Pondo looked curiously after him. "What is he so angry about?" he asked his mother. "Where is he going?"

"I do not know," said Nana fearfully. "All I know is that he is very angry with Gafo, the sorcerer. I hope he is not going to quarrel with him again."

"Why is he angry with Gafo?" asked Pondo.

"Because Gafo would not come when we sent for him, when Kogara first got sick, you know. Then when Koly came home and sent the second time for him, he finally came after a long delay. But he refused to do anything about her sickness. He acted very queerly." Nana was plainly worried.

"Then what happened?" prompted Pondo.

"They got to quarreling, and Kogara died while they were still talking. Koly was very angry and wanted Gafo to find the evil spirits that killed her, but he refused and walked away."

"Could it be the twins' fault, do you suppose?" asked Pondo in a low voice.

"Oh my, how do I know?" asked the poor mother. "I am only a woman, why ask me?"

Late that evening Koly came back utterly exhausted, but still furious. Pondo was awakened by his angry talking. "This is the last," Koly was saying. "Never, never, will I have anything more to do with a medicine man. I am through with them," he shouted.

card "Flying corps." I went a little further and some guy said, "Look what the wind blew in."

I replied, "Wind nothing, the draft's doing it."

On the second morning they put these clothes on me. What an outfit! As soon as you are in it you think you can fight anybody. They have "too" sizes, too large and too small. The pants are so tight I can't sit down. The shoes are so big I turned around three times and they didn't even move. The raincoat touches the ground; the sleeves come to my knees. I think that I will use it for a pup tent.

I passed an officer all dressed up in fancy belt. Calling after me he said, "Hey! Didn't you notice my uniform when you passed?"

I replied, "Yes, What are you kicking about? Look what they gave me."

If you were a laborer, you were put into the medical department; if you were a railroad man, you were put to digging ditches; and if you were a janitor, you were put in as the officer of the day. I asked a man with a wooden leg what he was doing in the army. He replied, "I'm going to mash potatoes."

At five below zero one morning, they called us out for underwear inspection. The union suit that I had on would fit Tony Galento. When they lined us up, the commanding officer asked me to stand up. I answered, "I am up. It's the underwear that makes me look as if I am sitting down."

When marching, we marched straight to a river with a diving board extending out over it. I had a seargent who stuttered, and it took him so long to say halt that twenty of us marched overboard. After they had pulled us out, the seargent yelled "fall-in." We said that we were just in.

Guess that's all I have time for now.

Love,

ME.

Nana sat in a frightened heap on the mat that served for her bed, and let him talk on without any comments.

"Why would he not come when we called him?" he continued. "Why has not the whole village been here to mourn with us today? There is something back of this!"

Pondo sat up wide-eyed. Were his little twin sisters in danger? Did they harbor an evil spirit that was the cause of Kogara's death? His feelings were curiously mixed on the subject. He loved his sisters, even though they were always a big nuisance to him; but yet he felt a growing horror of them in his mind. Such unnatural creatures as to harbor an evil spirit that would kill their own relatives!

He stopped to listen to his father again. Koly was pouring questions out one after another at the trembling Nana. "Where had Kogara been the day she took sick? What had she eaten? With whom had she talked?" Nana knew very little about it. Koly became more desperate. "Was there a quarrel between Kogara and any one in the village?" he demanded.

Nana began to sob. "Yes," she admitted. "They have all turned against us. They hated both Kogara and me." She broke down and cried as though the pent up bitterness of months had just broken loose.

"Tell me about it," said Koly with a gleam in his eyes.

"It started when the guard had us excused from the village work," explained Nana. "We were so glad. But soon we noticed that the other women were very jealous of us, and made all kinds of mean remarks. Of course, that amused us, too, for a while. But I'm so sick and tired of it now. It has just been one constant bickering with them."

"You and Kogara didn't have a quarrel, did you?" Koly asked eying his wife attentively.

"No, really," Nana replied, meeting his gaze squarely. "We had so many quarrels with the other women that we had to stick together."

"Could it be the twins?" ventured Pondo in a whisper for fear of waking them.

"No, no, my son, it is not the twins this time. Gafo and the people of the village have conspired against us. He can never come near me nor my family again, the old rascal!"

Nana trembled. "What shall we do if any of us ever get sick?" she wanted to know. "We shall all die without the sorcerer."

"We die if we have him, too," answered Koly bitterly. "I tell you their affair is a pack of lies to deceive the people."

Nana was not convinced. "Oh, what will ever become of us?" she wailed.

TO BLEEDING ISRAEL

By Martha Snell Nicholson

Before a modern Pharoah's goad
You stumble on, beneath a load
Too great for human strength to bear.
You cry, "O God, dost Thou not care?
When wolves oppress Thy chosen race
Why dost Thou turn away Thy face?"

O Israel, sad Israel,
Your father's God still loves you well,
And still He offers to your race
(O matchless wonder of His grace!)
His Paschal Lamb, for sinners slain—
His Son, so soon to come again,
That One Who, dying, prayed for you,
"Forgive, they know not what they do."

He loves you yet, that blessed One,
Your own Messiah, God's dear Son.
In this your desperate need, there is No other help for you save His,
No other refuge from the storm
About to break. His mighty arm
Is strong to save you, and His power
Will keep you in your darkest hour.

He can supply your every need.
With outstretched hands behold Him plead,
"Come unto Me, My people, come,
And I will take you safely home!"

A MOTHER WHO HAD FORGOTTEN GOD

Not long ago, to be a mother usually also meant to be a Christian. That day seems to have passed. As much as we dislike to admit it, the moral breakdown in America today is largely due to a breakdown of motherhood. Half-nude, closely-cropped, cigarette-smoking, beer-guzzling, movie-going mothers, formed a very small percentage of American mothers a generation ago. For those old-fashioned mothers who feared God and loved righteousness, we thank God today. There are a number of them still alive. Without them there would not be enough salt left to save us from the judgment that fell on old Sodom. There are too many mothers today who have forgotten God. Evangelist Lowry, in that splendid book of his, "A Virtuous Woman," which every girl should read, relates the experience of one of these modernistic mothers in her own words as nearly as possibly to recall.

"I married at an early age, and forsook my Christian mother's example and wise counsel, and followed the leadership of my husband, who was not a Christian.

"He taught me to play cards and took me to dances, and I became infatuated with both these forms of amusement.

"By and by our first child came to our home, and I have reaped in him what I sowed. While but a mere child, he became a proficient card-player. He was at home on the ball-room floor, and found his natural environment at these places. He became a professional gambler, and his short life ended in the paths in which I had set his feet. He came to the end of his life after a brief illness, without warning from any person that death was near. He died as he had lived—without repentance toward God and without forgiveness of sins. He lived the life he learned from his mother before I was saved, and died without knowing the Savior Whom his mother had forgotten for a time and Whom I now love, adore and serve. I have no doubt but what my son's soul is lost forever, and I did it. After his death his body was sent home, and we buried him in a Christian grave; and thus ends the saddest experience that could ever come to a mother who had forgotten God."

We pray God that our Brethren girls will dare to be old-fashioned—yes, though young and tender in years, old-fashioned as mothers, and thus maintain the salt of the earth—the hope of the world until Jesus comes.—From Calendar, 1st Brethren Church of Long Beach.

WITHOUT SEEING

God is trustworthy without being watched. We may always count upon His being trustworthy without even asking Him to prove this to us—though He is continually proving this to us by His loving provision for all our needs. The Keswick calendar quotes the words of a Christian who was on a bed of pain and sickness and who was asked if he could see any particular reason for his suffering. "No," was the reply, "but I am as well satisfied as if I could see ten thousand. God's will is the very perfection of all reasons." That is faith, because it did not ask to see. God's love and God's will are as perfect today. Shall we not thank Him that this is so, and trust Him fully without trying to "exact" any evidence from Him? Only then can He bless us to the uttermost.—Sunday School Times.

There is a need in every heart.
In prayer He meets the need
Of every soul that on Him leans
And on His Word doth feed.

Sweet peace of Christ (O, joy divine)
Has come to me through grace.
So I commune as friend with friend
And look into His face!

A Day of Prayer for National Home Missions

Because of the greatness of the work and the smallness of our ability;

Because of the tremendous increase in new fields calling to us;

Because the many problems involved in each field are beyond human wisdom to overcome;

Because the Lord's coming seems near and we have not accomplished for Him as we should have;

Because of the need of capable workers willing to sacrifice to establish the whole gospel in new fields;

Because of the need of a greatly increased Thanksgiving Offering this year if we are to maintain the works already begun, and take advantage of the new fields calling for the gospel;

The members of the Brethren Home Missions Council feel that the responsibility is too great for them, and they are asking that

THE ENTIRE BROTHERHOOD JOIN THEM IN A DAY OF PRAYER, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 18th.

Special services for prayer will be held in all our churches during the afternoon and evening of that day.

If you cannot attend the services at church, won't you take time at home to meet us all at the Throne of Grace as we beseech Our Father God in behalf of this work He has given us?

History of the Construction

OF THE GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH OF HAGERSTOWN, MD.

By L. L. GRUBB, Pastor of Grace Brethren Church, Hagerstown, Md.

About two years ago, in the providence of our Lord we found ourselves searching for a place to live in the city of Hagerstown, Maryland, a historic and beautiful city of some 40,000 population. Since that time the miracle-working power of God has loosed a flood-tide of blessing upon us, so great as to wring from our hearts eternal hallelujahs to His blessed name. Would God we could share with our friends every detail of the wonderful story.

As we have just passed through the glorious experiences of our dedication day, and our minds turn to a bit of retrospect, there are some outstanding blessings we desire to share with you.

The Hagerstown work was cradled in a rather commodious one floor cottage with a dirt basement below, located just off the corner from the present beautiful structure at the corner of First and Spruce Streets. Partitions had been removed from the north side of the building, and seating space provided for about 83 people. The south side provided three fine classrooms. The basement was cemented by the members and friends of the church and partitioned into five more classrooms. After the first few months, at no time did the cottage provide completely adequate facilities for the work. With a Bible School beginning to run considerably over one hundred and most services exceeding that in attendance, the work was very difficult. People began to stay away for fear they might deprive one of the members of a deserved seat. On one occasion there were 153 people inside the building, upstairs, and down, and 154 outside by actual count. With all the discomforts of the heat in summer, and too much or too little in winter, we praise God for this provision in the cradling of His work. Every individual who has had any share in the building of our Lord's body here has a full sense of appreciation of that which we now enjoy, in comparison with other days.

With the usual few exceptions, no pastor, generally speaking, has ever enjoyed more loyal, and sacrificial support from a group of the Lord's people. Together, realizing our great need for added facilities, we fell on our knees before the Lord, and systematically began to pray down the provisions for our need from the God of all grace. A Building Committee was elected, composed of Roy S. Long, Joseph H. Bell, and Henry W. Biser. Suggested plans of architecture were considered and it was finally decided to follow the general tabernacle type, somewhat resembling our church in Waterloo, Iowa. The Lord proceeded to give us our first real taste of building blessing by providing the drawing of the plans free of charge through the Maughansville Lumber Company. We, then, began to shop for prices and contractors, all the while fervently praying for the needed finances to erect the Lord's house. After much careful consideration, the contract was awarded to M. B. Keener & Son of this city, and since we have had an opportunity to work with these able and skilled builders, we are absolutely certain that they were the Lord's men for the job.

Despite the fact that at the time no sufficient loan for building was in view, in July, 1941, with members of other Brethren churches on the scene, and the presence of R. Paul Miller, R. D. Crees, and Norman Uphouse, we broke ground for the new Grace Brethren Church of Hagerstown. We enjoyed an impressive service together with greetings brought by all the ministers, and decided to launch out in faith, believing that the God who owns the gold and silver of the world, and the cattle on a thousand hills, could build a small brick building, 52 ft.x80 ft. This service marked the beginning of a chain of blessings and victories that have humbled us like nothing else in our Christian experiences.

With splendid assistance of men from the Waynesboro church (Brother Crees was there perspiring with the rest of us), and friends, we finished the excavation at practically no outlay of money. Due to adverse local circumstances, and the attitudes of local banks, there were still no funds in view. The Lord gave us the "go" signal and the contractor put the stonemasons on the job to build the beautiful stone foundation, which is the admiration of every individual who inspects the church. Much of the stone in the wall was donated by a member of the church, who also allowed us to use his truck to haul it to the site. As the labor costs began to pile up, we began to see the bottom of our treasury, until we found ourselves definitely in the red financially, but thank God, not spiritually. Again we cried out to God, and behold a loan of $500.00 with out interest, and another loan of $200.00 with out interest. Both of these have since become gifts. Realizing that we were approaching a serious shortage in materials, especially steel, and needing about 16 tons for our building, we had been searching within a radius of two hundred miles for the precious metal. All of a sudden, we found the very thing we needed right at our own back door in Hagerstown, but still had not the $1400.00 needed to buy it. Not daunted, enough money was borrowed from the bank to land the steel on the job. Steel casement windows were also partially paid for with a small sum of borrowed money. Now, we were approaching the winter season of 1941-42, and apparently building operations must cease for the winter. Thank God for the blessings thus far, but that winter was the longest we had ever experienced. How difficult it is to wait on the Lord, but how blessed!

Just before attending our 1941 National Conference, we were providentially brought into contact with Mr. A. E. Hungerford, representative of the Columbian National Life Insurance Co. After much careful consideration, and a complete survey of our congregation and its friends, we decided to enter into their financing plan through insurance. Mr. Hungerford has proven to be an able and patient assistant, and guide in this great task, and the financing plan has apparently been the Lord's ordained method of making

DEDICATION AT NORTH RIVERDALE

The congregation at North Riverdale, Dayton, Ohio, announces the dedication of their beautiful new church building for November 1st, 1942. A most urgent and cordial invitation is extended to all Brethren and friends to attend. All out of town guests will be royally entertained.

REMEMBER THE DATE—NOVEMBER 1st.

REMEMBER THE HOUR—3:00 P.M.

Come early and stay all day.

The church is located at corner of North Main and Melford Sts.

THINK IT OVER

Buried seeds will grow, but buried talents, never.

the building possible. After a winter of hard work and negotiations with various banks, the Citizen's National Bank of Greencastle, Pa. decided to loan us the needed funds. What rejoicing there was among us as a result! We are now convinced that if those first few hard steps, when the "baby" was just learning to walk, had not been made in implicit faith in a God who is all powerful, there would still be no new building in Hagerstown today. Where the people have a "mind to work," Nehemiah can build a wall for the glory of God.

How slow the spring of 1942 was in coming! Finally, the contractor was able to get to work about the middle of March, placing the first floor joists and the sub-floor. Palm Sunday, March 29th, a twenty-four-inch snow completely covered the job. Members of the church quickly resurrected it, and as the weather permitted, brick work was begun, plumbing lines laid, steel columns erected, and the job was in full swing. How our hearts did rejoice to see the fruit of our prayers!

The cornerstone laying service, April 19th, at 3:00 P.M. was attended by a large crowd, and marked a real milestone in the history of the church. The Western Maryland Tile and Stone Co. donated a beautiful $25.00 cornerstone with the words inscribed, "Grace Brethren Church, Christ the Foundation, A.D. 1942."

Unless it would be today, a more difficult time to build a church would be hard to conceive. Despite defense priorities, and problems, and all the powers of Satan combined, the church stands today practically complete, with the exception of some basement plastering, which will be finished soon. A complete air-conditioning unit and heating system, for comfort in the Lord's house both summer and winter, has been installed, at a considerably reduced cost through a friend of the church. For the enrichment of the gospel ministry in music, the Lord has provided a new Orgatron electric organ, a beautiful and serviceable instrument. The building is red brick, with a cast stone trim and coping. The inside is finished with beautiful Gold Bond insulation board in cream and tan. The baptistery is situated high behind a graceful arch in the far front of the auditorium, faced by glass blocks and in full view of the congregation. The pastor's study is located in the northeast corner of the building. Approximately 45,000 bricks, 4 000 pounds of sheet metal, 16 tons of steel were used in its construction. Expertly estimated at a cost of $35,000, the building will be completed at a total cost of $23,000. This has been made possible through the graciousness and liberality of the members, friends, and creditors of the church, and is deeply appreciated. A complete colored moving picture story of the building has been taken for use in future Home Mission work.

Dedicatory services were set for Sept. 13th to 27th, with Rev. R. Paul Miller, as evangelist and dedicatory speaker, and Rev. T. C. Kelford of Canada, as singer and songleader. No words are adequate to express our appreciation to these brethren for their excellent ministry among us. Never have we heard our Brother Miller speak with such power, resulting in thirty-seven decisions for Christ. Brother Kelford has proven himself to be not only a gifted and dedicated singer of the gospel, but a songleader and children's worker of the first class. Nine children's meetings were held, resulting in seventy-two decisions for Christ among the older boys and girls. Attendance averaged about 115. Average attendance at evening services ran about 170. The dedicatory service was attended by 300 people, while 350 were in attendance for the last service of the series. Eleven, fifteen minute radio broadcasts were sent out over the air through the facilities of the local station each morning at 8:15. The entire dedicatory service of one hour was put on the air Sept. 27th. The church auditorium has proven to be a perfect radio studio by way of the remote control line. From now on, regular morning daily broadcasts of fifteen minutes each will be broadcast direct from the church auditorium as a Family Altar program at 8:30. A great offering of $2,244.44 in cash and pledges was received on dedication day. This does not include a $2.000 annuity given by some friends of the church. A great harvest will certainly be reaped in the future as a direct result of this great series of meetings.

The Home Missions Council, working through our Brother Miller, have made possible the erection of this great monument to the grace of God, and we express our deepest appreciation to them and all who have so graciously given to Home Missions. To the Southeast District of Brethren Churches goes much credit for their fine liberal support of the Hagerstown work. Does Home Missions pay? Come to Hagerstown, and let us answer that question for you.

Eternal praise be to God for the baring of His arm in this portion of His vineyard! Pray for us, brethren!

—Pastor Lew Grubb.

INVESTMENT FUNDS NEEDED

Our needs for the swiftly expanding Home Mission fields are multiplying daily. The difficulties in financing mission points increase steadily due to the federal regulations against banks loaning to churches. For years it has been apparent that ultimately the church would be compelled to do its own financing of new churches. Apparently, that time has come. There is no finer or safer investment than the work of the gospel. The integrity of the Church of Christ is the finest security in the world. For those who need the income from funds to provide a living, putting your money to work for Christ is the best investment possible. All funds loaned to churches under the care of the Brethren Home Missions Council are protected by the local church property as well as the assets of the Council. Those interested in putting funds to work building new Brethren churches should write at once to

It Seems Like a Dream

By R. D. CREES, Pastor, First Brethren Church, Waynesboro, Pa.

Yes, that is just what I mean. The remarkable growth of our Grace Brethren Church in Hagerstown, Md., seems like a dream to me. When I came as pastor of the church here at Waynesboro, Pa., five years ago, no such church existed. Now they have a good-sized congregation and a beautiful building. It seems like a dream! !

Rev. Crees

We are located just twelve miles north of Hagerstown. I well remember the talks I had with Rev. Frank Coleman, Sr., then pastor of the First Brethren Church of Hagerstown. Our denominational difficulties were making it hard for him there in 1937. He had a vision of a real Brethren fundamental testimony in the town, free from denominational overlordship and worldliness. His work to that end was not in vain, and his prayers have been answered.

Then I remember how a group of faithful Brethren separated themselves from the church because of their convictions, and struck out on faith, selecting Rev. Roy Long, a retired Brethren elder, as their pastor. They bought a bungalow, tore out partitions, and started regular services in the building. In spite of inconveniences and lack of room, God blessed the work.

I recall very clearly, how, almost at the same time, a group of Bible-loving people separated themselves from the Hagerstown Church of the Brethren, and started an independent faith church because of their convictions. Then there was a period of months when representatives of both groups would seek my advice, and we had many long talks. Out of it all, the Lord led many fine people of real conviction from the small group to unite with our group for worship and work.

Then the group appealed to the Brethren Home Missions Council for aid and advice. Brother L. L. Grubb was called as full time pastor, and has been on the field ever since. Brother Roy Long, who has a full-time secular position, very graciously stepped aside from the position of pastor because the work was growing too large for him to handle, and he could not give full time to it.

During the ministry of Brother Grubb, many new folks have come into the church, and the Brethren and Church of the Brethren groups have been so welded together by the Spirit of the Lord that now we have one united church, with real convictions, a vision for the future, and a passion for souls. They also are fortunate in that many are trained Christian leaders, and could be put to work for the Lord immediately.

After the ground breaking last year, there came delays, then a shortage of both materials and labor, then the war. Folks in the community shook their heads and said, "That will be the end of this church. It will never be built." However, they forgot three things. They forgot the power of the Lord, the faith of a united church, and the zeal of a wide-awake pastor! As a result, in spite of all war-time handicaps, today they can enjoy worshipping in a beautiful building.

Last Sunday, September 27, at 3:00 P.M., a goodly number of our Waynesboro members were on hand to enjoy the dedication program of the new Grace Brethren Church. We were just thrilled with that service! Mrs. Gerald Reese played the newly installed electric Orgatron. I never before even heard of a Home Mission Church starting out with an electric organ, but it happened. Delegations were there from Washington, D. C., and from Philadelphia, Pa. Brother Trevor Kelford led the congregational singing and rendered two beautiful solos. Brother R. Paul Miller, Executive Secretary of the Brethren Home Missions Council, brought a challenging message on the theme, "Why Should We Build Another Church Today?" The trustees presented the church keys to the pastor, Rev. L. L. Grubb. The first hour of the service was broadcast over station WJEJ.

To cap the climax, in a very few minutes after the sermon, and in response to a short appeal by Brother Miller, the congregation and their friends present raised in cash and pledges the sum of $2,244.44 to reduce the building debt. As I sat on that platform, looking over the beautiful auditorium which has a seating capacity of 500, two thoughts came to my mind. First, I thought, "Look what God hath wrought," and I praised Him for His goodness. Then I thought, "Look what our money for Home Missions helped to bring about! Home Missions pays! ! "

I close this article with this personal testimony. In my estimation, the building of this congregation and church in Hagerstown has done more to strengthen the faith and interest in Home Missions on the part of my congregation in Waynesboro, than any other single thing. We had a part in it. We helped dig the basement. We prayed for it. We saw it grow. We fellowshipped with the people. That work is a part of us. God grant that all Brethren everywhere may pray for, and give to the great work of building Brethren Churches in the United States!

DO MEN REALLY BELIEVE THIS?—

In a radio round table broadcast from the University of Chicago the other day, an editor made the statement that a stable world peace could be established without the peoples of the world becoming Christians. A college professor on the program replied, "Perhaps, but I should not be surprised if the world should be Christianized in the course of spreading the four freedoms."

Now these "four freedoms" refer to those mentioned by President Roosevelt recently. 1. Freedom of speech; 2. Freedom of worship; 3. Freedom from want; 4. Freedom from fear.

No doubt the professor felt that he was making a very noble statement. Undoubtedly many others feel the same. The idea that all that Christianity amounts to is an endorsement of a general purpose to be considerate of others seems widespread. The fact that to be a Christian requires acceptance and surrender to Christ as Savior and Lord is never considered. The fact that a man can't be "Christianized" without definite dealing with his sinfulness is ignored. There is only one freedom that Christianizes a man, and that is freedom from sin through faith in Jesus Christ.

If this world of men should all endorse and support the "four freedoms," mankind would still be hopelessly lost and apart from Christ. One thing we are sure of, the "four freedoms" will never be established on earth until Jesus Christ establishes them. No world of men whose hearts are strangers to God and who reject Jesus Christ will ever accept those "four freedoms" for all men. "If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." (John 8:36).

Men will never be free from fear and want, nor free to worship God as they choose until Jesus Christ shall reign. The "four freedoms" or any other kind of freedom can never be established on earth by law or victorious armies. The faithful preacher of the gospel is the only man who is bringing "true freedom" to the hearts of men in this world. Receiving Christ as Savior and Lord will produce free men, but no human scheme of ideals will make men Christian. It is not by the law of a carnal commandment, but by the power of an endless life.

HAS ROME CHANGED?—

Forty Roman Catholic leaders have signed and issued a manifesto. It assails all forms of totalitarianism, whether Communism or Fascism. These tremendous movements are assailed as being "absolutely incompatible with the message of the gospel." What irony there is here, to view representatives of the Roman Church which for hundreds of years during the dark ages wickedly claimed and ruthlessly exercised the most vicious rule over the lives and fortunes of nations of men!

There is an affirmation of democracy, as the "political and social life of a community of free men." We wonder if this is what the Roman Church stood for under the bloody Popes; or when Richelieu made all France to tremble, and when men, women and children were condemned to die at the stake, or in the "Iron Maiden," or to be tortured on the rack during the Inquisition? Just what kind of freedom did Rome stand for then?

The manifesto speaks of "social and political freedom" and of "equality before the law," but we find no mention of religious freedom. This is not hard to understand, for Rome does not grant religious freedom to anyone. 350,000 martyrs for Christ bear sinister testimony to this fact. Just ask any one of them, as they stand burning at the stake, if they believe that Rome believes in freedom and equality?

Of late years so many other devastating movements have swept over the earth that many who once voiced alarm at Rome's sinister nature have turned attention to other things. As a result, great numbers of laymen have been allowed to feel that the Roman Church is an equal Christian institution with the Christian church.

The boast that "Rome never changes," still holds. Rome has not changed. Given an equal chance with Communism or Nazism today, Rome would institute a totalitarian rule that would equal anything modern dictators have ever attempted. Rome was expert at the job of dictatorship with all its cruelties and slavery, hundreds of years ago. Rome has not changed. Never forget that. "The harlot drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus" is fooling many today into thinking she is virtuous and noble. Jesus said, "Take heed that no man deceive you, for many shall come in my name saying, I am Christ and shall deceive many." Keep your knees down, and your heart high, and your eyes on Jesus, and you will not be fooled.

WORLD WIDE RELIGIOUS WAR—

Undoubtedly there are thousands who believe the present bloody wars are being fought in behalf of certain forms of government and social philosophy. Nothing is farther from the truth. Men could never be drawn to such terrible self-abandon, to such fanatical suffering and sacrifice in order to establish a "new order" of politics or social structure. Nor could men be stirred to such horrifying acts of cruelty, as are being committed in this present warfare, in order to satisfy any personal ambition.

Religious fanaticism alone could generate such fiendish excesses. But many scoff, at once, at such an idea that there is enough religion in Japan, Russia, or Germany put together to stir men to fight for it. But facts are facts. Many conceptions, born of ignorance, have died on the altar of stern reality since this war started.

JAPAN IS FIGHTING A RELIGIOUS WAR—

Otto Tolishus, news correspondent expelled from Japan, published a despatch in the New York Times. He states that in February of this year Professor Chickao Fujisawa, Japan's leading philosopher, published a booklet in Tokyo in which he stated that all life began in Japan. The human race originated in those islands. As a result, the Japs are now fighting a holy war to bring "warring mankind into one universal family, where each nation will take its proper place under the divine sovereignty of the Japanese Emporer." Also, that the Emporer is the "Son of Heaven," a direct descendant of the Sun-Goddess, is the "absolute cosmic life center" from which the nations have departed and to which they must be brought back. Adds Tolischus, this booklet simply puts in print the idealism that has fired Matsuoka in his leading of Japan to attempt their present national expansion program.

Japan must conquer the world. Japan must crush all other religions Japan must annihilate every obstacle, military, political, or religious, that interferes. That is why Japs are now destroying the Chinese religious leaders, burning temples in China and the Pagodas in Burma, and killing missionaries and destroying mission properties wherever they go. Fired with the high ideal that to die in the struggle to bring the world back to their Emporer, they go at once as heroes into the presence of the Goddess of the Sun and to honor and bliss, they are willing to die and gladly. This accounts for their apparent reckless and suicidal deaths.

GERMANY FIGHTS A RELIGIOUS WAR—

The same fanatical fervor is found in German breasts. Hitler's Mein Kampf, the new German Bible has fired German youths with the inner impulse to give themselves to any effort, any sacrifice, any suffering in order to extend the rule of Germany over the world.

Built on the Marxist idea that the weak must perish and the strong must survive and rule, they hope thus to bring in 1000 years of perfect human experience. Drenched with Hitler's propaganda to believe that they are the chosen race to rule the world and that all others are inferior and unfit to rule themselves, they are ready to suffer anything in the effort to bring this about. Claiming Hitler as their God, and his teutonic idolatry as their philosophy of life, they view all other religions as fit only for destruction. So, they massacre and rob the Jews by thousands; they close Protestant churches and throw preachers into concentration camps; they hang Roman Catholics and curse the church of England. Religious fanaticism is driving Germany on.

RUSSIA IS FIGHTING A HOLY WAR—

Cried the Lord through Ezekiel, "I am against thee O. Gog." It was in Russia that hatred of the God of the Christian flamed to the highest. It was there that a million and a half Lutheran people were driven from their churches, and thousands of their pastors were stood before the firing squad, or were sent to Siberia to die. It was there that the Bibles were burned, churches were destroyed or turned into theatres, brothels, or warehouses. It was there that the people were taught that Christianity was an opiate to the intellect. To free mankind from these shackles, and bring in a Marxian world of worship of the great Lenin is the fire that burns in Russian breasts today and steels them against all the horrors of war and its sufferings.

Yes, this is a religious war at the bottom, and if we are truly in the end of the age, as it draws on, it will finally flare into a war of all nations under their great false god, Antichrist, against Jesus Christ the Son of God.

> "And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war" (Rev. 19:11).

> "And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean" (Rev. 19:14).

> "And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, King of Kings, and Lord of Lords" (Rev. 19:16).

> "And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse, and against his army" (Rev. 19:19).

> "And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet these both were cast alive into the lake of fire and the remnant were slain with the sword of Him that sat on the horse" (Rev. 19:20,21).

Undoubtedly, the motive back of the present struggles is religious. It will finally assume the nature of war against God and His Christ. It will be the act of ultimate folly, but to men, blinded by sin and unbelief, it will seem the essence of wisdom. Soon will the Son of God, with the armies of Heaven, wage "a war that will end war." Haste the day!

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

The Winchester, Va., School of The Bible got off to a grand start with approximately 80 present for the opening session. Rev. R. Paul Miller, Secretary of The Home Missions Council, and Rev. Trevor Kelford, the new pastor of The First Brethren church, at Covington, Va., were present to open the school. The second night of the school, Rev. Paul Dick, the pastor of the church in which the school meets, states they had 65 present in spite of a regular cloudburst a few minutes before starting time. The folks are quite enthusiastic about the school. Courses being taught are: Personal Evangelism, The Books of Hebrews and Revelation. Teachers: Rev. Paul Dick, Rev. Charles P. Walz and Dr. A. T. Baker. Many from other churches are attending the school, which speaks well for its place in the community.

A recent report from Southern California brings us news that Rev. George Richardson, pastor of The First Brethren church at Glendale, has been elected president of the Ministerial Association of The Brethren Churches of So. Calif. And word comes also that his church is in the midst of a "Burn The Mortgage Campaign."

The Grace Brethren church of Hagerstown, Md., Rev. L. L. Grubb pastor, had one of the largest mid-week Bible study groups in its history with sixty present. That's commendable, especially when we know that such an attendance would have been a fine number for any Sunday service a few months ago. Some highlights of their recent Evangelistic campaign and dedication service: Attendance averaged 170. Thirty-seven decisions for Christ. Seven first-time confessions, the balance rededications. Seventy-two boys and girls between 6 and 14 years made decisions for Christ in the children's services. Dedicatory offering totaled $2274.44. Church sponsored 16 radio broadcasts during their meetings, and is considering a daily broadcast.

Hagerstown Revival—

One week after the close of Conference the revival at Hagerstown began. Two years and one half ago, a small group of faithful Brethren appealed to The Brethren Home Missions Council for assistance in starting a new church in this city. Many were the difficulties and obstacles that appeared in the months that followed. These will no doubt be mentioned by Brother Grubb and others in this issue in other articles, so we will not mention them here. This was the first revival meeting conducted since Brother Grubb began his work in this field. It was held as a part of the general dedication services to celebrate the successful erection of their new building.

The erection of the building was a miracle of God's working. Because it was started before the government restriction against buildings was placed, it was allowed to finish. Materials have been hard to get. There was a real battleground there. However, no matter how many testings there are, God always provides the needs before very long. No great delays were endured. The size and beauty of this new church building are extraordinary when you consider the low cost of it all. The building is up to date in every sense of the word, and will prove to be a most efficient plant for the preaching of the Gospel and the reaching of men for Christ.

The people have shown a wonderful spirit in this enterprise. They have worked hard for months and months, day and night. We marvel when we realize how much actual labor they did put into this work, while they were giving freely of their money. They have truly put everything into this effort for Christ. The pastor, Brother Lew Grubb, worked right along with his men. He did not hesitate a moment to get under the load as they were doing. The result is a beautiful structure to the glory of God. Certainly, Brother Grubb has shown a remarkable evidence of faith, good judgment, and perseverence through the entire work of establishing this new congregation. Too much could hardly be said of the way God has used him to lead this people to accomplish a great work in a most difficult time. Success has been constantly realized in the growth of the congregation, from the very start. Brother Grubb has shown a most humble spirit through all of the advances that success has brought.

The attendance and interest at these meetings was excellent from the start. There was a fine spirit of fellowship shown by the other churches from neighboring cities. Delegations from Winchester, Washington, D. C., and Waynesboro were in attendance. These evidences of brotherly interest and concern and helpfulness were very encouraging to the local people. Brother Robert Miller drove all the way from Martinsburg with some of his people one night. In fact they all showed a wonderful spirit of helpfulness. However, the local ministers were conspicuous by their absence. Hagerstown is noted for Modernism and formalism, and of course this does not help relations with a true Brethren Church in any community. For the Brethren Church is a thorough-going antidote to these deadly influences.

Trevor Kelford, son of Dr. V. C. Kelford who is better known in the Brethren Church, led the song services each night. He sang on the radio program and conducted all of the children's services. He is a most excellent workman and he was very able in each department of the work that he undertook. He is a veteran radio man, having had his own program over CFCN of Calgary, Canada, for several years. His assistance on our local radio program was greatly appreciated. The song services under his leadership provided a tremendous inspiration for the entire campaign. His ability with children is very marked. Children flock to him and hover around him like bees to the honey. He loves them and they love him. The children's meetings reached an attendance of 120 For anybody who has the blues those children's meetings were a perfect tonic. Seventy-two decisions for Christ were had during these meetings. They gave a very fine demonstration on the last Friday night in the regular service, before a great crowd of people. Not only is Brother Kelford able with this type of service, but he is also a most able preacher.

Brother Lew Grubb has labored as few men have labored for any work for Christ. He has been tireless, resourceful, optimistic, and courageous against many odds. And when I say many I mean it, for there certainly are many in this work during these hectic days. It seemed as if the odds that were against him brought the best out of him. He is doing a wonderful work here under God. The people of the congregation love him, the community respects him, and God is using him. It was a pleasure to work with him in these meetings.

The radio program each morning was the most effective help that the meetings had, humanly speaking. On one Friday we were on the air three times, and another Friday we were on twice. We had one hour of radio time for the full dedication service. These radio programs became so popular that the radio station made real inducements to Brother Grubb to put on a program, six mornings each week after the meetings close. They have been a great help to the work, and they will be a real aid to the work in the future, if it becomes possible to put on a daily program. The radio is proving a genuine aid to many new churches wherever it is wisely used.

Hagerstown is a tremendous field for the real gospel. The possibilities of this field so far have been barely touched. If the Lord tarries and this nation holds together, there will surely be a great church in Hagerstown.

Our home was with Brother and Sister Finfrock, and a pleasant time it was indeed! In fact, the hospitality of all the members of the church was most gratifying. We could not have enjoyed a finer fellowship with any people than we enoyed with these Hagerstown Brethren.

The way the members of this congregation sacrificed to make this great work possible is a most wonderful thing. They really take delight in making sacrifices for their Lord. It is a pleasure to see.

The closing day of the meeting was a wonderful time. It included the last day of the revival with the dedication of the new building. The morning and evening services were strictly evangelistic, the afternoon service being given wholly to dedication of the building.

It started raining hard on Saturday afternoon and continued all night and most of Sunday. It prevented a large overflow attendance, but we still had a great crowd. Six came all the way from Philadelphia in the rain. At night we had the largest attendance of all, about 350 were there and about 25 decisions of various kinds were made.

The afternoon service was broadcast for one hour over the radio. This was the most effective, as well as the fastest moving dedication program we have ever witnessed. No time was lost, no awkward gaps. Every second was utilized, and I mean "second." The speaker was timed to bring a climax to his message at exactly 58 minutes and 30 seconds to the hour! The Lord was with us and all went well. That afternoon broadcast paid well. Scores of people attended the evening service because they heard that program. When the dedication offering was taken, the cash and pledges poured in. When totalled, they amounted to exactly $2,244.44. It was wonderful! Not one word of urging was needed. Maybe you think there wasn't a happy crowd there that day! The rain was pouring outside, but no one thought of it. It was radiant as sunshine inside. How they sang the Doxology after that offering!

The future is bright with possibilities in Hagerstown. With the spirit of love and co-operation now manifest in this young congregation, God will be able to make great progress in this city through them. Scores of people who are sick of the Modernism and legalism of other churches are attending our services and will eventually unite with the Grace Brethren Church.

We praise God for having had a part in this work of grace.

Flora Has New Pastor—

Brother Henry Rempel has felt led to finish his scholastic work at Bob Jones College during the coming year. He left for the south the middle of September. Brother Don Bartlett, who is now a student in Grace Theological Seminary, has been called as pastor of the Flora group for the coming year. The congregation was so impressed with his work in preaching for them for the first two weeks after the close of Conference that they felt led to call him as pastor. They fell that Flora being so near to Winona Lake, he will be able to give the local church enough time to care for the congregation's needs. Brother Bartlett is a most promising young man, and we have every confidence that under his leadership, the Flora Church will forge ahead steadily.

The recent Sunday School Dedication Day Service at San Diego, Calif., Brethren Church—Albert Flory, Pastor.

Wnchester Bible Institute Opens—

After the Hagerstown meeting was over, Brother Kelford and the secretary drove to Winchester, Va. Brother Paul Dick had invited us to conduct the opening night session of the school. The Winchester Brethren Church is host to this splendid, fundamental Bible School which meets for 8 months each year. Dr. Baker, a local physician, Rev. Walz, a Reliance pastor, and Brother Dick form the faculty. The church room was about as full as it could be on this first night. We greatly enjoyed the session with them. Brother Kelford led in a spirited song service and also sang two inspiring solos. The Secretary gave a message on the scriptural teaching as to the course of this present world, and what the Christian's attitude should be toward it. This school has proven a real blessing to the church.

New Field At Pearisburg, Va.—

The morning after opening the Winchester school, we drove on to Roanoke to interview Herman Koontz about the new field at Pearisburg, Va. This is a new city growing up around a new $20,000,000 artificial silk plant. A number of our members from other Brethren congregations who are silk workers, have moved to Pearisburg to work. These are forming the nucleus for a new Brethren Church. The Council has secured Brother Koontz to start a Bible Class here, to be held each week, much in the same manner as we did when we first began in Covington, five years ago. Brother Koontz feels that there is a better prospect to start with at Pearisburg than when we started at Covington. Already our most difficult problem, that of finding a proper place in which to meet, has likely been solved, for a hall, owned by a Presbyterian church in the section our people live, has been offered to us very generously. This will be a great improvement over meeting in any residence. Let all who pray remember Brother Koontz and these earnest people who so greatly desire a church home and a place in which to gather in the lost.

Kelford Now Pastor At Covington—

After enjoying one of Mrs. Koontz's splendid dinners, we drove on to Covington, 60 miles away. Here we had a service in the church that evening. Most of the members were there. This church has been with out a regular pastor since last March, when Brother Arthur Malles left to take up a pastorate at Kittanning, Pa. Several men have helped care for the preaching in that time. Brother Keith Altig spent the summer there with his family, but he had to return to school at Grace Seminary this fall. By the evident leading of the Lord, Brother Trevor Kelford, son of Dr. V. C. Kelford who is now a Brethren minister, was approached regarding this field. Early in August he and his wife drove down to Covington. He preached for them, looked the field over, and returned to Winona for National Conference. There he received a call from the congregation to become pastor. After prayer, he accepted. This, then, was the day of his return to take up the pastorate. When Brother Kelford left his work in Canada he sold his household furnishings, thinking he could buy in the United States, but he reckoned without the Canadian government. When he tried to bring the proceeds of the sale across the border, he found it could not be done. As a result he had neither the furniture nor the price he sold it for. So, when the Covington congregation learned about this, they started a movement to get furniture for him. Before the Secretary left, an electric refrigerator, and a stove were found, and by this time no doubt most of his needs have been met. We hope so, for if ever a fellow was homesick for his wife and children, Brother Kelford was.

There is a fine radio station in Covington, owned by a member of our congregation. The church has regular time over the station, and Brother Kelford, being a trained radio man, will make the Brethren Bible hour a real strength to the work of the church. Pray for this field and their new pastor. It is a great field with almost unlimited possibilities.

Rev. Bernard Schneider

At this time when so many people are coming to Washington, we would like to remind you that a cordial invitation is extended to YOU to worship with us. The church is located at 12th and E Streets S.E., just half a block from Pa. Ave. S.E., and can be reached by street car from any section of the city. In case of difficulty in finding the way to the church, a call to the pastor, Rev. B. N. Schneider, telephone Hobart 8972, will bring the needed information. Come, meet with us when you are visiting Washington.

AUSTIN C. MUNCH, ChurchSec'y.

Ruskin Garber, Pastor At Spokane—

This congregation has been pastorless for 9 months. That is hard on the strongest of churches. A few weeks back this congregation applied to the Council for assistance in obtaining a good pastor and getting back on its feet again. The Council directors agreed. Efforts at once began to obtain a pastor. Brother J. Ruskin Garber was finally secured. Brother Garber is a graduate of Ashland College and has been in very close association with Brother Charles Mayes in the establishing of the new West 10th Street Brethren Church in Ashland. He has proven himself a capable Bible teacher and preacher. Brother Garber left for Spokane, Monday morning, September 21st, and began his work there on the 27th. Spokane is one of the finest fields the Brethren Church has today. There is every reason to believe that not only one, but several strong Brethren churches can be established in that beautiful and progressive city. Pray for Brother Garber as he labors in Spokane.

Harold Mayer Retained At Juniata—

Such fine progress was realized in Juniata during the past summer under the leadership of Brother Harold Mayer that the congregation asked that he be retained as pastor during the balance of the year. This the Council agreed to, and arrangements have been made for his transportation each week. This was rather an unusual plan, but in the estimate of the directors the situation justified the means. We look for good things from Juniata in days ahead.

Thing Are Moving Ahead In Fremont—

Brother Bob Culver has started his work in Fremont with real zeal. Already much of the material for building the basement portion of the new building has been purchased. Brother I. Wesley Miller has been secured to direct the building, and work is expected to start in a few days. Perhaps by the time this is published it will have begun. The congregation is enthusiastic over the prospect of having at least a basement of their own building on their new location in which to worship and work. Don't forget to pray for them. Building new churches these days is not easy.

Osceola Builds a Basement—

Now that Brother Bob Hill has gotten married and the congregation at Osceola can settle down to business, things are happening in Osceola. Already they are cramped for Sunday School room and so they are putting a basement under their building. Work is progressing fine, and they expect to be using their new Sunday School rooms next week.

Modesto Purchases Radio Studio—

No, they haven't taken on a sideline, but since they can't erect a new building, they have bought an abandoned radio broadcasting studio. This building is so arranged that it can be used for services as it is. The plans are complete for moving the building on to the concrete foundation already waiting for it. In this way, the congregation will have a house of worship sooner than it could be built, even in California.

Another Victory At Flora—

Six weeks ago the Flora people invited us to be with them when they started a campaign to raise $1000.00 with which to reduce their debt. On August 16th we went over. That day a little over $1000.00, mostly in pledges and a little in cash, came in. On October 4th, we returned for the windup. When all was totalled up we had $1206.70 in cash. $206.70 over the goal. This reduced the total remaining debt on the church building to $2870.99. And now they seem to have their blood up on getting out of debt and they are already talking of wiping it all out in about 90 days! Those Flora Brethren have a wonderful spirit. They have a great vision and a lot of love for Christ.

Left—The New Flora Pastor, Don Bartlett, and his family. Right—Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Dyson. Brother Dyson was chairman of the "Debt-Reducing Committee."

Pondo Sees the Light

Chapter 10

A continued story written for our boys and girls

By MISS MARY EMMERT, Missionary in Africa

THE MAN WITH MIRRORS IN HIS MOUTH

"A white man of God is going to come here to live!" The news was passed from mouth to mouth. It was by far the greatest event they had heard of for a long time.

Pondo

"Look at the boxes he has!" they commented, as a number of accustomed to the visits of the white official.

No longer afraid of the white man, as they had become somewhat carried on the heads of four men. The villagers were no- which is a sort of chair suspended from two bamboo poles, sent to see the white man carried into the village in his tepoy.

When the great day finally arrived, all the villagers were preporters came panting in, each one with a box or small trunk on his head. "He must be very rich," they concluded.

By this time, the missionary had settled down at the government "rest house," or tourist camp, and was busy setting up his folding chair, table, and cot. A mosquito net was hung over the latter, like the ceiling and walls of a small room. A black "boy" helped him unpack the bedding, and get everything in order Another boy was arranging the cooking iron on four more or less, level stones in the yard outside the house. The boy had already asked the chief to have wood and water brought to him.

Pondo joined the interested group, which crowded around the doorway jabbering incessantly about what they saw. A few of the bolder ones stepped inside to be sure not to miss seeing the many curious possessions of the white man. Since they were not reproved nor driven out, others crowded in, until the poor white man was obliged to shoo them out, in order to have room in which to work.

Then he took his chair outside the door, sat down, and motioned them to do likewise. When they were all seated and fairly quiet, he began to talk to them, but they understood little that he said.

"See the mirrors in his teeth," one exclaimed pointing to his gold teeth. They all laughed and commented upon this novelty, then, fascinated, they watched him intently.

How About It?

Patriotism — Show your patriotism by living a Christian life; remembering that righteousness exalteth a Nation.

"He is speaking our language," someone declared.

"No, he isn't," contradicted another, and the question was debated at some length. They listened again, but could make nothing of it. It was very interesting however, so they came back that evening when he again set his chair out in front of the house. This time they understood a few words, and decided that he was really trying to talk their language. They were delighted.

"You must go to see the man with mirrors in his mouth," Pondo told his father, Koly, when he returned from work the next week. "They glitter just like the sun shining on the water.'" Koly listened to a long description of the newcomer and his many strange possessions. "He does not sit, nor sleep on the ground, as we do," Pondo explained. "Instead of sleeping on a mat on the ground, he sleeps up high off the ground. He does not eat out of the cooking pot, but has other pans to eat from. They are placed on a piece of wood high up, and he sits on a high stool. He does not eat with his fingers either, but has several knives with which to eat."

Koly could not understand all this very well, so he went to see and hear for himself. When he returned he was laughing. "He surely is a queer person. Toulougou had told me much about the white man, but he is funnier than I thought."

Days went by. Mr. Hope, the missionary, had hired a large nmber of the villagers, and was rapidly getting the ground cleared across the stream from the village. Then he had poles cut, trimmed, and brought in. Finally, he marked out a house, and had holes dug for the poles. All this they understood, for he was following their style of building. With a right good will, they erected the framework of the house, then tied long pliable sticks on both sides of the upright poles to form the walls, which they then chinked in with mud. The roof was covered by tying on small compact bundles of heavy slough grass, which were laid on like shingles. Then the wet floor was pounded hard, and the house was allowed to dry thoroughly. A coat of whitewash was applied inside and out.

"I am going to the village where I left my wife," the missionary told the little group that came to his door every evening to talk with him. "In ten days I shall bring her back with me." By this time, there were a few who had learned to understand what he said to them, partially, at least.

A white woman! They had never seen one. They were all very anxious to see what she would be like. So when she finally arrived, they came running from every direction. A loud trilling cry, uttered by some of the women, called those in who were in the nearby gardens. Everyone ran laughing and shouting after the tepoy in which the white "madame" was being carried. They danced around her and ran in front of her so they could get a good look at her, all the time gesticulating and shouting comments. In wild glee they accompanied her up the hill to her new home, where they watched the first steps of setting up housekeeping. Such was the welcome the missionaries received to thir new home.

QUESTIONS

1. Were the Africans glad to have missionaries come in their midst? If so, why?

2. Why did they crowd around the missionary to hear him talk when he first arrived?

3. What is a "tepoy?"

4. Of what materials are African houses made?

"GIVE!"

"Give, give, be always giving;
Who gives not is not living.
The more you give, the more you live.
Give strength, give thoughts, give deeds, give wealth,
Give love, give tears, and give thyself.
Who gives not is not living,
The more we give, the more we live.

NOW IS THE ACCEPTED TIME

There is no more important business in all of the world than settling the question of your eternal salvation. In Isa. 55:6 we read, "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near."

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."

"Behold, now is the accepted time. Behold, now is the day of salvation." (2 Cor. 6:2).

Do not allow any subtle temptation of Satan or any soul-destroying argument of man to rob you of your inheritance in Christ. You have had plenty of time to think. NOW is the time to act! ACCEPT CHRIST TODAY!

A Christian lady was complaining to a friend about the hardness of life and the circumstances that buffeted her and in anger said: "Oh, I would to God that I had never been made!" "My dear child," replies the friend, "you are not yet made; you are only being made, and you are quarreling with God's processes."

Historic Conference Is Called

THE WORLD IN GOD'S TOMORROW TO BE DISCUSSED BY AMERICA'S MOST ABLE BIBLE TEACHERS

Conference Dates—November 1 to November 8.
Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.

The American Board of Missions to the Jews of Brooklyn, New York, has taken the initiative in calling a conference, which may well prove to be as historic and as epoch-making as was the famous Council of Jerusalem reported in Acts 15.

"The little foxes spoil the vines," said Rev. J. Hoffman Cohn, Secretary of the Board, in telling of the aims, and purposes, and whys, and wherefores of this tremendous and far-reaching gathering.

"The alarming catastrophes into which the world has been plunged, the confusion and bewilderment of the nations, the shocking campaign of hatred against the Jews, which originated in the land of the Nazis, but now has seeped its way into our own land, the sudden appearance of certain men within the Church of Christ, who have begun to trouble the saints with strange doctrines, thus subverting the souls of many, all these considerations have made it most desirable, indeed obligatory, that we, to whom has been committed the solemn privilege of contending for the truth as once and for all revealed in the Word of God, shall meet together to give full consideration to these matters."

Dates and Speakers

The dates have been fixed as from Sunday to Sunday, November 1 to November 8, at the great Calvary Baptist Church, in the heart of New York on 57th Street, where Dr. W. W. Ayer, pastor, has thrown open the doors of hospitality and will be the host for the gatherings. Sessions will be held continuously from ten o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock at night. Among the speakers already scheduled are such men as Dr. Harry Ironside, Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafer, Dr. Louis S. Bauman, Dr. Charles Stevens, Dr. B. B. Sutcliffe, Dr. Louis Talbot, Dr. Harold Ockenga, Dr. C. Gordon Brownville, Dr. L. Sale-Harrison, and Dr. Harris Gregg.

To show the thoroughness with which this problem is going to be approached, here are some of the subjects already announced: "What Will God Do With This Cosmos World?", "The Jew After the Rapture.", "The Unfinished Gospel.", "Will the Church Go Through the Tribulation or Any Part of It?"

Announcement is being made of these meetings as far ahead as possible, so that many of the Lord's people from all parts of America may plan to attend. Full information the printed program itself when it is ready, details as to hotel accommodations in New York can be obtained by addressing: American Board of Missions to the Jews, Inc., 27 Throp Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Such a Conference, of course, involves a heavy expense and The American Board of Missions to the Jews has undertaken this tremendous financial burden as a venture of faith, having been led to a solemn conviction that such a pronouncement and such a conference is most desperately needed in this hour of world convulsion. Any friends, therefore, who wish to have a part in the burden of these expenses, may do so by sending their gift to the Mission direct, at 27 Throop Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., stating that the money is intended to help defray the expenses of the conference.

We hope to have further details to give to our readers as the time for the conference sessions approaches.

DON'T KILL THE GOOSE THAT LAYS THE GOLDEN EGG

Did you ever hear the fable about the goose that laid golden eggs? One day her master got mad at her and killed her. Then he had no more golden eggs. Well, Home Missions lays the golden eggs of new congregations of believers all over America. It is the increase of congregations in America alone that makes possible a greater Foreign Mission work, a greater Seminary. From the very start, new congregations are trained under the Council to support every interest of the denomination. This they are able to do. BUT—if we become indifferent to the support of Home Missions and let the Thanksgiving Offering suffer in any way we destroy the very sources of all the things our hearts are set on to do for Christ. Therefore, let us increase our Home Missions by doubling our Thanksgiving Offering this year. If you gave $5.00 in the offering last year, give $10.00 this year. If you gave $25.00 last year, give $50.00 this year. That is what it takes. Our Lord is watching the offering you lay down beside His cross. Let us not be ashamed when we see Him.

National Statistician's Summary Report

TO THE FIFTY-THIRD ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE NATIONAL FELLOWSHIP OF BRETHREN CHURCHES AT WINONA LAKE, INDIANA, SEPT. 9, 1942

This year we have a 100% report, with 77 Churches reporting to our Fellowship. This includes 8 districts, as hereby listed, with the number of churches in each: Central (Ind., Mich., S. Ohio, Ky.)—12; East (Pa., W. Va., N. J.)—19; East Central (N. Ohio)—13; Midwest (Ia., Ill., Nebr., Kans.)—6; Northern California—8; Northwest (Wash.)—3; Southeast (Va., Md., Tenn.)—9; Southern California—13.

These 77 Churches reported a gain in membership of 382 for the year, bringing their total membership up to 15,757 persons. These figures do not include the membership of the Brethren Church in Argentina and in French Equatorial Africa.

Each Sunday morning an average of 8042 Brethren attend church services, or about one-half of our membership. Sunday evenings an average of 5707 Brethren are at the church service, or more than one-third our total membership. An average of 2384 attend the mid-week prayer meeting in our churches, or a little more than one-seventh of the members.

Almost all of our churches held evangelistic services during the year, the total average attendance being 6607, or two-fifths of our members attending. About half our churches held Bible conferences last year, the total average attendance being 5258, or one-third of our membership. Most churches held communion services twice a year, with 6092 sitting down to the Lord's Table, or less than two-fifths of our membership.

The total Sunday School enrollment of our 77 churches was 15,970 or only 213 larger than our church membership. Of this number, 10,941 attended each Sunday, or two-thirds of the enrollment. About one-third of our churches conducted Daily Vacation Bible Schools, with 2983 children attending the sessions daily.

The reports showed a weekly attendance of 2464 at Christian Endeavor; a monthly attendance of 1260 at the Women's Missionary Council meetings; a monthly attendance of 401 at Senior Sisterhood sessions; and a monthly attendance of 207 at Junior Sisterhood services.

All financial reports were very good this past year. Our 69 church buildings owned were valued at $1,178,894. The 24 parsonages owned were listed at $69,400. Other property owned in the United States $1,321,944. All this property is owned by congregations, not by our conference.

Money expended through the treasuries of our 77 churches was as follows:

Pastor's Salaries	$112,250
Current Expense	86,694
Paid on Building Fund or Church Debt	93,077
Improvements	15,833
Evangelistic Services	13,343
Bible Conferences	2,467
Bible School & C.E. Supplies	9,437
Brethren Missionary Herald Co.	2,199
Foreign Missions Council	69,007
Home Missions Council	31,818
Jewish Missions	4,362
District Missions	4,650
Grace Seminary	6,525
Benevolences	2,322
Other Expenses	4,778
Balance in Treasury	44,272

In other words, our 15,757 members in the 77 Churches gave a total of $459,262 to all causes, or about $30.00 per member.

Respectfully submitted,

R. D. CREES,
National Statistician.

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

Missionary Doors are Open—According to TIME, there are 70,000,000 people in the United States without any church affiliation. Add to this the great number of church members who know nothing of salvation, and we have a great field for the gospel in America.

REGISTRATION FOR THE FIRST SEMESTER

Shortly before nine o'clock on the morning of September 14th, the scheduled hour for registrations to begin, students, eager to begin a new phase of their career or a new year of preparation, were gathering in the halls of the seminary building to complete arrangements for the new semester. We have not seen a brighter or a more optimistic group of students in our experience. We believe that there is one explanation for this eagerness which was so apparent. It was eagerness born of the Spirit of God, eagerness that faces the future with hope of things which our blessed Lord will bring to pass, eagerness that is rooted and grounded in the unfailing love and in the infinite power of the eternal God as revealed in the person of Christ.

By ones and twos and threes they came in throughout the morning until by noon no less than thirty students were registered for the new semester. This was indeed gratifying to the professors. And as they returned in the afternoon to the task of counselling with the students registering them, it was with suspense and anticipation for what the hours would bring forth. By the close of the day the student body of the seminary had almost reached the fifty mark, and now, that registration is completed, the student body numbers 51, with three or four who are auditing the classes. In many respects this is amazing, for it is the largest enrollment in the history of the seminary. And to have this large enrollment in days like these is encouraging.

After checking up on our registrations, we discovered that the new class reached the number of 35. This means that all of last year's student body returned, except those lost by graduation and one who transferred to another school. Of the 35 in the new class 21 are men and 14 are women; 16 of the 21 men are Brethren, while 7 of the women are Brethren. The Non-Brethren are more than welcome among us, and we have already begun to realize that God answered our prayers of last year when we prayed that He would send to us only those students whom He wanted here.

OPENING DAY AND CONVOCATION CHAPEL

Classes opened on Tuesday morning at the usual time of 7:45. But this was a new experience for the teachers as well as the student body. Heretofore the student body was much smaller and so the various classes were in most cases small. It was almost a breathtaking experience, therefore, to enter the class room and find it crowded to capacity with eager faces.

Such was the opening chapel service when students and guests had filed in. In this convocation service Keith Altig, a senior in the seminary, led the music, while Miss Esther McCrory, of Winona Lake, presided at the piano. The opening prayer by Professor Kent was suited to the occasion, and made special remembrance of President McClain, whose present illness made it impossible for him to participate in this service. At this juncture the faculty and student body joined in plans to send flowers to Dr. McClain the opening day of school. Mrs. Herman Baerg, accompanied at the piano by Miss Violet Mingle, sang "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," one of the favorite hymns of Dr. McClain, after which Dr. V. C. Kelford brought the opening message of the year and made a stirring appeal to faculty and students to step out in faith and possess this year the things that God has already declared belong to us.

The service was closed with two stanzas of "Living for Jesus," another of Dr. McClain's favorite hymns, and the benediction was pronounced by Professor Aeby. Thus the new year opened with the voice of challenge and the sound of victory.

OPENING PRAYER AND FELLOWSHIP SERVICE

Since coming to Winona Lake, Grace Seminary has reserved Wednesday evening for a prayer and fellowship service. And this has been one of the high points of the week. At these services prayer, praise, thanksgiving and testimony has been featured, with such spiritual uplift to all that we could never think of despising this privilege or ignoring this opportunity.

Due to the increased size of the student body together with student's families it was necessary for us to move to the chapel for this service. During the evening opportunity was given for testimony and praise with the result that many blessed experiences of the summer were shared. Time made it necessary to bring this portion of the service to a close. And many who were unable to voice their testimonies will be doing so at other services throughout the year. The burden of prayer that same evening gave evidence of the serious Christian purpose of the student body and is a token of things to come.

FIRST SEMINARY BANQUET AND RALLY

The success of any school depends in great measure upon the concern of the alumni who graduate from its halls. So Grace Seminary has great reason to rejoice. The students who have gone forth from its classes deeply appreciate the blessing they received, and they desire to show their gratitude by doing all they can to promote the interests of the school and enable others to share its blessing. They desire to exalt the Lord Jesus Christ, which is paramount in promoting the interests of the Seminary.

Under the able leadership of Rev. Kenneth Ashman, the president of the organization, they have undertaken a large program for this year. They have accepted the willingly proffered services of Dr. V. C. Kelford as field representative of the alumni. Wherever he goes and opportunity provides, he will arrange for alumni banquets in the interest of the seminary. The first of these was held at the First Brethren Church of Peru, Indiana, where Rev. Robert Ashman is pastor. About 100 were in attendance, including about 18 of the faculty and students of the Seminary. An excellent chicken supper was served with all that goes with it. Entertainment of special numbers were provided by members of the student body. And Dr. Kelford stated the purpose and plans of these gatherings. Offerings and pledges were taken, the proceeds of which will be used by the Alumni this year to buy an adding machine for the seminary, purchase song books and a communion set.

If this opening banquet is a token of what the others will be like throughout the year, we feel that the alumni association will not only accomplish its objective for this year, but will render valuable service in the years to come. And it is only right to say here that the secretary of this organization, Rev. John H. Squires of Wooster, Ohio, upon whom the burden of this work falls, is not only responsible for the efficiency with which the organization is now functioning, but will deserve a major share of the credit for achievement in the future.

FACULTY RECEPTION FOR STUDENTS

On Friday evening of the opening week of school the faculty held its reception for students and guests at the chapel of the Westminster Hotel in Winona Lake. This room not only provided commodious quarters for such an occasion, but also delightful surroundings. There were among the guests of the faculty, Dr. Mason, pastor of the Free Methodist Church in Winona Lake, with Mrs. Mason, Dr. Zartmann, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Winona Lake, with Mrs. Zartmann, Homer Rodeheaver, Mrs. Ruth Rodeheaver Thomas, Miss Katherine Carmichael, and Mr. Victor Hatfield.

Mr. Lawrence Lawlor, a middler in the seminary, directed an orchestra made up of students of the seminary and during the opening part of the evening entertained the guests with several sacred numbers, among which was one of the favorite numbers of Pres. McClain. After the opening prayer by Prof. Homer A. Kent, and words of welcome by Professor Herman A. Hoyt, representatives of the three classes responded, Harold Mayer, Gordon Cook, and Gordon Bracker representing the senior, middler, and junior classes, respectively. A quartet made up of Keith Altig, Gordon Cook, Nile Fisher, and Russell Ward, all of the seminary, brought a special number in song.

After words of greeting from Dr. Harold Mason and Dr. Parley Zartman, it was the very special privilege of the entire group to enjoy two special numbers sung by Mrs. Ruth Rodeheaver Thomas who was accompanied at the piano by Miss Katherine Carmichael. Rev. John M. Aeby, brought the devotional message of the evening, after which Rev. Leo Polman, assisted by Mrs. Polman at the piano, led the singing of gospel choruses.

The wives of the faculty, Mrs. Homer A. Kent, Mrs. John M. Aeby, Mrs. Herman A. Hoyt and Mrs. Leo Polman served refreshments in the lobby of the hotel, after which all enjoyed a delightful period of informal fellowship.

The colors of the seminary, white and gold, were carried out in the color scheme for the occasion. The flowers, made up of these colors, were delivered to the McClain home since Dr. and Mrs. McClain were unable to attend.

THE HOUSING SITUATION IN WINONA LAKE

In spite of the large number of homes that are available to conference attendants during the summer, there are really a very limited number that are adequately equipped to house students during the winter months. With the housing situation a very precarious one during the abnormal times in which we are living, the moving of students and their families to Winona Lake makes it especially so. A month before school began it seemed very improbable that students would be able to find comfortable quarters for the year, if they were able to find quarters at all, but the Lord not only called students here for preparation, but in His providence had housing matters all planned, too. The result was that this year there was less difficulty for students to find apartments than any year previous. For this we are deeply thankful.

THE WORK SITUATION IN THIS LOCALITY

For the most part our students must depend upon outside help or upon their own earnings to put them-

"The will of God is not a burden to carry, but a pillow to rest on."

selves through school. In previous years, since there was abundance of help and work was scarce, this has been a major problem. But even in the midst of apparent scarcity, God has made it possible for every student to finish the work he has undertaken in Grace Seminary. The kindness of the Lord's people in this vicinity and elsewhere have meant much in enabling students to finish their courses. The Women's Missionary Council of this district has played no small part in providing food stuff and clothing far beyond anything that could be imagined. A number of the students have student pastorates, and this has ministered to financial needs.

But this year students will not be at a loss to find work, for work is plentiful and men are scarce. A great many of the students have part-time pastorates, one student traveling as far as Altoona, Pa., by railroad, and several others traveling well into Ohio, to care for charges. While work is plentiful and students will be enabled to live, there is another angle that must not be overlooked. Prices have advanced and with a limited amount of time that students may take from their studies, they will still be closely pressed to make all ends meet. But God's grace is as abundant as ever, and He will supply every need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus. Will you pray for these students as they undertake the double task of self-support and study?

DR. V. C. KELFORD'S LECTURES

It was arranged with Dr. Kelford sometime last year that he should spend at least two weeks in the seminary this year, lecturing in the field of English Bible. This arrangement could not have been more providential in the light of Dr. McClain's absence from the seminary. Coming as they have at the very opening of the school year, variety and inspiration has been introduced into the regular routine. Dr. Kelford elected to bring lectures on the Gospel of Matthew, and he spoke twice daily for two weeks, Tuesday through Friday, Sept. 29 through Oct. 9, closing with a message on Isaiah 53.

Taking every advantage of Dr. Kelford's presence, the two prayer meetings during his stay were placed under his leadership, and he spoke to the beginning homiletics class, as well as the class in Isaiah. His long and wide experience made him the messenger of blessing to both faculty and students. His deep interest in the seminary and his willingness to be used of the Lord in behalf of the seminary is deeply appreciated.

HOW A TRACT "TRACKS"

A minister gave a negro a tract. Later, he asked him what he thought of it. "Ah. Massa, it done my soul good. I never knew befo' why dey call dem tracks; but when I read dat little book, it track me dis way, and it track me dat way. When I go in de barn, it tracks me dere; when I come in de house, it tracks me dere. It tracks me everywhere I go."

NEWS FROM DR. McCLAIN

Mr. McClain and I wish to thank our friends who have so graciously remembered us with gifts and flowers as well as cards and letters of encouragement assuring us of continued prayer during the time of Mr. McClain's present illness. We also thank the Board of Trustees of the Seminary for granting a leave of absence from active duty to allow a complete recovery. We realize that this was only possible because of the fine loyalty of the friends of the Seminary who are supporting the work.

At the time of writing, Mr. McClain is showing some improvement, though he is still confined to his bed. We trust that by the time this is in print he will be much further on the way toward recovery. It has become evident to the doctors that the illness was much more serious than at first thought. The nervous and physical exhaustion has left him with very little strength and the main problem at present which interferes with greater progress is the continuance of vertigo, but the doctors assure us that this will disappear as his general condition improves. However, they say, that since this exhaustion is the result of years of overstrain and overwork, that we can not expect a return to health in a few days or even months.

If many of the cards and letters have been unacknowledged and if the reports of Mr. McClain's progress have been few, I am very sure that our friends will understand how little time there is to do some of these things that should be done. Our feeling toward all of you is expressed in Phil. 1:3—"I thank my God upon every remembrance of you".

"ALL THINGS ARE YOURS" (I Cor. 3:21)

When our neighbor across the alley gets a new car or a raise or a better job, we so often outwardly express congratulations; but inwardly we feel a restless spirit stirring in us and driving us to seek after as much or more than our neighbor has. It is even possible that we do not want the sort of thing he has acquired, but, because our neighbor has it, we become jealous. The fact that our homes and our lives are so much alike testifies to this characteristic of our nature. We can't stand it if we don't have what other people have and do what they do.

This condition arises from an inferiority complex. We are trying to bolster up our pride and compensate for a feeling of poverty. For us as Christians to be entangled by such an attitude is foolishness. We are not poor, neither do we lack anything, but are like blind men starving in a house full of food. Paul says, "All things are yours." What we need the Father will give if we ask Him. All things, whether good or bad, as the world counts them, are bestowed by the Father for our benefit. So when we have the belief fixed in our hearts that that which we need shall be ours for the asking, we become free from the feelings of inferiority, and free from the burden of desiring everything we see; for we know that as soon as the need arises, it will be satisfied.—LaVerne, Calif., Bulletin.

Is the World Getting Better?

IF SO, HOW SOON WILL IT BE CONVERTED?

By RANDALL L. ROSSMAN, D.D.

"But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived." II Tim. 3:13.

Our subject is one which is causing much concern in religious circles today, and one which is being freely discussed yet much misunderstood by many of our present day ecclesiastical dignitaries. In our ministeriums, in our newspapers, in our religious journals and magazines it is not uncommon to read of those who are endeavoring to usher in upon this old world a "golden age", a "millennium", or a "utopia" of some considerable proportions.

Rev. Rossman

There are numerous so-called 'peace" movements, organizations, and societies which have been formed and which are being partially or wholly led by ministers and laymen of all the major denominations. Their object is to bring in upon this old world of ours a rule of lasting peace and prosperity and to re-mold society and the entire social order of the world so that one would have reason to desire the privilege of spending his eternity here on earth among men.

The "social" gospel is being preached from hundreds of pulpits throughout our land, and men are "falling" for it because "it is so easy to live by" but, let me add, it is absolutely unsafe to die! Any "gospel" that is fit to live by is fit to die by, and any "gospel" that is not fit to die by, is not fit to live by. The gospel of Christ is the only safe gospel because it and it alone is "the power of God unto salvation". Everywhere in religious circles today, we hear folk remark that this is not such a bad old world after all. Many professed Christians speak in language such as this, too, they say, "Things are so much better than they were when I was a boy. The world is getting better. The church is gaining new members, but we must modernize our services and our churches so that we can attract our young people and get them into the church." Statements such as these are born of Satan himself and are some of his subtle means of deceitfulness. "We must make our services and our churches so attractive and entertaining that our young people need not to go out into the world for their entertainment and pleasure." God help the church when it must bring in the world to attract the individual whether old or young! Our business today is not to get "church members" necessarily, but to lead souls to a personal knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. Once an individual becomes a "new creation" in Christ Jesus, the entertainment and pleasure will be of a different nature and form, and we need not to worry about getting members for our church. Then, they will have a desire to come into the visible church for spiritual food and nourishment as a new born babe in Christ! Some say that our business as churches and as ministers is to convert the world and then we will bring in the kingdom. Even if such a thing were possible, why a kingdom without the King? When the King comes, He will "bring in the kingdom" by establishing His kingdom and righteous rule upon the earth.

Our subject raises two very important questions. The first of these two questions is answered in the words of our text: "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." The world is a world of evil men, and evil men will not get better. Only God can make a righteous or "Good" man of one who is evil and wicked and bad. Regardless as to the position which men may take concerning this subject, God's Word is true and absolutely trustworthy. It is our final authority. To the Word, then, we shall turn for His answers to our questions.

Is the world getting better? In the days of creation and recreation, as is recorded in Genesis, we note that after He was finished with creation He saw all that He had made and that all was very good. Man was included, but he did not remain "good". We are now living in the age of grace, and, as we look back into the ages or dispensations of the Old Testament, we note that each successive age or period began with, continued, and ended in increased wickedness. There has never been the slightest indication of the evolution of man's goodness to produce a better man or a perfect man as some would teach today. Man, even from the beginning of time, has been on the decline. He has been the object of God's righteous judgments down through all time. The age of innocency was soon plunged into sin, and the guilty sinners were expelled from the Garden. The age of conscience began with sin, continued in sin, and ended with the judgment of God in the flood. The age of human government began with sin and ended with the judgment at Babel in the confusion of tongues. The age of promise began with sin and disobedience and ended with the judgment of the wanderings outside Israel's land of promise and of Canaan. The age of law, soon broken, ended with man so wicked that they would take Christ and crucify Him on the cross. They nailed Him to the cross, there to die. With each successive age we note the increased wickedness, and man's failure to do and obey the will and word of God. "The Law was given by Moses but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ (John 1:17).

In the Gospel of Matthew we note there are some very definite statements concerning the evils in the world and in the church (Matt. 13:24-30, 36-43). Let the Bible student note with care the time signal "until", which appears in connection with evil. "Let the tares grow together with the wheat" until the harvest. Here we are told that the tares represented the children of the devil and they are to grow and to increase (not be made better or converted) until the harvest, the day when they shall be gathered together in bundles and burned. Then in Matthew 13:47-50 we have the parable of the drag-net, which, in the end time will contain both good fish and bad fish. Both the saved and the unsaved will live together until the time of God's separation, when the unsaved and unconverted will be cast into the lake of fire. In Matthew 22:1-14 at the marriage of the King's Son, when the King came in to see the guests, saw a man not having on the wedding garment. This man was not converted, but was "cast out into outer darkness where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth." Here is portrayed a class of men such as we call "hypocrites", clothed in their own garments of filthy rags and found with a high profession until the all seeing eye of God detects their hypocrisy at His coming. There will be no hypocrites in Heaven, thank God!

Again in Matthew 22:41-45 we note that God has said to Christ, "Sit thou on my right hand until I make thine enemies Thy footstool". If the gospel will convert the whole world (as we are told) then evil would decrease and evil men and enemies would all become Christ's friends. But this is not true. We note that His enemies will continue to be His enemies until the end. In Matthew 24:37-39 we are reminded of the days of Noah (Noe). There was then no spiritual advancement or "improvement", but rather they were eating, drinking, planting, building, marrying and swapping wives until the flood came and swept them all away. Thus shall it be when the Son of Man is revealed. Matthew 25:31-46 shows that when Christ comes in glory at the revelation and the nations are gathered before Him, then it is that "He shall separate them" from one another "as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats". Those on the left hand were still unsaved and unconverted and He said, "Depart from me, ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels". Surely these scriptures furnish ample proof that the world is not getting better, but that it is steadily growing worse.

Our second question, "How soon will it be converted?" has already been answered at least partially, by the foregoing scriptures which prove that the world is growing worse and worse with each passing year. However, we shall look at a few passages of scripture to furnish us proof that the whole world will never be converted regardless of all the preaching and teaching and missionary work of all Christians everywhere. Christ died for the sin of the whole world but His death and its benefits are made beneficial only to those who will believe and receive Him by faith. The whole world will not receive Christ; it will not believe Christ and, therefore, will not be saved. "He that believeth not shall be damned."

We read in Luke 17:28-30 that the same day that Lot went out of the city of Sodom fire and brimstone were rained from heaven upon that city and it was destroyed. The Sodomites then were not worshipping God, neither were they even thinking of the dreadful doom which was theirs and soon to fall upon them. Lot's day is here given as a pattern or example of things on earth before or when or until the Son of Man is revealed.

Again, in Luke 17:34-37, we read that God says, "I tell you, in that night there shall be two in one bed; the one shall be taken and the other left". They shall live together until the time when God shall separate them! "Two shall be grinding together at the mill; the one shall be taken and the other left;" etc. If all were saved or converted throughout all the whole wide world than all would be taken or all would be left Why, then this separation?

In John 12:31 we note that "Now is the judgment of this world". He is not speaking of conversion but of judgment. It is judgment that awaits the whole world and not conversion. Again, in John 17:9 Jesus prays the Father thus, "I pray Not for the world, but for them which Thou hast given Me, for they are Thine". "Keep them from evil" (R. V., the evil one) until I come. The world has rejected God's own Son and it therefore continues on in rebellion and in sin. The gospel of Christ is now being rejected by the multitude of men; His blood is being trampled under foot as an unholy thing; His way is too narrow. The masses desire the easy way, the broad way, the crowded way, their own way.

The world must be evangelized, and also our churches so that church members may be true Christians.

First Things Last

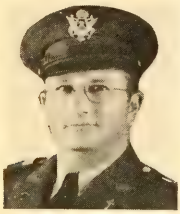
When he gets up at four o'clock to deliver papers, they call him a go-getter.

If church work required getting up at four, they would say, "That's expecting far too much."

If she spends eight hours away from home for the cannery or the bean patch, they call her an enterprising housewife.

If she did the same for her church, they'd say, "Religion has gone to her head."

If we tie ourselves down with $30.00 a month for the pleasure of a car, we know we must pay, and we pay.



But if we were to walk instead and pledge the $30.00 to the work of God, people would call us crazy.

This is a crazy world, where first things come last and last things first.—Southern Witness.

As a Chaplain Sees His Work

By CHAPLAIN ORVILLE A. LORENZ, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Time truly passes quickly, for it scarcely seems that four months could have passed since I began my ministry for Christ in the army as a chaplain. These four months have been chucked full of rich experiences, most of which I would not exchange for a great deal. First and foremost, the satisfaction of seeing men won to Christ, of entering into the waters of baptism with them and noting the change in their lives, even in this short time, has been worth more to me than I can ever express. As a Brethren chaplain, I naturally baptize by immersion, and have found most convenient one of the lakes at the Fort for the baptismal service. One of the ministers in Fayetteville has very kindly offered me the use of the baptistry in his church if I should so desire.

Chaplain Lorenz

During the month of August I had the privilege of occupying the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church for four services. I conducted a two weeks evangelistic service which was well attended and in which results were achieved for Christ. I was invited to be the guest speaker at a young peoples rally in August. I greatly appreciated this honor. Thus far I have solemnized three marriages, using the ceremony written by Dr. McClain. Each Sunday I have conducted from one to three services a day, either at the army chapel or in civilian pulpits. So aside from my regular army ministry, training, and study, there have been many opportunities for service.

The concern and hunger for the gospel message on the faces of many of the Christian young men to whom I have preached make the work a real challenge. Evidently many mothers and fathers back home have started their boys lives aright by introducing them to Christ and the Church. Who wouldn't welcome the privilege of keeping them in touch with Him? Evidently some ministers back home have preached Christ to them and that wonderful message must ever be kept before them. On the other hand, thousands of men coming into the army have never heard the message of salvation. God help me to give that message, not only be word of mouth, but by deed of life, as well. Yes, it is possible to live the Christian life in the army in spite of all the evil and vicious blockades which Satan's cohorts have set up. (And to mention here without boasting, it pays rich dividends not only for chaplains, but for the men in the army, as well, to live Christian lives. For, after all, the best soldier for "Uncle Sam" is the "good soldier of Jesus Christ.") But, I would not have you think for one minute that all is rosy and free from temptation in the army. By no means! The forces of evil always surround an army camp like yawning gaps ready to engulf the young lives that pass by. As you know, the finest physical specimens of young manhood are alone allowed to make up the army personnel. It is only natural, and to be expected, that as long as Satan is "the prince and power of the air" that he will do his utmost to claim these fine young men for himself. And that is just the reason for the chaplains being in the army—to defeat him, and to claim these young men for Christ and His Church. I beseech you more earnestly than ever before brethren, pray that the chaplains may all live up to the golden opportunity set before them and for the reception of the Word of God in the hearts of the men in the army and navy.

While the field for evangelism and the message of salvation is wonderful in the army, there is also a great field for pastoral work—helping the needy, visiting the hospitals, guardhouses, being a true friend to one-in-need and a good counselor. Many of the high ranking officials of the army are Christians and they recognize that the real motive and incentive to right thinking and right acting is the spiritual or "religious" motive. The Army of the United States now has approximately 3,500,000 men. Naturally, this is causing a great social, economic, and religious upheaval and disturbance—not only in the lives of men and women at home in civilian life, but in the individual lives of the soldiers as well. This great dislocation creates and will continue to create a great crisis—a religious crisis. There is an inclination on the part of many men, once they enter the army and are seperated from home, church, and "the need for a reputation," to cut loose and "sow their wild oats." And, the devil's crowd at the entrance of every military post makes it easy for them to do it. The chaplain by his friendly moral counsel in the name of Christ, and by his personal example in living, has the tremendous and glorious task of helping the Christian men to retain their spiritual life. Our government, and so does every sincere Christian, wants these men to return to their home communities when the war is over, better Christians and better citizens. There is a personal as well as a national victory to be won. In that personal victory the chaplain can play a very vital part.

The chaplainship is one of the highest forms of Christian service, especially during times of war when men of every community, church, and home are represented, perhaps not by choice, yet by neccessity. The chaplains position is as high as the chaplain himself cares or feels responsible to hold the standard. In many respects I believe it can be compared to the work of our missionaries—as noble a band of Christians as can be found. A chaplain by choice leaves his comfortable home and study, is separated much from his family and loved ones, goes among strangers, even to foreign lands, works amid many hardships and dangers, knowing that these dangers may, at any moment, usher him into eternity. Why do they do it—because, as the missionaries, they love Christ and they love men more than the comforts of home and civilian life. Yes, I suppose there are some who may be in the service for other reasons than this, but I also suppose this type can be found in the civilian pulpits as well.

I wish to tell you of something which I believe will be of interest to you and something for which I, myself, am truly thankful. That is the fact that the one and only commanded duty of a chaplain is to take care of the spiritual and moral needs of army life. And, the work and office of the chaplain is held in high respect by the vast majority of men in the army. Any other phase of army work is optional, be it recreational, or social, or whatever. Specific instructions are given by the War Department to all commanding officers which states that "chaplains will be employed on no duties other than those required of them by law, or pertaining to their profession as clergymen." The chaplain is not just a recreaticnal director, social investigator, or morale officer. In doing his great spiritual work he gives the only true and lasting foundation for "morale." I can testify that I have found the highest degree of cooperation among the commanding officers under whom I have worked ,and to whom I have access at all times. I have never been asked to do any work but that which would minister to the spiritual and moral needs of the army officers and men. Naturally, we are trained to do first aid work and are taught how to develop and care for our physical bodies. I'm particularly thankful for this, and I believe you would be too. No doubt my work later on shall take me out on the battlefield among the wounded, and, if I know how to relieve pain or suffering in some way I shall be glad for the training I have received. If it were your son, would you not be grateful and happy in the knowledge that the chaplain was on hand to help in the relief of your son's pain, make him more comfortable, and had prayer with him? I thoroughly believe that some of my greatest opportunities, and perhaps my only opportunity, to talk to some men about Christ will come when I am waiting with them in the silent, tense hours either before, during, or after the battle, or in the hospitals. And, may I also say this, that while I am with these men I intend to live with them each day. I want to enter into their activities of recreation and enjoyment as much as I can for the same reason that you ministers back home go fishing, attend ball games, retreat to the mountains or relax with your church members at a picnic.

I do not wish to leave you with the impression that all of the soldiers attend chapel services, nor are all in favor of the chaplain's work—but, not everyone in the community attended the church I served when I was in the civilian pulpit, nor were all in favor of my ministry there. I have tried in this article and the previous one to give you a true picture of the chaplainship as I have found it. Previous wars may not have found the chaplain in such a high position, but, I do believe, the United States Government has seen the value of a true spiritual ministry among its men—thus, the elevation of the chaplainship from what it might have been in past years to its position of value and esteem now. This is materially evidenced by the fact that the government has built 700 chapels costing nearly $15,000,000 and is endeavoring to provide a well recommended and endorsed chaplain for every 1200 men.

In conclusion there are a few things I hope you will glean from this short article.

First, there are men who are coming to know and accept Christ as their Savior in the army.

Second, there are Christian men in the army whose spiritual needs must be met and cared for.

Third, there are still many thousands who have not yet been reached for Christ.

Fourth, sin and evil are present and are being felt in no small way—but the gospel still remains the "power of God unto salvation," and, amid sin and evil the light of Christ's love and righteousness shines brightly.

Fifth, many chaplains are working hard to do their work as spiritual ministers to the army officers and men. The work is not easy and not always encouraging but it is wonderful. The chaplainship is a high and holy office and one of plentious opportunity for service. If it is otherwise it is not the position—it is the man. I'm happy for the honor the government has bestowed upon me—that of making me and recognizing me as a chaplain.

One of our generals recently said, "No man can effectively discharge the responsibility of leading our young men in this war without the guidance of Almighty God." Thus, while many are saying, "Keep 'em flying," "Keep 'em Rolling," or "Keep 'em fighting," let every Christian say "Keep 'em praying" and set a personal example.

P.S.—My personal thanks to the Brethren Missionary Herald Co., for the copies of its magazine, Dr. McClain's "Bible Truths" and various tracts, all of which have been proudly placed on the literature table in my chapel vestibule.

Paul's Estimate of Christianity

By L. L. GRUBB, Pastor, Grace Brethren Church, Hagerstown, Md.

Much discussion has centered in the respective merits of Christ and the Christian system of faith. Some have found Christianity practical for certain given conditions of life, but not for others. Still others have proclaimed it as completely practical and workable in any circumstance of life. It is our desire this morning to settle this question in the light of the only complete revelation of truth—the Word of God.

Of one thing we are sure at the outset that the primary desire of the heart of every man is for a hope that is steadfest and sure, that remains solid and unchanging while all about is decaying and crumbling. The poet echoes the sentiment of every human heart in that blessed beautiful hymn of the church, "Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day; earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away; change and decay in all around I see; O Thou Who changest not, abide with me." Thus what we have to offer by way of spiritual satisfaction for man must be very definite and distinct in its message. Both literal and fundamental schools of thinking in Christendom seem to agree clearly on this one thing. What, then, is the message that will bring complete spiritual satisfaction and peace to the individual heart? Is Christianity the answer? Is Christ the answer?

Hear the testimony of one who was an outstanding Christian under some of the most trying and soul-rending circumstances known to man: "For I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." Under the inspiration of the spirit of God these words were written by the Apostle Paul in 2 Tim. 1:12. This is the spontaneous testimony of one whose life was a medley of trials, persecutions, stonings, shipwrecks, and great tribulations. Thus, we may feel positive, if according to the testimony of Paul, Christianity fully satisfied every need of life if Christ was all in all, that this same portion would meet every practical need of all men.

Carefully inspecting the words of our text we notice that the first phrase clearly concerns the Christians past! "I know whom I have believed." The apostle indicates, first, that he had believed in Christ. The circumstances of that conversion are among the most remarkable in history. Acts, chapter nine gives the account in graphic detail. Saul was on his way to Damascus with official credentials and authority to silence and persecute any followers of the Way. Suddenly, a light blazed from the blue and Saul and his followers were stricken to the ground. Immediately a voice came from the vaults of Heaven, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" Saul answered with a question, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" He was commanded to enter the city, and there in the house of Judas through the power of God, Ananias removed the blindness from the eyes of Saul. From that time on his name became Paul. A more fearless, logical, powerful preacher of Christ has never lived. That Paul had believed on the Lord Jesus Christ was not only evidenced by his subsequent practical life, but by the testimony given to the seeking Phillippian jailor, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." Perhaps your spiritual experience has not seen such a dramatic turn of events. Regardless of this, the main concern is that you should have believed in Christ. Paul had been educated in the schools of Tarsus, knew their philosophies; he was a Hebrew of the Hebrews and assumed a high position in Israel. Despite all of this he found only one sure object of saving faith, only one who could lift the burden of sin from the human heart, only one who could speak peace to the troubled soul, just one who could meet every practical need of life through His divine provision. Belief in any other, in any church or institution will not avail to meet your need. "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved!"

The second thought indicated in Paul's experience in the past is his sense of complete assurance. "I know whom I believed!" Even a superficial study of the life of Paul will convince the most careless student that he was a literal bundle of conviction. His epistles are all stamped with full assurance of the truth of that which he writes. The very word used here indicates that what Paul believed was such a deep-seated experiential affair that there could be no doubt of its truth. In Romans 8:16 we read, "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." This is the sort of a definite practical experience for which the human heart yearns. If you are fair with me this morning, you will agree that this very definite experience and assurance is what you desire most. How unfortunate, then, that so many Christians lack the complete assurance of their salvation. Can a man be certain that he is saved for all eternity? YES! ! ! How? By simply accepting God's Word at its face value. In addition to Paul's testimony hear the apostle John, "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God! that ye may KNOW that ye have eternal life." (1 John 5:13). "He that hath the Son hath life"—not will have, or hopes to have, but possesses eternal life NOW. This is the Word of God in promise through the sacred writers. Either believe it or else be guilty of making God a liar (1 John 5:10,11). "He that believeth not God hath made Him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son. And this is the record, that Gad hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." Why should any believing human heart choose to labor on under the Satanic delusion that it is presumptuous to say that you know you are saved? On the other hand, my friend, it is a direct insult to God and a blasphemy of His blessed name to do anything else. One of the reasons for the utter practicality of the faith which Paul possessed was its comforting assurance moment by moment.

Again looking at the text we read the declaration of the apostle concerning the Christian's future hope in Christ. "And am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day."

First, it is the custom of the careful, thrifty individual to lay away, perhaps deposit in the bank, some material means against the needs of the future. Paul realized that more important than laying up treasures on earth was the establishment of a spiritual fund for the future in the bank of heaven. This is exactly what the phrase means; that Paul made a deposit with the Lord Jesus Christ who is President of the bank of heaven while the Holy Spirit is the Cashier and His right-hand helper. The Heavenly bank never closes; no run upon it can seriously deplete its funds for its assets and capital are the cattle on a thousand hills and all the gold and silver which are mine saith the Lord of Hosts. Lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven where thieves do not break through and steal! (Matt. 6:19f). But, what was the deposit made by the apostle? The answer to this question gives us the key to the understanding of what full belief in Christ to the salvation of the soul, and a subsequent life of service really means. It is not enough for a man to say "yes" with the mind to Christ and then withold his heart and life from Him: Many who are carelessly doing this today will find themselves hopelessly lost in eternity. Our same apostle tells us elsewhere that with the mouth confession is made unto salvation and with the heart man believes unto righteousness. Again, in our text he indicates that he has done much more than believe with the mind. We do not oppose the head to the heart in belief when we say that more than simple intellectual assent to the things of God is necessary for actual salvation. A man must make a deposit in the bank of heaven by committing his all, spirit, soul, body, time, talent, material things, mind, will, personality to the administration of the President, the Lord Jesus Christ. Anything short of this is not the practical experience of the apostle. Perhaps you have been floundering on turbulent seas so close to the haven of rest. You have gone so far, but not far enough. You can make your deposit NOW!

Secondly, and lastly, Paul is certain that his deposit will be kept securely against that day. The apostle knew, what so many fail to accept today, that this life does not end any man's existence. Another day is coming in which all shall be called into account for the deeds done in the body. For the believer this will mean rewards or loss of rewards, depending upon the degree of their dedication to Christ's service. For the unbeliever, this day will bring varying degrees of punishment in hell. Even though approximately a thousand years separates these two judgments, both are necessary to complete our picture. The day spoken of by Paul is probably the day of the second coming of Christ when He will begin the last process of reckoning with men, which will finally result in the eternal state of the universe. The apostle's faith was not a blind, fatalistic one, but was squarely based in the promises of Jesus Christ to those who love Him. In his letter to the Phillippians 1:6 we find the same positive assurance, "Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." In different language Paul may have said, "I have believed in Jesus Christ as my Savior, and I now herewith commit my all to Him, being satisfied according to His precious promises that He will complete the eternal task of my redemption."

The student of Paul's life knows that he served Christ under the most difficult and trying circumstances with a "thorn in the flesh" which was a constant source of trial to him. Yet, this was Paul's estimate of Christianity. Here we find Christianity at its best as it always is when functioning under the most adverse and trying circumstances. Let me remind you in closing that Paul's estimate of Christianity was his estimate of Christ. These two cannot be divorced as some are trying to do today. That God may lead you into this rich Christian experience through full heart and belief in Christ is our prayer!

Pondo Sees the Light — CHAPTER 11

A Continued Story Written for Our Boys and Girls By MISS MARY EMMERT, Missionary in Africa

TO KNOW GOD'S MESSAGE

Synopsis:

A Missionary came to stay in the village in which Pondo and his family lived. Mr. Hope, the missionary, made friends with the people of the village, and they would come to hear him speak, although they did not understand all that he said. After building a house, he brought his wife whom he had left in another village to live there. They were very joyfully welcomed by the natives into their new home.

Sambey was delighted too. He had put on his one suit of clothes for the occasion, and had come out to shake hands with the people of God. When he had first been approached by the missionary in regards to settling in his neighborhood, Sambey had agreed enthusiastically. "We shall gain many riches from the white man," he had told his friends. Now he appeared at their door, followed by his most important men. One of his sons followed with a chicken, another with two eggs. He was invited in and given a chair. Since there were not enough chairs for everyone, most of them sat on the floor.

"I have brought the "Madame" some presents", he said, pointing to the chicken and the eggs. The "madame" noticed with a practiced eye that the eggs were yellow and shiny; evidently they had been taken from under a setting hen. But she took them graciously.

"Let us pay you for them," said her husband.

"No, no, am not I a big chief? These are presents I am giving you for nothing," Sambey insisted.

Mr. Hope yielded to the inevitable, knowing that the old man expected a present in return, and that all trades must be in the proportion of a fish for a cow to satisfy the gleaming eyes of his new friends, who believe that "according to what a man hath" is the proper rule for giving. He also knew that the "road" of exchanging gifts was a long and tortuous one, so he prayed for wisdom to know how to walk in it, so as not to offend against the black man's customs, and yet not to encourage their cupidity unduly. He decided to yield this once, and to discourage the practice in the future. So when Sambey and his court, after having admired everything they saw, were finally ready to leave, Mr. Hope brought out a shirt and gave it to the delighted chief. The first formalities were over successfully.

Pondo and his little friends never tired of going to the mission station in their spare time to learn what they could about the white man. One day Pondo brought home some news. "When the next moon 'dies', the people of God are starting a school for the children."

"What is a school?" asked Koly.

"It is the affair of showing the writing of the white man," said Pondo. "They told all us children to come."

"What is writing?" asked Nana.

"A writing is like a leaf of a tree, only white. It is a talking leaf, that can be sent as a message," explained Pondo. "One day we saw that Madame wanted a hammer. She made one of these writings and gave it to me to give to M'sieur, her husband. All he needed to do was to look at the little talking leaf, then he gave me a hammer to take to his wife, without my saying a word."

"Why do they want you to know the way of writing?" Nana persisted.

"They say they want us to see the writing of God for ourselves," replied Pondo. "It seems that God has written a message to us, and if we learn to see it with our own eyes, we shall understand it better."

"That would be very good," said Koly. "If God has sent us word, we should know what it says. The guard told me that the white man's writing was a very big affair. If you want to go to this school, it would be very good."

"Are Yaboko and Della, the twins, to go to school, too?" asked Pondo.

"Oh, no, of course not. What are you saying?" exclaimed Nana. "Girls must stay home and help their mother."

"Then, too, no one would want to marry them," said Koly. "Let the boys see what it is like first."

The Way To Give

Henry Ward Beecher was once asked the question: "What is giving with simplicity?" and answered, "Why, it is giving just as if giving were so natural that when a man gave he did not think of changing his countenance, his manner, or his air at all; but did it quietly, easily, beautifully."

When Wesley Read The Bible

To candid, reasonable men, I am not afraid to lay open what have been the inmost thoughts of my heart. I have thought, I am a creature of a day, passing through life, as an arrow through the air. I am a spirit come from God, and returning to God; just hovering over the great gulf; till, a few moments hence, I am no more seen! I drop into an unchangeable eternity! I want to know one thing, the way to Heaven—how to land safe on the happy shore.

God Himself has condescended to teach the way; for this very end He came from Heaven. He has written it down in a Book!

O give me that Book! At any price give me the Book of God. I have it. Here is knowledge enough for me. Let me be Homo Unius Libri (A man of one book). Here, then, I am, far from the busy ways of men. I sit down alone! Only God is here. In His Presence I open, I read His Book; for this end, to find the way to Heaven. Is there a doubt concerning the meaning of what I read? Does anything appear dark and intricate? I lift up my heart to the Father of Light. Lord, is it not Thy Word, "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God"? Thou givest liberally, and upbraidest not. Thou hast said, if any be willing to do Thy will, he shall know. I am willing to do; let me know Thy will.

I then search after and consider parallel passages of Scripture, comparing spiritual things with spiritual. I meditate thereon, with all the attention and earnestness of which my mind is capable, if any doubt still remains, I consult those who are experienced in the things of God; and then the writings whereby being dead, they yet speak, and what I thus learn, that I teach."

"For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in Heaven."—Ps. 119:89.—(From The Christian Digest.)

The First Blackout

Did you know that God staged the first blackout? In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth, and because of a cataclysmic judgment upon the angel inhabitants, the earth became desolate, and darkness was upon the face of the deep until God said, "Let there be light" (Gen. 1).

Again in Ex. 10:21,22, when Pharaoh would not let God's people go, He blacked out Egypt for three days with a darkness so thick that it could be felt. But God's people had light in their dwellings.

In the fulness of time God sent His Son to be the Savior of the world. "In Him was life; and the life was the light of men," but men loved darkness rather than light, and they crucified the Lord of glory. Again, God sent a blackout; and as the Lord Jesus hung upon the cross there was darkness over all the earth for three hours (Gal. 4:4,5; Luke 23:44).

God has two more blackouts scheduled. One is to be during the tribulation, when the kingdom of Antichrist will be full of darkness (Rev. 16:10). Then there is an eternal blackout reserved for those who refuse to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ unto salvation, where there will be weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth (Matt. 22:13; 25:30; Jude 13).

In contrast to this, the believer has a bright outlook ahead. Jesus said: "I go to prepare a place for you." The Christian looks forward to a city whose builder and maker is God (Jn. 14). We read of it in Rev. 21:22. There shall be no night there. The city will be of pure gold, the gates pearls, the foundations precious stones, all shining in the glory of the Lord, Who is the Light thereof.

Which eternal abode have you chosen: God's everlasting blackout or God's eternal day?—Laura T. Halsey.

Army Chaplain Asks for Missionary Herald

Our Church paper is finding its way into many of the army camps. Churches as well as friends and relatives have sent in subscriptions for the boys. The following letter is self explanatory:

Dear Rev. Polman:

Choice greetings in Jesus' Name.

I am endeavoring to circulate the Denominational Magazines in our regiment. If funds are available, this office would be pleased to receive 16 free subscriptions of your Denominational Magazine . . . "The Brethren Missionary Herald" to be distributed free in the regiment.

A young man whom you know sends his greetings—Pvt. R. D. McNeal (one of S. S. Boys from Fort Wayne Church). I have a staff of 10 men including the Post Office and Band. Dale has been doing some very good work and I have found him earnest, sincere, enthusiastic, and quite capable in a variety of assignments. We are all working hard and doing many different tasks to aid in the accomplishment of our purpose.

Dale has been describing Conferences, camp meetings and revival campaigns "back home". I know he misses all his friends by the theme of his conversation.

I would suggest that all the Young People of the church as well as his pastor write him a letter. This is a proceedure I am trying to accomplish for every man in the regiment, in order to, "tie" each man in with his Home Church "lest he forget". One man came to me the other day all aglow over the fact that: "Young people all wrote me a letter and I even got one from the Pastor"—he has been a different boy since.

Thanking you in advance for the Church paper, I am

Sincerely yours in His Service,
David H. Wilson,
Chaplain, U. S. Army.

The young people's class of which Dale was a member is sponsoring this bit of missionary work for the boys in Alaska, where Dale is stationed.

Perhaps your church, young peoples society or organization would like to sponsor some subscriptions for our boys in the armed forces. Keep them reading about their church. It's like a letter from home. By all means see to it that your boy has the magazine going to him each week.

Another Camp Report

The Junior Brotherhood of the First Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, recently spent three days camping at Thomas Mills near Johnstown. The camp was sponsored by the advisors of the Brotherhood. The purpose of the Brotherhood and the camp is to instruct our boys in God's Word, so that will be found doing His will. We have chosen as our theme verse Matthew 4:19. We are endeavoring to show to these boys the blessed privilege it is to be a soul winner for Christ and to fish for lost men.

The camp enjoyed a series of Bible, object, and music lessons. A period of recreation was also provided for the boys, swimming, hiking, baseball and volley ball being the main sports.

The boys held a vesper service around a large campfire each evening for their parents and visitors at the camp. Several men of the church surprised the boys with a wiener and marshmallow roast. Then, on top of all that, we discovered another surprise package containing ice cream.

When it came time to pack up to go home we heard many pleas from the boys to stay longer. It was from these pleas, the fellowship, and the time spent in prayer that we realized the good that had come from such a short stay. The boys were thankful that God had blessed their stay with fine fellowship, teachers, and asked that they might have a camp next year for a longer period of time.

We, too, look forward to next year, praying that we may be able to stay longer for we greatly enjoyed the fellowship of fine Christian friends who are endeavoring to do the will of the Father. Those present as teachers and cooks were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Blough, Miss June Blough, Mr. H. A. Schmucker, Mr. William R. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. H. Leslie Moore.

NEWS BRIEFS
From Our Workers

Pastor loaned for starting new work reads a headline in a church bulletin. Rev. Chas. Mayes, pastor of the West 10th Street Brethren Church, Ashland, Ohio, is the pastor to be loaned. At the last business meeting the pastor was allowed three months leave of obsence for the purpose of starting a new work at Cuyahoga Falls, Akron, Ohio. The arrangement is that Rev. Mayes will meet with his Ashland church in Bible classes and Prayer meetings, Monday through Wedensday, spending Thursdays through Sundays in the new work. An associate pastor, Russell Ward, formerly a member of the America Back to God quartette, and now a student at Grace Seminary, has been called for the Ashland church.

Rev. Mayes

Another church votes to send the Brethren Missionary Herald to every family of their church membership. The live and awake, First Brethren of Peru, Indiana, Rev. Robert Ashman, pastor, informs us here in the office that at their last business meeting the church voted to make their church 100 per sent for Brethren Missionary Herald magazines. What church will be next?

The Eureka Jubillee Singers and Rev. R. Paul Miller, secretary of our Home Missions Council, are teaming up for an evangelistic campaign to be held at Grace Brethren Church, Waterloo, Iowa, in a few weeks. The exact dates we do not have at this writing. Dr. J. C. Beal is pastor of this church and he too reports some real achievements in the work at this place. Not only has this church attained the 100 per cent goal for Brethren Missionary Herald subscribers, but have gone way over the top in that every family in the church receives the magazine as well as many who are not yet on their membership roll. Keep up the good work Brother Beal. If a 100 per cent is too low, how about hitting the 200 per cent mark? Be the first in this! Any church ready to challenge them on such a goal?

Dates for the Revival Campaign that shall be conducted by Rev. Chas. Ashman for the First Brethren Church, Tracy, California, have been set as October 27 through November 8. Remember this revival effort in your prayers.

The First Brethren Church of Altoona, Penn., Rev. Raymond Blood, pastor, also announces a two weeks revival effort beginning October 18 and closing November 1st. Rev. Blood reports that the Lord has been richly blessing their work at this place. Many material changes have been made which have made for better services. He reports that services have increased about 50 per cent. Many visitors have been in attendance every Lord's Day. Pray for this fine work, people, and pastor.

The First Brethren Church Fort Wayne, Indiana, has called Rev. Keith Altig as pastor beginning October 18. Brother Altig is a senior student at Grace Seminary and will serve this church as a part time pastor until next May, at which time he graduates from Seminary, then he shall take up his full time work with the church. Brother Altig and family will make their residence in Fort Wayne. brother Altig commuting to school.

Rev. Altig

Worth repeating. An ad appearing in a New York newspaper read as follows: "For Sale: Some good church pews slightly used." Brother Hammers of our Tracy, California church comments on same as follows: "No doubt there are a great number of churches which could offer church pews for sale under the same guarantee."

IN HIM—NO CHANGE

"Whate'er my change, in Him no change is seen:
A glorious sun, that wanes not, nor declines;
Above the clouds and storms He walks serene,
And sweetly on His people's darkness shines.
All may depart—I fret not, nor repine,
While I my Savior's am, while He is mine.

He stays my falling; lifts me up when down;
Reclaims my wandering; guards from every foe;
Plants on my worthless brow the victor's crown,
Which, in return, before His feet I throw,
Grieved that I cannot better grace His shrine,
Who designs to own me His, as He is mine.

While here, alas! I know but half His love,
But half discern Him, and but half adore;
But when I meet Him in the realms above
I hope to love Him better, praise Him more,
And feel and tell, amid the choir divine,
How fully I am His, and He is mine."

He Cometh Late

The strings of camels come in single file,
Bearing their burdens o'er the desert sands.
Swiftly the boats go plying on the Nile—
The needs of men are met on every hand,
But still I wait
For the messenger of God who cometh late.

They set me watching o'er the desert drear,
Where dwells the darkness, as the deepest night;
From many a mosque there comes the call to prayer—
I hear no voice that calls on God for light.
But still I wait
For the messenger of God who cometh late.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

By LOUIS S. BAUMAN, Editor

BOMBARD OUR PRESIDENT

A letter has just been received from our good Brother Claude H. Pearson (624—38th St., San Pedro, Calif.), who is doing a most excellent work in the carrying of the gospel to the sailors who sail the seven seas. Indidentally, his ministry now extends also to the soldiers, especially those located at Ft. Mac Arthur. Brother Pearson's mission is located at the very gate to this great fort, and the chaplain there is especially friendly to Brother Pearson and his work. In fact, they work together, hand in hand. A gift to Brother Pearson's work is never a gift misplaced.

Here is the paragraph from his letter:

"I believe the time is ripe for the Christians of America, church members, etc., to bombard our President with demands that this nation be made dry. God deliver us from a drunken army and navy. I have not seen the quotation, but heard that General Pershing has said that our greatest enemy is not Germany nor Japan but liquor. The place next door to me is filled every night by our boys guzzling beer; and as we drive over to my mother's place about the time the shipyards change shifts you see car load after car load of these defense workers stop and get their bottles of liquor to drink on the way home and after they get there. What a great responsibility rests upon him who brought liquor back to this nation."

We do not know that General Pershing made the statement exactly as Brother Pearson has heard, but we do recall back in the first World War that it wasn't the Germans but sin that was doing the boys the greatest harm. However, we believe with Brother Pearson that Christian people all over this nation ought to literally "bombard our President with demands that this nation be made dry." From all that we have been told by those that were on the ground, we have good reason to believe that Pearl Harbor never would have been the disaster that it was had not liquor entered into the picture. If America wins this war, she must be thinking about getting back into the favor of the God Who is still on the throne and makes the wrath of man to praise Him. A nation that would get into the favor of the God that can direct the battle must be a nation that breaks any alliance that it has with Hell; and a nation in alliance with the liquor traffic is in alliance with Hell.

OUR MISSIONARIES HELD IN ESTEEM

From time to time we have been glad to report to our readers the fact that our missionaries in French Equatorial Africa stand in favor with the Free French Government. Here is a copy of a letter that the "Chef du Departement" of the Free French Government sent to Mrs. Marguerite Gribble-Dunning when he heard of the death of our Sister Gribble:

"I am deeply stunned at hearing of the decease of Madame Gribble of the Evangelical Mission of the Oubangui-Chari, at Bo-Ouham.

"By her devotion, her dignity and her self renouncement, Madame Gribble knew how to win the respectful affection of all who came near. Her departing causes unanimous regrets and will be keenly sensed by all.

"In my own name, in the name of those working with me and the European and native population of the Department, I send you, as well as all the members of the Evangelical Mission so severely stricken, the expression of our stirred feelings and profound condolences.

"Signed: Monsieur Moellinger, (Chef du Departement.)"

THE LONG-RANGE NAZI OBJECTIVE

The Inter-Allied Information Committee recently issued a 10,000 word report with regard to religious persecution in Europe. The report declares, "Abolition of Christianity is a deliberate long-range objective of Nazi administrators in occupied countries." The report states that this design is not always obvious, being more thoroughly concealed in some countries than in others. For instance, it is more subtly concealed in Belgium than it is in Poland. Nevertheless, wherever Nazism holds sway there is keen discernment of its technique with regard to religion which the report declares to be a "carefully planned, progressive attack on the Christian churches and religious organizations generally." In some countries, as in Poland, the number of priests "executed by the Gestapo" or tormented to death in German prisons and concentration camps is estimated at 300. There are said to be 3,000 Polish priests in German concentration camps at present. Louis A. Jacobsen, commenting on the situation, sets forth what he calls the "steps in persecution" by the Nazi regime. He says:

"The first step in the west usually was to withhold paper supplies from religious publications on the pretense there was a shortage. Then religious education was suppressed, church organization were dissolved and activities of priests and clergymen limited strictly to their churches. In western occupied countries, it was found, churches for the most part remained open but that at present priests can do little more than celebrate masses."

Today our sympathies go out to the Jews who have been and continue to be tortured to death by the one who is probably the bloodiest monster that God ever permitted to rule a state—Adolf Hitler! However, if Adolf Hitler succeeds in his ambition to rule the world, let no Christian think that the demon-filled Rahu will be any kindlier disposed to the Christian than he has been to the Jew. Beyond all doubt, Adolf Hitler is completely demon possessed and that by demons of the lowest type. We believe that the allies will win this war, but if they should not destroy this German monster, then the translation of the saints and the end of Gentile dominion is at hand; or, the promises of God shall fail. And, the promises of God cannot fail.

GOD'S ETERNAL PURPOSES NOT TO BE DEFEATED

It is said that more than half the Jewish population of the Holy Land consists of people who have fled the anti-semitic pestilence that swept Europe after Adolf Hitler came to power in Germany. Whatever else results from this World War, of one thing we may be certain: It will further the eternal purposes of the Living God. One of these purposes is clearly stated again and again in the Scriptures—Israel will be gathered out of the nations and restored to the land. The pestilence of anti-semitism and the disasters of the World War seem to be accomplishing this result.

THE CURSE OF THE INTOXICATING CUP

According to The Watchman Examiner, the women of Hongkong, China, urged the powers that were that all intoxicating liquors be destroyed before that city should fall before the onward sweep of the Japs. It was not done. From authentic sources comes the information that the outrages that were committed at Hongkong would have been infinitely worse had not the authorities followed the urge of the women and destroyed a large amount of the liquor before the Japs took the city. From various authoritative sources —yes, even from the boys in the camps—we learn that liquor is already proving to be, as ever, the curse of the army. General Pershing complained in the first World War that sin was a greater enemy to his boys than German bullets. It would seem that those in charge of the destiny of our nation in this critical hour ought to reckon with this foe, and deal with it in no uncertain way. Liquor is a brain-muddler, and what we need just now (from the lowest private to the topmost commanding officer) is clear brains. The full story of what liquor wrought at Pearl Harbor is yet to be told!

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS?

The time is probably at hand when Brethren Churches should seriously consider the matter of establishing parochial schools if the faith of our children is to be preserved. The faith of our children is something so precious that no price to be paid would be too high if necessary.

Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in his annual report of 1934, said:

"The separation of church and state is fundamental in our American political order, but so far as religious instruction is concerned, this principle has been so far departed from as to put the whole force and influence of the tax-supported schools on the side of one element of the population, namely, that which is pagan and believes in no religion whatever."

It is to be regretted that the attitude of Protestants and Catholics toward each other is such that they both play into the hands of rank paganism or unbelief.

In the city of Long Beach, where the editor has been a pastor for thirty years, religion and the Bible have been steadily outlawed. The moral effect upon our schools is such that the First Brethren Church of Long Beach has been seriously considering the establishment of a parochial school, and has a committee at work now which is to report to the church at its annual meeting on the feasibility of such an undertaking. The Lutheran Church of Long Beach already established a parochial school in this city thirty-two years ago. At present it has an enrollment of 140 pupils. Of these pupils we are told that about 40 are Brethren. Brethren mothers and fathers continually express their appreciation of what this school is doing, not only for the education of their children but for their moral and spiritual training.

Mrs. Frances Nielsen, member of the First Church of Long Beach, has also been running a private school for several years, with most excellent results. Happy are the parents who have been able to place their children under her care.

On another page we print an essay by one of our boys of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach which was presented at the graduating exercises of the Lutheran School. This article, written by a boy of 13 years, was awarded first place in a contest.

"THE BLACK HORSE AND THE BIG BAY"

In this issue we are printing an article that we have just received from the pen of Brother Russell I. Humberd of Martinsburg, Pa. Read this article, and don't stop reading it until you have read it all. Don't miss the story at the close concerning the black horse and the big bay. What pastor is there that does not know the meaning of that "black horse" and of that "big bay?" How we do thank God for the big bays who bear not only their own share of the load but actually pull the big blacks along with them as they go. Great will be their reward in the day of His appearing. Let us have more "big bays!"

MOUNT OF THE BEATITUDES: THE CARAVAN NORTHBOUND

A summer morning sunburst here glorifies the historic Plain of Ahma hard by the famous Horns of Hattin or traditional Mount of the Beautitudes, where it is believed Christ stood when He gave to the world one of His greatest sermons, on the heights above blue Galilee. In the picture a storm is threatening on the sea below. This is the ancient route of the caravans passing between the Valley of Jezreel on the south and the foothills of the Lebanons on the north on their way to Damascus and the East. Eleven camels, "iambic, bearing each its mystic load," are shown crossing the Plain of Ahma. It was here in 1187 A.D. at the Battle of Hattin that the Crusaders under Guy of Lusignan, last Latin King of Jerusalen, were disastrously defeated by Saladin following which the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem came to an abrupt end.

The Minister and His Salary

By R. I. HUMBERD, Martinsburg, Pa.

"Let the preacher live on faith." And with such words has many a coveteous church member sought to excuse his own meager giving. They usually mean, "Let him live on air!"

It is true that a minister should live on faith in his God, but just what does that mean? "Look to the soldier," says Paul: "he does not go to warfare at his own charges. He goes forth on faith in his government." But how does the government care for the soldier? Only one answer: it does it through the people back home. So with God. He has ordained that "they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." God does care for His minister; He does it through His people.

In fact, it is God's order that reward follow labour. The farmer plows and thrashes in hope of receiving his living thereby. Even the ox that trod out the corn was not to be muzzled. "But doth God take care for oxen?" Certainly not. That was written "for our sakes." That is, God was giving the members of the Brethren church warning not to withhold a fair salary from its ministers (I Cor. 9;7-14).

"If others be partakers of this power over you (You pay the surgeon $100.00 for an hour's work, and give the dentist $25.00 to fill a few teeth. You expect to pay the grocer and the garage man for service to you), are not we rather?" (vs. 12). Note that word "rather." A minister has more right to a good salary than anyone else. Yet how many pay all their bills and tip the preacher off with a portion of what is left. The church pays the coal, the lights, and the janitor—"all bills are paid but the preacher." And woe to him if he does not keep his bills all settled.

Most certainly a minister who sows spiritual things, should reap "your carnal things" (vs. 11).

The Small Church

"But," objects the small church, "we have only fifteen or twenty families and cannot give a big salary." You have an abundance. God's order is twelve to one. Twelve tribes of Israel paid their tithes and kept the one tribe of Levi. Let twelve families put their tithes in the pastor's salary; the rest can care for the special offerings. I know a church where some members made $900.00 a month, yet the entire membership gave their pastor $50.00!

The Small Salary

There may be some advantage to the small salary. In my younger days I was making hay. One young man, weary with the toil and heat of the day, decided to be a preacher so he would not have to work. Thus, a large salary might draw many such into its ranks.

But there are disadvantages to the small also. Let us consider two.

First: the family. Let a new babe arrive at the parsonage, and Mrs. Wag can't see why preachers have so many kids when their salary is too small to rightly care for them.

I am convinced that the Brethren church has the finest group of young ministers in its history. Let me say to you in all seriousness: "Set your stakes wide and raise a large family!" "Be fruitful and multiply!" "Lo children are an heritage of the Lord and the fruit of the womb is his reward!" Blessed is the man with a big family (Ps. 127:3-5).

There is no greater service in all the world than bringing up children for the Lord. Of all the mighty men who bless the world, the greatest proportion were born and raised in the parsonage.

True, it will mean much sacrifice. I know what it means to hunt food for seven little mouths. Wife knows what it means to fit the "hand-me-downs" to little backs; yet, John D., arrayed in all his millions, could not buy even one of them.

The Great Reward

Imagine yourself, ten thousand years hence, as you speed to some distant orb on an errand for your God. You see in the distance a most beautiful and glorious shining creature. Imagine your joy as you draw near and find that it once called you "papa" or "mama;" that once its little heart thrilled as you told it the Bible stories and led its feet in paths of righteousness. What a privilege! How soon it will be over for eternity!

Is your home childless? Then get children. At this moment there are thousands of fine little orphan children. The world and the flesh and the devil are against them. The Virgin Mary received the Christ child and cared for Him; and, that person who will receive children and bring them up for the Lord also "receiveth me," says our Lord (Matt. 18:5).

Second: Debts. The second disadvantage of the small salary is "debts." Twice have members sent me to National Conference with a message to ministers who owed them from $100.00 to $300.00. At last Conference it seems that some were still not fulfilling their obligations. Let it be to the everlasting shame of a minister to be dishonest. If a man knows not how to run his own business, how can he care for the church of God?

True, it is hard. I know the fearful expense of moving from state to state. I know what it means to see them wheel my wife to the elevator for a serious operation; to receive the merciless hospital bill after a little one has an appendectomy; to have my treasurer "rob my till," and to drag through ten years of ill health. I seemed almost swamped until I made it a daily prayer to get out of debt and ahead.

Let no one disgrace the ministry with unfulfilled obligations; let all debts be honest ones. Be not like that minister who burnt out his car with foolish driving, frequently visiting the restaurant for ice cream, sandwiches, and the most expensive chocolates, while bringing his sacred position into disgrace by unpaid bills throughout the community.

"Make Tents"

But what are you to do if your salary just won't reach? Take a lesson from the apostle Paul and make tents . . . Verily, it is no disgrace to work. Your mind will work more freely and your health will be better. An article of mine went around the world in several magazines and brought me a letter of thanks from the American Bible Society—and I worked it out as I cultivated corn! Another article was worked out which brought me mail from Trinidad and England, while caring for chickens.

The Remedy

But is there no remedy? Is there no plan to balance the budget? Verily, it is not in bake sales and ice cream socials. God doesn't need our money. He could make gold dollars roll up hill so thick that we couldn't find room to walk. But it is His plan to bless His people as He gives through them. This does not hinder those good women who can bake and sew, from selling their goods as individuals. Certainly, God will bless the work of their hands abundantly.

There is a plan that never fails. I have used it for over twenty years. It is all up to the pastor. Let him "Preach Foreign Missions." When his people once taste the joys of Christian giving they will take care of the salary also. The pastor can mention Foreign Missions in half of his sermons. Aim high. Always call for at least $100.00, and once in awhile assure those who do not have that much that a lesser amount is acceptable to the Lord "according to what

Argentine Babies

Mrs. Laura Wagner of Almafuerte, Prov. Cordoba, Argentina, presents her Cradle Roll. She says: "From time to time we get to see a picture of some of the African babies, so I though you might be interested in seeing some of our Argentine babies. Ricardo took these not so long ago and they show my Cradle Roll about the way it stands now. A number of these babies are from homes where there are no believers at all. A couple of them have been enrolled in the interest of having the picture taken, but in the meantime I have a point of contact with the family."

a man hath and not according to what he hath not" (2 Cor. 8:12).

True, you will have objections from Mr. Coveteous, but do not rob your good people of the priceless privilege of sacrificial giving. Happy are you if your treasurer is one whom God can trust and who knows the joy of Christian giving himself.

"Here is $100.00 for Foreign Missions," said one of my members as he entered the home of my treasurer.

"I was so happy I could have thrown my arms about his neck and kissed him," said my treasurer, as he later related it to me.

Remember Three Things

First, keep your mind a positive blank. Don't pick out whom you expect to respond. You do not know the financial difficulties of your people, and it isn't your business.

Second, set the example yourself. Never help pay your own salary. You are just fooling yourself. Rather, keep your tithe and give $100.00 to Foreign Missions from time to time. All nine members of my household are life members of the Foreign Mission Society.

Third, don't expect all to respond. God has various ways of working. As I write these lines, I have in mind a man to whom it seems that God has given a double portion of strength. He is very free in his giving and runs two jobs and never gets tired.

Weary and Discouraged

Might there be among my readers a discouraged one? One who has given and given, and is weary of giving more than his share? Go to the horse thou weary one, consider his ways and be wise.

In my younger days I tended my father's farms. One spring I bought a big bay horse; wishing to see him at work, I hitched him and a black horse to a wagon and drove to the other farm six miles away.

Late in the afternoon I started home with almost an empty wagon. A mile away, just as we started up a small hill, the wagon dropped into a hidden hole. Immediately the black horse stopped. My heart sank within me, for I well knew what that would mean. He would rear back; he would lunge forward; he would throw his head over the other horse; but, he would not pull. In the depths of dismay I looked at the setting sun. There I was on a wagon, five miles from home, stuck in the mud. Night was coming on and it was cold.

I was so occupied with my gloomy prospects that I had not thought of the big bay. But there he was, slowly placing one foot on the ground then another and another. Again and again he moved about. Then, seemingly assured that he had solid footing he leaned into the collar. Nothing moved. He leaned harder. He pulled, he tugged. His muscles knotted and stuck out over his body—but—the wagon moved—it jerked

Yaloke Station---MARCH. 1942

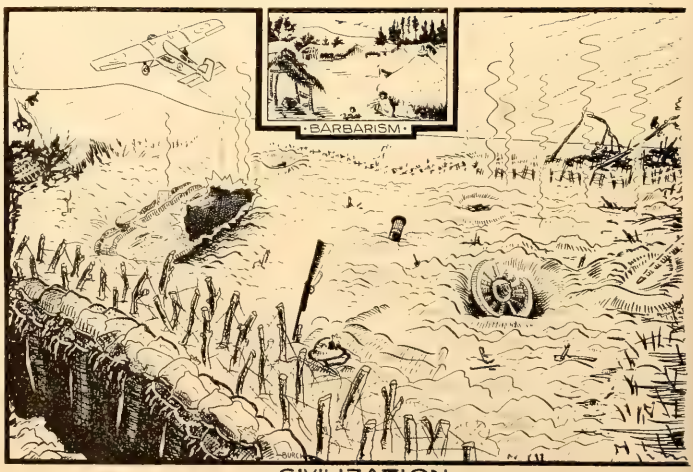
Dear Herald Readers:

This has been a pleasant month, as we had company three times. The night of February 25 we were just getting Ruth's ten o'clock bottle ready when we heard a car coming up the hill. As we walked down the steps, we were praying that we might make ourselves understood and make our French guests comfortable. You can imagine our surprise and joy when we heard, "Is this where Mr. and Mrs. Dunning live?" with an unmistakable English accent. It was a doctor and his wife driving back to their field in Nigeria from the Cape where they had been taking furlough. It was a real treat to have them because they were the first English speaking people we have had at Yaloke in a year, besides our own missionaries from time to time. We were sorry to see them go on the next morning.

Mrs. Dunning

On March 17, we had Mother (Dr. Gribble) and Miss Bickel come to spend a few days with us. They were on their way back to Bellevue from Bangui, intending to have time to spend only one day here. However, Mother was not feeling strong and came down with fever the next day. So they were here five days. We were sorry it was sickness that caused them to stay, but we were certainly glad to have them! Miss Emmert and I have been trying to hold this big station down by ourselves for several weeks. Miss Tyson is visting the Tabers in Bangui, and Mr. Dunning (also having been to Bangui for car repairs) is out itinerating. This is the season when it is most advantageous to get out into the villages. We do not forget though that we are exhorted to preach the Word in season and out of season. We need your prayers that we will ever be faithful in bringing those who are dying to the One Who is Life.

It was also during this time when our third group of visitors came. Three ladies and one gentleman on their way to Bangui and the Cape came in the night of March 20 and left the following morning. This time we became acquainted with the South African, Australian, and Canadian accents.



The little primers prepared by Miss Emmert are being used daily in nearby and distant villages as youngsters learn to read. 500 were put out the first time and were all taken so hungrily that she is getting a thousand ready now to put into the hands of others. Please pray that these booklets may indeed be used to the glory of God and the salvation of souls.

One Sunday this month we realized again Voloungou's zeal and thanked God for having given us a worker like him. It had been planned that he should preach that Sunday. He had been suffering with a cold so Mr. Dunning suggested that he rest. But he had a message he wanted to give his people and could not be dissuaded. One could see he was not well, he didn't do his usual prancing about for one thing, and his voice was faint. Finally he said, "My heart fails me. Monsieur Dunning will finish," and sat down. That was the first time Voloungou was ever known to give up. This week—he has been three weeks recuperating—he plans to leave on his bicycle to preach the Word in other places for about two weeks. Yes, thank God for him, and pray for him.

Yours in Christ Jesus,

—Marguerite G. Dunning.

REALLY, HAVE WE BEEN SENDING OUR MISSIONARIES TO THE WRONG COUNTRIES?

Foreign Missionary Editor's Mail Box

Clarence L. Sickel, our superintendent in the Argentine, sends us his first letter since his arrival back on the field. Our readers will be glad to hear of their trip. Under date of October 3, he wrote:

"It hardly seems possible that just two months ago we left Los Angeles with Rio Cuarto, Argentina being our final destination. In many ways it seems much longer than just two months, but if you would ask for some reasons or explanations why it should seem longer, it would be impossible to produce any since we had a very enjoyable trip. Too, since our arrival here at Rio Cuarto we have been quite busy getting settled and in holding a series of special meetings. Our trip from Los Angeles to New Orleans was nothing out of the ordinary We enjoyed our short stay in New Orleans, though it was extremely hot. Fortunately, we stayed in an air-conditioned hotel. . . . When the time came for the boat to leave, everything was on the dock. We had been dreading the encounter with the custom officers at New Orleans, not that we had something to hide, but just the thought of having to re-pack everything again. To our great pleasure and satisfaction they did not disturb the contents of our baggage. The boat left New Orleans as dated, and so, on the evening of August 7th at 5:55 we set sail down the Mississippi, reaching the Gulf of Mexico the following morning around 9:00 A.M. As we looked out upon those blue waters, the question which naturally flashed into one's mind was: 'What lies beyond?' But, we can testify to this one fact, that at no time did we feel uneasy, though we passed through some dangerous waters. Our hope was fixed in Him Who said, 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.' It is indeed a great satisfaction to possess the assurance 'that one's life is hid with Christ in God.' Much could be written with regards, what we heard with our ears and saw with our eyes, but existing world conditions make it necessary for us to 'serve in silence.' Sixteen days after leaving New Orleans, we arrived at Valparaiso, Chile. This place has changed since our visit in 1936. We did not stay here very long, leaving for Santiaga the same afternoon of our arrival. Santiago is just three hours by rail from Valparaiso. The following morning when we went to make reservations for our trip across the Andes, we were notified that we would have to wait for a few days, as everything was snowed in. No train had made the trip for one whole month. So had we left home one month sooner, we would have spent that whole month waiting in Chile. As it was, they blasted open the International Tunnel just a short time before the train arrived, the snow having turned into one solid block of ice. It was a beautiful trip across the Andes, covered deeply with snow.

From Mendoza to Rio Cuarto, we made the trip by auto-bus, as the train connections were extremely poor. Upon our arrival, we found the Dowdy family along with several believers waiting to greet us. Our trip of 31 days had come to an end, and we were once again in the field of action. Little by little we are getting our things in order and we will be set for another term of service in this needy land. One thing we will not have to worry about very much this time is the language, though many times we have to fish for the words we want to use, yet they will come as time goes on. From reports, it is evident that I have not lost my pronunciation, for which I am glad. . . . This has been our quickest trip either way, but at the same time the most expensive. These days are not like those of the past. We sincerely trust that you had a good conference this year."

Mrs. Laura Larson Wagner of Almafuerte, Argentina, under date of September 2, says:

"The meetings here are keeping up pretty well. Although one family has moved away, some others have been contacted. They are from among the poorer families of the town, and from the human standpoint are not very promising material for church building. But we are looking to the Master-builder to work out His purpose in them, for we know that with Him all things are possible.

This week we have had a special opportunity with one family through the death of a baby in the home. A young man from the family had come to a number of the meetings, but has work in the country now which makes it impossible for him to attend. Now, when the baby died, the family, being in extreme need, asked that Ricardo make the trip to the country to get the young man who was the only one to whom they could look for help in meeting expenses. Two round trips were necessary. The next morning we both went to see the family; I took the few natural flowers that I had here and tied to them one of those lovely cards that the Sunnyside women sent me with the verse, 'Suffer the little Children,' typed on it. We found them working on the problem of getting the little casket to the cemetery, so Ricardo offered the car.

"In the cemetery he had the privilege of conducting a simple funeral service at which the wife of the caretaker was also present. She was rather taken aback when she was informed that the 'doctor' (as she called him) was none other than the evangelical pastor; but, after a slight pause, said, 'Well, after all, he's right.' And when she read the verse on the little card, she said, 'That is the truth.'

"In the home, too, Ricardo had the opportunity of leaving a message and of answering questions. The thing that startles one is the ignorance, superstition, and absolute satanic power that is manifested amongst this class of people. The family feels certain that the death of the infant was caused by a curse brought on by certain enemies of the family through the help of a witch. I am convinced that the child was poisoned by its mother's milk, for even now her hands are broken out with the most awful sores full of pus. They claim, too, that the mother's illness has been brought on by the same curse, an attempt being made to kill both mother and babe. Not long ago, I would have laughed off such an idea, saying that no such thing is possible; but really when one sees to the degree that some folks yield themselves to serve demons, it is only reasonable to believe that anything that is in the power of the evil one to perform can happen. In most cases, however, folks who suffer (and they suffer) from these ideas are coupling their superstitious fears together with an attempt to shift their responsibility for the natural consequences of their sins onto someone else.

"Does your pocket book, "Amen," when you pray for the Lord's work here and abroad?'

"In Elena I have gotten more of an insight into the superstitions of this country. The mother of the girl I have working for me has made herself not a few enemies by becoming a believer. Among them is her next door neighbor, evidently a very superstitious person. Awhile back she had the priest come in and sprinkle her whole house and yard with holy water so that dona Carmen would not be able to do her any harm. On another occasion she went to a witch doctor and wanted her to bring some kind of a curse upon dona Carmen. The witch doctor told her, 'I can't do anything for you. That is the purest religion that there is, and it is impossible to work any kind of a curse upon those people.'

"It is a curious fact that these witch doctors usually have their houses filled with all of the Catholic emblems, saints, etc., that they can get their hands on; partly, I suppose, to impress people who come to them, but quite a commentary on Roman Catholicism nevertheless. We certainly feel our helplessness when trying to bring the truth to folks so steeped in superstition, but we know that our God is able."

Hill Maconaghy, our faithful missionary at La Carlota, Argentina, under date of August 12, 1942, writes:

"The news that Brother and Sister Sickel are at last on their way to the field here has been cause for much rejoicing. We trust that they did not encounter any difficulty at the last moment, and that by now they are well on their way down the west coast. Much prayer is ascending to the throne of grace daily for their safe arrival. Thank you for sending a copy of what you were sending to be published in The Herald. We read it with interest, especially because of what you had to say about new missionaries. That is really good news for us down here. The work down here certainly needs more North American workers if we are going to evangelize as we should. This is a needy field and we believe that the Lord is going to really send a great revival amongst the believers and through them bring thousands to know our blessed Lord. The only hope of Argentina is our Lord Jesus Christ. And as the church here becomes self-supporting the missionaries must open up new places to the gospel. That is what we want missionaries for —to really evangelize.

Ever since we have been here we have been conscious of the need for a Bible Institute. Brother Dowdy and I have discussed the matter many times. Recently it has been a real burden upon our hearts. We need believers well grounded in the Word of God. Especially is this a need among our young folks, for it is from among them that our future workers must come. The only answer to this need is an Institute where we can train young men and women, not only as future workers but also others who shall return to their own congregations to be efficient lay workers. The church here must be prepared to take care of the evangelization of this land. Well, the last few days we have been spending, planning and studying the possibilities for such a school. I believe before long we shall have very good news for you and the other brethren in the homeland. In the meantime pray much in behalf of a Bible Institute. All of us will keep on the lookout for a car for the Sickels. It is quite a complicated matter now, however, to buy a car in this land. And even those who have cars are never certain as to whether they are going to be able to secure gasoline to run them. At the present everyone must sign how much gas they use per month, what kind of work they do, etc., etc. After the government gets this information they will decide whether we get gas or no, and how much. So you see that problems are increasing down here."

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

Examine many of your troubles and you'll find your own name stamped on them as the manufacturer.

Pardon our language, but for the making of poor simple fools out of men and women, the priests of Rome certainly "take the cake." If you don't believe that, read this paragraph from the letter of Brother Hill Maconaghy, dated at La Carlota, Argentina, July 12, 1942:

"I notice your belief that a revival will some day sweep this priest-ridden land of Argentina. We, too, believe that the Lord is going to send a revival. Revival in the church and a great wave of evangelism among the unsaved. That is the only hope for this country.

"Just this past week some believers related to us a true story which shows the blindness of the human heart, especially when it is under the control of the priest of Rome. In a town in the Province of San Luis where relatives of this family live, there also lives a man who is extremely wealthy. The priest of that particular town convinced him that he could buy land in heaven. As a result he payed the priest the sum of 50,000 pesos for a certain amount of land in the heavenly city. This sounds unbelievable that an intelligent person could be so deceived. But that is nothing—listen to what happened after he had made his so-called purchase of land in heaven. Every year the priest comes to him for money to pay for having the weeds cleaned off his property. If it is a dry year he charges 200 pesos, but if it is especially wet the price goes up to 350 since there are more weeds. How foolish men become when they turn away from the wisdom of God, the Lord Jesus Christ."

After relating this almost unbelievable story, Brother Maconaghy goes on to say:

"Praise the Lord that there are some who are being saved. About a week and a half ago we took two young ladies of Alejandro over to Rio Cuarto where we baptized them. They had received the Lord as their Saviour a short time ago. One can see a marked change in their lives since Christ came into their hearts. The evening of the same day that we had the baptism we received them into the congregation in Alejandro. Now there are 20 believers in that town. However, we still have quite a field to reach there as there are 5,000 inhabitants. There are five more that will be baptized one of these days. They are saved, but due to the cold weather have not been baptized.

"Last Thursday we had a great day over in Alejandro. The Dowdys came over from Rio Cuarto bringing with them some of the women of their congregation for a special women and girls meeting. This latter meeting was held in the afternoon. It was bitter cold, in fact it sleeted and snowed a little during the meeting. But despite the cold, 20 were present at the meeting. Mrs. Dowdy brought the message on "Christ the Hope of Salvation." Giving an invitation at the close of her message the Lord filled our hearts with joy when a young lady for whom much prayer has ascended, received the Lord as her Saviour. The mother of the young lady said that her salvation meant more than if someone had given her a million pesos.

"After that afternoon meeting Dolly and I took care of our children's meeting. Then we all gathered in the home of one of our members for an "asado." And my how we did eat! Cold weather is certainly good for the appetite, even if it is a trifle hard on the feet. I mean when one gets chilblains! Later we had our regular evening meeting. Thirty-five sat in the salon for more than an hour with no heat and the temperature getting close to 22*. But while physically it was cold, spiritually it was hot—just the way it should be in order to be safe according to Revelation 3:16."

THE MINISTER AND HIS SALARY

forward—we were on solid ground. He had pulled the wagon, the black horse, and all out of the mud.

Anyone who has had a similar experience knows well my feeling. Who cares if the black horse gets nothing to eat for a week? But not so with the big bay. If it were for his good, we would gladly take him to the crib, throw open the door and say: "There, help yourself."

So to you who have paid and pulled and paid again, listen! Do you not hear the scratch of a golden pen? Do you not know the records are being kept? Soon your Lord will come, and watch the big bays as they are ushered in.

"I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience" (Rev. 2:2). "I saw the black horse rear and balk and kick, but I saw you lean into the harness and pull and pay and give—but you cannot beat My giving—Enter those pearly gates! Greet the angel guards! Walk down the golden streets; Drink deeply of the crystal fountain! Eat freely of the tree of life! Marvel at the beauty of holiness! All of this and more is yours for eternity."

And as the big bays pass through the gates of pearl, and take one last glimpse of earthly toils, a faint sigh will escape their lips as, with unspeakable joy, they murmur: "O, had I known it would be like this, I would surely have given more!"

"Let this mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus, who, though He was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich."

Bits From East Central District Conference

The annual sessions of the East District Fellowship were held in the Brethren Church, Martinsburg, Pa. Seldom have Brethren enjoyed such a fine spirit of cooperation and such a willingness to see the "King's Business," as was manifest at this gathering. In spite of tire and gasoline curtailments, all sessions were well supported, 156 Brethren registered. Certainly the Martinsburg Brethren, under the leadership of their pastor, Rev. Robert Miller, are to be congratulated on the fine manner in which they entertained their guests.

The main messages of the Fellowship were presented by new pastors in the district, namely: Rev. Arthur Malles, Kittaning, Pa.; Rev. Arthur Carey, Mundy's Corners, Pa.; Rev. Phillip Simmons, Listie, Pa.; Rev. Raymond Blood, Altoona, Pa.; Rev. Harold Mayer, Juniata, Pa.; Rev. Clair Gartland, Leamersville, Pa.; Rev. A. L. Lantz, and Rev. Peter Stover, Philadelphia, Pa. The moderator's address was presented by Rev. R. D. Crees in place of Rev. Geo. Kinzie, who had left the district.

Reports from the various boards were favorably received and definite plans were made for enlargement of all fields of endeavor for the coming year. The District Mission Board is investigating three new fields, having in mind the establishing of Brethren Churches. The Young People's Board is planning a series of quarterly over-night rallies for the extension of S.M.M., C.E., and B.S.L.V. activities.

Two high-lights of the conference were the Young People's Rally with Brother Sheldon as speaker, at the close of which seven young people presented their lives for full time service unto the Lord; and the Grace Seminary Alumni Rally, at which over $55.00 was raised for the purchase of hymn books for Grace Seminary. We praise the Lord for the victories of these sessions and others of the conference.

The 1943 Fellowship will be held at the Pike Brethren Church, Mundy's Corners, under the pastorate of Rev. Arthur Carey. It will be held the third full week of July.

A man in a small town in Ohio had a story which he told over and over again until it came to be known as "an old chestnut." People would walk around the block to get away from him, but when he met a stranger he always "buttonholed" him and repeated the old story. He always started it in the same way: "A man died for me once," and then he would tell how he had fallen overboard while crossing the ocean to this country, and a sailor had flung himself overboard to save him, although the sailor lost his own life in doing so. "I don't know where his body lies; I can't place any flowers on his grave, but I can keep his memory green. A man died for me once."

Well, friend, a Man died for you once. Do you keep His memory green?

A Christian Education In the Present Hour

By GALE STURDIVANT

"Christian day schools may now be found all over the United States. They make it possible to carry out God's command. In Deut. 6:6-7 God tells us, "These words which I command thee this day shall be in thine heart and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children." These schools train us to become faithful and loyal citizens. They help us to develop true Christian virtues. They offer us a complete course in secular education in the light of God's Word, as well as providing a systematic course in the study of the Bible, in the principal doctrines of Scripture, and the memorizing of Bible verses and hymns.

GALE STURDIVANT

Member of First Brethren Church of Long Beach—age 13—writer of Essay on Christian Education

"We have learned many things while attending our school. We were instructed daily in the precious Word of God, in all its purity. We were taught the law and the gospel, and how to be a citizen of this world and also of the kingdom of grace. We were taught Bible passages which now serve us as guides through life.

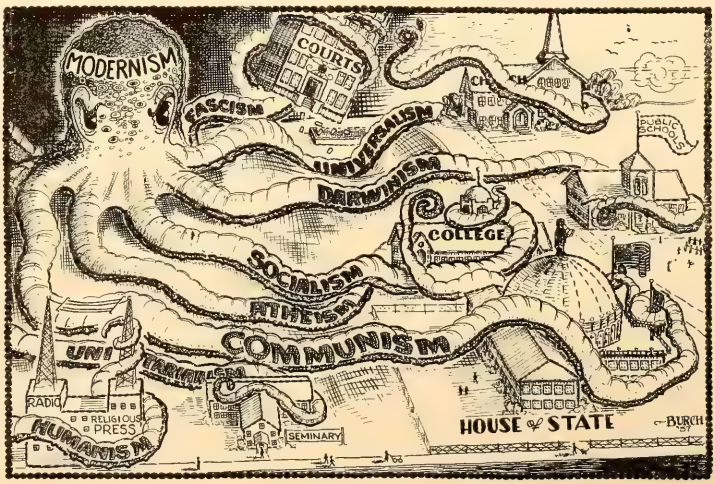
A Christian training will not only help us as a child. It will be our companion in youth, in old age, and in our dying hour.

As a child, we learned the truths of God's Word, the love of our Heavenly Father toward his children, and the great sacrifices of His Son on Calvary for our atonement.

As a youth we should be strong and bold in our faith, and never falter, though the devil, the world, and our flesh try hard to deceive us. We should instruct other people to become Christians."

When we are old and infirm, we will lean upon the everlasting arms of Jesus. He will never leave us nor forsake us. He is our Shepherd, Protector, and Guide. He will be with us to the end.

"The thought of departing from this world leaves no sorrow in our hearts. We have been adequately trained and have accepted God's salvation through His Son Christ Jesus, by the way of the Cross. We're pilgrims and strangers on this earth,—Heaven is our Home. We have chosen Christ as our Pilot. We will be piloted safely home at last. Our class motto and hymn is, "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me."



In this present hour of war and strife, when men's hearts are failing them for fear, we know that God reigneth. Though evil foes assail us, we will look to God as our Friend and Burden-Bearer.

What a Friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear,
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer.

Our duty as a graduating class is to help support this and other Christian schools; to impart to others the precious truths that we have learned, that in our humble way, we might help others to know Christ, "Whom to know aright, is life eternal." Freely we have received, freely we will give.

We wish to thank the congregation, the pastor, the teachers, and our parents for enabling us to attend this school. We covet your prayers that we may always be found faithful to the teaching we have received. In the day of His appearing, may you be greatly rewarded!

500,000 Jews In the Argentine

The capital of the Argentine Republic, with its population of more than 2,250,000, ranks as the largest city in South America and the largest Spanish-speaking city in the world. Within the past 50 years the population of Buenos Aires increased from 300,000 to its present 2,300,000.

In some respects, Buenos Aires suggests one of the great cities of the United States. Its streets are laid out on a rectangular plan, and buildings arranged in blocks of uniform size; there are three underground railways, great streams of motor traffic, and an air of hustle and bustle that one generally associates with New York or Chicago. But Buenos Aires also has much in common with the big cities of continental Europe. Its wide tree-lined boulevards, its magnificent public buildings and plazas, rival those of Paris. There are more than 100 parks in the city. Passing through the city from plaza to plaza, one is impressed by the fine architecture exhibited even in the humbler houses and business buildings. This is undoubtedly due to the fact that the municipality offers every encouragement for beautifying the city, giving prizes to architects designing the most tasteful buildings and allowing certain tax exemptions to owners.

There is much to interest one in Buenos Aires: museums of art, agriculture, natural history, and imposing buildings; also great cathedrals, many churches and synagogues, beautiful opera houses, animated restaurants, an excellent zoological garden, and the famous cattle and sheep auction markets.

But with all its fine interests and attractions, it is a city filled with desperate wickedness, including many lecherous cosmopolitan activities and countless numbers who know not God or His blessed Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. In this great city of many nationalities, God has providentially placed over 300,000 Jews to remind the church of His prophecy, "I will scatter you among the nations" (Lev. 26:33). Religious indifference seems to be everywhere, and particularly among the Jews who have drifted far from the teaching of the fathers.

For almost half a century Jews have immigrated to the Argentine from different parts of Eastern Europe, and there are 500,000 of God's covenant nation in this great South American Republic, and of this vast number about 300,000 live in Buenos Aires.

For five years a group of Bible-loving Christians living in Beunos Aires prayed that God would send a Hebrew Christian witness to this great company of unconverted Jews, with the message of Jesus Christ. As far as this band of praying folks could determine, no one had ever gone to this great mass of Jewry with a Christian testimony. Then "The Hebrew Christian Alliance of America" heard of this momentous opportunity, and in June, 1933, called Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Glass to assume this important task. Great joy came to this band of faithful prayer warriors when they learned that God had answered their cry. On Nov. 1, 1934, these two dear young people with their 1½ year old baby girl sailed for Beunos Aires, where they have labored for the past two years with great blessing. Mr. Glass is an ordained Baptist minister. They are members of the Christie Street Baptist Church in Toronto, Ontario, and both are graduates of the Moody Bible Institute.

The record of their spiritual conquest in the Argentine is a real romance of thrilling missionary adventure, with a story that should be told to a waiting world: that God has been preparing Jewish men and women, by the work of the Holy Spirit, with the story of redeeming love, and Mr. and Mrs. Glass have found Jew after Jew whose hearts have been melted and mellowed by the Holy Spirit of God.

For a Mission Hall they have only had their small apartment where, as Mr. Glass has written, "the Jews are literally trampling upon each other in their desire to hear the Word of God." Already there are over 20 Jews who have banded together as a Jewish Christian Fellowship, and pledged to testify to their unsaved brethren. These are the hungry-hearted ones that God has saved and satisfied.

(From a Tract Published by the Hebrew Christian Alliance)

THE ONE BOOK

If all the books in the world except the Bible were destroyed, this Book alone could make humanity wise unto salvation; could reveal to men the only true God, and Jesus Christ His Son; could teach all fundamental truth concerning this universe and its maker; could give the broad outlines of human history, and reveal human destiny; teaching also every secret of happy and fruitful living.—Dr. C. I. Scofield.

Thy Peace - CHAPLAIN ERNEST F. PINE

Luke 19:42 "Saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes."

The watchword now is, "To win the war and the peace that is to come." Men are looking past this present war to the days beyond, if there are to be any. Humanly speaking, their ambitions are noble, but futile. A quick glance back to the post war period of the former world conflict reveals the futility of planning and striving for world peace that is man made.

Little do men know how close peace now hovers but kept out of sight by the war clouds of sin, hatred, violence and destruction. This blessed peace has been ever near the man because the author of peace has always been near to man. To obscure Him was to blind the eyes to peace, individually and nationally. Just now this remains true, peace can be had and order restored to a chaotic world, by recognizing the presence of the Lord of Glory as the Prince of Peace. We do not mean to infer that all national enmities will be settled around any conference table by treaties. What is meant is that personal recognition of the only one who can give inward peace and rest will bring a transformed people that will not engage in carnal warfare.

If we could but recognize the things that belong unto our peace! May we pray that neglect on our part will not bring a blindness such as happened at Jerusalem! Just as truly as Jesus wept over that privileged city, does he today weep at the blindness of the United States and all of the evangelized nations. While some are wailing and weeping because men cannot live together in peace, our Lord weeps because we have not learned to live in peace with God! For when men learn to live in peace with Him, then they will be able to live together in peace. Continual attempts have been made to reverse this order, but it does not produce results.

As we tarry to meditate on this Armistice Day, discouragment and dismay would overwhelm us, save that we have a peace that has been won not by guns and tanks but by the Cross. It will then do us good to take release from the present world scene to another that is even more important. Two blessings thus await us and are received as a direct result of two decisions we must make. We who are at enmity with God must first determine that we will accept the terms of peace with God. Having done this, we alone can decide whether or not we will enjoy the Peace of God. One destroys the barriers created by our sinful state, the other destroys the lack of complete enjoyment of our new relationship in Christ.

Possessing these spiritual gems will enable the Christian to live in a state of constant blessing though surrounded by a warring world. What a joy to meet a possessing soul resting quietly in the peace that floods their soul! All that we are and enjoy we owe to the peace that was declared in favor of sinners when Christ went to the Cross. Not many months ago the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of England met on the deck of a battleship in mid-Atlantic. They met in what will be one of the most historic meetings of all times. Amidst the threat of enemy submarines they met to discuss the fate of nearly a million people serving the cause of the Allied powers. Plans for winning the war and restoring the peace was their chief concern. But a more historic meeting than this transpired one day atop a low sloping hill called Calvary! There the Father and the Son met in reconciliation to obtain and secure peace for all men for all time. For those who would live and receive it, Christ that day purchased Peace, eternal reconciliation for "warring members." On that day peace was declared against those held by sin. It was a "just" peace, so far as we were concerned, for He did all the suffering and paid the supreme cost.

Whatever impetus is given by the present war for men to seek Christ and His Peace, it is gladly accepted as His will. In many places a genuine desire is being evidenced in this direction. We are in a place to see this conviction being born in the hearts of many soldiers. It is time to seek peace with God so that the peace of God may be yours. You can have peace with God without the peace of God. But you cannot have the peace of God without being at peace with Him. The peace of God is a blessed spiritual reality that is reserved for the soul that calmly trusts the Lord for all things. The world would be a better place in which to live should the Church reveal more of its members experiencing and manifesting the peace of God! Peace with God is a condition. No enmity existing between God and the other party. The peace of God, however, is a feeling that exists because of our condition or state with God.

It is interesting to note that Christ was at all times interested in peace as it would benefit His subjects. At the time of His birth the angelic announcement was, "Peace on earth, good will toward men." The world before and since the time of Christ knew no peace. After a troubled stay upon this earth and when about ready to ascend to His place with the Father, He said, "Peace be unto you" Luke 24:36. So, He came bringing words of peace and He left with the same blessed words on His lips.

In John 14:27 we have the sources of Christ's peace. "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." The peace of God is seen to have its roots buried within this verse.

1. A vision and knowledge of Christ. The words of peace were never thoughtlessly nor carelessly spoken by the Lord Jesus. He was anxious that all men might know that they could secure peace with God by merely accepting the terms, but He also sought to make clear that inward peace came only to His very own. Not to know was to lack this Christian grace and blessing that can distinguish the person who fully seeks to know Him and those of whom it was written. ". . . but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire."

2. Disentanglement from the world. This is a clue to the peace of God that we would do well to follow. "Not as the world giveth you," were the words of our Lord. How true it is that the world not only cannot give this peace but it knows nothing of the peace of God. But not only that, as long as we are entangled with this world, we will not experience this wonderful pease. Pursuit of worldly pleasure and the peace of God are not found in the same place. Abstain from these things if you would know what true peace is.

3. Supreme love. Without this we will little care whether or not we possess the greatest gift God can bestow to those who are by faith His children. Love for Him will create a desire to have all that He can give for the nurture of the soul. Peace can quiet the fears of distrust and bring calmness to our troubled minds.

A "South American" Returns to U. S.

George P. Howard is the representative of the Committee on Cooperation in Latin America, and knows that land as perhaps no other North American Christian knows it. Just as we were about to go to press, the editor received from Mr. Howard one of his letters which he sends out from time to time to his friends. This letter reveals in most interesting fashion some of the emotions that stir the breast of a North American upon returning home after having been a wanderer in foreign lands for many years. Upon his arrival in New York he wrote:

"Greetings! Yes, we are here in New York, Mrs. Howard and I, where we have just arrived from South America. We were in Peru for three months, and then we took plane from Lima on a Saturday morning, and by Sunday night were safely in Miami, a journey which by boat would have taken us at least 10 days. I found on arrival that the copy I had sent up to our office here for a news letter had not been received. The censor is evidently still reading it, or perhaps he decided that it should not reach its destination. So I am reconstructing this message with some of the paragraphs which I included in the lost letter.

"We are finding many changes in this fair country. But all the shortages simply make us feel more at home. There is a sugar shortage—just like Chili! No tires,—just like Peru where we wallow in gas and wish for tires! Crowded trains—I'm glad you were spared that trip with me up into the mountains of Peru a few weeks ago. Twelve hours on a packed train, two Chinese in front of me and an Indian by my side! Nearly everyone brings something to nibble on during the journey, and then they all get mountain sickness as we spiral over the Andes at 15,000 feet. For those of us who agreed to have a little table placed in front of us in a day coach and take the meal they offered, there were not enough dishes and glasses to go around. So half of us had to wait while the other half sipped its soup. Then the dishes had to be hurriedly washed (at least we hoped they were!) and the other half got its turn at the food prepared in a converted washroom at the end of the car.

"So gas is being rationed! That is the first felt assault on the cult of the car. Well, at any rate, we shall now be able to walk in the U. S. It always seemed to this South American that legs were little used in North America. You never hesitated, with that charming frankness for which you are known, to refer to legs and even to display them. But you seemed to use them only for stepping on the gas or, much more rarely, on the brake. It is true that you cannot get anywhere by walking, and that is the reason, I suppose, why there is an absence of country lanes and country paths. You are the kindest people. You will not even allow a visitor to travel by train. You will put yourselves to extravagant trouble—and your visitor to a series of nerve-storms—by whirling him amid a sea of traffic over short distances you could pleasantly walk.

"I, who loathe travelling faster than a trot, and can never see a view till I have looked at it for a good five minutes, have been hurtled all round the U. S. with affectionate gratitude in my heart and terror in my soul. If Americans wish to have a talk with you, they put you in a car and drive you about. Thus disposed, you brace yourself against the foot-board, you grip the seat, you disguise your panic, you attempt to avert your eye from the imminent catastrophe—but as for talk and still more, for thought, it is utterly beyond you. Perhaps now you good Americans will find out that our best thinking is done, as Nietzche said, while we walk.

"Then again, I think that you will find it easier to stop for lunch when you are walking. It is easy to get into a car and start it. It is an altogether different story when you want to stop it. I used to observe, in the 'far-away days of gas and tires,' that when you wished to stop for meals the procedure was this: you dashed over the railroad lines, snatching a fearful joy if you were not run over; you entered the town, selected your eating-house, and then bethought you where to park your car. You found a parking-place, which, of course, was full; you found another and another; all alike were full. Finally you selected one near another eating-house, for you had long since abandoned your first hope; then you drove round and round the block till one of the other cars pulled out. It was a sort of musical chairs, but I do not recommend it as a pastime before meals.

"I see that there is no fear of a shortage in ice-cream; childhood's caviar, poor man's pleasure, and fat lady's tempter, as some one has called it; and I may add, South America's nightmare when he comes to the U. S. (he gets so much of it!) We have not yet been won over to the "ice-cream cult!" But though the output is not to be reduced, WPB has asked manufacturers to make 10 flavors instead of the usual 28. I know of just three places in all South America where you can get real ice-cream, and in not more than two or three flavors. So, as you see, you are coming down a little closer to the living level of your South American cousins. . . . and I strongly suspect that it is not going to hurt you. Let me add that we greatly admire the gallant and uncomplaining way in which you are adjusting yourselves to all this regimentation. You are splendid, and the trouble you are going through is bound to purge much dross from your gold."

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

The Brethren of Glendale, California, have called Rev. George M. Richardson to be their pastor for the fifth year. It does our hearts good to hear that our ministers are so well beloved by their congregation. May this year in His service be even more blessed than in the years past.

Brother Wm. Schaffer, pastor at Berne, Ind., has been giving lectures to his Young People's Christian Endeavor on "God and the Christian Home." (This is one of our Young People's Bible School Quarterlies—published by the Brethren Missionary Herald Company. Try it.) They must enjoy it! At least, they are inviting their friends.

News has just been received from Chaplain Ernest Pine, who says, "A public note of thanks is due the Brethren of the Washington, D.C., church for their many kindnesses during our entire stay at Fort Geo. G. Meade, Md. Now, they have exceeded their former brotherliness by a very substantial gift for the purchasing of a field altar and communion set, which is usually provided for chaplains of other larger denominations. The gift, amounting to $50.25, shows the deep interest they have for the spiritual work among the service men. We want to thank these fine brethren for their interest and prayers and also the whole brotherhood that is standing back of this work privately and in their churches. Our daily prayer is that we may be worthy of the vocation to which He has called us. Pastors, we would enjoy your church bulletins." We, too, on behalf of the entire brotherhood, wish to express our appreciation to the Washington, D.C., church for their gift. All brethren, please note that Bro. Pine's address is now 385th Infantry, 76th division, Ft. Geo. M. Meade, Md.

Flood in the East is no respector of persons. Brother Paul E. Dick, pastor, Brethren church, Winchester, Va., informs us that the waters invaded their church and parsonage, however, everything is under control. Although the furnace fires may be put out, yet, the fires of the revival they are having will continue to burn. Rev. Dick is doing his own preaching in revival effort.

The First Brethren Church of Ellet, Ohio, R. E. Gingrich, pastor, have just concluded a Bible Conference with Dr. L. S. Bauman and now are in the midst of a revival campaign with Rev. J. L. Gingrich of Allentown, Pa. May God's richest blessing be upon this meeting, praying that many decisions for Christ will be made.

How About It?

Did you spend time in prayer this past week for those of our young men who are in the service of their country?

Treasurer's Annual Report

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH

At the Annual Meeting of the Board of Trustees at Winona Lake, August 26 to September 5, 1942, the Treasurer made his complete detailed report, item by item, to the Board. The report is so extensive that the cost of printing and placing it in the hands of every member of The Foreign Missionary Society would amount to a very considerable sum. The cost, including postage, would mount up toward $300, to say the least.

Therefore, the Board has ordered the Secretary-Treasurer to print in The Brethren Missionary Herald a summary of the entire report, showing the balance on hand July 1, 1941 and the total received for each fund during the year, as well as the total expenditures in each fund, and finally presenting the balance in the fund at the beginning of this present fiscal year, or July 1, 1942. (The Treasurer has placed a detailed typewritten report in the hands of every member of the Board and if any member of the Society should be interested in purusing the detailed report, we are sure any Board Member will be willing to loan him his copy for that purpose.)

A careful purusal of the summary of the Treasurer's report will show that total receipts during the fiscal year, July 1, 1941 to June 30, 1942, amounted to $69,007.16. The total expenditures for the same period amounted to $54,980.44. Thus we are happy to report that our receipts for the year were in excess of our expenditures to the amount of $14,026.72. This is away beyond the largest excess of receipts over expenditures in any one year in the history of the Society. If such a record could be kept up, we certainly could add a goodly number of much-needed missionaries to our forces on the field.

Moreover, it should be noted that we sustained an unusual loss during the year, amounting to $4,852.85, due to the sinking of the S.S. Zamzam. There are several items in connection with this loss yet to be paid, which will make it considerably more than $5,000. Had it not been for this unusual loss, our gain in receipts over expenditures would have been nearly, if not fully, $20,000.

We are happy to report that a goodly number of missionaries are now in training at Grace Theological Seminary and elsewhere. If our total offering next year shall equal our offering during the past year, we can send out every available missionary during the coming year. We certainly pray that if our Lord shall tarry that the war will have reached such a stage that we can return to the field all our furloughed missionaries, together with a splendid force of new missionaries.

Verily, the Lord has blessed us exceedingly, abundantly above all that we have asked. Thus we are again encouraged in the words of the great missionary to India, William Carey, "Expect great things from God, attempt great things for God."

To Myself

O thou of little faith,
God has not failed thee yet!
When all looks dark and gloomy,
Thou dost so soon forget—
Forget that He has led thee,
And gently cleared thy way;
On clouds has poured His sunshine,
And turned thy night to day.
And if He's helped thee hitherto
He will not fail thee now.
How it must wound His loving heart
To see thy anxious brow!
O, doubt not any longer,
To Him commit thy way,
Whom in the past thou trusted,
And is "the same today."

Extension Work In Sunday School

RALPH J. COLBURN, Pastor, Brethren Church
Compton, Calif.

We are in the midst of a National emergency which n many ways threatens the welfare of our Sunday Schools. Many churches which had thriving Sunday Schools through the use of a transportation committee of some kind are noticing a real drop in attendance because of a shortage of tires or gasoline. Churches whose Sunday Schools are still growing may be faced with a shortage of room, and building is virtually impossible. Is there a procedure by which either or both of these difficulties may be remedied?

Ralph J. Colburn

Before the present emergency curtailed building and driving, a satisfactory solution to this problem was successfully tried in Long Beach, Calif. There is n the Eastern part of Long Beach a subdivision of ome 600 homes called Naples. Although it has been n existence since 1927, it had never had a Sunday chool or church. Adjoining it to the East is the town f Seal Beach, with a population of around 2700. To he West is another part of Long Beach called the elmont Shore district. Both of these claim one proestant church apiece, but both are very modernistic. he First Brethren Church was six miles away. In aples alone lived nearly 2500 people, more than 600 f them under 20 years of age, yet with no Sunday chool available. A few attended evangelical churches own town, and some the modernistic churches nearby. here was a large Catholic element, but there were oys and girls who were interested, but unreached. ere was a challenge for a young man nearing comletion of a Bible Institute course, headed for the inistry. On June 26, 1939, a Sunday School was pened in a rented store building near the population enter of Naples. Twenty-two were present, including the young superintendent. All met in one class or a time, but soon curtains divided the small auditorium into three parts. The first month's rent had een paid and the equipment bought by the First rethren Sunday School of Long Beach, but the work as called the Naples Community Church, sponsored y the First Brethren Sunday School. A morning ervice and a mid-week prayer meeting were also held. he work grew. On the first anniversary, there were 6 present in Sunday School. Seven classes were meeting regularly—the adjoining building had been rented nd divided into classrooms. Now, after three years, he work is still thriving. It has been self-supporting rom the start, and has poured nearly $800 into the missionary coffers of the Brethren church. Many decisions for Christ have been made as the result of he work, and several have joined the First Brethren hurch of Long Beach. Besides this, it affords a wonderful place of training for students for the ministry. Probably not more than half of the present Sunday School pupils could be reached by a transportation committee if one were available. A similar branch Sunday School has been sponsored by the First Brethren Sunday School in another community, and it, too, is doing well. These may never become, and perhaps should never become, full-fledged churches, but they are "lights along the shore," soul-saving stations reaching otherwise unreached boys and girls and adults for Christ.

To the writer, this presents a very logical and almost essential method of Sunday School extension for many communities. It is more effective than a transportation committee, for you cannot reach all the prospects by that method. It is cheaper and more effective than a building program, which a growing Sunday School often necessitates, and it provides invaluable experience for prospective pastors and Christian workers.

If there is a sizeable community near your church unreached by the real gospel, why not conduct a canvass and create interest in such a Sunday School? Then, procure a store building or a home, advertise well, and open up. You will probably have to import all your workers at the start, and it will require some financial outlay, but in all probability it will be self-supporting in a very few months. You do not need a big beginning. You may conduct Sunday School alone, or add other services as necessary. A Presbyterian church in the Northwest conducted nearly thirty such mission points simultaneously all in communities unable to support a full-fledged church. They varied as to the number of services held, but all were under the jurisdiction of the one church. By this means boys and girls and men and women can be reached for Christ who otherwise would not be reached—and that is worthwhile, regardless of cost.

(Ralph Colburn was the pastor and superintendent of the work he describes from its beginning until December of 1941, and is now pastor of the Compton church. The work is being carried on now by Joe Marvin of Long Beach, and Harry Sturz, a member of the San Diego church, who is a student for the ministry at Westmont College, Los Angeles.)

THINK IT OVER

White Harvest Fields---Men In the U. S. Service

By ALBERT L. FLORY, San Diego, Calif.

Our young men who have accepted the call to serve the Lord as chaplains in the armed service of our country have caught a vision of one of the whitest harvest fields now open. These young men have accepted a call to a new and difficult type of mission service in which the opportunities are tremendous. However, it is not to be left to these men alone to minister the gospel in this needy field, but all of us can have some part in it.

The service men today represent the very finest of American manhood. During peace time, this is not so universal, but in this war day, the draft has reached into the finest of our homes and taken away the very flower of youth. We have a duty to these men, to reach them with the gospel message.

All can not be chaplains and reach them in a personal way. It is for us to take advantage of another method of reaching them. In some places there is an opportunity for church teams to go to the various camps. This is done in San Diego. The young people of the Brethren church have had some contact with service men ever since the beginning of the church. This is extremely limited because such groups are with the service men only a short period of time, and there is little time for personal contact.

One definite way to reach the service man is to arm him with the New Testament. This he can read when he is far away from churches, home, and friends; and here, indeed, are the words of life. We have been exceptionally pleased with the way the Gideons have been operating in this field. We know of transports that have left our home base containing men who may never return. Each transport had sufficient copies of the New Testament, supplied by the Gideons, to provide one for each man. The boys were thrilled to get these neatly bound New Testaments and promised to read them. As a missionary enterprise it is well for us to consider this needy field by helping organizations that are able to get New Testaments into the hands of service men.

Service men are eager for something stable. I feel that sometimes we get the wrong impression of service men because they are so often confused with the element which is found on lower 5th Street in San Diego, Main Street in Los Angeles, and other places where drunkenness and vice are common. When we meet these men such as we have had the privilege of doing, we find that they are hungry for something solid; something that will undergird them in a tight place; something that will provide a joy that is lasting. The world is endeavoring to fill this need with amusement, and temporary pleasure. It is for the Christian to inform him of the truth about Christ, which alone can give him the thing for which he is eager.

Service men become powerful workers for the Lord when their lives are yielded to Christ. We have had association with the Navigators in San Diego. These young men meet in a home and study the Bible and have a little home fellowship. Because of the home fellowship, they are able to bring their buddies. Scores of service men come to know Christ through these methods largely through the zealous, enthusiastic, and faithful testimony of men already in the service. Some of the finer, more consecrated, more loyal workers with whom we have associated are men from this group. We believe that a service man won for Christ becomes another missionary in the great harvest field.

What can we do to reach these new white fields? Some young men have the privilege of going as chaplains. Other young men are having the privilege of becoming missionaries through their testimony as one of the service men. At home we can pray for the boys who have gone forth into these new fields, white and ready for harvest. Some will have the privilege of conducting services in the various camps. All can have a part by supporting those agencies which are furnishing service men with New Testaments. Let us as Brethren, consider this one of our fields of a missionary endeavor, and keep it before our people in our prayer service, and on our hearts.

HOW TO FIND PEACE IN THIS WORLD!

It is futile to talk about peace in a world given over to total war? Listen to the words of Jesus in John 14:37; "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Christ is still the Prince of peace. He is the peace of those who receive Him. And one day He will bring peace to this broken world.

Clayhole Needs Clothing Now!

An urgent request has come from Rev. Sewell Landrum for clothing for the Brethren mission at Clayhole, Ky. Practically none has come so far this fall. Let all those who have been intending to send something do so at once, before winter sets in. (Thanks!)

Religions and Christ In China

(W.M.C. Topic for December: for Program see Page 2)

In Acts 17:22 we read as Paul's opening statement n his address to the Athenians at Mars Hill these ords: "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all ings ye are too superstitious (religious)." Well ight he have been speaking to a group of country- en in any of the various sections of China, for in- eed the Chinese are a religious people.

China is generally considered as having three dis- nct religions: Confucianism, Taoism, and Buddhism; ut residence in that country for any length of time eveals the fact that its worship is a conglomerate ixture of three in one, as stated aptly by one of e: own Christian evangelists.

Confucius was born in 551 B. C. and gave to China he religion or system which bears his name; one hich consists mainly of "the duties and relations of ociety and the state." He gives no clear teaching oncerning a Supreme being or a future life. The orship of nature and departed spirits, especially an- estors, is embodied in this system. The present de- otees of that sect include in their worship idols, al- hough this is contrary to the teachings of Confucius. nd as regards nature worship, it is not at all an ncommon sight to see them imploring the rain god o send refreshment in the time of drought. The riter well remembers traveling horseback high up n a narrow mountain road skirting the river T'ao n Kansu Provilnce. Looking over the precipice, she aw a group of natives far down on the other side of he river earnestly "kaiteoing" (a religious exercise onsisting of kneeling and bumping the head on the round). Not knowing what they were doing she en- uired of her horseman and was informed that they ere praying for rain.

Lao-tsi, a sage born in 604 B. C., gave to China aoism, a word meaning "Nature's way or method." Heathen mysticism and pagan superstition are em- odied in its theories and practices. As a result of hese, its adherents have been brought into slavery o the powers of demons and evil spirits. Demon- ossession is a common curse throughout the land.

In 67 A. D. Buddhism was imported into China rom India by the Emporer Ming Ti. Confucianism nd Taoism, with their materialistic tendencies, gave ise to dissatisfaction in the heart of this ruler and e readily embraced the Buddhistic teaching of the ransmigration of the soul and future punishment, hese both seeming to throw some light upon life after death. Like Confucianism, it offers its ideals, but is devoid of power to transmute theory into practice. On a rock near a Buddhist monastery of Ku-Shan, Fuchien Province, is carved this inscription: "Be a good man; do good deeds; read good books; speak good words," most of which would be impossible to the natural man.

Besides these three well-known religious sects in China, there is the Mohammedan faith, adhered to by between five to ten millions. These are, by far, the most difficult to reach with the Christian message, and as yet very few have embraced the religion of the western world.

Many people in our own land, even among Chris- tians, would advise the Christian Church to withhold its missionary effort and allow the Chinese people to follow their own religions. But to do this is to deny them the only means of salvation, for the Word plainly states, "Jesus Christ Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." The gospel of Christ alone is efficacious to save the soul; it is still the "power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Rom. 1:16).

There lived in the city of Titao, Kansu Province, a poor, ignorant Chinese woman, married to a well-to-do Confucianist scholar, but herself still in bondage to sin even after her husband had accepted Christ as his Saviour and had often admonished her to do likewise. Stubbornly she refused to listen to his pleading. Then, quite unexpectedly, she became ill while he was out of the city on a preaching mission. Her little son, a boy still young in years but one who had heard and heeded the "old, old story of Jesus and His love," sat with her one day on their mud bed, and being distressed with his mother's suffering, suggested that she pray the true God to heal her. Her discomfort was evidently the effective persuasion needed and she turned to the Lord, promising Him that if He would heal her she would serve Him the remainder of her life. Needless to say, our merciful Father heard and answered. She was healed instantaneously, and with the healing of the body came the salvation of the soul and the deliverance from the two besetting sins of her life. For years she had been an addict to the opium habit, eating daily a pellet the size of a large English walnut, or enough to kill several people unaccustomed to its indulgence. From that habit she was delivered immediately and completely. Those who knew her personally also testify to the fact of her ungovernable temper which expressed itself in outbreaks so violent that finally a lump the size of a goiter formed on her throat. From this, too, she was delivered, causing her to become in very truth a woman known for her "meek and quiet spirit." She lived many years an exemplary Christian life, becoming one of the honored Bible women in her part of the province.

What Confucianism, Taoism, Buddhism, and Mohammedanism cannot do Christ accomplishes. Only spiritual and eternal death can result from following the teachings of the founders of these several religions. What China needs is not the heathen's creeds, but the Christian's Christ.

The way to get rid of your cross is to die upon it. Jesus bore no cross in the resurrection. The cross is no longer a cross where there is no self to suffer under it.

Occupying Rural America

Having left the call of the Lord to do work in rural sections of our country, we waited on the Lord to open a door. One thing we can assure when we are willing and fully yielded to the Lord He will open a door.

Castaic, California was the first field to be opened to us. This community is located 45 miles north north of Los Angeles on the famous Ridge Route. (Sunday Schools had been tried here some eight or ten years before without success.) After much visiting in this community and securing permission to use the fine school building, the Sunday School was organized March 9, 1941. One of the first obstacles to face was that of a band of tough boys who were determined to upset the school. Prayer and holding on to the Lord soon made a decided change.

The Easter Service was the scene of our first victory with six yielding to the Lord. From this time on the Castaic S. S. has been steadily growing spiritually and in numbers. (We can say the Lord has blessed with souls finding the Lord.) One girl, age nineteen gave her life as a missionary. Services are being held in connection with this Sunday School and the people are ready to build a little church as soon as conditions permit.

In the summer of 1941 a call came to us to do gospel work in the Rocky Mountain states, living in a house truck as we carried the Word to isolated mining, lumber, and ranching communities of Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Willing to be in the center of the Lord's will we soon found ourselves among the mining towns in the beautiful mountains. Many of these towns had been abandoned years before, but now some of the mines were opening again; the towns and villages were inhabited once more, but, the sad part, the churches which had been closed were left in that condition. The spiritual need in these places is so great, and the laborers so few

One of the greatest victories experienced on this gospel tour was in a lumber camp at Ryan Park, Wyo. This camp had a population of about 75, the favorite pastime being drinking. One of the warnings received before entering this camp was to be very careful as these were a hard lot. But God is able to break the hardest, so we left it in His care. Upon arriving at this camp one Sunday morning the usual method of getting acquainted was begun, that of giving out tracts and gospels. The Union Labor leader offered the use of their hall to us, and at 10:30 twenty-two of us gathered there to have Sunday School, the first to be held in this community. The following week a vacation Bible School was conducted. At the closing program the entire camp came with souls being touched. The Lord just poured out so many blessings here we could hardly contain them. Most of these children had never been in a Bible school before. Shirley, age 13, received a Bible for learning the most scripture verses and was so thrilled she hugged it with tears on her face. Yes, if this trip had not touched another soul Shirley's joy over becoming a Christian and having a Bible would have been worth it all. After the last evening service some of the men came to ask me to stay, stating that they would get me a good job with them. To see the change that had come over some of these hard men is a witness of what the power of the gospel can do. This Sunday School is still being carried on with very encouraging letters coming from them.

This work proved such a blessing, and the opportunities to present the gospel so great, we began to ask the Lord for a gospel truck of our own. He answered that prayer.

This summer the Lord led us into the state of Nevada, which we feel is the greatest mission field in the U.S.A. The tragedy is when a Sunday School is found in this state it is of little or no value, as far as the Gospel is concerned, for it is usually run by an ism or cult who does not preach the true Word. We that have the true gospel pass by these villages and camps, scattered over these vast open spaces. Why are they passed by? Is it because Christians have lost the vision of lost souls or perhaps because these places could not be self supporting?

Upon asking at one mining camp if there was a Sunday School there, the reply came the nearest one was 94 miles away. Coming into a town of around 500 population with no religious work of any kind but having 21 drinking establishments, we wonder where so-called Christian America is drifting. Neveda presents a special need for the gospel because of different vices that are sources of income to the state and the individual. With the Government seeking new supplies of metals and this state being rich in these, there are many mining and defense projects. Many small villages of 200 find themselves a city of 7000 almost over night. The Apostle Paul could not have been more stirred in Athens, than we were upon seeing the drunkeness and vile sins in these places. Th gospel truck, with "Jesus Saves" and "Christ Died For Our Sins" in large letters, was quite a sight for the people. The words "Jesus saves" was the means of bringing one soul under conviction and the yielding of his life to the Lord.

The finding of one Christian in a community to carry on a Sunday School is the greatest problem facing any work that is begun. For example: a town of 500 with possibilities of a good work, and a much needed one, was left without any Sunday School because the onlyo nes who were willing to carry on were one Christian Science, one Unity, and one who had been Episcopalian many years before. The nearest town from this community was 88 miles. Can you imagine driving almost 20 miles without passing a town with a Sunday School or any ginds of religious work. Is it any wonder such conditions exist?

We wish it were possible to visit every church in the land and lay before them the great need for this type of ork and the field that is being passed by because the thickly populated cities are more able to support a work.

Rural America is a great missiow field and if we do not take the blessed Word some other Ism or false cult nill occupy these places we are passing by. The Word tells us in Luke 9:3 to occupy till He comes. Are we occupying?

Missionary Biography

By MRS. G. E. McDONALD

JAMES GRIBBLE, FOUNDER OF BRETHREN MISSIONS IN AFRICA

James Gribble, born Feb. 25th, 1883, Mechanicsburg, Pa., converted in 1904 at the scene of a tragedy, while a street car conductor; received into Philadelphia Brethren Church Sunday; made known his call to Africa on Monday, and was informed that Brethren had no missions there. Undaunted, he prayed, planned, prepared, and with insufficient funds plus faith he embarked under African Inland Mission. On a New York street he was introduced to, and fell in love with, Dr. Frances Newberry whom he wooed five years and finally won. Another year in Africa, several in America, where Marguerite was born. Again sailed in 1918 under the Brethren Church Board. Following nearly 3 years waiting, governmental permission was granted to enter his heart's desire—Oubangui Chari, French Equatorial Africa. Thru severe testing, periods of waiting, deep suffering, James Gribble lived to see natives saved, stations opened, new missionaries arrive. God called him June 4th, 1923 to the oft expressed desire of his heart "to watch the redeemed of dark Africa enter Heaven's portals."

Juniors

PLEASE TAKE NOTE

GOALS

In the list printed last month, and also compiled at National Conference, it was stated that you should read ALL the material in the Herald. This is mostly for Seniors. So we Juniors will need only to read the news letters, and our own column. Since our topics do not appear in the Herald, we don't have to read those printed unless we want to. But I hope every girl will read the missionary stories printed from time to time because they will help us to be better missionary societies. And also, in the merit system it tells about chapters of the Bible reading goal for points. The Seniors must read at least 19, but Juniors read at least ten. This is less than a chapter a day. Not much to read about so great a person, from the most precious book in the world. I hope every Junior girl meets this goal.

JUNIOR MONTHLY TOPICS

These are to be sent to your patroness or president every month. If your society did not get the material for the November meeting it was due to the fact that I have no record of your group, and I urge you to get the information to me at once. Occasionally let me know if they are too hard, if you like the games and topics, and some suggestions of other things we might do.

CHRISTMAS PLANS

Now is the time to do some good deeds for others. Let us not forget our friends in Kentucky. Also, you may do something for hospitals, homes, nurseries, orphanages in your own community. This year, when everyone is so busy, perhaps you can entertain some children of war-working mothers—either have a party or take them on a trip to the stores to see all the Christmas things. If you live near an army camp or a naval training base, perhaps you could fix a box or individual packages of good things for some of the service men. Or, better yet, if some girl in your Sunday School or Church has given up her daddy to go to war, try in every way possible to make her happy this Christmas so that she might not be so lonely, for we know she misses her daddy.

Whatever you do, don't forget to tell everyone you meet that the Babe, whose birthday we celebrate on December 25, is also the Saviour of all those who will accept Him. Spread the gospel this Christmas.

Christ the Victory for the African

By MABEL CRAWFORD

Probably the most talked about and most popular word on the lips and in the hearts of each of us these days is the word, Victory. The very hope for the future of our nation seems bound up in that one word. With our national thought life guided so completely in this channel it is only natural that the same theme should become prominent in our religious thought as well. You girls who were privileged to attend the National Fellowship thrilled, I am sure, to the theme of Victory that characterized the Sisterhood sessions and the plans for the coming year. What a wonderful verse we have before us as a challenge and encouragement for this year, "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." We, as Sisterhood girls, have again and again tested this verse and proven how "it is glorious to be victorious" through the name of our blessed Lord. Today I would like to take you with me into the heart of Africa for a little while that you might see the same victory manifest in the lives of Africa's black diamonds.

It is hard for us here in America to understand the real mental and spiritual slavery of the African. They have been bound through centuries by chains of heathen ignorance and superstition. Joy and victory as we know it have long been foreign to their understanding. Unable to read or write they have been for centuries the gullible slaves of the powers of darkness. The witch doctors through fear and superstition have held complete sway over them.

With the coming of Christianity there have come victory and spiritual enlightenment into the hearts of many Africans. The translation of the Word and the teaching of the natives to read it have opened to them a vista and source of victory hitherto undreamed. "The entrance of Thy Word giveth light" said the Psalmist and that fact has been abundantly proven in the lives of countless Africans as they have stepped into the victorious life of a child of God.

The youth of Africa have a very difficult life. They are going through a transition period. The old, uninterrupted tribal customs of centuries are being disturbed by the influx of European civilization. Family and tribal solidarity are being undermined as hundreds of young men leave the villages for the glamour of the government posts and many villagers are moved hither and yon at the will of the government. These are indeed upsetting times for African youth. The only hope for their future is to become grounded in the Lord Jesus Christ and to find in Him the victory they so badly need.

That many of them have experienced the victory Christ can give is evident from a little glimpse into the activities of any of our mission stations. There are boys and girls, men and women willing to give up opportunities the world might offer in order to stay in their home villages and preach the gospel to their loved ones. We have at Bassai several boys who have come from the tribes to learn to read the Word that they may go back to their own people where there is no witness.

Some years ago two of our lady missionaries took an itineration trip into the unreached tribes north of us. From that trip they brought back several boys with the idea of training them to go back to their own people. One of those boys, now grown to manhood and married, is being greatly used among his own people in the Laka tribe. He is Brother Kliever's interpreter as he goes into village after village in that tribe without any knowledge of Jesus Christ. And he counts not his life dear unto himself but has undergone many persecutions for his Lord. One time he was tied in a hunting net and hung in a tree for many hours. At other times he has been beaten and threatened with death, but this last year he was happy and busy for the Lord in preparation at the Bozoum Bible School for still greater service. For him Christ was proving to be the victory.

We have, clear up on the northern edge of our field, a little group of believers started by the ministry of a native nurse. Years before seed planted in that lad's heart in French School at a mission station bore fruit. After school he went to a government school to train as a nurse and was then sent to take charge of a government dispensary in this far-off place. Faithful to his Lord, he lived a life of victory and witnessed to the people. A little group of believers grew up around him and finally at their own request they came under the supervision of our mission. Two years ago they sent a fine young man to the Bozoum Bible School. This man had a physical ailment which could be cured only by surgery. At the close of the school year a trip to Bangui was planned and this boy was invited to go to Bangui for the necessary surgical aid. Although very desirous of being well he refused to go because he felt his first duty was to go back to the people who had helped him through school and teach them what he had learned . . . and then he would plan to get treatment for his own physical needs. Only the love of God and the power of Christ in a life could give a man the unselfishness to make such a choice.

One of the most enchaining forces in the life of the Karre tribe at Bassai is the Shoumaili school which is held during the summer in order to initiate the boys into the secret rites of the tribe. It is a period of witch-craft, devil worship, and obscenity carrying with it all the privileges of a lodge or secret society. The tests through which the boys must go are revolting and terrible. There are also certain oath, laws, taboos, etc., which are binding upon them and their families throughout their lives. At one stage of the initiation they are forced to drink an obnoxious, sickening mixture. They are told, and believe, that this "medicine" remaining potent in their bodies will at any future date kill them if they violate any of the oaths they have taken. The breaking of the power of Shoumaili is one of the hardest tasks a new Christian faces in his life but we are thankful for the many who have found Christ their Victory and have broken loose. We also praise the Lord for the many young boys who refuse to go to Shoumaili, preferring suffering and torture to denying their Lord. At Bassai the natives have a very ingenious way of publicly testifying that they have broken the bands of Shoumaili domination. One of their taboos is that when a baby is born to the wife of a Shoumaili man she dare not eat salt in her food for several days. A Christian man wishing publicly to show that he is out and out for Christ will invite his friends and neighbors to his home soon after a baby is born. In their presence food will be prepared with salt and the mother will eat it . . . a tangible proof that Christ has power to free them from the fear of that supposed poison potion lying dormant in the father's body.

You have all heard or read of Jacob Yase, one of the ordained elders at the Bellevue station. He had a very lovely Christian wife. Years ago when a group of women were choosing Christian names she steadfastly refused to be given any name but the one of her choice . . . Rachel, was she not Jacob's wife? Rachel was a very sweet Christian woman, a good reader, a Sunday School teacher, a true help-mate to her evangelist husband. About three years ago the Lord saw fit to take her to Himself. As she had lived in Victory, so she went into the presence of her Lord. Her last hours were a benediction to native and missionary alike. Before dying she asked her husband not to mourn or to permit her family to mourn her going. She went into the presence of her Lord radiantly happy and victorious, knowing that He was indeed for her the Victory and the entrance into fuller life. As the funeral procession marched to the cemetary Yase led the way singing hymns to prevent the mourning of unchristian relatives. Even in that hour of sorest trial he could take the Victory offered him in the assurance that they who sleep in Jesus shall be with Him when He comes.

I am sure that with these scattered illustrations before you girls you can agree with me that Christ can indeed become the Victory of the African and that they can join with us in saying "Thanks be unto God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." The African would say in Sango . . . "Mais Merci na Nzapa, Lo so mou ngangou na ani na ya Seigneur ti ani Jesus-Christ."

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

We hear so often from our chaplains that one of the best ways of preventing our soldiers from straying is to keep them in contact with what is happening at home, especially concerning church affairs. Several churches have found The Brethren Missionary Herald just the means for doing this. Word comes to us that the Berean Class at Portis, Kansas, is planning on thus supplying 16 of their numbers in camps, and The Leon, Iowa Church is sending 26.

Looks like Rev. Henry Remple is killing two birds with one stone, so to speak. He is supplying the pulpit at Limestone, Tenn., and at the same time taking a year's work at Bob Jones College. God bless you, Brother Remple, we like to see that our ministers are ever ready to learn a little more.

Rev. Leo Polman, Secretary of Publications is broadcasting over the radio at Calgary, Alberta, Canada. Remember this ministry in prayer. On his way to Calgary, Brother Polman stopped at Garwin and Marshalltown, Iowa. Reports from those services were more than favorable. If time permits, he will also visit the Brethren churches in the state of Washington.

Dr. L. S. Bauman will hold a prophetic Bible conference at the newly dedicated Grace Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Md., from Nov. 19 to 22. Dr. and Mrs. Bauman have been in the East, where he has been holding similar Bible conferences in the various Brethren churches, since the latter part of October. All those who can should attend some of these meetings when Dr. Bauman is in their vicinity, for transportation problems and other war conditions may soon make such conferences impossible.

We just received information that three Brethren pastors of the East Central District are teaching in the Akron Bible Institute, Akron, Ohio. Rev. C. W. Mayes, pastor of the Tenth St. Brethren Church, Ashland, teaches two classes in his church on Tuesday evening as part of the extension program of the Institute. Rev. John Squires, pastor of the Brethren Church, Wooster, Ohio, teaches two classes in the Wooster church each Thursday night, both classes being part of the extension department. Rev. Raymond E. Gingrich, pastor of the First Brethren Church of the Ellet district of Akron, Ohio, teaches three classes each Thursday evening in the Bible Institute. His courses are Bible Doctrine, Homiletics, and The Book Of Daniel The Prophet. In addition Brother Gingrich is president of the board of trustees of the Institute.

Our Brethren at Martinsburg, Pa., where Robert E. Miller is pastor, are now in the midst of a revival with Rev. Bernard Schneider of Washington, D. C., which will close on Nov. 22. Pray that the Lord will greatly bless these meetings through the saving of many souls.

"THE SAILOR—THE WINNER"

By Eddie Huffman

Eddie Huffman and wife—Both now serving the Lord Jesus Christ.

We desire to introduce to the readers of the Brethren Missionary Herald "Eddie and Mabel Huffman" as they are known to most of their friends. They are members of the Second Brethren Church of Los Angeles. As their pastor, I desire to bear my testimony to the marvelous work of grace which God has wrought in the lives of both. The pictures accompanying this article reveal the contrast—"before and after."

Wherever Eddie goes he never fails to bear his testimony to the work of God's grace that has been wrought in his heart; and in no sense does he want his testimony ever to be used as a vehicle to parade the weaknesses, failures, sins, and mistakes of his past life.—Paul R. Bauman.

"We are more than conquerors through Him that loved us." Rom. 8:37.

I am "Sailor" Eddie Huffman, former all-navy light heavyweight champion. Many times I have heard the plaudits and the shouts of the crowds urge me on to victory; many times I have left a fight arena with a victory to my credit and with thousands of dollars to add to my bank account. According to the world's way of thinking I should have been a very happy boy. But little was it realized by the "shipmates" on the U. S. S. Mississippi and many thousands of friends and fight fans throughout the country who cheered me from one victory to another that I was in reality, a defeated man rather than a victor. How little the world knows of the heart's longing.

Money and fame alone will not give peace to the heart. I have had both but they never give rest to the inward man—the soul.

The records will show that I never lost a fight in the Navy while climbing the fistic ladder to the "All Navy Belt." I made tens of thousands of dollars in the prize rings of the nation as I fought and defeated some of the "top notch" fighters in the game.

I heard the roar of the multitudes as the victory was acclaimed in prize fight fashion time after time, but only God knew how empty it all was. While the throngs shouted and the press emblazoned the news of "The Sailor, the Winnah," and while, for the moment, I sensed the flush of victory, still it all seemed so in vain. The cry of my heart was never silenced nor was the inward longing ever satisfied. I suffered periods of depression in spirit which I could not understand at the time. It is all so very plain now, however, and I know that "Man does not live by bread alone." With all the praise and plaudits of the crowd, I knew that deep within I had no peace of heart or mind.

The dearest girl in the world, to me, my wife, Mabel and I often talked about God, and we would pray before each "bout." Like children lost in the dark, we would plaintively cry and grope, seeking we knew not what. Mabel has been a faithful and courageous wife through the years.

We would often send money to a church in Los Angeles, thinking that possibly this act of giving might help us in some mysterious manner; in other words we were trying to buy peace and rest of heart and mind. On August 28th, 1934, six years after leaving "the ring," when destitute of money, for the dollars had slipped all too quickly through my careless fingers, I found myself walking the streets of Long Beach, California in great discouragement. My home bid fair to crash on the rocks that line the shores of sin. My drinking and gambling had broken the heart of my wife and she threatened to leave me if I did not change.

On this particular day I was recovering from an orgy of drinking when there was handed to me a book entitled "From Crime to Christ." After some hesitancy, I opened the book and read of Dan McNally, alias Joe Kenny, No. 19294. This man was an ex-convict from the Missouri State Penitentiary. It was a remarkable story of deliverance from sin through faith in Christ. The story deeply impressed me and I determined to hear the testimony from the lips of this man in person. When my wife, Mabel, returned home that evening I suggested that we attend Dan's Mission in Los Angeles, California. I shall never forget my impressions as I sat in the mission on the following Saturday night and listened to the stories of "blood washed men." One after the other I saw men, most of them ill-clad and destitute of this world's wealth, stand to their feet and with a light on their faces that made one forget the shabbiness of their dress, tell of the redemption. My heart was thrilled for I knew the stories were true. One could not help but recognize the sincerity of the "twice born men."

While I listened to the testimony of these men and women I said to myself, "If Jesus Christ can save these men, surely He can save me." Without telling my wife, who sat next to me, or any other, I lifted my heart to God and prayed, "Oh God, if you can save these men you can surely save me, and I pray Thee for Christ's sake, to have mercy on me and save me right now." Immediately I knew that a change had been wrought. I could not explain how it happened but I felt my heart grow light, and I knew that a heavy burden had been taken away. I was saved through faith in Jesus Christ at that moment and have never experienced the old sense of bondage since then.

The following morning, while attending services in another part of the city, I, to the great surprise of my wife, rose and made my first public confession of Christ as my Savior. Mabel was quick to follow, and we both found a joy that we had never before known.

Today, by the Grace of God, we are trying to tell the sweet story of a Saviour's love to others. Drinking and gambling days are over and gone, for I learned that the "husks" of this world can not satisfy the hunger of the soul. I have also learned that humble submissiveness to Christ is the secret to happiness. The slavish shackles of sin have been stricken from me, for which I praise God and His dear Son—my Saviour, Jesus Christ.

I desire to say to everyone who is captive to sin that there is freedom for you. There is One Who "is able to save to the uttermost all that come to God by Him" and "he whom the Son sets free is free indeed."

I have written this tract with the hope that it might help some lost soul to see his need of the Saviour in his or her life.

One may try to live a good life but without God it is impossible to do good. Ecclesiastes 7:20 says, "There is not a just man upon earth that doeth good and sinneth not." Romans 3:23 says, "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Proverbs 16:25 says, "There is a way that seemeth right unto man but the end thereof are the ways of death."

Friend, you need to be saved, and you cannot be saved unless you believe on the Lord Jesus Christ. John 3:3 says, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." John 3:7 says, "Marvel not that I say unto thee, ye must be born again."

Friend, let go of the sins of the world. Let God guide your life and you will never be sorry.

I pray God that these few words may be a blessing to someone.

This testimony has been printed in tract form, and is being greatly used of God just now among service men. Any one desiring these tracts may write Eddie Huffman, 7321 South Normandie Avenue Los Angeles, California. Any offering that the Lord may lay on your heart to give toward the work of printing and distributing will certainly count for Christ at this time.

Here Am I

My will would like a life of work,
And power to do, and time to rest.
And health, and strength my will would please,
But, Lord, I know Thy will is best.

If I have strength to do Thy will
That should be power enough for me,
Whether to work or to sit still
The appointment of the day may be.

And if by sickness I may grow
More patient. holy and resigned,
Strong health I need not wish to know,
And greater ease I cannot find.

And rest—I need not seek it here;
For perfect rest remaineth still:
When in Thy presence we appear
Rest shall be given by Thy will.

Brightest Outlook During Night of Darkness

By REV. NORMAN H. UPHOUSE, North Riverdale, Dayton, Ohio

This message deals with the return of Jesus Christ according to the scripture. Many who have a good knowledge of what it says can see that we are nearing the second advent. We mean that Jesus will soon come for the church and shortly afterwards return to the earth to establish His reign. He has told us in the Bible of world conditions such as we find today. Further he has encouraged us to lift up our heads for our redemption is nigh when these conditions come to pass.

God has something to say about the affairs of men and nations. He is the Almighty that rules the universe. He stretched out the heavens like curtains, secured the stars in their sockets, fired the sun with intense heat and froze the poles with withering cold. In His infinite and unerring knowledge of things, he rightly places responsibility for the world wide conflict. He knows how ruthless war lords overran neighboring territory, destroyed institutions of righteousness, and slaughtered the innocent and helpless. In God's own time, He shall send forth the second time, His Son Jesus of Nazareth, the Messiah of God, who is the sole legal contender for the broken down throne of David. God has promised it. His word shall never pass away. As certain as day following night, or as the sky overhead is blue and the grass beneath our feet is green, Jesus shall come to champion a cause of equality among men, freedom we love, and justice for all.

It is not committed to men to work out a durable peace. No peace program that ignores Jesus Christ at the conference table can long stand against the vicissitudes of time. He laid down a platform for right living; it alone will work. It's based on love not force. It acknowledges Jehovah God as the true God and His word as authoritative and final. It encourages right choices in contrast to intemperance, dissipation, deception, and drunkenness. In brief, it says righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people. America has a spiritual lesson to learn. Our people must realize the gravity and seriousness of the situation that exists. Statesmen are informing us that it is possible that we could be made slaves like other conquered people. However, God has spoken through His servant Solomon words for us today, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and forgive their sin and will heal their land" (2 Chro. 7:14). God will never permit the righteous to be moved. Herein lies our assurance and confidence.

Who are the righteous? Those who are children of God; those saved by the blood of the Lamb; those who have Christ as their saviour. He came once to save; the next coming is to rule. None need fear it but his enemies. All may love it, especially those who love Him.

His return to the earth, according to the Bible, shall fulfill the earnest expectations of the prophets of old, and gladden the hearts of the saints of today. For the One we have not seen, yet loved, shall come within range of our vision and we'll see Him face to face. What does that promise mean to you? It means joy, in that day, to believers but consternation to unbelievers. Now is the time for preparation, be watching, doubting nothing.

"When Shackleton, the great explorer was in the South Seas, he left his men on Elephant Island, promising to return to them. Working his way to South Georgia, he tried to fulfill his promise, but failed once and again. However, he had promised, and the apparent impossibility with the ice between him and the island could not discourage him. In his little boat Yalcho he tried again. Pressing on, he succeeded in running in through an unexpected opening, getting his men from the island, and running out before the ice crashed in. Had the men expected his return? One man had, though he knew well the situation. All were packed and ready. Whenever Mr. Wild saw the sea clear of ice for a moment, he said, "Roll up your sleeping bags boys, the boss may come today." Jesus will fulfill his promise to come to us too. Be ready for in such an hour as ye thing not, the Lord will come.

The simplest of texts is found in John 14:3: "I will come again." This was given for comfort. There are occasions in life that bring sorrow. We have such a constitution as to long for comfort in time of loss or need. Paul said in 1 Thess 4:18 "Wherefore comfort one another with these words." He had just finished the marvelous chapter telling of the coming of Christ. He told how the graves would give up the righteous dead and the living Christians would be caught up to meet Jesus Christ. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

This is not hard to see or understand. It is a personal appearance of Christ, visible to the eye. Bodily because He comes the very same way He went away. (Acts 1:11.) Through the years elementary theology has suggested that the coming of Christ took place at death. But that can not be true, because we would go to Him then instead of Christ coming to us. Then, too, the return of Christ is the blessed hope. No normal person looks forward with joy to dying. Then some thought Jesus returned at Pentecost, but that was the coming of the Holy Spirit in power for a new ministry. Jesus went to heaven. As to exact locality and place of dwelling, Jesus went to the Father and has been there ever since. Others say that He came at the fall of Jerusalem. But this was not to take away the church. It is still here. Neither was it a blessed hope to see Jerusalem sacked and plundered. Still others say He comes at conversion. It is true that He comes in a spiritual way. But it's quite another thing and event for Him to come bodily when we shall see Him.

Why make it hard? Take the plain teaching of the Word. Believe it. Stand squarely upon it, and you will never need to be ashamed. Jesus said that He would return and I look for it with the greatest of anticipation and joy.

The Promise of His coming encourages fidelity to a trust and faithfulness to a cause. (Luke 19:12-13.) "He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten pounds, and said unto them, Occupy till I come." Jesus is the nobleman. He was here and has gone away. There are facts in history. He received His kingdom while away, this also is history (Ps. 2:6). "Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion. I will declare the decree: The Lord hath said unto me. Thou art my son; this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen (nations) for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession "Be wise now therefore.

O ye kings Serve the Lord with fear." So he has his kingdom and is about to return to claim it. But before going away he gave a charge to us, "occupy till I come," that means do business till I return. We have a work to do. It is to witness to the wonderful salvation we have in Christ, preach the Word, distribute the printed text, prevail in prayer, win men for Christ, defend the truth, be hospitable to those of like precious faith, bid God speed to God's ambassadors and evangelize the unevangelized.

How are we doing since He left? Are we using or wasting efforts? I do know there is a great waste. It is staggering to think of the waste in the world. There are great sources of power going to waste. Now Satanic forces are destroying the fruit of man's labor which makes still greater waste. These are self evident facts. But think of the spiritual waste that you might not see on the surface. Men who have a name to bear and a cause to represent do so little about it. Men, of means, who live for self and fail God when His cause cries for help. There are talents wasted, trusts misused, and abilities lost. However, there can be no argument with God in the day of judgment because they know that God requires something of them. If they object, He may refer to 2:Cor.5:19 "To wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation." Ours then is a ministry of reconciliation. It's the testimony he desires to go out that all may know how to be reconciled to God.

The promise of His coming encourages us to clean living. I John 3:2-3. He wants us to live like saints now. Chastity, virtue, cleanness, nobleness, and honesty belong to us. I know of one nation that had people drunk for pleasure. They gambled, danced, caroused, and dissipated until the enemy came, and then were crushed with defeat. I can see how such living is an abomination to God and if He didn't send judgment, then I'm safe in saying He didn't choose to prevent it. We'll learn no better lesson during this bloody conflict than yield ourselves and listen to God. It is gratifying to learn of the large numbers of the Bibles being distributed to the soldiers and sailors by the Gideons and others. Chaplains report many reading the Word and praying that never did it before. It is no sign of weakness or fear. It's a sign of noble endeavor. It's a move to give hope and to keep the men living clean.

Phil. 4:5 "Let your Moderation be known to all men. The Lord is at hand." None dare object to that text. It's sane and sensible. It's a mighty challenge to the stupifying power of drunkenness. If we are going to have victory over all, we will never get it by ignoring the enemy of our souls. Let's defeat him first, and then the enemy of our bodies and property will be disposed of, too. Let it ring out all over America "let your moderation be known." So far, we are being known by drunkenness and revelry. Let us fight the demon, drink, because the Lord is at hand.

These are a few of the reasons we must think on matters of permanent value. There is only one way to know victory in life. There is but one satisfying way to live. Peter said that there was no other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. Jesus said that He was the way the truth and the life.

Friend, why not take Him at his word? Try Him. The unanimous testimony of true Christians is that it pays now. Then, too, heaven is ahead for those who believe on Christ and take Him as their personal Saviour. It's all for your benefit and joy.

MY PURPOSE, BY THE HELP OF GOD:

1. To read the Bible daily to my children.
2. To pray daily with my children.
3. To persistently endeavor to form in each of them the habit of personal daily prayer and Bible reading; and to do this both by precept and by my own example.
4. To lead each of them, if possible, to a definite acceptance of Christ as Savior.
5. In cooperation with my companion, to start (or continue) a family altar in our home, or
6. If for any reason there cannot be this cooperation, by the grace of God to conduct family worship alone.—Bulletin, Cleveland, O.

BIBLE SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

Christmas Pageants

The following pageants are given in the order of our preference; each has a definite Christmas message, beautifully written, and would make an effective program. Parts are enacted as they are read by a reader, eliminating the tedious memorization of parts and cutting down considerably the number of rehearsals required. Appropriate music is interspersed throughout, greatly adding to the effect.. Price each, 25c.

"THE LIGHT OF MEN" is a beautiful candle service, very effective with or without elaborate stage setting and costuming; all departments of the Bible School can be represented. Part 1, Scene 1, The entrance of sin: We see Adam and Eve neaking away in the semi-darkness, and the angel holding the flaming sword. As soon as sin entered, the Savior was promised; the promise of Gen. 3:15 is represented by a candle borne by an angel. As promises of a Savior are quoted from scripture in the following scenes, the characters enter with lighted candles: The Patriarchal Covenant (Abraham, Isaac, Jacob); The Hope of Israel (Moses, Balaam, David); The Candle of Prophecy (Isaiah, Jeremiah, Daniel, Micah, Haggai, Zechariah, Malachi); The Flush of Dawn (a beautiful scene with Zacharias in the temple). Part II is The Fulfilment of the Prophecies: The Light in the Cottage (the angel's appearance to Mary); The Light in the Field (the angel's appearance to the shepherds); The Light in the Stable (the shepherds at the manger); The Light in the East the star and the wise men). Part III depicts The Adoration because of His coming as seen in Candles of Praise (girls enter with lighted candles as such notes of Thanksgiving for Christ as Eph. 1:3 are quoted); Tiny tapers (little children expressing love for Christ); Missionary Lights (worshippers from many nations); Candles in the Window (giving Him entrance in our lives); Virgin Lamps (the five wise and five foolish virgins, depicting Christ's second coming and asking the question, "Are you ready for the summons, 'Go ye out to meet'?"

Finale all candles blown out, representing death, and in the darkness the question is asked, "What then, my soul, what then?" Then all lights are turned on as the Holy City is played and Rev. 22:5 is quoted. An invitation to accept Christ would be easy after such a climax. Scenes of this impressive service are short, and could be assigned to different classes of the Bible School. If there are too many characters for one person to bear each candle, some scenes could be omitted, or someone from each class could light all the candles in a particular scene. You will not be disappointed if you decide on this pageant.

"HIS GLORY," another beautiful pageant full of quotations from scripture. Introduction: " . . . Throughout the night of the ages, God permitted flashes of light to fall into the darkness. All along the highway of revelation, prophets and patriarchs saw glimpses of the divine presence . . . (which) burst at last in splendor above the fields of Bethlehem, so that all might see 'His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth . . . '" Scenes are as follows: His Glory at Bethel (Jacob's dream); His glory on Sinai (described in Ex. 19:18-19); His Glory in the Wilderness (The Pillar of cloud and of fire); His Glory in the Temple (at its dedication, described in II Chron. 5:13-14); His Glory amid the Angels (Isaiah's vision of Isa. 6); His Glory above the Fields (the angel's appearance to the shepherds); His Glory in the Manger; His Glory in the World (the wise men and also worshippers from many lands today); His Glory in Heaven (the New Jerusalen, those of all nations singing the praises quoted from Revelation).

"PRAISING GOD AND SAYING" is all poetry. Two readers add emphasis to the lines by reading them alternately and occasionally in unison. Two choruses give further emphasis by singing musical parts in unison and alternating in speaking responses to the readers' lines. The scenes portray The seven prophets (Isaiah, Jeremiah, Daniel, Micah, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi) with lighted candles, representing the light of their prophecy concerning Christ in the darkness of the ancient world; the angels' appearance to the shepherds; the manger scene, the visit of the wise men; those bearing flags of various lands taking their stand for Christ.

"THE HOLY STORY IN PANTOMIME" The scenes in this very impressive pageant are vivid. In addition to many quotations of scripture, additional items throwing light on the various scenes are interwoven in the reader's lines, such as the priest's routine in which Zacharias was engaged when the angel appeared to him, a vivid description of Nazareth nestled in the hills, etc. The scenes enacted are: Zacharias and the Angel; The Annunciation; Joseph and Mary at Bethlehem; The Shepherds in the Fields; Holy Night at the Manger; The Presentation in the Temple; The Wise Men (on their way to Jerusalem); Herod's reaction to the News of the New King); The Wise Men at the Manger (which should really be in the house, as Matt. 2:11 will show).

Christmas Programs

After examining programs from different companies, we have yet to find the book in which all recitations and other features have a spiritual tone. We feel that every part of a program sponsored by a church or Bible School should have a definite Christian message both for the one who takes part and for those in the audience who seldom attend regular services. Books containing more program material for all ages than can be used in one program are available, however, so that the program committee can make its own selection and arrange a program particularly adapted to their need. A very fine Christmas program could be planned from Meigs Christmas Selections (we have examined No. 5, 6, and 7), price 25c each. The most original Christmas material we have seen is in six 35c booklets by J. H. Kuhlman, containing recitations, tableaus, playlets, and other features for both public school and Bible School. Most of those designed are different from anything we have found elsewhere. Committees having this set of booklets would have material from which to select unusual programs for several years.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

REPORT OF REVIVAL AT KITTANNING

God gave us a real revival, Sept. 28 to Oct. 11, in the First Brethren Church at Kittanning, for there was a real interest manifest. Many prayer meetings had been held, and much work done preceding the beginning of the meeting. There was the finest kind of spirit and cooperation on the part of the pastor, Rev. A. Malles, and the members of the church as we were able to reach the homes of many unsaved people who were prospects for the church each day. Almost from the start there were those who were ready to answer the call of Christ in the invitation. A fine number of the unsaved came to the Lord during the meeting. The church at West Kittanning has a real field in which to work for Christ, for there is not another church in that whole section of the city. If I caught the spirit and the ambition of this people with their pastor, they are ready to meet the challenge. The church has risen up for their Lord, and by the help of God they expect to take every opportunity in reaching that community with Christ and the Word.

The Church is badly in need of a new building. The building is old, very much in need of repair, and comes far short of meeting the present needs of the Sunday school and the church. The people have already gone ahead and bought and paid for two large, beautiful lots. These lots are located on one of the finest streets in the communtiy. They have a building fund which is growing every week with plans for the erection of a new church building just as soon as the government will allow them to go ahead.

The last night of the meeting it seemed like we just could not close, they came and they kept coming until, the whole front of the church was lined with men and women, boys and girls who wanted to follow Christ. Our daily broadcasts from Uniontown, over radio station WMBS, covers this section of the state, and it was our joy in almost every service to meet radio friends who came and said we have heard your voice for years and enjoy your messages. This was a real encouragement to my heart.

MEYERSDALE C.E. SOCIETIES

Dear Leo:

Here is some good news. In mid-July we started our C.E. organization here with an attendance of seven. We set the goal for fifty members by Thanksgiving. Last Sunday evening fifty were present; yesterday evening, Oct. 25th, fifty-one came out for C.E. Our goal by Christmas is one hundred members. Praise the Lord for the response of the folks here to C.E. We have divided our group into four societies, each working as a separate unit as far as the lesson studies are concerned, but all workilng together in the opening services and in the financial affairs. It makes a nice arrangement and works efficiently. We are planning a district Rally to be held here next Thursday evening, Rev. Robert Ashman, National Brethren C.E. President, will be the speaker.

Harry Harris, C.E. President.
Ruth Bittner, C.E. Sec'y-Treas.

To the Herald:

The Lord blessed us mightily yesterday in Meyersdale. The attendances came to the highest point since we have been pastor, 143 in the morning service, 179 in the evening evangelistic service. In the Sunday School Decision Service, following an illustrated "Heart Message," five young ladies accepted the Lord. We are in the midst of a "Victory Revival" campaign, doing our own preaching, using plenty of good special numbers. Special awards given to those who reach specific goals during the Revival will be subscriptions to the Brethren Missionary Herald. We couldn't think of anything worth more to give to these who have attained.

In His service,

—Rev. Kenneth Ashman, Pastor.

ELLET CHURCH REPORTS

The Ellet Brethren Church recently welcomed into its work Rev. and Mrs. Chas. Bergerson of Racine, Wis., who have assumed the work of assistant pastor and music director. Both brother and sister Bergerson have been received into the Brethren church here through an affirmation of their faith in Christ and submission to the rite of trine immersion. They have already fitted themselves into the work nicely, and assurances of divine blessing upon their labors are in evidence.

The Ellet Brethren Church recently purchased new carpeting for the floor of its auditorium at a cost of $450.00, which together with new carpet laid upon the pulpit platform in the spring at a cost of $100.00, adds much beauty and a homelike atmosphere to the church service. The auditorium is now a very beautiful place in which to worship.

How About It?

Call them by name—Unless we realize our sins enough to call them by name, it is hardly worth while to say anything about them at all. When we pray for forgiveness let us say, "My temper," or "untruthfulness," or "pride," "my selfishness, my cowardliness, indolence, jealousy, revenge, impurity." To recognize our sins we must look them in the face and call them by their right names, however hard. Honesty in confession calls for definiteness in confession.—Sel.

Careless Words

When you say, "the deuce," you are really saying, "the devil"—Webster's Dictionary. "Dickens" is another euphemism for "the devil." "Darn," according to Funk and Wagnall's, means "to damn." Webster says "gosh' is a substitute for "God," as is "golly." "Gee," according to Webster's, is a form of "Jesus." Many say "heavens" who wouldn't say "hell." Which is worse?—Evangelical Beacon.

Brief History of Our New Church

AT NORTH RIVERADLE

By NORMAN UPHOUSE, Pastor

For a number of years several members of the First Brethren Church, 1900 W. 3rd St., Dayton, Ohio, believed there should be another Brethren Church at Dayton. At the semi-annual business meeting, July 10, 1940, an extension committee of five was appointed. After investigation and survey work the North Riverdale section of the city was recommended. In the annual business meeting of Jan. 8, 1941, the committee reported that $2,635 had been given toward the establishment of the new Brethren Church in the city. This money was turned over to The Brethren Home Missions Council to be held in trust for the new church.

At a special business meeting of the First Brethren Church April 8, 1941, for those interested in forming a class looking toward establishment of the new Church, the extension committee reported the three lots, at the northwest corner of Main Street and Melford Avenue, could be purchased for $2,300. The Church gave its approval of the location and price. Authority was granted for the organization of the North Riverdale Brethren Class in accordance with the "Brethren Ministers' Handbook." Authority was also granted for the purchase of the lots and the $100 down-payment was made the next day.

On April 15, 1941, the North Riverdale Class was organized. After election of Trustees, they were instructed to request the Brethren Home Missions Council, to return the $2,635 held in trust. After the purchase of the lots, the title was transferred to The Brethren Home Missions Council, Inc., to be held in trust for the North Riverdale Brethren class.

The "Class" was organized into the North Riverdale Brethren Church on July 15, 1941, with thirty-five members on the roll. The Brethren Home Missions Council loaned their tent and the first religious services were held on the lots at 4101 N. Main St., July 20, 1941. This began three weeks evangelistic services conducted by Rev. R. Paul Miller, National Secretary of the Home Missions Council. Beginning Aug. 17, 1941, services were held in the Charles Loos School. First regular pastor was Rev. Norman Uphouse, who assumed the pastorate Oct. 1, 1941. On Nov. 9, 1941, ground-breaking services were held on the lots at 4101 N. Main Street. The new congregation moved from the Loos School to Harley Barton's Sales Room at 3800 N. Main Street on Dec. 21, 1941. The church was incorporated under the laws of Ohio, March 19, 1942. Due to the curtailment of the automobile industry by the war program, Mr. Barton was unable to grant the use of his room after April 1, 1942, but the church leased a store room at 3510 N. Main Street for three months.

Corner stone laying services for the new church were held on April 26, 1942. As the building program was delayed the lease on the store room was extended until Oct. 1, 1942. At that time the congregation was able to occupy the basement of the new church building. At present the membership is 56 and our average attendance at Church Services approximately 85.

The building was erected at an approximate cost of $30,000, without mortgage.

Our glad day of dedication came on November 1, 1942. The first service in the auditorium was the worship service at 9:30 A.M. At this time the sermon "Solomon's Temple" was preached by the pastor. Bible School followed under the direction of the superintendent Roy H. Kinsey. There was a basket dinner at the church at noon with about 200 persons eating. The main service of dedication was at 2:30 P.M. After pictures were taken and greetings were heard from the visiting ministers, Rev. R. Paul Miller delivered a wonderful message to over 300 people. Other ministers present were: Rev. Aeby, Schaffer, Mayes, Lowman, Barnard and Hostettler. Brother Patterson had charge of receiving the offering which totaled within a few dollars of two thousand. Brother Barnard led in the prayer of dedication. In the evening we started an evangelistic campaign with Evangelist Chas. W. Mayes, which will continue for two weeks.

Now that our church is completed sufficiently for use, we want to express our many thanks to those who helped us. The Council has been a great help. The First Church in the city has done nobly. Friends and members have contributed to the needs. For all of these, we are grateful. It is our joy to know the structure is dedicated to the Lord and will be a place where men and women can learn to know Him. He is the One Who should have the credit. Truly He supplied the needs and work. He answered prayer and provided at the right time.

All who read this article are invited to visit us sometime to see the new church and worship with us. We pledge ourselves to the greater interests of missions and church work as we see the need for more Brethren in other cities and communities.

Ministers at the North Riverdale Dedication. (L. to R.)—Aeby, Schaffer, Hoover, Mayes, Uphouse, Barnhart, and Barnard.

WAR BONDS WILL BE ACCEPTED

The matter of whether war bonds could be placed in the Thanksgiving Offering has come up several times. Some folks feel that they could not give freely to both the Thanksgiving Offering and bond buying. If they could turn the bonds in, they could give so much more. Well, bonds are acceptable at the purchase price. It would be impossible to allow the full maturity value, for the Home Missions Council could hardly wait ten years to get funds to pay this year's mission pastors' salaries. But bonds are acceptable. They are as safe as U.S. money of any kind. However, they must be made payable to the Brethren Home Missions Council, Inc., Berne, Indiana.

Through the Eyes of a Neighboring Pastor

By RUSSELL D. BARNARD, Pastor, First Brethren, Dayton, Ohio

It was a GREAT DAY that Dedication Day at North Riverdale! I guess I acted a little peculiar, but why not? It was a great day, the ending of a great year, the answer to the prayer and waiting of a dozen years. The weather was perfect, the people were happy, the surroundings beautiful. North Riverdale has a beautiful church!

We're so happy for the relationship between the two congregations, and between the two pastors, Rev. Norman Uphouse and myself. There is and has been only the sweetest of Christian fellowship. Next to First Brethren, the passion of First Brethren pastor and people is North Riverdale. The church buildings are almost 6 miles apart. First Brethren is 2 miles west from the center of town, and North Riverdale 4 miles north. The first pastoral visitation I did when I came to Dayton over 13 years ago was in the section of the city where the new church is located. It was a fertile field then, and it is even more fertile now. You can expect great things from North Riverdale. She can produce, she will produce, she must produce. We are expecting it of her.

The new church plant is beautiful, commodious, and well-planned. I can say this because I did not have anything to do with its planning to any great extent. Others will probably describe the church for you, and tell of the events of the day. We shall not attempt this. Suffice it to say that there are so many ear-marks of our own plant here that it makes us feel at home. Of course, there are so many improvements and niceties, and why should there not be? So has there been in our homes and our automobiles since 1912. We thank God for his blessings, and praise Him for His goodness. We are so happy with a fellow-pastor and a fellow-congregation in the city of Dayton.

But the North Riverdale congregation and church plant, excellent as both are is not the final goal. This is only a step; there is now a Brethren congregation in the West and the North of this great city; the goal will not have been reached until there is a church in both East and South. There are open and inviting fields in both of these sections of Dayton. We wait almost impatiently until we can enter in. But our great challenge now is to help North Riverdale to be made strong and able; then we will be looking to the East and to the South.

The Zimmies Send Their Thanks

By ELIAS ZIMMERMAN

It is now some weeks since we returned to Los Angeles and to our work from our itinerary in the East. It was a long and hard trip of almost four months, constantly traveling and speaking night after night for weeks at a time. We were at the point of exhaustion when we returned home, but we rejoice and thank God for the many privileges and blessings which were ours in ministering to so many of the Brethren Churches in behalf of the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And we shall not soon forget the kindness, friendship, love, and the warm hospitality which were heaped upon us as we went from place to place. The sweet fellowship we enjoyed with so many of the brethren will long be remembered; and the wholehearted interest in the salvation of God's ancient people, Israel, on the part of so many of the churches will inspire and encourage our hearts to go on with the work that is before us.

Mr. Zimmerman

During our itinerary in the East, the work here in Los Angeles was carried on by our brother, Rev. Henry Neale, a consecrated and faithful worker. He sent us frequent reports of the activities and progress at the Mission. And it was with a good deal of joy and thanksgiving that he reported how three Jewish women made public confession of their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as their Savior and Redeemer. Since our return to Los Angeles, our hearts were grieved and made heavy to find what havoc the war has caused among our Jewish boys. From fifty to seventy-five per cent of them are either in the army or navy, and a number of them have already been killed. Others are working in the defense plants during all hours of the day. This means that we will have to make a change in the nature of our work. We will have to deal with the older folks and children.

We covet the earnest prayers of all our friends and the friends of Israel for God's continued guidance and blessing upon our labors among God's ancient people, and especially upon our efforts in finding and securing the right kind of a building for the work that is before us.

Today Is Day of Good Tidings

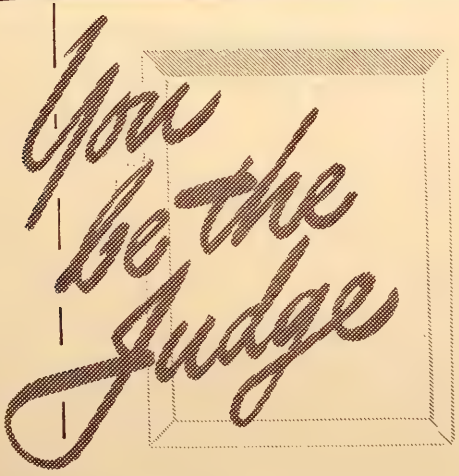
By R. PAUL MILLER

There are some very potent things for true Brethren people to keep seriously in mind in relation to our Home Mission work and the approaching Thanksgiving Offering.

FIRST—The most remarkable opportunities for advancing the gospel here in America have been laid at our door today. We can prove ourselves unworthy of them and lose them through failure to rise up and seize them. We can refuse the sacrifices that are the life blood of all progress of the gospel.

SECOND—Today there is placed in the hands of God's people the greatest financial ability to prosper His work that we have ever experienced. Shall we turn it to account for God and glorify Him with it, or waste it on our own desires? "We do not well; this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace: if we tarry till the morning light some mischief will come upon us: now therefore come, that we may go and tell the King's household." 11 Kings 7:9.

Brethren, today is a day of good tidings for us, and it is a day for us to take those tidings to lost men. We stand before God in trying and tragic days that test the metal of God's people and the measure of their devotion to Him.



THIRD—We do not know how soon our present opportunities may be taken from us. Unforeseen disasters, pyramiding taxes, and a thousand other unknown factors may soon cause thousands of Christians to lament the funds that they could have given for saving men, but which were swept away through the misfortunes of war. Funds given for spreading the gospel are the only real and eternal savings account you have. This is your golden opportunity to increase it, and Glorify God. The godless are using their prosperity to increase the wickedness of this world and serve the ends of Satan.

God help our Brethren people to use their blessings to save the lost. It will be a good thing to remember after you reach the other shore. Think it over!

Do Brethren Home Missions Really Pay?

Financially Or Spiritually?

In April, 1934, R. Paul Miller, secretary of Brethren home missions, made his first survey of Covington, Va., as a field for a new Brethren Church. In October, 1934, Herman Koontz was secured to start weekly Bible classes in that city. In May, 1935, Bernard Schneider, just graduated from seminary, arrived on the field to hold regular services. In June, 1936, their new building was dedicated and the first revival was held with 43 decisions. In May, 1938, they held their second revival with 102 decisions. In April, 1940, they held their third revival and had 130 decisions. In 1939, with 183 members and a Sunday School of 195, they became a completely self-supporting congregation. Just 4 years after regular services began Covington was able to stand alone!

In early 1937, Paul Bauman started a Bible Class in San Diego, California. The class met in a private home until the fall of 1937, when a store room was rented. In March, 1937, the present lots were bought. In July, 1938, Albert Flory was secured as regular pastor. The group kept meeting in the store room until June 15th, 1940, when their new building was dedicated. In October, 1942, with a church membership of 140 and a Sunday school of 153 the San Diego church became self-supporting. In just 4 years! Think of it!

For years the Fort Wayne congregation was a struggling handful of people who seemed unable to make progress. Location, building, vision, and many other things seemed against them. In September, 1935, Leo Polman and his wife were secured to lead this little group. After two years of hard work things began to happen. A new spirit developed; new members were added; finances improved, and growth really began. In 1938 their present building was purchased. In 1940 Brother Polman was called to be Secretary of Publications, and John Aeby became pastor. In 1941 Fort Wayne, with 147 members and a S. S. of 123, became a self-supporting church. This congregation already stands among the leading churches in giving to home and foreign missions.

This list could be multiplied on and on, but these few cases are sufficient for Brethren laymen to see how home missions are the field in which to invest—for time and eternity.

There are many new Brethren mission fields today just as promising as Fort Wayne, Covington and San Diego.

Will you help them this year? Next year may be too late!

Home Missions Lead Way to Greater Things for Christ

By ROY A. PATTERSON, Layman, Dayton, Ohio

We would not have you conclude that it is our belief that Home Missions alone lead the way to greater things for Christ; but we are firmly convinced the Brethren Home Missions Council, along with The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church; Grace Theological Seminary; Women's Missionary Council of the Brethren Church; The Sisterhood of Mary and Martha, and other fine aggressive organizations, is leading the way to greater things for Christ. These statements are not opinions but are facts, substantiated by reports given at our Conference at Winona.

Your offerings to Foreign Missions totaled nearly seventy thousand dollars; the special offering to Grace Theological Seminary, taken at Conference, exceeded eleven thousand dollars; the total income through The Brethren Home Missions Council was more than forty-one thousand dollars. The other organizations mentioned presented similar reports. In all, this has been the greatest year in the history of The Brethren Church.

Becoming more specific and restricting our further remarks to the work of The Brethren Home Missions Council, we want to recall that less than five years ago The Brethren Home Missions Council came into existence and with no more material possessions than a new born babe but exceedingly rich in His abundant grace. Today we enjoy the most prosperous and most blessed time of all our home mission experience. We just rejoice in seeing the work grow and souls being led to Christ; we also rejoice with and pray for all other home mission endeavors, by whomsoever carried on, if those endeavors also lead men and women to Christ. Will you rejoice with us and pray for our work?

The Brethren Home Missions Council leads the way to Christ in the dedication of means. During the year 1940-1941, the mission churches in their local work contributed the sum of $67,944.00, and in the year 1941-1942 the sum of $77,956.00; thereby reduced their building indebtedness by $21,417.00. Of the five churches giving the larger amounts per capita to home missions, four are now home mission churches, the other became self supporting just last year. These per capita ratings running between $9.75 and $7.08 per person. In the year 1940-1941 these mission churches gave $11,488.00 to benevolences; in 1941-42 these same churches gave $17,462.00 to the same cause. Your "mission dollars" are not going into "sponge" mission churches but into churches that are leading the way to greater things for Christ by proper use of their possessions.

Let us look at our mission churches in another way and we will discover that they lead the way to Christ in spiritual things. In the year 1940-1941 these churches had 150 decisions for Christ, last year 200 accepted Christ at their altars. If we will examine the records a little more we will find all of them having prayer meetings during the past year with an average attendance that would put some of our larger churches to shame. Their church and Sunday school attendance averaging seventy-five per cent of the enrollment. If we had the time, we would like to take you into the class rooms of Grace Seminary and let you see those from our mission churches who are training for more definite Christian work.

May we now ask you to spend a few moments in going over the list of our fine consecrated pastors who occupy the pulpits of our mission churches? Fine examples of consecrated Christian leaders, are they not? We love every one of them.

Need we say more? When a people are ready to give sacrificingly of their possessions; to expend their personal talents and offer their prayers to bring sinners to Christ and do bring them to Him, when these same persons are ready to further devote themselves to the cause they love, we can but say, "Brethren Home Missions Lead the Way to Greater Things for Christ."

Friends of home missions, if this feeble article has inspired you and challenged you, we pray you will give expression to that inspiration in helping to make this Thanksgiving offering to home missions such that a greater record can be written as we seek to lead the way to greater things in Christ. We thank you from the bottom of our hearts for your loyal support in the past, and pledge our best administration as we look into the future.

Just Think

60,000 churches last year reported not one soul saved! There were also 30,000 churches closed down, says Rev. John Zoller of Detroit. Listen, reader, what will you do about this matter? (Los Angeles, 3rd, Bulletin) May we make a suggestion? Don't forget the Home Mission offering at Thanksgiving.

Why Should Home Missions Interest a Foreign Missions Secretary?

By LOUIS S. BAUMAN, Long Beach, Calif.

I have been asked to answer this question: "Why Should a Foreign Missions Secretary Be Interested In Home Missions?" My answer to that question is simple. A foreign missionary secretary should first of all be a Christian interested in carrying forward the work of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ until He shall come. The early church knew little about the many divisions that exist in the structure of the modern Christian church. The cause of Christ was one in that day. It should be one today.

Dr. Bauman

A foreign missionary secretary should be interested in home missions because the Great Commission calls for the carrying of the gospel first to Jerusalem, and then into Judea, and then into Samaria, and then to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Again, it is evident that the Great Commission itself bases foreign missions upon home missions. The Master, in His infinite wisdom, gave the plan in the Great Commission itself: "Beginning at Jerusalem." That simply means that a home base must be established for the carrying of the gospel into the regions beyond. Missions in Judea, Samaria, and in the uttermost parts of the earth rest upon the success of the work first in Jerusalem.

A goodly part of our foreign missionary offering last Easter came from churches that are still home missions. We are ready to risk making an estimate offhand that 80% of our foreign missionary offering came from churches that were built under the direction of home missionary work. Need we say more?

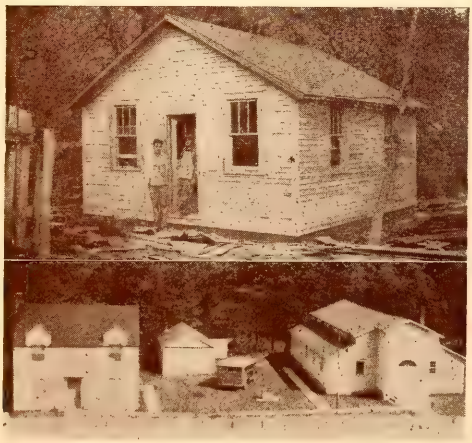
WITH OUR SECRETARY



Clothing Room Is Completed—

Ever since the Clayhole work was started Mrs. Landrum has had to carry on the distribution of the clothing sent by the churches in part of the garage. It has been a most inconvenient arrangement all around. The Central District W.M.C. discovered the need and underwrote the cost, so that the building could be supplied at once. The next problem was to get an efficient builder to erect it. We thought we had Wesley Miller lined up for the job, but when the time came, he was busy installing a basement under the Osceola Church.

The Lord has ways of getting all His work done. A delay came in the Osceola operation and at once Brother Miller telephoned us that he could go to Clayhole and put up the clothing room. On a few hours notice we went down together. He, Sewell Landrum, and the Secretary did the work. Had it not been for this opportunity the building would likely have had to wait until next year, due to lack of builders. We had to rustle up material after we were on the job and this delayed us a day or so. But as soon as things got started they happened mighty fast. In nine days from the day we left Berne, we were back. The building had to be painted, a side walk laid, and the clothing racks put up. Wesley Miller had to return by then, so these items were left for Sewell Landrum to finish. He obtained some local help and the building is now completed.

As we left Hazel said, "Now we are ready for the clothing." They had received very little this fall up to the time of our leaving.

Brother Wesley Miller seems to have found a ministry of church building in the Brethren Church. He built the Osceola Church, the Clayhole parsonage, and is now working on the basement at Osceola and expects to erect the Fremont Church soon. We appreciate the fine spirit he shows in helping us out in these difficult days.

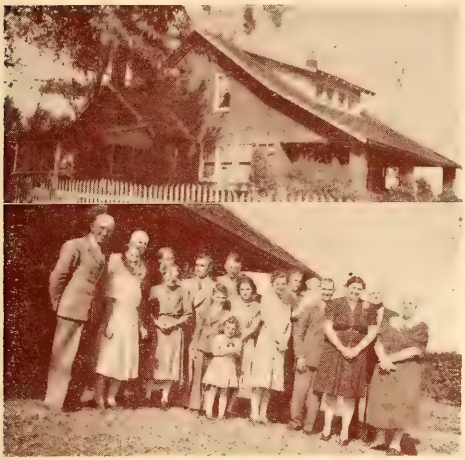
North Riverdale Dedication—

Just one year ago last May, the little group of about 30 members of the First Brethren Church of Dayton made their final decision on establishing the North Riverdale Church. They agreed to sever all connection with the mother church at once. They elected their first officers, and began to raise money for their new enterprise. Lots were purchased at once at the present location.

In July 1941, a tent meeting was held on the lots and the first real impact on the community was made for the Brethren faith. The First Brethren Church congregation attended the tent meetings freely and supported them most liberally. In fact they have been loyal in helping to pay for the cost of the new building. Brother Russell Barnard, the pastor, has shown the finest spirit in fostering the new work through all these months of hard work in establishing the new church.



For months after the tent meeting this new group was kicked around from one meeting place to another. First they met in a school building, then an auto display room, and finally in a store room, from which they moved into their present beautiful structure.

In spite of all the setbacks, under the able leadership of Pastor Norman Uphouse, the church and Sunday School grew steadily. Today the prospects were never brighter. People in that section have awakened to the faith that the Brethren church believes. The work has a high standing in the community.

The building is one of the finest in our Brotherhood today. But for the splendid assistance of Brother Lee Burkett at the start, materials could not have been secured with which to erect it. His counsel and assistance have been invaluable. Then there was the timely aid of Brother Kinsey in arranging finances for the parsonage. The list of outstanding acts of devotion to the work from among the members would include almost every one! No finer group of people could have been found to start a new congregation.

Brother Uphouse has been proven to be God's man for this work. He has won the hearts and full cooperation of his own people and the high esteem of the entire community. We were sure that we made no mistake when he was appointed pastor. He is a hard worker at God's task, a strong preacher, and a real pastor of the flock.

Beginning with Sunday School in the morning, with an attendance of 146, it was a triumphant day all the way through; a real dedication in every way. Brother Uphouse gave the morning message in his characteristic and effective way. Outstanding musical talent was presented by Prof and Mrs. Moyer with their Solovox and Mary Catherine Hoffman singing. A bountiful dinner was served, free to all, in the basement of the church at noon. At 2:30 the dedication service proper was held with the Secretary doing the preaching. Brother Roy Patterson gave a most fitting message previous to taking the dedication offering. Not only is he president of The Home Missions Council, but he has also been very close to the local work since it was begun. With no pressing whatever, the offering totaled $1502.00, being more than half cash. A most unusual thing. The aim was to increase the offering to $2000.00 at the evening service. This no doubt was done.

Brother Charles Mayes of Ashland, Ohio opened the first of a series of evangelistic services at the evening hour. All told it was a most wonderful time and a happy one for all those who have prayed and sacrificed for this work. There is little doubt but that God is laying the foundation for a great work in North Riverdale for His own glory. We are glad to have had even a small part in contributing to the remarkable growth that has come even thus far.

WHEN GOD HAS WORK TO BE DONE, HE CALLS ON A BUSY MAN—

P. S.—The other kind dresn't have time.

God never goes to the lazy or the idle when He needs men for His service. When God wants a worker, He calls a worker. When He has work to be done, He goes to those who are already at work. When God wants a great servant He calls a busy man. Scripture and history attest this truth.

Moses was busy with his flock at Horeb.

Gideon was busy threshing wheat by the wine-press.

Saul was busy searching for his father's lost beasts.

David was caring for his father's sheep.

Elisha was busy plowing with twelve yoke of oxen.

Nehemiah was busy bearing the king's wine cup.

Amos was busy following the flock.

Peter and Andrew were busy casting a net into the sea.

James and John were busy mending their nets.

Matthew was busy collecting customs.

Saul was busy persecuting the friends of Jesus.

William Carey was busy mending and making shoes.

HE REMAINS

Jesus, Thou all unchanging One,
 Hope of thy church in this dread hour;
Victor o'er death, Eternal Son—
 Draw near; we seek Thy grace and power.

The darkness deepens all around
 While ruin yet o'er ruin heaps.
Lord, in this hour may we be found
 Trusting in Him Who knows and keeps.

Midst cannons roar and fiery darts
 On all around—land, sea, and sky—
We upward look with longing hearts
 And for Thy quick return we cry.

BOUNTIFUL THANKSGIVING OFFERING FOR HOME MISSIONS

Our Thanksgiving Offering In the Light of Our Opportunities

"WAR MELTS HEARTS FOR THE GOSPEL"

By L. L. GRUBB, Hagerstown, Md.

By declaration and practice the Brethren church is a firm believer in the prophetic Word. If that Word means anything at present, it means that the rapture of Christ's body is near at hand. The challenge of an apostate, unbelieving, indifferent world and church was never greater than it is today. The present mighty conflict of steel has melted the hearts of millions and made them receptive to the gospel, especially among Israel. In short, this current opportunity for service is the greatest ever laid at the door of The Brethren Church by the Holy Spirit of God!

God is a dealer in practicalities. He expects His people to show their love for Him in overt spiritual fruit. By our own statement we claim to have the message this dying world needs. What greater impetus should be necessary to cause us to loose our purse strings and make this the greatest home mission offering in Brethren history? our gifts are the answer to these God-given challenges. By those gifts you have reached hundreds in Hagerstown who may not have heard the gospel otherwise. Thanksgiving time is soul-winning time! As a home mission pastor let me say, from experience—Home Missions Pay!

"LET'S GIVE WHILE THERE IS YET TIME"

By ARTHUR CASHMAN, Mansfield, Ohio

Scriptural signs of Christ's return, according to Dr. L. S. Bauman and other prophetic scholars, indicate that all of the ambassadors of grace may soon be caught away from the lost of the earth, unable to continue the gospel of reconciliation which has been entrusted to us. Then it will be too late to give to missions, or to even spend for other purposes what we failed to give.

Enmity toward the preaching of the fundamentals of the Bible is becoming so evident that we may suddenly find it impossible to propagate the faith we love so dearly. The present wave of prosperity cannot endure long. Should the war come to a sudden end, multitudes would be unemployed and even internal revolutions may be expected. Should the war be a long one, compulsory investments and increased taxation to help meet the war costs will affect the ability of all of us to give abundantly to Christian work in the future. Many expect a new social order, affecting the medium of exchange, causing many thousands of Christians to wish they had given liberally to spread the gospel when they could have done so.

Do we really believe that the preaching of the gospel is the greatest privilege of the redeemed? If so, let us arouse ourselves and give voluntarily now for our Thanksgiving Home Mission Offering while there is yet time. An investment in bonds and stamps, as important as it is, will never pay future dividends equal to the salvation of souls.

"EVERY CHRISTIAN IS GOD'S STEWARD

By ALBERT FLORY, San Diego, Calif.

"What!" shouted the dissatisfied customer, "Sixty-five cents for just a hair-cut!" "Yes," said the barber quietly, "Money is flowing freely now, and the barbers have decided that they might just as well have some of it."

The barber certainly struck one truth, money is flowing freely now. We can be sure of another thing—others beside the barber are out to get it; and the child of God is still a steward of the money God has given him. It is for him as never before to consider how he invests it; that it shall be invested wisely. It is no doubt wise to invest some of it where it will bring dividends here after the war, if our Lord should tarry. The investment that counts, however, will be that investment that will bring dividends throughout eternity. While money is flowing freely, let us invest it in something that will bring a dividend a thousand years from now as well as next year.

The home mission offering offers this opportunity of investment. As a home mission pastor of a church where several thousand dollars of this money has been invested for the glory of the Lord, we feel that we know whereof we speak when we say that such money is invested for eternity. We have seen scores of lives, young and old, given to Christ. The first person to some to Christ from the money invested in San Diego was a man 77 years old who, at 81, says he is "Happy on the homeward way." The latest baptism in the church was a little girl of nine, brought in the Sunday school bus. We have seen practically all of these children give their hearts to the Lord. How many lives will be touched directly and indirectly from these lives won as a result of money invested in one home mission church, only eternity will reveal.

Realizing the value of a soul, and realizing that each life won for Christ can represent many more, it is easy to see how the dividends will multiply for eternity. In home missions, we are building for eternity, let us continue to build for eternity though the horrors of a war be upon us.

"BATTLE FOR SOULS" IS OFFENSIVE WAR

By THOMAS HAMMERS, Tracy, Calif.

A man who saw service in France during the last war recently said in a prayer meeting, "Within the next six months there will not be an able-bodied young man left in our community. Having seen men die without Christ on the field of battle, I feel that as never before we must pray that in some manner many of these young men will find Christ as Saviour before it is too late."

Never has the Brethren Church been faced with a greater challenge. Time is short! These men must be won for Christ now! Tomorrow may be too late!

Honestly, brethren, are we awake to the fact that we are "in a war," that is, "a war with Satan." Now is the time for us to gird ourselves for battle. Let us "put on the whole armour of God." Let us take up the weapons of our warfare as provided by God. Let us go forth into this "battle for souls" in the spirit of Victory. Hasten, Brethren, souls are precious! time is valuable! We dare not devote our time, our resources, our energies to anything which does not contribute to the Winning of Souls.

Ours must be an Offensive Warfare. Defensive action is not enough. To be content with merely barricading ourselves behind the four walls of our churches will bring defeat, and souls will not be saved. Today the church at best can be little more than a "field headquarters." But the army of the Lord itself, must be "fluid" in its movements, in order to keep up with the ever-shifting scene of battle.

Mass movements in our population have taken place, which means that our battle fields have shifted overnight to positions and areas where we have no churches. But—to the people we must go with the gospel. We must carry the battle into the enemy's territory.

To effectually wage this warfare we need men and equipment. But we also need money! How dare we invest less in the "Battle For Souls" than we will be called upon to invest in the present "Battle For Freedom?" This Thanksgiving, invest in the greatest liberty known to man, namely, "the liberty of souls in Christ Jesus!"

"AWAKE OUT OF SLEEP" WARNING TO CHRISTIANS

By ROBERT D. CULVER, Fremont, Ohio

"And this, knowing the season, that already it is time for you to awake out of sleep: for now is salvation nearer to us than when we first believed."

This thought must have always prompted Apostle Paul to do his best in the work of missions. He looked for the Lord to come momentarily, and even in his day the indications seemed to be that the church age might end before he saw death. So, he worked the harder that the gospel might go out without restriction till the coming of the Lord. If Paul thought it necessary to "awake out of sleep" because of the nearness of completed salvation at Christ's coming, how much more should we, living 1,900 years later. Certainly, the indications of the imminence of the coming of our Lord which we see all about us are reason enough to be concerned that this year's offering for home missions be the largest—for, before another year rolls along the time of harvest in the age of Grace may be forever.

One need not look beyond his own community to see opportunity for expanding the work of Christ. We live in a world of opportunity as far as the gospel is concerned, for there isn't a place in the world where the message of grace is not still news. The field is still white, ready for the harvest, as when Jesus looked at it centuries ago. Laborers in the harvest are still the need for which we must pray. We can supply this need in part, by enlarging our giving for home missions.

SEES 300% INCREASE IN NEW TROY OFFERING

By RUSSELL WILLIAMS, New Troy, Mich.

We have two kinds of time here in the west corner of southern Michigan. We have fast time and we have—extra—fast time. Our church clock is set on extra fast time. Underneath is this slogan:

"This clock is set on the fastest time possible to cooperate with our government in speeding war work. Let's use this same speed in working for our Lord!"

Paul, in a vision, saw a man praying for him to come over into Macedonia and help them. The Brethren Church faces a similar appeal in the United States today. People are hungry for the simple gospel story. The door of opportunity is swinging open. If we wait we will lose the vision and the door will close. The hearts that are open and responsive now will grow cold and hard and Satan will sow the seed of false doctrine. Tomorrow is too late.

Necessity is laid on us to give ourselves and our money. If we cannot win a physical conflict with "too little and too late," we certainly cannot win souls for Christ that way. Then our money must go so that it will do the greatest amount with the greatest speed. We do this when we give our offering for home missions at Thanksgiving.

The Thanksgiving offering for home missions is our answer to the plea of the unsaved here in America. How will the Brethren church respond to this plea? How will I respond?

The New Troy church is going to answer by giving a home mission offering at least three times as large as last year's offering—first of all giving our own selves. Will you join us? Redeeming the time for the days are evil.

CLAYHOLE TRYING TO DOUBLE THEIR GIFTS

By SEWELL LANDRUM, Clayhole, Ky.

Opportunities for advancement in The Brethren church are being presented to the Brethren people as never before. The question before us is, what will we do with the opportunities God has given us?

Here in our Kentucky field we have opportunities we are not able to meet. There is a community that has been looking to us for a Sunday school for the past two years. Quite often we meet some of the folks. They ask: "When are you coming to our community to hold Sunday school?" All I can say is: "I hope I can come or send some one soon." Two years have passed and they are still waiting.

We also have the opportunity to teach the Bible in the public schools. Four schools have opened their doors to us. They are wondering when we will be there. Our other duties around the mission prevent us from taking advantage of these opportunities. Help us to reach the neglected places for Christ, here and elsewhere by giving the largest home mission offering in the history of The Brethren church.

The people at Clayhole hope to more than double their offering of last year. We have been blessed by the offerings of the Brethren people, so we want to have a part in helping some one else.

"SOMEBODY SACRIFICED TO GIVE US THE GOSPEL"

By J. RUSKIN GARBER, Spokane, Wash.

The approaching Thanksgiving offering for home missions is of unusual importance in view of world conditions and our present opportunities. In one of history's darkest hours the world is crying for a little light to guide the way through the maze of darkness and sorrow.

What Would the People of Europe Give for Our Opportunities to Give?

A world eager for a little love amidst the ravages of hate peers into the uncertain future for a ray of hope. False doctrines and creeds are thriving on the hungry hearts of these people. A great door is open to those with a vision of the possibilities of this hour. God's stamp of approval upon building new Brethren churches is evidenced by His blessing upon these works of faith in our denomination in the past.

To meet this challenge we should launch out on a bigger home mission program than ever before. Somebody sacrificed to bring the gospel message to you and me. Are we thankful? Let's express it in our Thanksgiving offering.

"THERE'S NO SHORTAGE OF MATERIALS WITH GOD"

By NORMAN UPHOUSE, North Riverdale

A friend said, "The golden hour of opportunity is now. Now is always honest and upright. It is the aristocrat of adverbs."

From the standpoint of opportunity, we can truthfully say to the Brotherhood, now is the time to enlarge our borders. In spite of the curtailment in building materials and the dwindling supply of skilled labor, it is still urgent that we become better established where we are and to stake off new territory in other places. There is no shortage of things with God. He can supply where things are needed. Further, it will not interfere with the war effort to go into new communities and to lay the foundation for new work.

In some places we have found entire sections without a clear testimony for God. It's pitiable, but true. Modernism has raised its head and we must move in with a sound Biblical program. If we do not, God may raise up others to do it and they will receive the blessing.

Since there is a rising cost of those things necessary to bring about the establishment of more Brethren churches, our home mission offering ought to be greater to make all things come out even. Then it ought to be greater still to permit advance all along the line. Men are making big money in most places, and we dare say now is the golden hour of opportunity to be a part in making our Thanksgiving offering really great.

Here at North Riverdale, we are appreciative of all that the Home Mission council has been able to do for us. Brother R. Paul Miller has ably assisted from the start. These things make us feel that our Brethren church at large has a great future in Home Missions, but let's prove it now.

"LET'S MAKE OBSTACLES AN IMPETUS FOR CHRIST"

By RALPH COLBURN, Compton, Calif.

The apostle Paul, in writing to the Corinthians, said, "For a great door and effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries" (I Cor. 16:9).

Immediately upon the suggestion of an expanded program for home missions, the present reaction is that it can't be done. You cannot build, there is a shortage of trained workers, conditions are too unstable, etc. These are the adversaries. Paul did not say "but there are many adversaries." He took the attitude that we must take—wherever you will find an open door, you will find many adversaries. They do not constitute a valid excuse for forsaking the field, or turning aside. They only add to the challenge.

Today, as never before, there are open doors before the Brethren church. Today as never before, there are adversaries, obstacles. If we as a denomination allow these obstacles to act as a stop sign, we will lose ground we will never regain. It may be hard and costly to advance for Christ in these times, but the gains are worth it. Let's make the obstacles and impetus for Christ's sake!

SACRIFICIAL GIVING NEEDED TO COMBAT PERILS OF WAR

By PAUL E. DICK, Winchester, Va.

Home Mission Offering time is here again. Never have we had such an opportunity before us as we have today. God has been blessing us most wonderfully and the best part of it is, He is going to bless us even more in the future. If ever there were a time in which more pure gospel was needed, now is the time. Men are grouped together in defense plants and in other work as never before. They have more and more opportunity to blaspheme Jesus Christ and His blessed church. Sin is running higher and higher because of the perils of war.

To meet the tempo of this sin and wickedness we need more Brethren churches which will carry the gospel to these men and communities. Our home mission offering is but a few weeks away and our opportunities to meet these great needs are greater than ever. Are we going to let our country go hungry for the Bread of Life because of an unwillingness on our part to sacrifice for Him who gave all for us? God Forbid!

We plead with you to give of your best to the Master. Your sacrificial offering may be the means of winning many precious souls.

"IF WE ALL GIVE A TENTH FOR THANKSGIVING"

By RALPH RAMBO, Modesto, aClif.

How important are the souls of men and women, boys and girls? Maybe not so important in the eyes of the world at war but they are all-important in the mind of our Heavenly Father. In fact, so important that He was willing to give up His greatest possession, "His only begotten Son," that they might be redeemed. I wonder if we, as Christians, have not ceased to realize the seriousness of a lost soul. The Bible, the "Word of God," records the fact that if a man dies without Christ he will spend eternity in hell. Do we believe this? Then we have a great responsibility to tell it to the world, and to also tell the glad news that Christ died to save men from hell.

But, you ask, why is this particular offering so important? What have world conditions to do with it? If we believe the Word of God we cannot help seeing that we are living in the very last days of this dispensation. The time left to give is short. We are looking, yes, and longing for His coming; and He tells us we are to comfort one another with these words: but He also tells us to "occupy till He comes." Never have Christian people been blessed with greater prosperity. Farmers are receiving higher prices for their products, wages and salaries are greater, and even our boys and girls are receiving compensation unheard of a few years ago.

Now, if we will all honor God with His "tenth," what an offering we will have this fall; and if the Lord tarries, think of the new Brethren churches we will be able to establish. Churches where the gospel of the the grace of God is preached, churches where Christ is held up as the only Savior from sin, and not as an "ideal for Christian living." Friends let us take advantage of our opportunities today!

"BRETHREN MUST SHARE THEIR HERITAGE WITH OTHERS"

By WALTER A. LEPP, Cleveland, Ohio

"You are giving people assurance. You are dogmatic. Because people today are jittery they come to hear you."

A modernistic pastor of a large Cleveland church was speaking to the Cleveland Brethren pastor about the type of sermons people want to hear today.

Asked why he didn't preach the same "assurance," he replied:

"I can't, because it isn't mine to give."

Right there is the great challenge to Brethren churches today. They have the gospel. They have the "assurance." What are they going to do with it? Keep it for themselves, or "go tell" others?

Thanksgiving time is the test. With employment running at peak, wages and salaries high, now is the time to prove our gratitude.

When we as Americans pause to consider our fate, compared to other countries, our giving to home missions this year should be hilarious as well as liberal.

"CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH NO REMOTE POSSIBILITY"

By JESSE HALL, Bellflower, Calif.

"The King's Business Requireth Haste" (1 Sam. 21:8).

Present world conditions bring home to us the need for immediate action. Precious souls for whom Christ died are eternity bound—but where? The need for reaching them with the gospel now has become increasingly urgent. It is our responsibility as believers to take the message of salvation to them without delay.

In this connection we need to hear again the words of our Lord Jesus Christ as He says, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth but lay up for yourselves treasure in Heaven." How useless to engage in the folly of piling up this world's goods only to have them swept away in a moment of time! Would it not be better to invest those funds for Christ and the salvation of men now than to be one of those who one day wish you had?

The Thanksgiving offering for Brethren home missions gives us an opportunity of investing for eternity, to be "rich toward God." Who knows but what this may be the last opportunity we shall have to give freely of our means for the Lord's work. The conscription of wealth is no longer just a remote possibility. Child of God, you had better make your money count for Christ. It is still within your power to say where it shall go.

Yea, verily, "The King's Business Requireth Haste."

"IF THIS WERE OUR LAST CHANCE, WHAT WOULD WE GIVE?

By DR. J. C. BEAL, Waterloo, Ia.

Opportunities missed will never return. There never again will be a time so favorable for soul-winning as the present. Reaching men for the Lord grows increasingly difficult. New heresies are being promulgated. More and more the minds of folks are engrossed with the exacting demands of the war. Taxes to meet the staggering costs of this war take more and more of our incomes.

Indications point to the soon return of our Lord. Days of service grow fewer. The time nears when we must give an accounting of our stewardship. It seems "now or never" in the work which so much concerns us all. As we face the Thanksgiving offering for our home missions work, there should come a seriousness never yet experienced. This may be our last opportunity to give before the Lord calls His church away. With the opportunity still ours, let's do the best job we have ever done. Let's make at least some sacrifices for the work of soul-saving. God's work should take place over all else. Fine as was the offering last year, this year's giving should surpass that of last year. Let's please Him in our Thanksgiving offering.

"THE HARVEST IS GREAT; OUR OPPORTUNITY IS PLAIN"

By DON BARTLETT, Flora, Ind.

Never in the history of the world has there been such a state of universal chaos as there is today. Men utterly confused and nations in distress; and yet, the very condition itself is but the outward manifestation of an inner disease. Never has our nation been so spiritually empty, so far from God. Never has the need of the gospel been so great, and never has there been a greater opportunity to present it.

Men and women everywhere, because the realities of war are being brought home to them, are, in their sorrow and distress of mind and heart, becoming conscious of their need for a spiritual life that can bring comfort and sustain them when material things fail. Men and women are tired of "religion," but they are hungry for the simple gospel which is still the power of God unto salvation.

We are prone in times like these to say "wait" until there is some order restored, or that there are too many problems, priorities on building materials, tire shortages, gasoline rationing, etc. Now these are real problems for us, but not for the Lord. How the Lord has rebuked us in the past few months for such thinking! How many of us thought that our national conference could not be up to par because war conditions would keep folks from attending? The Lord rebuked us by giving us one of the best conferences in recent years. How many communities have been able to complete their buildings in spite of the war! Many of us were a little fearful that the seminary offering would not measure up to last year's, but the Lord rebuked such faith with an offering that came dangerously near doubling that of last year!

God is still on the throne, and no war or combinations of wars can shorten the arm of Our Lord!

The need is great. The most difficult fields are white to harvest. Our job is to apply the sickle and reap. The fields are ready. Are the labourers? Let us give as we have never given before that the gospl may go out to a hungry, and dying nation.

"OCCUPY TILL I COME" DOES NOT MEAN "TAKE IT EASY"

By HAROLD O. MAYER, Juniata, Pa.

"Occupy till I come," were the words of our Lord to those who thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear. No doubt there were those in that day who thought that the best thing for them to do was to sit back and await the ushering in of the kingdom.

Surely we can see a deadly parallel in the existing condition of today. On every hand we hear the cry, "surely we are in the last days," or "surely the Lord must soon come." This is and should be the blessed hope of every born again believer. Yet on the other hand we hear some saying, "if the Lord is coming soon, why should we expand and open up new points, why not hold that which we already have."

Our Lord said "occupy till I come." A more literal translation would be, "do business till I come." Never did He say, "sit back and take it easy till I come." These are days when we should buy up opportunities, days when opportunity for doing business for Him is greater than ever before.

These are days when men and women are open to the gospel. They are seeking the very thing that we have. They are awakened to their need as they have never been before. Even unregenerate politicians have a certain "God consciousness" that was unknown or unheard of six months ago.

Again these are days when the spirit of patriotism is mounting higher and higher, and as the records clearly show, the morals of this great nation are dripping lower and lower. In the light of what we know of the conditions brought about by World War I, can you picture the post war world of today, should the Lord Jesus tarry? This fact alone should cause us to do all in our power to further the gospel of Jesus Christ.

It is good business to invest our money in that which is profitable. Saving souls is profitable. "He that winneth souls is wise." Be wise! Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven. Give to home missions as you have never given before that when he comes He may find us doing businss for Him till he comes.

"SAMPLE OUR COMMUNITY WITH GOSPEL OF CHRIST"

By CONARD SANDY, Los Angeles, Calif.

A man just left the door. He said he was "sampling the community with cigarettes;" by which, he meant he was giving out free samples of his particular brand to those who would receive them. This is just one method the enemy is using in these last days of the age.

Then I thought if the enemy is that desirous of getting new customers for one of his products, ought not Christians be doubly busy "sampling the community"—every community in the United States—with the glorious gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ?

On the day of His ascension the Lord Jesus placed home missions first in the Christian's activity. He gave the orders to begin at the home base. America —our home base—needs this message today, because:

1. There are more people here now than ever before.
2. There are more non-christians here than at any previous time.
3. There are more Americans going to Christless graves per day, because of the war, war-work and war-nerves.

Here, Brethren is our field, our opportunity, our challenge. Let us "sample it with the gospel."

"THE MESSAGE, THE DESIRE AND THE OPPORTUNITY"

By ROBERT W. HILL, Osceola, Ind.

I think that I can give you three good reasons why we should back up our home missions offering as never before. The Apostle Paul was the most successful of home mission preachers. As a Roman citizen, he founded more churches in the Roman Empire than any other man.

He had the message. The message was new and spread much faster than today. Yes, times have changed but not the gospel. It is the only message that can soothe a broken heart. God has entrusted us with this saving gospel and we must pass it on now.

He had a desire to tell that message. Paul was so thrilled with this message that he told it to all. Can we say that we are not interested in the saving of souls? Surely we have a desire to get that message to hungry hearts, now is the time.

He had the opportunity to tell the message. Whether in bonds, or on the sea, or before kings, Paul was faithful in telling the story. God gave him these opportunities and He has also given us opportunities as never before. We must do something now.

How About It?

The following, asserted to be a true incident, carries its own point:

A man who had ruined his health by liquor, looked sadly at his wife, whom he had promised repeatedly that he would reform.

"Jessie," he said, "you are a clever woman—a courageous, good woman. You should have married a better man than I am."

The prematurely aged wife looked at him sadly. "I did, James," she said, quietly.

Brother, are you really the man that your good wife married?

News from Brethren CHURCHES

THE FIRST CHURCH, JOHNSTOWN, PA.

We enjoy reading the many fine articles and the heartening news of the many victories taking place in the various churches. However, we have been very neglectful and derelict in sharing ours. Therefore, we are giving the highlights of the last six years. We hope to write more frequently in the future.

March 7, 1936 marks the second great flood in the Johnstown area. We know something about this flood. We were here when it happened! We had just begun an evangelistic meeting in the First Church on the previous Sunday. Suffice it to say that the flood put a stop to the services.

The first meeting of the church following the flood on April 5, was held in the Sunday School section of the church. 252 crowded into this section, for the rest of the church was covered with mud. The writer had the nerve to preach a Foreign Missionary sermon to the people whose homes had been flooded —whose church was so badly damaged that it required about $5000.00 to rehabilitate. Nevertheless, the people responded and gave $800.00 for Foreign Missions, even before they raised a cent to put their homes and the church back in order. I said, "Brethren, God will honor you for this Christian act."

The following figures are the evidence:

October 14th, 1941	$2748.00
January 13th, 1942	500.00
April 7th, 1942	752.00
May 19th, 1942	250.00
July 14, 1942	450.00
October 11th, 1942	2500.00
Total for last 15 months	$7200.00

Without drives, suppers, bazaars, etc. Just generous giving on the part of the members has made this record possible. During the last six years we have paid on the church debt over $21,000.00. Moreover, this has not been accomplished at the expense of our benevolent and Missionary needs of the fellowship. Our gifts to Missions have increased steadily. Last year the First Church gave the biggest Home Missionary offering and the biggest Foreign Mission offering in the history of the local church. We preach, teach and practice tithing. A Christian should be ashamed to pay less than 10 per cent of his income into the Lord's Work.

During the last six years 300 members have been added to the First Church. 242 by baptism, 33 by letter, 25 by relation. In addition to these 61 confessions and 28 reconsecrations to other churches. Total 389. For all of these blessings we praise Him. We ask an interest in your prayers for a great awakening in the First Church. We have invited Dr. V. C. Kelford to be our next Evangelist.

Yours in His Service,

—Archie L. Lynn, Pastor.

CAMDEN, OHIO

It has been a good year for our work; some disappointments, sure, but we try to remember that every cloud has a silver lining.

We have a very fine group of young folks, and we don't use any claptrap methods to hold them, either, for they love the Bible and old fashioned preaching.

Now just a word about our revival with Brother Bob Ashman from Peru, Ind. He came to us on October 12, and for two weeks he taught the children and preached every night. People were busy, but they responded very well during the entire time.

Bob's preaching was fundamental and inspiring and as a visible result, we have baptized eight, one of these a man 76 years old, who had never belonged to any church. There were also eight or ten rededications. People of other churches spoke well of Bob Ashman. Come again, Bob.

We closed our meetings with a communion service on Monday evening, not many were present but it was a spiritual feast.

Within the last year we have redecorated the interior and basement of the church. We are now considering holding a week's Bible study conference the week after Easter, if the Lord tarries.

I think it is time for the Brethren Church to carry on and preach as never before. I feel that the world is bleeding to death, and that it needs our message, —The Whole Bible, nothing more, nothing less—just Christ.

Pray for us that we may be in the center of God's will.

—S. Lowman, Pastor.

LA VERNE, CALIF.

At the La Verne Church business meeting, Oct. 13, it was decided to repair the church roof and finish painting the church, the latter being started by volunteer labor in the summer. Provision was also made to investigate about installing hearing aids. We decided to call Harry VonBruch and Johnny Hallet to help us in another revival starting Nov. 1.

Our pastor's resignation was read and accepted with much regret, he having been called to North Long Beach to begin there Jan. 1943. We are very sorry to lose Bro. Carter, for he has been faithful, and is worthy and able for a larger field of service, which he will have in his new pastorate.

La Verne seems to be over churched, but not over Christianized, there being four churches within a radius of two blocks. A Mexican Protestant and a Catholic are also established here.

Our communion, Oct. 9, was not very well attended, 83 being present, but was spiritual and enjoyed by all.

Tire rationing, defense work, and scarcity of laborers are all contributing factors for lessening attendance. Yet, we know that indifference and lack of faith are the big causes. Lord increase our faith.

Yours in Him.

—Mrs. L. H. Frantz.

COMPTON, CALIF.

The compton Church played host to the Second Annual Brethren Young People's Convention, Oct. 16, 17, 18. The crowds were good, and the messages excellent. There was much spiritual profit, eight public decisions being made. The speakers included two Presbyterians, Rev. Robert Munger and Dr. J. Vernon McGee, one Methodist (the old-fashioned variety), Dr. Don Householder, and two of our Brethren men, Dr. Kenneth Monroe, and Rev. Don Carter.

A B.S.L.V. dinner was held during the convention, with 60 present. The peak attendance at the convention was about 340, although there were only 202 registered delegates. Some came from as far as Modesto (about 350 miles), and San Diego (about 120 miles). Those who came from any distance were lodged by the host church, with the aid of neighboring Brethren churches. The convention was judged a success by all who attended.

—Ralph J. Colburn.

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

Yes, sir, we can expect it —Disagreement is certain. "I'm afraid I'll disagree with you," remarked Jonah as the whale swallowed him. "Perhaps," replied the whale, "but it won't be a circumstance to the way the theologians disagree when they come to discuss this incident."

How to get rid of Satan—A little Christian was once asked if Satan did not tempt her, and how she kept from doing wrong. Her answer was, "Yes, I know that Satan wants to get me; but when he knocks at the door of my heart, I just say, 'Jesus, won't You go to the door?' And when Satan sees Jesus he runs away." —Heidelberg Tea.

GREATER THAN GARIBALDI

During the dark days of the struggle for liberty in Italy, most of the people looked upon Garibaldi as their great deliverer. Prisoners, hurried away to loathsome dungeons, would be cheered as they passed along the streets by friends whispering in their ears: "Courage! Garibaldi is coming!" Men would steal out at night and chalk on the walls and pavements, "Garibaldi is coming." And when the news of his approach to a city was announced, they would shout, "Garibaldi is coming." He came, and when he came they regained their freedom, never to be enslaved again. But, Someone far greater than Garibaldi is coming to God's soldiers to rescue them. The Lord Jesus Christ is coming, and then there will be such happiness as we can scarcely even imagine. Do you belong to the Lord Jesus?—Selected.

A SERVICE FOR ALL

" . . . From whom all the body fitly framed and knit together through that which every joint supplieth."—Ephsians 4:16.

When people do not seem to fit into the organization of the church, they often give up trying to find a place because they think they cannot be used. But Paul says that the body of Christ is built up by "that which every joint supplieth." He undoubtedly means that every Christian has a work to do, just as each part of a physical body has a function to perform. The spiritual body of Christ, the church is a whole, a unit; but, it is measured off into many parts. So if some parts are not operating properly, the efficience of the whole will suffer.

God "gave some to be apostles; and some prophets; and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers," but He never intended to limit Himself by working only through these. There is a "working in . . . each several part." When the laymen realize that God wants and can use every single Christian for some outstanding work, then the church will begin to function with her full power. Let us therefore put our hope in this assurance of God; and then trust Him to fit us for the service He has created us to perform—that service which is as peculiarly ours as walking is the service of the feet, or seeing the service of the eves. For God hath "set the members each one of them in the body, even as it pleased Him."—La Verne, Calif. Bulletin.

The Apostle Paul said—"And no marvel; for Satan himself transformeth himself into an angel of light. Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness: whose end shall be according to their works."—II Cor. 11: 14-15. Brethren be mighty careful. Satan is a slick buyer. Before you know it, he will buy your spirituality for but a few cents and do it in the name of the church. Don't sell out at any price!

Volume 4 - No. 44 FOREIGN MISSIONS NUMBER November 28, 1942

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

By LOUIS S. BAUMAN, Editor

THE HELPLESS HEATHEN AND THE LAMB!

Recently, your missionary editor saw a picture which appealed at once to his fancy as a good picture to grace the cover of a missionary magazine; therefore, behold the front cover of this issue Isn't that a good picture of an utterly helpless little heathen? And isn't that a beautiful Lamb, "without spot or blemish?" A helpless little heathen and a Lamb that loves it—yes, that's the story that must be told!

"It must be told! It must be told!
That story must be told!
That sweet and tender story,
O Christian, must be told!"

THIS ISSUE

Ye readers, be thankful this day that you are not editors of foreign missionary numbers of weekly church magazines! When the time came that we must get off copy for this magazine to the printers, we did not have a single line of recent material from any missionary on either field. What would a missionary magazine look like without some word from at least one missionary? We waited, and we waited—we waited overtime. Telegrams began to arrive from the anxious offices where the work of publication is carried on. They called for copy. We had none.

Therefore, in desperation, and far away from our office and study, we sat down to do some writing ourselves. So we prepared the material herein regarding the "Congress on Prophecy," which we thought might be of interest. Then, we did what we have never done before, filled up some valuable space with the story of our eastern sojourn here and there among the churches, knowing that it would be of interest to some of our readers, at least. You will find that in our editorial columns.

Then, just as all was ready to forward to the publishers in Cleveland, O., here came a big package of mail, forwarded immediately by air mail from the Long Beach office, containing a lot of letters, articles, etc., from our African missionaries. It was written during three months of time, according to dates. Mail seems to accumulate somewhere between here and Africa, and is forwarded only when no soldiers are calling for the space. Well, blame the war! (What will be blame for our failures when this war is over? Maybe we won't have any then! No?) Anyhow, we are now sure of having plenty of good things from the fields for our next (January) issue. And, we are managing to slip into this issue one letter, and a few quotations from the letters. This will help to explain this issue—somewhat different from the usual.

READ! READ!

There is a private in the United States army, who is praying for his release that he may enter into Grace Theological Seminary, and complete his training for our African mission field. Being in the army was no choice of his. He has an article in this issue. In this article, he quotes his fiancee. Now, we wonder just who this "fiancee" may be? Well, we know. But it is such fun to guess. So we will let our readers guess. If you guess right, we may tell—next issue! But, we assure you meantime that the members of our Society are interested!

QUININE

Yes, quinine! We are hearing a lot about rubber these days. But even "Uncle Samuel" will tell you that if you are to win battles in the heated jungles of equatorial countries, there is something still more necessary than rubber. And the problem of obtaining it just now is even more difficult. That article, so vital to life itself in those countries is quinine. We spend hundreds of good missionary dollars for it. We must. God has graciously provided thus far. Foresight on the part of our missionaries has helped. We thought that an article we read recently in The Chicago Tribune would be of great interest to our readers at home and our missionaries abroad. You will find it on another page.

THE NEW YORK CONGRESS ON PROPHECY

On November 1st, there met in the famous old Calvary Baptist Church, in New York City, a gathering of more than ordinary importance in the Christian world. We believe that it deserves the attention that we are giving to it in this issue. Especially should the "Manifesto" that is going forth from that gathering be given to the Churches of the world, in a time of deepening apostacy. In this present hour, what hope has this despairing world of men apart from the hope of the return of the Lord of heaven and earth, to take over the reins of human government?

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Cleveland, Ohio, February 9, 1939, under the act of March 3, 1879

It was refreshing indeed to find so goodly a number of men, gathered from practically all the Protestant Churches, agreeing to attend such a Conference, and then agreeing with such sweet unanimity in the issuance of a statement of faith such as this "Manifesto" carries. It shows that the hope of our Lord's personal, bodily, visible return from heaven is a hope that throbs in the bosom of true believers throughout evangelical Christendom. In the "Call" that went forth for this Conference, the reason for it was stated in these words:

"Because confusion is increasing among the Lord's people with regard to trustworthy teaching on Prophecy, the time has come when a clear Biblical expression is desperately needed. To render a needed service to members of the Church of Christ, a group of believers, assisted and counseled by well-known and trusted Bible teachers, have called a 'Congress on Prophecy' in New York City, November 1-8, 1942, in Calvary Baptist Church, under the auspices of the American Board of Missions to the Jews."

Six sessions, in which six addresses were delivered during each day, saw this great Church, crowded at almost every session, to its capacity. Usually, the late comer was without a seat. They say that "They do not go to Church any more in New York." However, they went to this Church. The interest was intense. Popular demand is putting the addresses there given into book form. Just what the price of the volume will be when published has not yet been fully determined, but a pre-publication price was made at the Conference of $1.50. It will be issued by the Fleming H. Revell Co., of New York.

Upon the invitation of the Conference managers, the Editor journeyed from his California home to deliver two of the addresses that were given at this Conference. On Thursday morning, at 11:00 A.M. he spoke on the subject: "Is The Battle of Armageddon in John's Vision on the Isle of Patmos the Same as The Battle of Ezekiel 38 and 29?" On Saturday evening, the subject he discussed was: "Gog and Gomer Identified. What Will Be The Outcome of The Present War?"

"IS WAR SIN?"

On September 29, 1942, Lieutenant General Brehon B. Somervell, commanding general of the Service of Supply, spoke before the Grand Lodge of Missouri Masons in St. Louis. This high military official said:

"The Japanese and Nazis hate us and it is high time Americans start throwing some of that hate back in their faces. You can't kill a man you don't hate and fear and our number one job now is to kill Nazis and Japs."

Lieutenant General Somervell thus reveals the most horrible thing about war. The most horrible thing about war is not killing a man when a terrible necessity seems to demand it and the ancient law of God justifies it. The most terrible thing about war is that it instills into the hearts of men a hate that is utterly incompatable with the Spirit of Christ. We are not sure that "you can't kill a man you don't hate and fear." We are sure that many a sheriff has sprung the trap or pushed the button that killed without hating the person he killed. We do not believe that it is necessary to instill hatred into the hearts of the boys who are in the army in order to make them successful soldiers. Perhaps God has something to do with this thing we call "success;" and if America would only turn back to God she might learn that the pathway to victory is not necessarily the pathway whereon men "hate and fear."

ISN'T IT TRUE ?

Someone has said: "If more Christian mothers had given their sons as missionaries, they would not have to give them now as soldiers." Also, "Had we used the sword of the Spirit, we would not need the sword of the flesh."

A question that is being debated in religious circles today and upon which there is much disagreement, is, whether or not one can be a born-again Christian, dwelling within the perfect will of God, and yet enter combatant service in the army or even to enlist in the army at all. In the humble opinion of the editor, if ever a war was fought, the issues of which would justify a Christian entering into the combat, it is this war. However, we believe that in this war the born-again child of God is needed desperately to do that which there are no others to do—to maintain the high moral and spiritual values without which the war itself would not be worth winning.

Once upon a time the Lord called to "a certain man" and said "follow me," but he (the man) said, "Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father." Jesus said unto him, "Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God" (Luke 9:59,60).

Now, assuredly, no one would say that burying the dead is not a necessary work; or, that a man would step out of the will of God by burying the dead. Nevertheless, there are so many of the unregenerate who can do a perfect job of burying the dead. There are so few who are able to "go and preach the kingdom of God." Therefore, Jesus laid down the rule that in such a case, we should turn some essential work over to the unregenerate; while other essential work calls for all the resources of the regenerate. It would seem to us that the lesson is plain; and, this is the editor's view on this much debated question as to the duty of a true Christian in time of war. We have no criticism whatever of the unregenerate who have been ordained of God as "the ministers of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil" (Rom. 13:4). In other words, the editor is not a pacifist, declaring, as some Christians do, that "war is sin" no matter who may wage it. If war is ever and always sin, then what must we think of the Scriptural statement that one of these days our Lord with all His Saints is going to return from the heaven "and in righteousness, judge and make war" (Rev. 19:11). Whether or not those who wage war sin, it would appear to us depends.

However, we do not hesitate to say that if General Somervell's statement—"you can't kill a man you don't hate and fear"—is true, then we are compelled to say without hesitation that no born-again child of God in whose bosom dwells the Spirit of Christ, can take the sword.

"PACIFIST" and "NON-COMBATANT"

It seems to us that a great deal of confusion exists these days as to the terms, "pacifist" and "non-combatant." A "pacifist," according to Webster (late Unabriged Dictionary) is one who is "opposed to war or to the use of military force for any purpose; esp., an attitude of mind opposing all war, emphasizing the defects of military training and the cost of war, and advocating the settlement of international disputes by arbitration." A "non-combatant," according to this same Dictionary, is "A person whose military or naval duties do not include fighting, as a chaplain, a member of the medical or pay corps, etc.; also, any civilian."

After a study of those terms, we are very happy that our churches in our various Conferences have declared that they are not "pacifist," but "non-combatant." "An attitude of mind opposing all war" seems to us to be an "attitude of mind" that is opposed to the "ordinance of God" (Rom. 13:2). "Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon," said the God of Israel is "My servant." (Jer. 9:25). Even so, unregenerate nations are declared to be "God's ministers" (Rom. 13:6), who "bear not the sword in vain" (v. 4).

We take the position that, while Nebuchardnezzar may be the "servant of God" and unregenerate nations may become in that sense "ministers of God," yet their work is their own. It is not ours. Our mission, as the born-again "ministers of God," is to save men's lives for time and eternity, not to destroy them. If they are to be destroyed, let those that God has ordained for that work of judgment, destroy them. We have been ordained unto another task. And, in this, we refuse to believe that it is wrong to be sympathetic with those who have the other mission, since they are in another sense, also "ministers of God." But, Christian, keep your head in these trying days, and likewise keep to your God-given tasks. You, even more than they, are needed! The world has enough men to make wounds—even the necessary wounds. They who bind them up, in comparison, are few indeed.

THE EDITOR "ON THE WING"

"On the wing" we have indeed been! On Sunday morning, Oct. 2th, we preached to the usual great throng that gathers each Sunday at the Church of The Open Door, in Los Angeles.

That afternoon, an overflow crowd gathered for the dedication of the beautiful new First Brethren Church of Los Angeles (Bro. Ogden, pastor), and it was our privilege to deliver the address on that occasion. The First Church is to be congratulated, not only because they built this new Church with a very small amount of debt remaining thereon, but because for location and for the ground plot, it is second to none in the brotherhood. We predict great things for that Church since it has entered a more strategic territory.

That night, accompanied by Mrs. Bauman, we boarded a plane in Los Angeles, and at noon next day, our good brother and printer, Foye B. Miller, met us in Cleveland, O., and took us to his home. We were informed that an appointment had been made for us at the Tenth St., Church in Ashland. Not being our own boss any more, we meekly went along and had a fine time with the Northeast Ohio boys, all of whom were gathered there in some sort of a reunion. All we need to say about that Tenth Street Church is, if Mayes continues to spread it out much more, it will be spread all over Ashland! He just keeps adding to! Well, should he encompass the entire city one of these days, it would be a great victory for the Lord. Go ahead, Brother Mayes! We are for you!

Tuesday evening, Oct. 27th, we found ourselves in Ellet, Ohio, which happens to be a suburb of the city of Akron. Bro. Ray Gingrich is, as ever, wide awake. The Church, newly decorated and carpeted, we believe, was very inviting. Fine crowds, and great interest. One fine bunch of loyal brethren, if ever there were any!

From Akron, we proceeded to New York City, where we spent from Monday to Saturday night at the New York Congress on Prophecy.

Boarding a midnight train, we found ourselves in Buffalo, New York, for the Conference work programmed for us there by Dr. J. Palmer Muntz and The American Board of Missions to the Jews. Dr. Muntz, as you will recall, is the director of the great Winona Bible Conference. He is also the pastor of Cazenovia Park Baptist Church of Buffalo. We delivered four addresses in his Church, and darted out from Buffalo "between-times" to deliver three evening messages in other cities—one in the Philpott Tabernacle at Hamilton, Ont., and one at the First Baptist Church in Corning, N. Y., and the final message in "those parts" at the Brighton Comunity Church, in Rochester, Rev. Dean S. Bradford, pastor. Great Conferences in all these places, under the direction of Dr. Jos. H. Cohn, of the American Board of Missions to The Jews. Never have we been so royally received anywhere as we were by these New Yorkers.

On the eve of our birthday (Which one? Now! Never mind!), in Dr. Muntz' Church, we were presented with a great basket of beautiful roses, as we walked upon the pulpit platform, with the familiar "Happy Birthday to you!" That night—and how it did snow!—We proceeded to Dr. Muntz' home, where Mrs. Muntz had everything ready,—the birthday cake and all the trimmings—and with some of their fine friends, we continued to celebrate. A box containing three gorgeous neckties came to us from Dr. and Mrs. Muntz. They almost outshine—if that were possible—those given to me by Mrs. B. W. Coon, our chorister, in Long Beach. And everybody who knows, knows that "thats' sumpin'!" As if that were not enough, Dr. and Mrs. Muntz also gave us a box of fine handkerchiefs, thinking that a Californian would be needing them in that kind of weather. And, as if that were not enough, the next day, twenty-eight pastors from Buffalo and from out-of-town, gave us a reception at a noon-day lunch in the rooms of the Y.M.C.A. Again, the cake and the candles. But, in this case, those preachers ate all the cake! We gave a message there.

Well, now, folks, that fine birthday treatment about knocked all the previous superstitions that we had accumulated about the No. 13 out of us. For, 'was that birthday not on Friday, the 13th, and just 13 days before Thanksgiving, on which date the two figures necessary to state our age, added together made just 13? Dr. and Mrs. Muntz, in kindness, even placed three different numbers on that box of neckties in beautiful lettering, namely, "49," "58," and "67!" Oh, well, they forgot that 7 & 6, as well as 8 & 5 also make 13! But who says 13 is an unlucky number? Not we—no more!

Sunday morning, November 15th, found us ready for the great day in the "City of Brotherly Love." And "brotherly love" it was, so far as the kindness of the folks in that Church proved to be—then, and as always through the years. We had a unique privilege. It was cornerstone laying at the new church there. Did not we lay the cornerstone at the building of the Church there at Tenth and Dauphin—38 years ago? Did not our own little three year old son, Glenn, with those tiny hands that soon were to be folded "pale o'er his breast," take the various articles and lay them in that stone Tears thus mingled with joy in the privilege that was ours. We shall never forget the kindness of Brother A. V. Kimmell in bringing us to his Church on that day for the occasion. Of it, Bro. Kimmell probably will be writing, so we shall not say more here.

We delivered two messages, morning and evening, besides speaking at the cornerstone laying in the afternoon. The change of location for the First Church there is a wise undertaking. Sentiment might have decreed otherwise, but not wisdom. We predict great things for this Church, at its new location. A wonderful site, with plenty of room for spreading the tent. A great, fast-growing, beautiful neighborhood in a great city, and a real and needed message for it—The First Brethren Church of Philadelphia will always spell "opportunity" for any pastor. Not forgetting that it costs money to travel, and that preachers still eat bread and butter, they sent us on our way rejoicing.

We opened up a week of prophetic Conference on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17th, at Hagerstown, Maryland —in the beautiful new Grace Brethren Church, Rev. L. L. Grubb, pastor. And what a week! That Church holds a lot of folks. The builders had a vision. We could scarcely believe that it is still a mere infant—one of our Mission Churches. On the last night, it was filled to the full. Brother Grubb told us that we had the honor of preaching to the first congregation that filled the entire auditorium space. Well, we esteemed it an honor. Great things are ahead for that Church, unless we are exceedingly poor in visualizing the future. Brother Grubb and his good wife, who, by the way was formerly one of our Long Beach (Calif.) girls, are greatly loved, and are thoroughly alive (radio et al.) to the tasks and opportunities that are theirs.

We just had to think, as we viewed the work here, that if all our Churches could view this and other of our Home Mission churches, the success of the Thanksgiving Day Offering would be assured. These home missions boys are live wires. Everywhere we have been, and have learned of their work, we have been made to rejoice. If the work goes on as it is doing, a great future is ahead in these apostate days for the Church that continues to be faithful until the Lord comes and for the old-time Gospel of salvation by grace that He commanded us to proclaim. Though but a Mission Church as yet, yet that crowd on the last evening presented us with the largest "love offering" we have ever received from a Brethren Church for a like period of service. Sure we say—"God bless 'em!" Who said that the 13 days following Friday the 13th at which time we were 49, or maybe 58, or maybe 67, or maybe 76, or maybe 85 years old, would be unlucky?

O, by the way, we ought to mention here that while we were at Hagerstown, we were royally entertained in the country home of sister Elizabeth Miller. A write-up of that home would be worth reading, but we are already taking up too much space with this story of itinerating in the east. Sufficient it is to say that in this home. Mrs. Bauman and I had the unique experience of sleeping with our heads in Pennsylvania, and our feet in Maryland!! (Too bad for Maryland!) But, it is a fact, the Mason-Dixon line, famous in American history, ran right through the middle of our anatomies as we slept in that bed. Wonder what a Pennsylvania "cop" would have done had he come there to arrest us and take us before the judge? How could a Pennsylvania "cop" legally take us, when our feet were in Maryland ground? Huh? It may surprise even Ripley, but everytime we went up stairs or down, we crossed the Mason-Dixon—Maryland-Pennsylvania state line!

Well, Monday night, the 23rd, being "rest night," and since we are growing so old and so fast, we rested by driving through a rain, down to Winchester, Va., forty-five miles away, where we preached to a goodly crowd for two and a half hours—minus ten minutes of opening service. We are sorry we could not continue longer, but we had to get some sleep before our good brother, the pastor there, Rev. Paul Dick, another live home missions' pastor, returned us to the place of our next engagement,—at Waynesboro, Pa.

As we write, we are preaching in the church of Bro. Robert Crees. Again, memories come flocking in upon us. Was not "Eddie" Crees, the father of this successful young pastor, who has done a great work here in Waynesboro, our chorister for nine long (no, short) years in the old Tenth and Dauphin St., Church in Philadelphia Did we not perform the marriage ceremony for which Brother Robert Crees ought to be thankful on this Thanksgiving Day as we write in his home? If he doesn't thank us for that today, he lacks the Christian virtue of gratitude! Especially so, since most folks back in those days in Philadelphia had about given up hopes that "Eddie" Crees ever would fall in love and take unto himself a wife. Don't you remember—you old Philadelphians? Sure you do! Seems to us now that that figure "49" must not be it!

Well, we are starting out as if for a fine week here in Waynesboro, to which point we were sent more years ago than we like to tell, by the Pennsylvania District Mission Board to conduct an evangelistic campaign in a hall, and thus to start a new mission. We are happy that we could thus have a part in this splendid Church.

From this place, we expect to go to a famous old Presbyterian Church in New Concord, Ohio, for a three-day Conference—our second Conference with them. This place has given birth to several great names. It is the old home of Dr. W. G. Moorehead, founder of Xenia Seminary.

Then, we are rather expecting to answer a call from Berne, Indiana—the best country Church we have ever known,—not the largest, but the best. "Bill" Schaffer is one of those fellows who will not take "No" for an answer. That's how he got that good wife of his!

Then, we must answer a call to duty, as the Secretary-Treasurer of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church, and assist in the defense of a will out in Indiana, where a goodly sum of money was left to "The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church" by one of the most loyal "Grace Brethren" men that ever lived; and, it seems there are those dishonest enough to attempt to thwart his will Brother Johansen would "turn over in his grave," as they say, were this will to be broken. Everybody who knew Brother Johansen must know that he meant his money to go to our foreign missionary society; but, that does not seem to make any difference with some folks. Honor is running at low ebb in some quarters of the religious world these days. Perhaps it is just the spirit of the times. Well, God still lives and reigns. The Churches will be informed fully as to the outcome of this will case. We shall see whether or not "justice has fled the earth."

From Indiana, we shall be returning back to the dear old Church in Long Beach—"Home, Sweet Home." And, thank you, all you good folks here in the east, who have been so kind to me and Retta Virginia!

New York Congress On Prophecy

(Meeting on November 1 to 8, 1942, in the Calvary Baptist Church, 123 W. 57th St., New York City)

AFFIRMATION

Alarming catastrophe has overtaken the world. Nations are in confusion. The age-old hatred against the Jews has again been revived, and has shocked civilization with its revolting manifestations overseas; even in our own land of historic freedom and tolerance it has been given encouragement to the extent that some elements of the Christian Church have been disturbed thereby. Within the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ there has seemed an indifference to God's prophetic Word for these days; and in places where such prophetic Word is being presented to the people, it is often used ignorantly, or for exploitation.

It has seemed good, therefore, and indeed imperative, in this critical world situation, that a gathering of trusted Bible teachers, pastors and other Christian workers should be called together to consider these matters. Accordingly, in the Lord's providence, the American Board of Missions to the Jews undertook to assemble a national Congress on Prophecy, which met in Calvary Baptist Church in New York City, from November 1st to 8th, 1942.

As a result of these days of heart searching and the earnest seeking of God's mind, we are led now humbly to affirm and declare to the Church of God, and to all the saints before whom these writings will come, the following solemn convictions:—

1. AS TO THE CHURCH. We believe that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are the Word of God, verbally inspired, infallible and inerrant in the original writings; that God's final and complete revelation of Himself is in His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, Who by His substitutionary death on Calvary, purchased our redemption, as attested by His bodily resurrection; that the Church is the elect body of all regenerated believers, and is the herald of divine Truth. We re-affirm our belief that the true hope of the Church is to meet the Lord in the air at His coming for the saints, and that this coming is imminent, and will occur before the beginning of the 70th week of Daniel's prophecy of the Seventy weeks; that the return of the Lord Jesus Christ (Israel's Messiah) with His saints, to establish His Kingdom on the earth, will occur immediately after the fulfillment of the events included in the above-mentioned 70th week. We believe that this 70th week is identical with the seven years known as The Tribulation. Concerning anti-Christ, we believe that he will not be revealed until after the rapture of the Church.

2. AS TO THE WORLD: We believe that the Kingdom reign of Christ on earth will be a period of a thousand years of righteous government, during which period Jerusalem will be the governmental center of the earth. After the Rapture of the Church there will arise, within the 70th week of Daniel, the ten-kingdom confederation of Gentile powers, that this confederacy will gain control of Palestine in a combined political and ecclesiastical domination; and that this Confederacy will then be destroyed by the return of the Lord Jesus Christ to establish the Kingdom reign. We believe that the invasion of Palestine by Gog and Magog (Ezkiel 38 and 39) which is commonly designated as the great Northern Confederacy, will take place BEFORE the millennium; and that the Gog and Magog battle of Revelation 20 is distinctly an event following the millennial age. The Gog and Magog of Ezekiel 38 and 39, being names of territories and peoples, are limited by geographical boundaries: while the Gog and Magog of Revelation 20 are descriptive names which designate the world-wide extent of Satan's final rebellion against God, and warfare against His Chosen people.

3. AS TO ISRAEL: We believe, as stated by the sainted Bishop Ryle, "that the Jews shall ultimately be gathered again as a separate nation, restored to their own land, and converted to the faith of Christ." We believe that God has used Israel as His channel of revelation, and that He purposes that in the age to come redeemed Israel shall be His agency through whom will flow plenary blessings of the Messiah's reign to the nations of the world. We believe that even though Israel nationally rejected the Lord Jesus Christ as Messiah, she is still bound to God nationally by covenant ties, but that individually, any Jew has the same right and privilege now as does any Gentile, to salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and that the Church has a supreme obligation to press upon the hearts of individual Jews the message of the Gospel. We regard the need for such ministry as imperative because of Israel's special suffering.

4. AS TO ANTI-SEMITISM: We believe that anti-Semitism in its present vicious world-wide manifestation, is incompatible with both the letter and the spirit of the Gospel, and is to be shunned and guarded against by all who sincerely love our Lord Jesus Christ: that to do kindness and to show mercy to the seed of Abraham is a direct Christian obligation.

NOW, THEREFORE, we, in solemn gathering assembled, express our united adoration for the Saviour whose testimony is the spirit of Prophecy. "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing." We also exhort our fellow believers in Christ to holy living and consecrated Christian service, holding both to be obligatory to the faith we here affirm, and believing that the teaching of prophetic truth is valueless unless it produces in the lives of the Lord's people new and increasing devotion to Him and to His cause.

> "Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honor and glory for ever and ever. Amen."

RESOLVED: That this Affirmation be the reasoned statement of this group, and that it be read to the Congress on Prophecy in session Friday night, November 6, 1942.

A Chinese applied for the position of cook in an American family which belonged to a fashionable church.

The lady asked him: "Do you drink whisky?"

"No, I Clistian man."

"Do you play cards?"

"No, I Clistian man."

He was engaged, and was found honest and capable. By and by the lady gave a party, during which the wine flowed in abundance, and cards were played for high stakes. John did his part acceptably, but the next morning he appeared before his mistress.

"I want to go."

"Why, what is the matter?"

"I Clistian man—I told you so before. No heathen. No workee for heathen!"

The Quinine Cartel

(From THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, September 6, 1942)

After the war, when the future of colonial areas is being reviewed from the perspective of past experience, the quinine cartel will deserve fully as much attention as is given the rubber cartel. Rep. Bertrand Gearhart of California recently discussed the subject in the house. He said that the story of quinine parallels the story of rubber almost word for word. "It is the story," he said, "of the transfer of a great natural monopoly from the western to the eastern hemisphere, and its transformation from a monopoly based entirely on geography to a monopoly based upon agricultural science and economic control."

Quinine is the specific for malaria. In our own country 4 million people annually are prostrated by malaria. Malaria is particularly a disease of hot countries. Some 800 million of the earth's inhabitants are stricken each year, 100 million of them in India, and the world mortality rate is almost 10 per cent. Without the protection of quinine, armies cannot fight in the malarial regions.

Malarial fever has been responsible for the breakdown of many military campaigns. Napoleon I. failed to reconquer the republic of Haiti when his army of 8,000 French veterans became so riddled with malaria in a few weeks that they were easily overcome by the ill armed and unorganized Haitians. During the Spanish-American war in Cuba and Puerto Rico and in the Philippine insurrection malaria incapacitated about four American soldiers to every one incapacitated by enemy action. In the battle of Bataan there were disturbing reports that our quinine reserves either were lost or ran out and that this was a factor in Japan's victory.

Quinine is made from the bark of the cinchona tree, originally found in the Andes mountains section of Peru and Bolivia. How it found its way to the East Indies is almost the same story as the transplanting of rubber, which originally grew in the rain forests of the Amazon basin. In 1876, instigated by the government of British India, a British subject succeeded in smuggling seeds of the hevea tree out of Brazil. The great rubber plantations of Malaya and the Dutch islands eventually supplanted South American production, and since 1934 a cartel of producers representing 98 per cent of the world's rubber has decided who should have it and at what price.

Dutch and British horticulturists also succeeded in transferring the cinchona tree to far eastern colonies, again supplanting the original producing areas in this hemisphere. Rep. Gearhart asserts that the forerunners of the cartel that existed up to the Japanese seizure of Java, which produces 95 per cent of the world's quinine, was a group of British-French-Dutch-German quinine factories whose "aims were the epitome of commercial selfishness, nothing less than the exploitation of the colonial producers."

With the end of the first World war, the Dutch interests, by their neutrality, seized the opportunity to control both the source of raw materials and the means of manufacure. The quinine trust, known as the Kina Bureau, was established about 1920 under 100 per cent Dutch control. Rep. Gearhart describes it as a vertical corporation, controlling every phase of the production and marketing of quinine from the ground up to the corner drug store.

"Quinine," he states, "has never been cheap under the Kina Bureau control. Prices were rigidly maintained and slowly raised. Incipient competition, based upon the gathering of wild South American bark or the development of Latin American cinchona plantations, was ruthlessly stifled by preclusive purchasing, subterranean political activity, and indirect economic pressure upon independent dealers. These actions were accomplished by a flood of propaganda purporting to show the immense humanitarian and economic benefits produced by the activities of the monopoly."

A department of justice consent decree obtained in 1928 against the quinine cartel failed, according to Rep. Gearhart, to end these abuses. Altho our government was more foresighted in piling up stocks of quinine than of rubber, Rep. Gearhrat asserts that our supply is inadequate for both civilian and military needs, and we are compelled to depend on the synthetic antimalarial medicines, atabrine and plasmochin, patents for which were seized by the government earlier this year from the German chemical trust, I. G. Farben. Both synthetics are made from benzine.

Farben, Rep. Gearhart said, deliberately stifled advance or improvements in the materials or processes covered by the patents, realizing that control of the antimalarial medicines was of enormous strategic significance involving as it does the ability to cure and control one of the great destroyers of the race. Possessions of this control conveys to the owner an economic power out of all proportion to the money involved, and, if it were complete, would mean that hostile armies could not even enter certain areas of the globe.

Rep. Gearhart's analysis of the dangerous power wielded by the quinine cartel is a reminder that these world monopolies of strategic natural products constantly threaten American interests and, in fact, have done them irremediable damage. Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones flatly charged that the rubber cartel failed to ship the rubber America wanted in 1940 and 1941 because it did not want to build up a stockpile that would depress prices after the war. The resultant shortage has left us with a grave problem that we are now frantically trying to solve.

We were not sufficiently mindful before the war of the instability of supply or the capricious distribution of monopoly products to attempt to build up synthetic replacements to safeguard ourselves against shortages or complete deprivation. It appears that the interests of the Malayan and East Indian rubber barons, if they are not still holding up synthetic production, are to be given weight in future decisions as to whether we are to retain our self-sufficiency by preserving our synthetic rubber industry after the war. The possibility cannot be ruled out that similar considerations are hampering the development of synthetic antimalarial medicines on a scale sufficient to make us independent of the cartel.

Missionary Training via the Army

By PVT. BENJAMIN A. HAMILTON, JR.

Quite often the Lord visits us at times and in places seemingly inconsistent with our life aims. He came to Daniel in the furnace, to David while tending sheep, to Paul while en route to Damascus, and . . . even to the writer while in the army.

There is nothing unique about the Lord visiting young soldiers. Thousands, through the spiritual guidance of chaplains, have become His followers while in the army. But, at first, it might seem incompatible for the Lord to send a young man planning on serving Christ in Africa, to the army to receive instructions for such service. For should not the would-be missionary receive his training in a seminary?

Sometimes the Lord's servants must learn His will the hard way. Jonah didn't want to go to Nineveh; and, Paul wanted to go to Asia, when the urgent call for help in Macedonia came. Similarly, the writer, having been convinced it was the Lord's wish to have him someday go to Africa, was bound and determined to take care of preliminary preparations hurriedly and . . . in his way. But the Lord wanted the preparation for service in the Dark Continent done His way!

The first few days we were in the army, it was difficult to see just how this would play any role in preparing for serving Him overseas. One day in our company at San Francisco, we met a staunch young Christian who found great joy in reading his Bible faithfully each day. As our acquaintance became firmer, we found great joy in sharing our morning devotionals together. Watching him in his daily tasks, we found the secret of what made him a buoyant Christian.

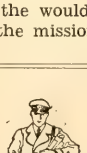
He seemed to be putting into effect the encouraging advice contained in Ecclesiastes 3:1, 10-14. Right here was our first piece of missionary training. For the successful servant of Christ must early learn that to "everything there is a season." No matter what the missionary believes must be done at the moment, he must be sure that his work is being done at the time correctly chosen by God.

Army life is not romantic. It is too often drably discouraging. Yet, Ecclesiastes says: "He hath made everything beautiful in his time . . . " Frequently we become encrusted with the grimy boredom of daily drilling, the monotony of obeying orders seemingly unreasonable at times, and maybe we wonder if indeed the Lord is with us.

Here is another instance, then, of the way the army can be a school for the would-be missionary. Time in and time out on the mission field, the servant of the Lord will become fatigued from the rugged duties that are his. Crisis will arise which may disturb his customary pattern of existence and make him wonder if a mist is separating him from the Lord.

Oswald Chambers once wrote: "Jesus says there are times when your Father will appear as if He were an unnatural father, as if He were callous and indifferent, but remember He is not; I have told you—'Everyone that asketh receiveth.' If there is a shadow on the face of the Father just now, hang onto it that He will ultimately give His clear revealing and justify Himself in all that He permitted." The missionary-to-be must not be foiled by such shadows!

The army has repeatedly taught us the necessity of clinging to Him in absolute faith even when selfish thoughtlessness, allowed His inspiring vision to become eclipsed by the humdrum of daily routine. We cannot be a true missionary until we can see Christ through the darkness of disappointing surroundings. When we become discouraged in our daily work, as was Habakkuk (Habakkuk 1:2,3), can we, like that prophet, still offer a prayer of thanksgiving unto our Father for His generosity with the same sincere spirit of gratitude that Habakkuk did? (cf. Habakkuk ch. 3).



Sometimes our Lord appreciates our feeble efforts to serve Him so very much that He blesses us more abundantly than we deserve. That has been outstandingly true during our army sojourn. He has placed us in positions of trust and has allowed us to gain the respect of our superiors. But we must be careful that we do not misappropriate His blessings. They are not ours to retain, for such acts of divine graciousness are to be shared with others and are but the impetus to spur us unto our very best for Him.

Recall how the Lord had blessed David, during his reign, richly and lavishly. Remember how because of this, David, through a gradually developed egocentric selfishness, began to think he was so favored by the Lord that anything he did would be approved. We recall that in the end David was faced with a bitter experience so staggering that he had to pour out his heart in tragic remorse (Psalm 51) before being right with the Lord.

Very recently the writer had a similar type of experience. The Lord's constant generosity had caused us to become inwardly egotistical, believing that everything we did automatically received divine approbation. As our inner thoughts became centered on our complacency, our smugness revealed itself through the quality of the work. Often we had prayed that the Lord would put us to the test to see if we were really abiding with His will. At last He answered our prayer and provided the requested test.

So enormous had our self-satisfaction become that our colleagues began making unpleasant inferences regarding our work and its quality. Pinned down to definite answers, they would evade the issue. Here at last the Lord was calling to me. Warning me that somewhere we had failed to learn a lesson vital to being a missionary.

Our fiancee had said: "We have to to face things as they are on the mission field. Discouragements, misunderstandings . . . all come on the field but we have to rise above them and use them as chariots to ride to victory." In our thinking, regarding our downfall ,came the query: What would the Lord's disciples

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

The churches of the Southern California District are already planning for a midwinter conference sometime in January or February. Pray that it might be well attended in spite of the disadvantages of these times, for we know that such fellowship adds much to our spiritual life.

Rev. Donald Carter, who has ministered to the La-Verne, Calif. Church for the past four years, has accepted the call to serve as pastor of the Second Brethren Church of Long Beach.

Word has just been received that after many disappointing delays the Russell Williams have arrived safely in Africa. We can truly thank God for this answer to prayer.

Isolated but not idle! This can be said of many of our brethren, but we want to tell you about one in particular, R. F. Campbell, who is conducting a Bible School every Sunday morning at Talbot, Calif. It seems that the Methodist Church terminated their work in that city, but turned their building over to Brother Campbell for his services.

The Johnstown, Pa. Church, Archie L. Lynn, pastor, is certainly future-minded. They are going to start a Bible study course; and probably by the time you read this they are well on their way. An evangelistic meeting has also been scheduled for Jan. 31,, 1943 with Dr. V. C. Kelford.

or apostles do when faced with criticism? Then we recalled that when Isaiah realized he had failed the Lord he acknowledged his failure (Isaiah 6:5) and the Lord forgave and cleansed Isaiah (Isaiah 6:7). Thus once again our gracious heavenly Father gave us a practical lesson on how to be a missionary. Has taught us the absolute necessity of complete humility and that he who will be a loyal missionary must be strong in the face of critical persecution, for "Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake; for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" (Matthew 5:10).

The missionary who would bring the glad tidings of salvation through His shed blood to those untouched by His redeeming grace, must have a thorough understanding of Christ's great teachings and of the inspirational messages within the Bible. These and similarly necessary teachings, we will someday receive at Grace Seminary when peace is restored to the earth and current carnage ceases.

For the present, we most humbly thank the Lord that though we bide amide scenes that displease Him, still He can help us to use our day to day work and living as lessons in being a missionary. For though the army may be a paradoxical school for missionaries, yet, if while learning to be an American soldier we will be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus, as Paul admonished Timothy, then can he make us the kind of soldier of the Cross Paul described to the Ephesians.

The following is part of a letter from one of our brethren in our country's service:

Gentlemen and Brethren in Christ:—

As a recent addition to Uncle Sam's Navy I am endeavoring to let His light shine through me to the glory of His precious name. The absence of sound Christian fellowship makes it important that as much fundamental literature as possible be placed in the hands of those who would carry the banner of the cross into the sin and darkness that naturally pervades the armed forces, therefore, I would like to have copies of the Herald forwarded to me regularly. Believers are few and it becomes a visible effort to be mindful of His presence continually. I'm happy that I still feast on the LIVING WORD daily as well as the WRITTEN WORD—but I am trying to guard against the enemy by buckling the armor NOW.—(Eph. 6).

Should you know of any places or persons to whom or with whom I might fellowship—especially on my off week-ends—in the vicinity of Geneva, N. Y., I would be pleased to know of them. I still believe that it is essential to "forsake not the assembling of ourselves together."

My address is recorded below and please remember we "vessels" who are trying to lead "rudderless derelicts" to the Captain of our Salvation—even our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ—Hallelujah, what a Savior.

Looking for His Appearing,

—"Art" Collins.

His address is—Arthur F. Collins Phm. 3/c, US Naval Training Station, Bldg. F-26, Sampson N.Y., Via Geneva, N.Y.

Need we say more? We would like to receive more letters from our boys in service, parts of which will be published from time to time. Don't forget to pray for them continually.

SUPPOSE WE TALKED

— — — — LESS

If all that we say in a single day,
With never a word left out,
Were printed each night in clear black and white,
'Twould prove queer reading, no doubt.
And then just suppose, ere our eyes we could close,
We must read the whole record through;
Then wouldn't we sigh, and wouldn't we try
A great deal less talking to do?
And I more than half think, that many a kink
Would be smoother in life's tangled thread,
If half that we say in a single day
Were left forever unsaid!

PREACHERS TAKE NOTE

Sermons are mere tools; and the business you have in mind is not making sermons or preaching sermons—it is saving men.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A Letter From the Fosters

Bouca par Bangui, A.E.F.,

July 10, 1942.

Dear Friends in the Lord:

"Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared."—Exo. 23:20.

This morning our hearts are singing the "Glory Song." We are overflowing with praise. Do you wonder Why? Because we have just received a wire from Bro. Jobson from Matadi, that they have arrived safely at that port.

How good the Lord has been to us as a Mission. Even though some of our co-laborers have been called upon to pass through severe trials and hardships in their efforts to reach Africa; yet the Lord has spared and protected them. So, that to date, i.e. since the beginning of the war, the Lord has brought eight of our number safely to the Field. Even though there have been many dangers in and on the deep, deep sea; yet the Lord has brought them through victoriously. We praise and praise Him again and again for these mercies and blessings.

Then, too, we have word from home that Bro. and Sister Williams are soon to be on their way here, and Bro. and Sister Hoyt are soon to follow. No one at home can possibly know how very, very much these workers are needed. Even when we tell you that Bekoro Station has been without resident missionaries for a year and a half; you cannot realize the tragedy of it. Of course the station remains, but the work and the workers have suffered.

Batangafo, with its large population, has never had a resident missionary. Even though the church has carried on, even after their leader fell into the snare of the devil; yet, the work has suffered.

Then when we consider Bassai and Bellevue that have been manned by our brave women missionaries for more than a year, and Bassai four times that long. We realize that even though these workers have been very efficient in their work, yet we know that our church is not advanced far enough to be left in the hands of the native pastors. The missionary pastor is still needed. We do not in any way discredit the work of those who have served so faithfully; but, the shortage of men on the field has brought difficulties to the church. We include Batangafo in this, for we have not been able to be with them enough to lead them to be the Indigenous Church that we want them to be. They cannot yet stand alone with only a native pastor. We do not want to infer that missionary pastors have not visited the stations mentioned, but we are speaking about resident pastors.

Perhaps it will help you to realize how the work suffers when there are only two people on a station, when we tell you that from the first of the year to the middle of May, we spent about six weeks at Bouca. We visited all the chapel points in our district as well as other villages. Even at that we were not able to visit the chapels in the Batangafo district. Though we had all the workers together for a conference and contacted most of the chiefs in whose villages the workers are located. Yet even that is not the same as actually visiting with the people in order to encourage the saved in the "New Way" and try to lead the sinners into It.

Through Dr. Gribble's "Home Going," Sister Kennedy was called from a very needy place at Bozoum in order to stay with and help Miss Bickel. We know that the Lord foresaw this need when He almost literally thrust her forth bodily, even before she should have returned. Though her body was not as strong as it should have been, yet she has already filled two very important gaps. The same is true of Miss Byron. Had these two not been able to come when they did, it would have left Miss Myers alone at Bassai and Miss Bickel at Bellevue.

With Bro. and Sister Jobson returning, it permits Bro. and Sister Kliever to return to Bekoro again.

In spite of all the handicaps; we believe that much has been accomplished. In every field Bible Conferences have been held, chapels and the workers have been visited, converts have been baptized, Love Feasts have been held, church palavers have been heard, and, at least in a measure solved, couples have been united in marriage, others reunited, babies have been dedicated, sinners won to the Lord, and in some cases believers laid into "Old Mother Earth" until the "Great Day." Sick bodies have been ministered to and healed, classes held for young and old, buildings have been kept in repair, others in the process of building, stations have been kept clean and plantations planted, and many other details taken care of that would fill a book to mention them all. In the midst of all this, one of our number was "Called away," and others have been laid aside for a season. But through it all, Jehovah-jireh has provided for every need; no matter whether it has been strength for the daily tasks or our material needs. He has been faithful!

We appreciate the prayers of all of you interested in the work of the Lord. They have strengthened and sustained us; therefore keep on praying. The forces of evil are working overtime on every hand. It is a real spiritual warfare that we are engaged in, and only prayer is the overcoming force that will give victory.

We pray the Lord's sustaining grace upon each one of you. For we realize that not all the warfare is in Africa. May He bless, sustain and keep you in all the difficulties that face day by day.

As ever yours for Africa,

—Joseph H. and Rose Foster.

Foreign Missionary Editor's Mail Box

Superintendent Orville D. Jobson, Africa, under date of August 10th, 1942, writes:

"To say that we are happy to be back is putting it mildly. When up to Bassai the other day, I had a long walk around the Station, and felt like singing, "How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood." Here at Bozoum the little mud office building is still standing, and I am surrounded again by my books and files, ready for the responsibility of ministry and oversight as the Lord directs. It is a comfortable feeling to be settled after so many months of travel. Several months ago this place seemed a long way off, and I often wondered if we would see it again before the war ends. . . .

"We arrived at Bangui on the 17th, several days later than schedule. We had a visit with the Tabers, and cared for several business items before leaving for the Station. Jake was there to meet us in the Mission Truck. On the way to Bozoum we stopped at Yaloke a couple nights. From all reports there Harold is getting under the responsibility of the work in a very encouraging manner. We arrived Bozoum on the 23rd. The following day we went on to Bassai for two days. Immediately afterwards we visited Bellevue and Bouca. . . .

"The transfer of the Klievers to Bellevue is for the definite purpose of giving the Native Workers and the Church there the advantage of Bible Conferences and spiritual oversight. . . . The appointment is temporary. Definite plans for the workers will be made at the Field Council meeting, which we may hold during the Christmas season this year.

"The matter of furloughs is no longer a question among the missionaries, and even a rest in South Africa is not considered for the present. I am much encouraged by the desires of all to put the Lord's work first, even before the needs of the body."

Mrs. Joseph H. Foster, one of our faithful missionaries stationed at Bouca, F. E. Africa, under date of August 8, 1942, writes a personal letter to the editor, showing forth the fine missionary spirit of sacrifice and devotion that is so inherent in every true missionary's breast. We pray that missionaries now arriving and (we have faith to believe will ere long arrive on the field) will relieve these overtime missionaries for their much needed furloughs. Earnestly pray to this end!

"We feel, Brother Bauman, that four years is long enough for anyone to stay in the tropics at one time. After one has endured this climate with quinine and everything else included in the tropics, one is really ready physically for a change. But things and conditions are so abnormal that we believe the Lord is giving us 'special' strength to stay until we can leave without the work suffering.

"Were we to leave just now, Bouca would be left without a missionary, and the church is not yet ready for that. It would mean the closing down of everything. Though the church and chapels might go on functioning, yet the work would suffer. Therefore we believe the Lord has given us better health this year than we have had for some time. Even were Brother and Sister Williams to arrive right now, it would surely take until the end of the year to get the language and get accustomed to the work. So as long as the Lord continues to give us the needed strength, we will remain. But just as soon as the way opens that the work will be cared for properly, we will most assuredly 'hie' away.

"Our desire is to go home, because my father is very old and he longs to see us once more. Now we just received word that my sister's husband has gone to be with the Lord, and she too is most anxious to see us. Then too, I would like to have one more opportunity to try to win some of those that are so near to us to the Lord. If we go somewhere in Africa, we will most naturally be expected to stay at least several years longer on the field before we have furlough in America. We need not tell you that traveling in Africa is expensive. So, taking everything into consideration, we feel led to stay where we are for the present. But we need the prayers of the Lord's people to continue to sustain us."

Remember

"All the powers of evil seek to hinder us in prayer. Prayer is a conflict with opposing forces. It needs the whole heart and all our strength."

Mrs. Marguerite Gribble-Dunning, in a letter just received as we go to press, though dated June 6, 1942, writes things of interest to us all. We quote some:

"I have had a lovely letter from Mr. H. Wakelin Coxill. He said 'Your mother was one of the most outstanding missionaries of Africa, and her passing is a loss to us all. But if this is true, it is because her life was a help and a blessing to us all, and her sweet and gracious influence will live on. . . . !

"In going over her letters, I've been amazed at the number of 'famous' people who called her a dear friend and even asked her advice. The mission had some lovely letters from different French officials saying the most gracious things you can imagine about Mother. Indeed the Lord favored me!

"Another touching tribute just came to me this morning. Andre, her chauffeur, has a daughter two weeks old. He named her Florence. He dearly loved Mother, and she prayed for him nearly as much as for us. I believe that is the reason he has been so faithful despite the fact that he has a snip of a wife that no one else would have tolerated. I have tried to take over the burden of prayer concerning him and his wife, at least, that Mother laid down. He would make an A-1 evangelist, has a real zeal,—but his wife! He is well educated, can type English, speaks as good French, if not better than any of our natives, is an excellent mechanic, and does good translation of the Word. Mother has left an example in him of what she said to me on her last visit here, when I was asking her advice about my 'boys.' 'Remember, Marguerite, training a boy is more than teaching him to do his work. It is building him up spiritually.' But Andre needs our prayers. He is one boy Satan is after hard. He is about our age. He could get a very well paying job in the world, but the Mission needs him —if they don't let him get away. The Lord can work in his wife's life, impossible as it seems to us all. She was really touched at Mother's death. . . .

"My last letter to you was April 17. How the time has flown! Since then I've been out on the road with Harold (Ruth, too) for three days, near here. It was my first taste of itineration. I am anxious to do more. On long trips, or where we do not know that the rest house has a good roof, we do not feel it is wise to take Ruth. Many places the helmet must be worn the whole time, in or out of the house.

"While the ladies have been gone (Misses Emmert and Tyson have been gone nearly a month now—one more week), Harold and I planned spending a week-end at Gazeli, since it has been a year since a missionary has been there. But I got fever, so that stopped that! The next week-end Ruth had malaria. This week has been Bible Conference, closing today, so we couldn't get away either. Next week-end will be the only chance to 'compare notes' before the station force changes again. However, staying here this Sunday will give us an opportunity to have Ruth dedicated at church. We've been seeking such a time for some while, but Harold was gone or Volongou was gone, or something else Everything is planned solid for a year, and are we busy!

"While I've been doing, this my wash boy has been canning soy bean hulls! No, I'm not quite crazy. You see, while we will be gone three weeks, my garden will just start really producing. T he cook goes with us, the house boy (who is also a fair cook) goes on a long trip at the same time to his relatives to collect enough goats and money to buy his wife. That leaves only the wash-boy here (whom I had originally tried to teach to be the cook, but he doesn't have it in him) to take care of things. So he is practicing canning in the spare time in order to save my precious tomatoes, beans, and corn while we are gone."

A letter has reached the editor from Mrs. Frank Larson, of Ripon, California, in which they send some money to be forwarded to their daughter, Mrs. Ricardo Wagner of Almafuerte, Argentina. We might say here that the father and mother of Mrs. Wagner furnish a very material part of the support of their daughter. Mrs. Larson writes:

"We just had a lovely letter from Laura the other day. Ricardo was going to have something special for Laura for her birthday on June 17. It was to have been a surprise, but he finally had to let her in on it. He invited the Dowdys and all the young people of Almafuerte and before they got through they had an adult group invited too to enjoy another meeting with Brother Dowdy. (Sister Dowdy was ill and couldn't come). The young people were invited for a meal and then a service, and they were so overjoyed because at the altar-call at the close of the service, nine young people came forward and accepted Christ as their Lord. They had expected a few of them to make the final decision, but so many at one time was such a surprise. Guess Laura won't soon forget that birthday surprise, nor will the young converts. I'm praying that the Lord will raise up workers and helpers of that group of young people."

The editor has only to say that anyone who knows how difficult it is to wrest young men and women from the grip of the paganized Roman Catholicism of South America, will realize what a tremendous victory—yes, what a wonderful birthday gift it was to our Sister Wagner. Thank God for a "birthday surprise" like that. It is indeed very unusual. We cannot see how the birthday could have been a happier one, knowing Mrs. Wagner as we do. May she have "many equally happy returns of the day."

News from Brethren CHURCHES

BUENA VISTA, VA.

We have just closed a two week revival meeting at Buena Vista, Va., with Brother William H. Clough of Uniontown, Pa., as our evangelist. The Lord abundantly poured out His blessing upon us in this effort to reach souls for Christ. The attendance was good from the very start, and increased as the meeting progressed. The closing Sunday night was a service that we shall never forget. The church was full and the Spirit of God was working in a mighty way in our midst. At the invitation, many souls, for whom we had been praying, accepted Christ as their Saviour. There were sixty-six public decisions for Christ. A great many of these were backsliders who had grown careless and indifferent. It was a great joy to see these dear souls find their way back into fellowship with the Lord.

It was a pleasure for the pastor and his wife to have Brother Clough in our home. Brother Clough is a mighty preacher and a man who loves souls, and his ministry among our people was a great blessing to the church.

Wednesday night, following the close of the revival meeting, there were one hundred out to the Mid-Week Bible Study and Prayer Meeting. We believe that the spirit of revival will continue in this church and more souls will yet be saved.

INDIANAPOLIS BIBLE CLASS

The Grace Bible Class of Indianapolis, Ind., sponsored by the Central District of Brethren Churches, met for its first meeting in the new and more permanent location Monday night, November 16th. The securing of the new room came as a result of much prayer and investigation since the class began last May. The faithful group of Brethren who have met in homes, and for a number of weeks in the young people's room of Cadle Tabernacle, are now rejoicing in the Lord for this new place of meeting at the busy corner of Central and 25th Street in the midst of a large residential section of the city. It is a place easily reached from any part of the city by busses which stop almost at the front door of the class room.

The room is an attractive white brick front room with large display window, the room being about 15 by 40 feet and just freshly painted, hot air furnace heat and in a district where no taverns are located, nor do the merchants there desire any.

A fine spirit was manifest in this first meeting and a number had come during the day to inquire of the ladies who were preparing the room for class, what was going to happen. Upon being informed two or three went away with the comment "Oh!" Others stated they were happy and expressed the fact that such was just what was needed in the community. So, of course, as in every place there will be all reactions, but the Lord willing we pray for power to witness and bring Christ in a real sense to the community.

We were happy at the class to have, in addition to the regular ones in attendance, some outsiders and other Brethren from out of the city. Mrs. J. M. Aeby of Winona Lake was present, also Miss Margaret Scott from Corinth, Indiana, in training at the Methodist Hospital, and William Urban, stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison, from the First Church in Johnstown, Pa.

We call for the earnest prayers of the Brotherhood for God's will in Indianapolis and would appreciate any names and addresses of other Brethren in the city whom we may contact for the class. Plans for the future call for a Children's happy hour on Monday afternoon, and Sunday School. Please address all correspondence concerning new friends for the class to the secretary Mrs. Forrest Black, 1135 N. Lynhurst St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

NEW TROY, MICH.

Every three months the Young Married People's class has an open meeting and invites a missionary speaker. Bro. and Sister Sheldon were our speakers last Sunday.

Mrs. Sheldon spoke to the Sunday School and Bro. Sheldon brought the morning message. In response to the invitation at the close of the service, there were one first time confession, one renewal of faith, and two who came seeking membership in the church.

We had a full house to see Bro. Sheldon's pictures of Africa Sunday evening and closed the day by giving them a love offering of $30.00.

ORDER EARLY FROM

BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD

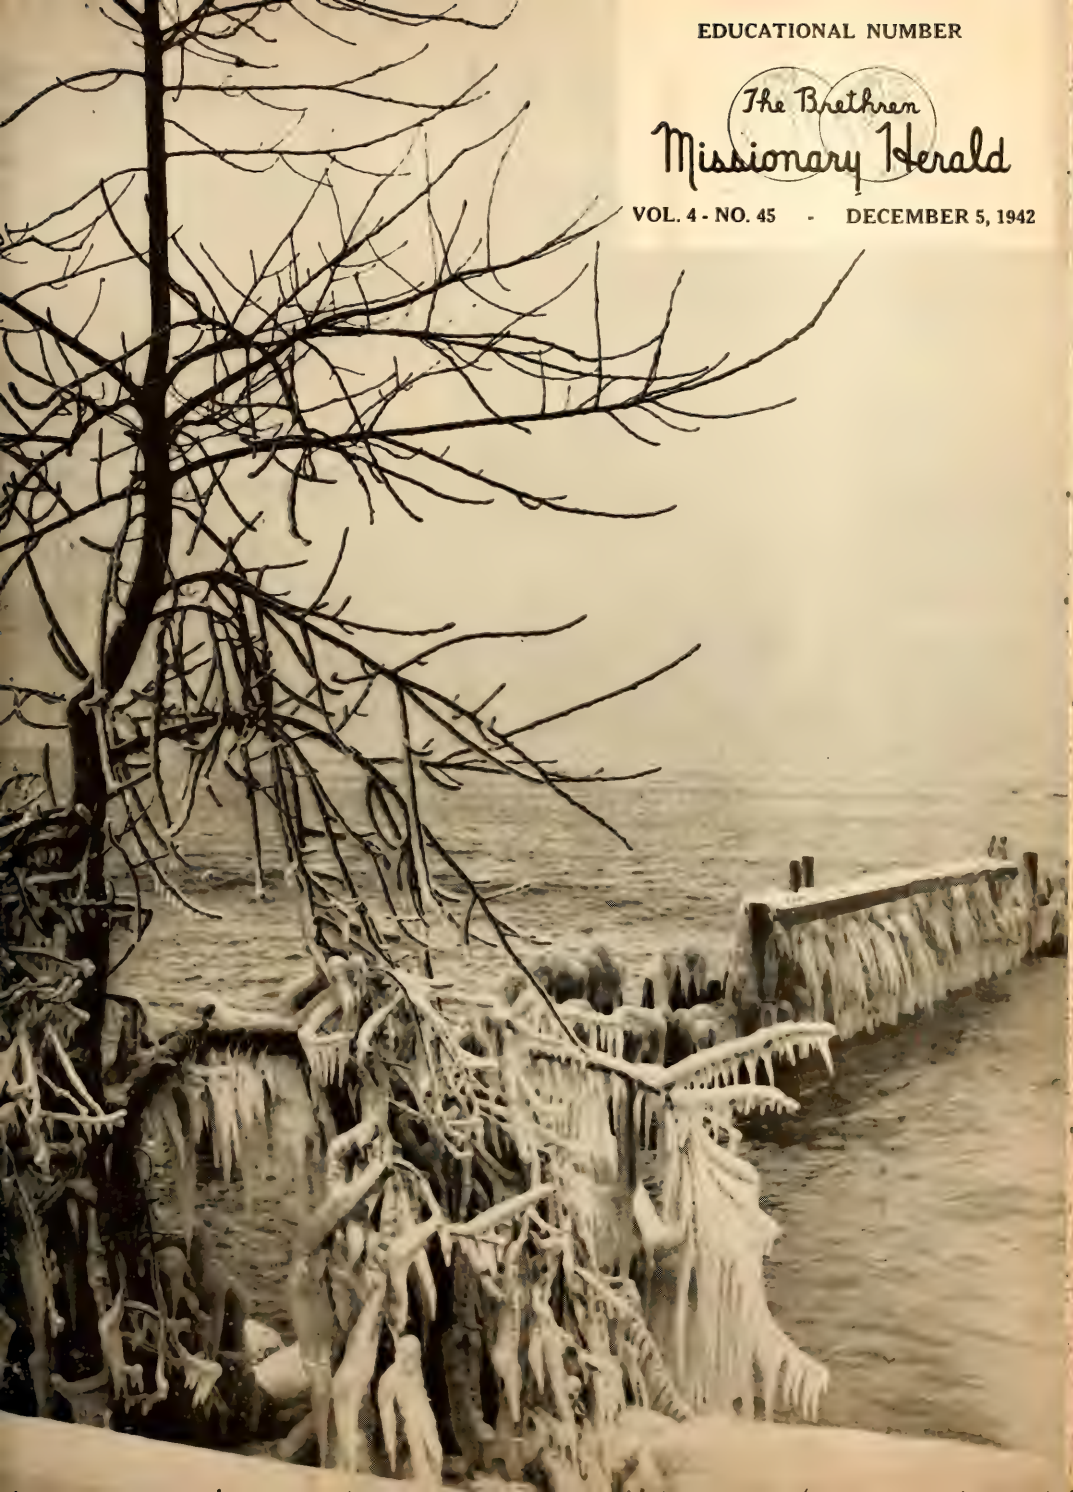
3326 S. Calhoun St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

A father was being disturbed by his little daughter and having trouble in reading his paper. To quiet her, he took a map of the world out of one of the papers, and then tore the map into pieces and asked her to go into another room and put the map together. Very soon she returned with delight, with the task completed. The father said: "How is it that you have done this so quickly when you do not know geography?" The little girl's reply was: "Well, Daddy, you see in Sunday School I learned about Jesus. His picture was on the other side of the page you gave me to put together. When I got him in place, the world came out all right."—Arkansas Methodist.

EARLY RETURNS SHOW GREAT THANKSgiving OFFERING

Among the early returns (at press time) in the THANKSgiving Home Missions offering, the Bethel Brethren church, Berne, Ind., reports a total of $2269.20 the first day, with prospects of reaching the $2500 mark. This is indeed a fine offering for a "little White church in the country." But, then, not every Brethren church can boast of both the secretary and treasurer of the Home Missions council among its members.

Another "early return" came from Cleveland, where the Brethren Mission church reported a $550 offering, with prospects of reaching $600.



The youngest Brethren church—North Riverdale at Dayton—reports an offering of $600.

May these "early returns" continue to the Glory of His Name!

CHRISTMAS AND WARRING WORLD

The words Christmas and war sound paradoxical when we see them joined together in the same sentence. And indeed they are. For war is the unnatural orgies of humanity endeavoring to exterminate itself, while Christmas is the supernatural effort of God to save perishing humanity through a Heaven-sent Savior. Sin is the root of war. And sin, while it is first of all against God, always buries its fangs in those who carry it in their bosoms. But the SON is the very center of Christmas. And the SON gave himself to remove sin finally from the breasts of men and to restore humanity to its right mind. This Christmas season both War and Christmas fall simultaneously upon our ears. But they are locked in mortal combat in the earth, with war attempting to obliterate the last vestige of Christmas from the minds of men, and Chrismas cancelling the efforts of war for those "among men in whom he is well pleased" (Luke 2:14 RV).

Prof. Hoyt

WAR INTRODUCES INTELLECTUAL CONFUSION

But war has taken high toll among Christian people, for it has introduced confusion into their thinking. And thus a false sense of values has emerged. While it is not to be denied that there may be at the bottom certain spiritual and moral values that men seek to preserve by means of war such as freedom, it is also very obvious that these are lost in the maze of material issues that grow out of war. Men and women are caught in the frenzy of victory propaganda, the atrocities of war, the incomprehensible billions, and the accelerated program of work and wealth till they lose the ability to see the several issues of life in their proper perspective. And Christian people, who must live day after day in this atmosphere and breathe the same atmosphere, begin to speak the same language and follow the same course as those about them

SOME MINISTERIAL STUDENTS SEE CLEARLY

Especially has this war mania crept into the ranks of those preparing for the ministry. It has sometimes been due to pressure brought to bear upon them from without. They have been ridiculed for remaining in preparation or seeking preparation when the army needs able bodied men so badly, when defense industries are almost crippled for need of men, when agricultural pursuits are suffering for the same reason. Sometimes the pressure has been wholly from within, and the lure of wealth, adventure, patriotism, has enticed the ministerial student into the army, navy, defense industry, or some other pursuit for the present. Because of these things, the government reports that there is a serious shortage of young men in training for the ministry in theological and pretheological schools. But The Brethren Church has reason to rejoice that in the midst of this intellectual and spiritual Maelstrom, there are more young men in training for the ministry than ever before. And the reason is that these young men see clearly that spiritual values are more important than anything else, that victory without the preservation and propagation of the spiritual truths of the Word of God will be no victory at all. This is doubtless one reason why the student body of Grace Seminary is larger this year than ever before.

BRETHREN PEOPLE ALSO SEE CLEARLY

What has been true of Brethren young people has also been true of Brethren people generally throughout the entire denomination. They see that there is not only a real need for the spread of the gospel of His grace now, but also, when this war is over, there will be even a greater need for the propagation of the gospel. That is the reason they have given so generously to foreign missions, to home missions, and to Grace Seminary.

As we look back over the months we marvel at the provisions of the Lord for the seminary through the generosity of His people. Up to the present moment every cent of current expense has been met, and these expenses have been heavier this year than in previous years. So we have faith to believe that as need arises the money will come in to meet those needs. Surely the offering for the seminary taken at the recent national Conference is a token of what we may expect from the Lord.

By common consent Christmas has been set aside for the lifting of the annual seminary offering in most of the churches, although there are some churches which feel that some other date is more convenient for them. Where this feeling prevails, let such churches feel perfectly free to select any date that will best fit into their program, being careful, however, not to imperil the offerings for Home and Foreign Missions, since these two projects are so vital to the progress of the work of the Lord in our denomination.

INCREASED EXPENSE THIS YEAR

From the very inception of the seminary in 1937, it has been the plan to employ four full-time faculty members to give the seminary full graduate standing among other like institutions. But the time for this was wholly dependent upon two factors, men and means. The Lord has been exceedingly good to us in that he has enabled the institution to employ three full-time professors and several part-time professors up until this year. And then to our dismay it became necessary through the illness of Dr. McClain to call in for this year another full-time professor. This has added to the budget for the year the extra expense of another professor, but God has magnificently supplied every need up to this present moment. And there are funds enough to care for at least a part of the financial burdens of December. We believe that the Lord will amply supply our needs through December and January by individual gifts until the offerings begin arriving from the churches. We are deeply grateful to all who have given so generously toward the work of the seminary through this past year, and to those who will be sharing in the work of the seminary during this Christmas season.

DR. McCLAIN HAS BEEN GREATLY MISSED

In the absence of Dr. McClain, Rev. John M. Aeby, recently the pastor of the First Brethren Church of Fort Wayne, Indiana, has assumed some of the teaching duties of our president. He has faithfully and efficiently filled in the breach. But in spite of this, we have all greatly missed the presence of our beloved Brother McClain. And you readers will all be interested to know that within recent weeks he has made great improvement. Your prayers, as well as ours, have been answered by the Lord. Enough improvement has been made that President McClain is able to send you a message from his own pen, which will follow immediately. I am sure that you will read it with interest. You will also read with interest the many expressions of deep concern for the seminary from friends of the institution, together with the testimonials from former and present students.

How About It?

The "Fifth Column" idea isn't so new after all. Read II Samuel Chapter 15 and especially verse 10.

President's Greetings

By DR. ALVA J. McCLAIN

To the many friends of Grace Seminary, Greeting in the Name of our Blessed Lord:

It seems a long time since I have attempted to write any message to you, but I would have you know that without ceasing I thank God for you all. Your faith and love have made possible the carrying on of this work of training men and women here at the Seminary thus far; and I am confident in the Lord that, as we come to the Christmas season once more when the churches have been remembering this work with special offerings, there will be no lack in your provision for this important ministry.

Dr. McClain

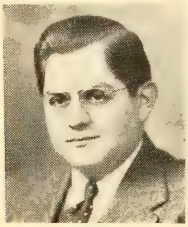
Surely, as we consider the things coming on the world, we must feel that the time is short. The Lord is at hand. May He pour out His special blessing upon all our churches and pastors, and keep you all in His perfect will. During these days of illness, I do not forget that my present relief from responsibility is made possible by your love and generosity.

"Now God Himself and our Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, direct our way unto you. And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you: To the end he may stablish your hearts unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints" (1 Thess. 3:11-13).

GOD'S BLESSING EQUALS 25 DOLLARS

By MRS. HULDA LOUISE JOHNSON

The Word tells us in the sixth chapter of Luke and the thirty-eighth verse, that if we give, it shall be given unto us, good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over. Did you ever try it? It works.



When Miss Tyson was in our Canton church telling us of the great need in Africa, she said, "I like to talk with the Lord the same as I like to talk with you." It occurred to me as a fine suggestion and I thought to myself, Why not? And so I said, as I opened my pocket-book, "Well, Lord, there's a dollar and ten cents; it all belongs to you; take what you want." I closed the pocket-book, and when the collection basket was passed my hand took the dollar bill and put it in, leaving me the ten cents.

Bus fare home was seven cents. So, you see, I had a balance of three cents. But would you believe it? Before I had gotten down the church steps on my way home a lady called to me and gave me twenty-five dollars that she had owed me. Surely God never forgets his own; he is faithful and will give to those gladly and sincerely! Truly it is more blessed to give than to receive.—Canton, Ohio.

"Grace Seminary and the New Year

By PROFESSOR JOHN M. AEBY

As we face the new year one thing is apparent. It will require more than the perennial "Season's Best Wishes" to make a happy and prosperous 1943. Our leaders in their statements, commentators in their columns and broadcasts are preparing us for the inevitable eventualities of the year ahead. They warn of at least three ways in which the lives of all Americans will be vitally affected.

Prof. Aeby

First of all, there is to be an even greater demand for manpower, both in our armed forces and in the essential industries, than there has thus far been. This will mean that out of every one of our churches many more young men will be called. Others of us will be forced to leave present positions and enter vocations more vital to the requirements of the war program. Every one of us will be affected by these changes. The war-time emergency requires all this.

So far Grace Theological Seminary is concerned, we have been facing "war-time emergency" ever since the Lord brought our institution into being. We believe that God has raised up this testimony to be a bulwark of defense against the increasing wave of infidelity which is overflowing our land, as well as a place of training for service for "good soldiers of Jesus Christ." With the succession of the years theological institutions and Christian testimonies have fallen victims to attack from or compromise with unbelieving liberalism. Because of this fact, many here at the school and many more throughout the land have prayed that God might increase the testimony of this school both in spiritual and numerical strength. God has answered these prayers beyond our fondest hopes and as a result we have the largest number of recruits for the service of the ministry in the history of this institution. In many instances they are those who, feeling the call of the Lord, have given up their former positions for preparation for full time ministry of the Word. We face 1943 with the greatest array of "manpower" in the six years of our existance. However, let us continue to recognize the shortage of help in the greatest field of all, "The harvest of the Lord."

We are informed, in the second place, that we must be willing to shoulder an increasing debt of staggering proportions. We are told that the price of liberty comes high, but we know that it is worth the price. We are reminded that this war is being waged, this army is being trained, and these implements of war are being manufactured for the preservation of individual liberties as well as for the safeguarding of our national freedom. Therefore, we must shoulder the cost!

However, we in Grace Seminary believe that the matter of spiritual freedom is vastly more important. The faculty and students of this institution as well as the host of friends who support it are individuals who through precept and experience believe that the greatest liberty in all the world is the liberty of the soul made free by the Son of God. We have been freed not only from the penalty but from the bondage of sin. Contrary to our national liberty our spiritual liberty has been purchased for us in the past and secured to us for the future by the death, burial, and resurrection of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. The debt is paid in full! Nevertheless, we with the apostle Paul are debtors to all men everywhere to share with them this good news of deliverance from spiritual bondage that they too might enjoy the privilege of grace. As the dawn of 1943 approaches we recognize our debt since more than ever before more people need this message.

Finally, in view of thes two things, we are warned that the coming year will be one of unequalled sacrifice. It will means sacrifice of loved ones, of some practical necessities, of ease, of comfort, of luxuries, of wealth, of time, and of self. This is a pretty bitter pill for the average American citizen who for years has been encouraged through advertizing and competitive selling to demand and accept only the best in merchandise and service. But we will learn!

Sacrifice is nothing new to Grace Seminary or her constituency, for, both from the divine and human viewpoints, it was born out of sacrifice. First of all, our Lord died to make salvation possible. Without this sacrifice there would be no salvation, and without this salvation there would be no Grace Seminary. Then, from the human standpoint, many of you who are God's servants have sacrificed to bring this school into being in order to better train men and women to proclaim this wonderful salvation. The faculty who began the work sacrificed. Through the years the students who have come to the school have sacrificed in order to do so. Not a few have left homes and loved ones, business, professions, and relatives, financial security to walk by faith through their days of seminary training. Most of the students in the past and of those of the present know from experience what sacrifice means. But, instead of notes of complaint or discouragement, we find on every hand a testimony of joy and victory! And, as a rule, the greater the sacrifice, the greater the victory! Such sacrifice in training, we believe, precedes greater sacrifice in service. On the other hand, those of you who love this institution because of the things for which it stands and the message which she proclaims have sacrificed that its testimony might be maintained and enlarged. You, too, know the joy of giving sacrificially to the Lord and His work.

As Grace Theological Seminary faces the new year let us join in prayer that God will teach us all to rejoice in serving Him with our whole beings; that He will increase the ranks of our testimony as faculty, students, and constituency; that He will give us a new sense of our burden of debt to a lost world; and that He will strengthen us for the victory which can come alone through unequalled sacrifice!

Christmas and Grace Seminary

By PROFESSOR HOMER A. KENT

Grace Seminary is a Christ-centered institution. At this Christmas season its faculty and student body will be visiting in homes, churches, chapels, and various other places. As they go they will be bearing the Christ-centered message of Christmas. It is a message of LOVE. "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). In a world so filled with hate what a privilege and what an opportunity to bear such a message! A certain captain said to his men as they were about to enter a fierce battle, "I want to see a little more hate in your eyes, a little more hate." God says to His soldiers, "I want to see a little more love in your eves, a little more love." Love brought Christ into this sinful world; love should constrain His followers to bear His message at this Christmas season.

Prof. Kent

It is also a message of LIGHT that we bear. Most significant it is that the first Christmas was introduced amidst scenes of light. As the shepherds were abiding in the field that first Christmas eve "the glory of the Lord shone round about them." In speaking of Christ's coming Luke says in the first chapter of his Gospel, "the dayspring from on high hath visited us." Then there is the familiar star which the wise men saw in the east and whose light directed them to the place where the Christ child was. Christ and His gospel are the light in this dark world. Every lighted Christmas tree, every illuminated star, every radiant candle bears witness to the glorious fact that Christ is the light in the midst of spiritual darkness. Let every Christian rejoice in this blessed truth at this Christmas time.

Moreover it is a message of PEACE we proclaim. Isaiah anticipating His coming spoke of Christ as the Prince of Peace. The angels on Bethlehem's field said to the wondering shepherds, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men." Paul the Apostle has said of Him, "He is our peace." In the Christmas message there is the assurance that one day this war torn world shall learn war no more, that swords shall be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks. Christ shall reign as King of kings and Lord of lords in a peaceful world. And now to those who yield themselves to Christ "He is our peace."

Finally, it is a message of JOY we have to declare. There was singing when Christ was born. Even before the birth of Christ the Virgin Mary sang the Magnificat in joyous anticipation of His birth. In announcement of His birth the angelic hosts broke forth in glad praise to God for the gifts of God's love. Ever since that time the incarnation of Christ has put a song into the human heart. The gospel is the gospel of song. It has prompted the writing of hundreds of thousands of holy hymns of praise. The greeting, "Merry Christmas," has deep meaning for the Christian for he has the true basis of joy in his heart, even the fact of sins liberated by the cross of Christ and the experience of "Christ in you that hope of glory." May Grace Seminary ever remain true to the real message of Christmas!

Grace Seminary and Board of Trustees

By REV. A. V. KIMMELL, President of the Board

The Board of Trustees of Grace Theological Seminary is composed of representative men from churches in all parts of the brotherhood, who are deeply interested in the preparation of men and women for full time Christian service. This board labored many hours and days in establishing the institution upon a sound doctrinal basis which cannot be changed, and still much more time, with the faculty, in getting the recognition of which the Seminary is worthy. We are more than grateful to Him Who has made all this possible.

Rev. Kimmell

Now the Board of Trustees is just as much concerned that the good work, well begun, shall continue. The faculty has been enlarged, the student body is larger, and the gifts to date are sufficient; but in these rapidly moving days we cannot live in the past. Therefore, as a board we urge all the Brethren to continue faithful in prayer to our source of power, to call attention to the great work that is being accomplished in the preparation of preachers and missionaries and to continue with increased gifts, if at all possible.

In many churches Christmas stands for Grace Seminary, as Easter means Foreign Missions or Thanksgiving means Home Missions, so let the churches, Sunday schools, endeavor societies and all other organizations as well as individuals make substantial gifts to Grace Theological Seminary this Christmas time. Remember, He loved us and gave Himself for us and the rest of the world has the right to know also of this wonderful salvation. To know Him and to make Him known, is our slogan.

Grace Seminary and the Church

By ROY A. PATTERSON, Moderator of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches

"Grace Seminary and The Brethren Church" is more than an expression suggesting a subject for discussion; it is an expression indicative of a relationship between two important organizations, co-ordinating and harmonizing in a unity of purpose to further the growth of The Brethren Church, as a denomination.

Mr. Patterson

Because of this co-ordination and harmonizing, Grace Seminary has found favor among members of The Brethren Church and has also found favor among others, because of that which is being taught in its classes.

The thought of co-ordination and unity of purpose suggests two things:

First, the closest of relationship between the Seminary and The Brethren Church, in calling and training for definite Christian leadership, those who will perpetuate the fundamental doctrines of the Bible.

Second, the fearless teaching of those fundamentals which have made The Brethren Church a distinctive denomination.

The commercial world recognizes the place for and necessity of labels on the many articles offered for public use and can quickly determine the relative merits of such articles because of its knowledge regarding what is beneath those labels.

The Brethren Church has ever been a church which declared that it stands upon "The Bible, The Whole Bible and Nothing But The Bible." The world has seen this label and recognizes it as the label of The Brethren Church, but those without the Church, and more particularly those within the Church, have been concerned about what is back of this label and wonder if the contents will remain, as in truth and fact it should be, or might or could be changed.

Grace Seminary in the furtherance of those fundamental doctrines of the Bible, the belief of The Brethren Church, has been willing to declare its belief in the holy scriptures as the very word of God; in the One Triune God; in the Lord Jesus Christ, the eternal Word and Only Begotten Son, who is the Second Person of the Triune God; in the Holy Spirit, who is the Third Person of the Triune God; in the creation and fall of man; in salvation by grace through faith; in righteous living and good works, not as the procuring cause of salvation, but as its proper evidence and fruit; in the existence of Satan; in the second coming of Christ as an imminent and visible event; in future life, bodily resurrection and eternal judgment; in the one true Church and in separation from the world.

The Brethren Church can ever know and those other than members of The Brethren Church can know that beneath the label is always to be found those things which have made The Brethren Church a distinctive denomination. To the teaching of these great fundamental truths, Grace Seminary stands committed, when the Bible is being taught.

These things being true, we need not fear if it will be Grace Seminary or The Brethren Church, but can be assured it will ever be Grace Seminary, The Brethren Church and "The Bible, The Whole Bible and Nothing But The Bible." This assurance warrants our prayers and giving in an all out support of Grace Seminary.

National Ministerium and Grace Seminary

By REV. R. D. BARNARD Chairman of The National Fellowship of Brethren Ministers

It's like saying "food and the farm," "water and the pump," "printing and the print-shop" to say, "The National Ministerium and Grace Seminary." They stand or fall together.

Rev. Barnard

The natural thing is that a fellowship of ministers should be related to a minister's training school. Brethren ministers are so related to Grace Theological Seminary as that graduate training school. Not one thing of which we know would disqualify Grace Seminary as that school, and there are numerous things that admirably qualify her. She fosters what we foster, teaches what we teach, believes what we believe. Her theological and doctrinal tenets and ordinance practices are the common heritage of us all.

"By their fruits ye shall know them" (Matt. 7:20). Grace Seminary is happy to be judged by her fruits. Our ranks are filled with pastors, missionaries, and teachers fresh from her class rooms. They are efficient and successful in the Lord's work.

After the war—such needs of trained workers in the cause of Christ as we have never known will face us. To meet the need then, we must meet it now! Let's give Grace Seminary our prayerful interest, our financial support, and our sons and daughters now, and she will give us trained workers, then.

IT IS STRANGE—but true that many folks think souls become "lost" because they live immoral lives. Facts are that all men are lost from the very moment they are born until they personally accept Christ as their very own Savior.—Berne, Ind., Bulletin.

Foreign Missions

AND GRACE SEMINARY

By REV. CHARLES H. ASHMAN, Member of Foreign Board

The two are vitally related! Not only because Dr. McClain is the Head of the Seminary and is vitally a part of our Foreign Mission work but in many other ways Foreign Missions and Grace Seminary are linked together.

Rev. Ashman

Preparation is most essential to the power and efficiency of a missionary. After all forms of preliminary preparation have been secured, there is a type of specialized preparation our missionaries need which Grace Seminary can supply. Our own Seminary can supply this in a way that no other can.

Re-preparation is also necessary, that is to renew, refresh, during the period of furlough. Grace Seminary affords a unique opportunity for such a renewing on the part of our missionaries during the period of furlough spent in the homeland.

The ties that bind Grace Seminary to our Foreign Mission interests are therefore vital. May they grow stronger! May each help the other more and more! Our aims are one! May the Lord Jesus Christ be glorified in both!

The W. M. C.

AND GRACE SEMINARY

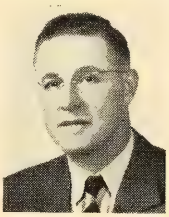
By MRS. HOMER A. KENT, National President of W.M.C.

God's faithfulness has been evidenced over and over again at Grace Seminary. It is a joy and privilege to see young men and women fully yielded to the Lord and wholeheartedly devoted to serving Him in that portion of the vineyard He shall choose for them.

Mrs. Kent

The W.M.C. exists for no other purpose than to have a part in carrying the gospel to the uttermost part of the earth. And because Grace Seminary, likewise, is concerned with that same mission, the W.M.C. is eager to support the school in every way possible. From our homes our sons and daughters are recruited. Many a missionary-minded mother has dedicated her children unto Him and prayers have followed throughout the years. God's faithfulness has been witnessed when we see those children grown to adulthood, entering our beloved institution.

Intercession has not ended with our sons and daughters as individuals. Our women give a large portion of their ministry to prayer for the school as a whole. May His all-sufficient grace continue to prevail. May Christ be exalted in every policy of the institution.



The material needs of Grace Seminary are not overlooked by the W.M.C. Commendable gifts of money are given each year and great enthusiasm has prompted the gifts. We trust that these gifts shall continue from year to year as we praise Him for the gracious "abundantly above."

Home Missions

AND GRACE SEMINARY

By R. PAUL MILLER, Secretary, Brethren Home Missions Council

I could write a small book on what experience has taught as to the things that enter into the making of a successful preacher of the gospel. There is no minister whose work necessitates proper qualifications more than the man who is building a new congregation. There is no man in whom the lack of any vital ability will be manifest quicker than in him. Therefore, the value of Grace Seminary to our home mission work is self evident.

Rev. Miller

We must have qualified leaders. To prevent the loss of opportunities on every side and the awful wastage that results from haphazard efforts, we must be efficient. We must have men who are spiritually qualified. They must be born again, separated from the world, committed to the preaching of the gospel and nothing else, and they must be submissive to the leading of the Holy Spirit. They must be naturally qualified. No matter how much a man may know about the Bible, if he cannot tell it to others effectively God cannot use him in such work. And he must have certain elements of leadership.

We must have a trained leadership. What the army would become as an effective force without West Point; what the navy would become without Annapolis, that is what the work of advancing the Brethren Church would become without Grace Seminary. No matter how much brains a fellow has, or how much spiritual experience he has, he must be especially trained to fill a successful place in the Brethren ministry. The directors of the Home Missions Council look mainly to the students of Grace Seminary as the men who are able to carry forward the work of establishing Brethren churches in the new fields that lie ahead till Our Lord returns.

That is what Grace Seminary means to our home missions program.

The Seminary Alumni Association

By REV. KENNETH B. ASHMAN, President of Alumni

The Grace Theological Seminary Alumni Association is now a little over two years of age. Its membership lists at present total well over 200 members. Accomplishments thus far include the presentation of a much needed adding machine, and 100 beautiful hymn books to the Seminary. Currently, the Alumni Association is completing arrangements to supply the Seminary with a full communion set and supplies. As funds come in during the year, as they have been so generously appearing, further efforts will be made to supply the various needs of our beloved school.

Rev. Ashman

One change has been made in the officiary of the Alumni since last year. Rev. Donald Carter asked to be relieved of the position of Treasurer; Rev. Norman Uphouse has been chosen to fill that vacancy. Rev. John Squires remains as Secretary and Rev. Ashman continues as President of the group. The following rules and regulations were adopted by the Seminary Group at their recent meeting at Winona Lake, Ind.:

1. All regular members must be graduates of Grace Theological Seminary or of Ashland Seminary during the years of 1930-1937.

2. All associate members must have taken work in classes either in or under the sponsorship of Ashland Seminary between the years 1925-1937, or have taken work in any of the classes of Grace Seminary.

3. All friends of Grace Seminary may become honorary members by making a contribution to the Alumni Association during the year and supporting the school in any way they can.

4. Regular and associate members shall be expected to contribute at least one dollar each year to the Alumni Association.

5. Upon request of any of the officers of the association each member must subscribe to the Covenant of Faith as adopted by the Seminary.

6. Voting privileges shall be confined to regular and associate members who have complied with rule number 4 during the year between meetings or at the time of the annual meeting.

7. The Association shall organize with the following officers: a. president, b. secretary, c. treasurer.

8. The duties of these officers shall be those which ordinarily fall to each.

10. The transaction of business shall be held according to the accepted parliamentary rules.

11. The Association shall pay all administrative expenses out of the contributions first. All projects or other disbursements shall be voted upon at the time of the annual meeting.

Of interest to all friends of Grace Seminary is the fact that Dr. V. C. Kelford, widely known Bible teacher, is the field representative of the Seminary. Dr. Kelford will conduct Grace Seminary rallies in all churches of his ministry where such rallies are possible. The proceeds of such rallies and the contributions of memberships received will be used through the channels of the Alumni Association. The Secretary, John Squires, is busily engaged mailing membership cards and Alumni information to these new friends of Grace Seminary.

The primary aim of the Alumni Association is to build up a large group of friends and supporters for our Seminary. The secondary function will be to raise funds for needed equipment and supplies at the school. The general aim will be the drawing together of all folks interested, in fellowship and annual gathering at Winona Lake, Ind., at the time of the national gathering of Brethren churches.

Feeling that we have in Grace Seminary and her teachers, and board, the very backbone of true Brethrenism and fundamental testimony, we want to bend every effort to make sure of the continued good will of the school among fundamental circles the nation over. We further purpose to guide all our Brethren young men and women for their final Christian training into her halls of learning. We trust that we shall be able, by the Grace of God, to keep the Seminary supplied with every needed thing. We covet your prayers, we covet your interest, we covet your presence among us as members in that class provided by the rules of Alumni Association.

Publications and

GRACE SEMINARY

By REV. BERNARD N. SCHNEIDER

Vice-President of The Brethren Missionary Herald Co.

We all recognize the vital importance of our Seminary to the existence and growth of The Brethren Church. As an army without a supply base must eventually retreat, so the church without a vigorous seminary will soon come to a standstill. Right alongside the seminary in our denomination stand our publications in almost equal importance. This is the day of the printed page. Satan is using the printed page as the vehicle for his propoganda and education in sin. Certainly the church must aim to produce the best there is in Christian propaganda and education through the printed page. This our church is striving to do through the publications of the Brethren Missionary Herald Company.

Rev. Schneider

Now, to have the best in publications we must have well trained writers. We need men and women who have the best spiritual and theological background as well as the ability and ambition to write. This background and training is most excellently provided at our Grace Theological Seminary. There they are receiving the best Bible teaching in America. There they live in the best spiritual environment that we know of. There our future leaders are taught and encouraged to write for publications. We have reason to expect a growing Brethren Church, and improved Brethren publications as long as we have a spirit-led institution such as our own Grace Seminary.

Student Body and Seminary

By KEITH ALTIG, President of the Student Body

Certainly a most important part of any school is the student body. The kind of men and women who compose it's student body will determine what kind of a school it will be, and because of this our seminary has great cause to thank the Lord.

J. Keith Altig

Every year we are burdened with prayer for the students who will be entering the next year and we ask God that He will send just the ones whom He would have to come. Then as school opens each year we await with interest to see just how the Lord has answered the prayer.

It takes men and women who are really convinced that God wants them in the ministry, to stay in school in times like these, especially the incoming students and the Middler class, those with a year or two ahead of them. Many a fine job or position has been turned down so that the student might enter the school. Many a nice home has been given up so that the student, and perhaps his family might come to Winona Lake and receive the training he needs for the ministry. No one regrets it, no one seriously considers turning back after "having once put his hand to the plough."

It is not counted a sacrifice but a glorious privilege and opportunity to prepare ourselves to better serve Him, who gave up the riches of heaven and "for our sakes became poor," who left the ivory palaces of heaven to come to earth to dwell in the humble home of a Palestinian carpenter, and who one day toiled up the slopes of Mount Calvary, there to die so that we might live.

The "morale" of the school has not suffered a mortal blow due to the absence of Dr. McClain. While we all miss him more than we can express, and eagerly await his return, yet our expectation is from God and our hope is in Him and we are happy in the knowledge that Dr. McClain would have it so.

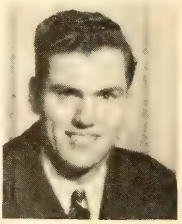
Missionary Vision

By CLARENCE NIDA, Chairman of The Missionary Fellowship

Does attending seminary and delving deeply into theological problems have a tendency to dim the vision of those interested in the mission field? Not so at Grace Seminary. To the contrary, the interest in missionary activity is unusually keen. For after all whether we go or whether we stay, the vision of the need of those who have never once heard the glorious gospel should be constantly before us all.

Clarence Nida

We are thankful that fourteen out of an enrollment of fifty are definite volunteers for the foreign field, and others are waiting upon the Lord for a clearer impression of His will. There are four volunteers for South America, one for China, one for Mexico, and eight for Africa. Three of our students have already been faithful laborers in foreign fields and are spending furlough time here in further training in the WORD.



Each month one of the Friday chapel services is devoted to the centering of our attention upon certain aspects of missionary work. Recently we heard a message concerning linguistic problems and how a prospective missionary may be trained to meet these problems in any tribal language.

It is our prayer that, as a seminary and as individuals, we may never allow anything to dim the vision of the tremendous need of those who are without Jesus Christ. We desire that this vision may ever increase, that through our willingness to sacrifice all that it may cost, men who have never heard may soon hear the wonderful name of Jesus and desire Him as their Savior.

"Our Gospel Ministry"

By S. WAYNE BEAVER, Chairman of The Gospel Team

The Lord has given various opportunities for service to students of the Seminary this year. Apart from student pastors, the work has centered in three distinct fields. Throughout the summer our Brother Bury carried on the work in the Warsaw jail, and with the opening of the school year he found many capable and zealous helpers among the entering class. He reports that there have been eight first-time decisions at the jail since September. These were practically all young men.

S. Wayne Beaver

Secondly, as long as the weather permitted, street meetings were held in the city of Warsaw under the able leadership of Gordon Cook. Especially outstanding in this work was the large number of tracts that were passed out. Various speakers were presented at these meetings, among whom were Dr. Kelford, Professor Aeby, and students from the Seminary. More than once on returning from these meetings the remark was heard that the Lord's presence had been felt.

The third field is that of the gospel teams. It was on November 9th that a team journeyed to Sharpesville, Indiana, and spent a day, rich in blessing, with Brother Vern Stuber and his people. Plans for the immediate future for gospel teams include trips to Fort Wayne, Monon, and Osceola, all in Indiana.

ISN'T IT TRUE?

Launch out into the deep —Many Christians fail because they do not go forward. In Hebrews we are admonished to "go on to perfection." A little girl fell out of bed one night. The next morning her mother asked her how it happened that she fell out of the bed.

"I do not know, mamma," was the reply, "unless I stayed too near the place where I got in."

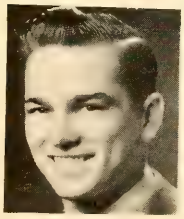
Two Years At Grace

By HAROLD O. MAYER, President of The Senior Class

Two years at Grace Seminary, can it be? It hardly seems possible. Yet such is the case, end even now the end is in sight. The completion of my work and graduation is not far off.

Rev. Mayer

After two years at Grace I am very sure my own spiritual life has been greatly affected. One could not frequent the halls of this institution without gaining a deep spiritual insight into His word and also come into a more intimate relationship with Him.



Now there is a great urge to be out in the field doing something, doing that task He has called me to do. Yet there is a feeling of inadequacy, which is caused not by a lack of training, for we have had the finest kind of training here that can be obtained anywhere, but a feeling of "the more I know, the more I know I don't know." How thankful I am, however, for the kind of training I have received here. Training that will enable me to continue the study of His word after leaving these halls.

Leave this place? The very thought brings regret, for Grace Seminary and Winona Lake have become very dear to me. New and lasting friendships have been made. Parting will be difficult. This is home now, but I am also ready to move at His command. Thank God for these years at Grace Seminary and for all who have made this knd of fellowship and training possible.

One Year At Grace

By JOHN G. BALYO, President of The Middler Class

When I first arrived in Winona Lake on a windy day in October, 1941, I possessed the firm determination to return to the warmer clime of Georgia if I was not completely satisfied with Grace Theological Seminary. I was a Presbyterian coming to a Brethren Seminary, and although wholly conscious of the Lord's leading, I still had some doubts concerning our ability to please one another. Admittedly those doubts existed in ignorance and soon disappeared in the face of knowledge. I was looking for a school that possessed a spiritual faculty and student-body, a school that maintained high academic standards, and a school that would fully equip me for the work of the ministry.

Rev. Balyo

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?

A marble cutter with chisel and hammer was changing a stone into a statue, A preacher looking on said, "I wish I could deal such changing blows on human hearts!" The workman made answer, "Maybe you could if you worked like me, on your knees." If you would win souls, you must pray for them.—Mrs. E. A. W., Fla., Moody Monthly.

THINK IT OVER

"Blessed is the man who is too clever to be deceived by his own alibis." Some people grow with responsimility; others swell ! ! ! !

After one year in Grace Seminary, I can say emphatically that all of my desires have been fully realized. From the first day when I felt like a stranger (with an accent) in a strange and foreign land until this day when I feel like a native in his own land; I can witness first of all to the personal blessing I have received from an intensive study of God's Word, and to the high standard of scholarship which is required of all students. The latter almost exceeded my fondest expectations, and until the first examination week was past, I entertained doubts as to whether I would return to Georgia sooner than I had anticipated. My fears were never realized, however, and I'm still in school saying, "Praise God for Grace Seminary!"

First Impressions of Grace

By DONALD BARTLETT, President of The Junior Class

Often times first impressions are deceiving. This is especially true of persons and I think it may be said also of institutions. However, one of the things that impressed itself upon my mind at the very outset of the school year was the amount of work that was required of each student. It didn't seem possible to do all the work that was assigned that first week. I thought, surely, they will "ease up" a bit," but in that I was fooled. This was one "first" impression that was not deceiving. Hard work was, and is, one of the things that characterize Grace Theological Seminary.

Rev. Bartlett

Then, I was impressed very much by the earnestness of faculty and student body alike. Having spent fifteen years as a teacher in our public schools, I feel that I can better appreciate some of the things about the Seminary than can anyone who has not had such a background. The faculty and student body of Grace Seminary mean business and only time itself will reveal the far reaching and lasting benefits that this will bring to the Brethren Church.

As a teacher, I was impressed by the wholesome attitude that exists between faculty and students. This is a prime requisite for a successful school.

I praise and thank the Lord for the privilege of preparing for the ministry of His Word in a spiritual atmosphere such as I find at the Grace Theological Seminary.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

TRACY, CALIF.

Tracy Brethren are rejoicing over the victories won in the recent Victory Revival with C. H. Ashman of Whittier as the evangelist. For the souls that were saved, we praise the Lord, and for the many others who did not step out for the Lord during the meetings, we shall continue to pray and work. Four have already obeyed the Lord in Christian baptism and we expect others to follow soon.

Records kept during the revival show that 84% of the resident membership attended one or more services, while 39% of the members attended 50% or more of the series. Total attendance was 607. On an average, at least 60% of the audience were made up of non-members, with some pastors and members of other churches in attendance. Our average attendance over the entire period was 42 which is regarded as good in this community.

Many young people came in to the meetings, at times contributing special music. For this group we ask your earnest prayer, at the same time praying for "parents" who today are as much in need of the Lord as the young people.

On Monday night following the Revival we conducted our commnion service with twenty-two persons taking part, a number participating in the service for the first time. At this communion we used for the first time a beautiful new communion set recently obtained from our Publishing Company. Brother Ashman brought a very instructive message. During the communion we made use of Dr. McClain's booklet, "Bible Truths," using the three portions devoted to the three phases of our service as a responsive reading, a practice we have found especially helpful to those not so familiar with our communion.

Our Revival gave us an opportunity to really try out our new gas furnaces, installed last spring, but never used until recently when the restrictions on use of gas were lifted.

We are indebted to the Whittier Church for the services of their pastor, and to Brother Ashman himself for his faithful ministry in our midst. We wish also to express our appreciation to Mrs. Ashman for her work in conducting the young people's chorus.

We trust the fruit gathered for the Lord during this revival is but a token of greater things to come and urge your continued prayers, Brethren, for this most needy field.

—Thomas Hammers, Pastor

LIMESTONE, TENN.

Throughout this Thanksgiving season our hearts swell with praise to the God of all grace Who giveth us peace of heart. Through "wars and rumors of wars" God continues to bless His children. Our church here in Eastern Tennessee has been receiving many blessings, not the least of which is the fact that Bro. Henry Rempel, who is taking some studies at Bob Jones College, has graciously consented to do some pastoral work for our church. So that is the provision the Lord has seemed to make for us just now. Bro. Rempel's presence is a real benediction and his teaching and work is a great help to the church. He came in time to hold our fall communion services and a real feast it was.

Bro. Rempel was the promoter of another spiritual feast the week-end of Nov. 15th when he brought not only Mrs. Rempel with her helpfulness but also four "preacher boys" from Bob Jones College, a quartet of three Brethren and one Baptist. While Gerald Polman and Ward Miller are known as the sons of illustrious Brethren preachers, they with Lee Myers of Washington, D. C., and Virgil Rodgers of Spartanburg, S. C., can stand on their own merit. Bob Jones College is to be congratulated. They with the pastor held several different services.

A bountiful dinner was spread in the basement at the noon hour Sunday. Following the afternoon service the pastor and the quartet were welcome in the homes of four shut-ins.

We made every kind of a day of Nov. 15th. It was Rally Day, Home Coming, and marked the beginning of the Thanksgiving season and Home Missions offering. The day ended by the "preacher boys" giving inspiring personal testimonies and the rendering of gospel songs. Hands were raised for prayer and there was one reconsecration. We covet for these young men the highest place in Christian service, which we believe they will occupy because of their faith and tireless effort. Our prayers are with them and our latch strings hang on the outside for them.

While Bro. Rempel cannot be on the spot all the time our services are carried on including the midweek Bible study and prayer hour.

The draft has emptied two of the pews, some of the boys going into combatant services and others into non-combatant. But it is cause for praise that we yet have such a large percent of young people attending church.

We enjoy the inspiring news from other churches. You have our prayers and we feel the need of yours as we strive to do God's will, trusting that at His appearing the church here may be hoping, praying, working, and watching.

—Mary Pence

Paintings That Live

Sallman's "Head of Christ" is probably the most beloved painting of our Lord and Savior. Just as an acquaintance with the Author gives us a greater understanding and appreciation for the Bible, so an insight into the life of the painter will increase our admiration for this, and other, paintings.

Warner E. Sallman, who was born in Chicago, Ill., April 30, 1892, of Christian Swedish and Finnish parents, had from early youth shown artistic promise. He was the only one ever to receive a certificate from the Chicago Art Institute for attending their night classes. While attending a Bible School, a challenge was given him by the dean, who called him to his office. The conversation went something like this:

" 'They tell me you're an artist, Sallman.'

" 'Well—er I like to draw, anyway.'

" 'Good, keep right at it. We need Christian artists. And say, sometime I hope you give us your conception of Christ. And I hope it's a manly one. Most of our pictures today are too effeminate.'

" 'You mean to say you think Jesus was a more rugged type? More of a man's man?'

" 'Exactly. We know he preached in the desert, so he must have been tanned. More than that, the Word says he set his face "like a flint" to go down to Jerusalem. So he wasn't soft or flabby We need a picture of that kind of Christ, Sallman, and I hope you do it some day'."

He answered that challenge several years later when asked to produce a cover design for a religious magazine. His painting, however, went unnoticed until as a project the president of a theological seminary requested his senior class to find what appeared to be the most accurate representation of Christ. Of all those submitted, an unknown drawing on an early print was given first choice, because of the courage and manliness reflected—it was Sallman's Head of Christ.

Since then Mr. Sallman has painted Christ in Gethsemane, using the same expressive features, the same gentle face of the Savior as portrayed in his first masterpiece.

His latest painting is Christ Knocking at the Door, which we highly recommend. This painting, reproduced in six-color offset, pictures Christ in His spiritual robes knocking at your heart's door. The only light in the picture radiates from the figure of Christ, which reflected by the wall behind Him, and by the arched doorway, takes the shape of a heart. The unkept shrubs symbolizes the sin in a careless heart

These three paintings, ranging from 4x5 for 10 cents each to 20¾x24¾ for $15.00, may be purchased through The Brethren Missionary Herald Co.

From Bournemouth, England, comes this message:

1. We have been a pleasure loving people, dishonoring God's day. NOW Sunday pleasure is barred.

2. We have preferred motor travel to Church-going. NOW there is a shortage of tires and gasoline.

3. We have ignored the ringing of the church bells calling us to worship. NOW the bells can only ring warning us of invasion.

4. We have left the churches half-empty. NOW they are in ruins.

5. We have ignored the ways of peace. NOW we must learn the ways of war.

6. We refused to give our money for the Lord's work. NOW it is taken from us in taxes for the devil's work.

7. We forgot to give Him thanks for our food. NOW our food is rationed.

8. We refused to give our lives in loving sacrifice to Him. NOW we are conscripted for the country.

9. Nights we would not spend in prayer. NOW we must spend them in air-raid shelters.

10. The evils of modernism we would not fight. NOW we must fight Germany, the land from whence these false teachings have come.

Must we here in America learn the hard way as they did in England? Turn to Proverbs 14:34. Read it. America, you had better take heed to these words.

A NOVEL C.E. INVITATION AND GREETING

The following is a facsimile of a folder used by the young people of the First Brethren Church of Dayton, O. Folded, it is about the size of a calling card; and the back, written in tract form, makes the folder serve a three-fold purpose: invitation to C.E., greeting to first-timers who attend, and a gospel tract.

Those interested in procuring these cards—they are very reasonable—write Rev. W. J. Barnhart, 1918 W. Riverview Ave., Dayton, Ohio.

HAVE YOU BEEN FOOLED?

Sunday School, church, Christian life — "SISSY STUFF?" OH, NO! BUT THE DEVIL IS A SISSY!

He exploits the weakness, ignorance, perversity, and egotism of old and young and reverses the charges.

He is the world's oldest cry-baby, thumb-sucker, Old Fogy, mollycoddle, parasite, knocker, double-cross-er and kill-joy.

He is the most cunning camouflage and sabotage artist, the most villainous racketeer, gangster and fifth-columnist of the ages. Too much of a SISSY to be a square shooter. HIS FOLLOWERS BECOME LIKE HIM.

JESUS CHRIST IS THE SUPER-DIVINE-MAN! The Square-shooter, the wide-open Player, Who cannot be bought off or sold out. The world's big heroes and heroines are on His "Who's Who" list of honor. You can't be and won't be a SISSY, if you fight with Him.

FACTS OF FAITH

GOD:—Our creator, an eternal and personal, loving heavenly, Father, omniscient, omnipotent, omnipresent.

JESUS CHRIST:—Eternal Son of God, incarnate, virgin-born, only Redeemer of men; crucified, risen, ascended, and will come again.

THE BIBLE:—The infallible, holy, inspired, authentic, imperishable word and revelation of God's will and work in creation and salvation.

THE HOLY SPIRIT:—The Wooer and the Winner of sinners; the personal Representative and Manifestation on earth of the living power and wisdom of God through Christ and unto and in the believer.

MANKIND:—The direct creation of God; created in innocence but by disobedience lost his holiness, brought sin into human experience, and estranged the race from God.

SALVATION BY GRACE:—The unmerited free gift of God to all repentant sinners through faith in Christ; by which they have assurance of life eternal, pardon, justification, God's indwelling, sanctification (not sinless perfection), victory over sin, resurrection from death, and an eternal home with God.

THE CHURCH:—God's whole family of all new-born believers in Christ, saved by grace, indwelt and led by His Spirit; universal, inter-racial, inter-national, the only divinely authorized administrator of the gospel of salvation.

IS THE BIBLE DULL AND DRY?

OH, NO! Wake yourself up, lubricate your mind by reading these:

Book of Ruth—World's best short story. Love, honor and destiny.

Genesis, 37-50:—Life of Joseph, the world's greatest historical romance.

Deuteronomy:—World's three oratorical masterpieces by Moses, a man who could not orate.

Proverbs:—Greatest thesis on common sense ever written. Follow it and you can't be a vamp, a sap, a soak or a sissy.

Psalms:—Poetical X-Ray of a great soul; the lad who started with a slingshot and won a scepter.

Esther:—World's greatest Cinderella saving a whole race from massacre.

Here's the real "make-up" of a real "Glamour Girl:" Proverbs 31:10-31.

I & II Timothy:—A child Bible student, boy preacher, church trouble-shooter and bishop.

Matthew 28:18-20:—The missionary's commission. History has no thrill like the missionary work built on this text.

Gospel by John:—The greatest piece of literature ever penned by man.

I Corinthians:—The finest poem ever written in the Greek tongue.

You will never be educated until you are familiar with the world's "best seller" for 300 years—THE BIBLE.

NON-SKID DEVICES

You won't slip if you use these. Start now while the starting is good (Ecclesiastes 12:1).

Youth and piety not enemies, but pals and a winning team (I John 2:13, 14).

A challenge youth can't afford to pass up (I Tim. 4:12).

The wisdom of common sense and the common sense of wisdom: read the first nine chapters of Proverbs.

You will never be smart enough till you verify II Tim. 3:14-17 in your own experience, and learn Psa. 111-10.

Your life will always be too short if you never learn John 17:3.

Real nerve and valor is not in our blunderings, any fool can do that. It takes a he-man to acknowledge his blundering (Luke 15:11-21).

You can't fight in another man's armor (I Samuel 17:20-51). Put on the armor God made for you. See Ephesians 6:10-18. None for the back!

A fine way to clean up: Psalms 119:9. He's "Gone With the Wind." Who? Well, don't let it be you. Read Psalm 1.

DANGEROUS DETOURS

The Way that seems right, Prov. 14:12.

The fool with bad sight, Prov. 12:15.

You can't get by very long on this road without a wreck, Judges 21:25.

Dangerous drive ahead, Matt. 7:13, 14.

Safe road nearby, watch, Matt. 7:13, 14.

DON'T MISS THE MAIN HIGHWAY, John 14:6.

MONTHLY MEETINGS OF ALL OFFICERS AND MEMBERS

This is very important. At these meetings the month's work is planned, leaders for meetings are selected, and meetings themselves planned. This gives an opportunity for (1) more and better ideas and also puts the responsibility of good or poor meetings upon the whole society instead of upon one person or one committee, (2) for constructive criticism. Anything concerning the C.E. work, whether good or bad, may here be discussed in the open and all contribute to settling of problems. These meetings should not be neglected and all should be made to feel they "belong."

VISITATION

Here is an opportunity for soul winning. We usually have the Lookout chairman take care of this work, hence the necessity of careful selection of this officer. He or she must be one interested in the salvation of souls and also one who is faithful.

If once young people get a taste of the blessing received in visitation work they will "carry on" without urging. We have a regular night (Thursday) for this work and our young people meet at the church at 7:15-7:30, and then go out together. Whenever a new person comes to Sunday School or Christian Endeavor, he or she should be called upon the following week. Also new young people in the church service should be visited and invited to attend C.E. and Sunday School. Sometimes these calls are purely social but often there are opportunities to do real personal work. Regular members who have grown careless in attendance may be brought back by showing them we are interested in them. Calls and contacts made are tabulated and reported to our Workers Band, a church organization for visitation work.

SPECIAL PROJECTS SUGGESTED

(1). Nights at missions—Young people take charge of regular monthly meetings.
(2). Singing for shut-ins.
(3). Buying of radio—to be loaned to sick and shut-ins.

C.E. TESTIMONY

No one can estimate the power of a group of young people who really know Christ and are not afraid to testify to what salvation really means. A young unbeliever, claiming to be an agnostic, dropped into a C.E. and was so impressed that he attended regularly. After a couple of months, one of the young men led the young agnostic to Christ. The Lord called him into the ministry and he is a well known pastor in the Brethren Church today. He states that it was the lives of these young people which were so different from his worldly friends that first aroused his interest in Christ and the Bible.

WHY PEOPLE STAY AT HOME FROM CHURCH

"Some stay home because it's cold
And some because it's hot;
And some because they're getting old,
And some because they're not.
Some stay away because their hat
The milliner's not finished;
And some because their liking
For the preacher has diminished.
And some declare they don't enjoy
The singing of the choir;
And others say their fellow saint
Aroused their wrathful ire.
Alas! alas! excuses crow
To drive our thought from God.
And turn us from the house of prayer,
The place our fathers trod."

"If I Wash Thee Not . . ."

WM. H. SCHAFFER, Pastor, Berne, Ind.

These words were spoken on a most solemn occasion, the night before our Lord's death. The very night of His betrayal and arrest. He had gathered with His disciples in an upper room for a fellowship supper on the Preparation Day, the day before the annual Passover. It was to be the Lord's last meal with all of His disciples. The apostle John records the incident in his record of the gospel as found in the thirteenth chapter, "Now before the feast of the Passover, when Jesus knew that His hour was come that He should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved His own He loved them unto the end."

Rev. Schaffer

Last words of loved ones are always precious words. Last bequests of loved ones, if rational, are usually honored. While our Lord was sound of body and mind He did something very unusual. Something that those disciples had never seen before, nor was it ever recorded in the law and prophets that a master should gird himself with a towel and begin to wash his guests' feet! Was it any wonder that Peter remonstrated, "Thou shalt never wash my feet." Jesus had just told him, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter." There are millions of Christians, who, like Peter, seriously object without waiting for the "hereafter." Are you acting like Peter Have you ever seriously considered the rest of verse eight? "If I wash thee not thou hast no part with Me."

Now just what did Jesus mean by "washing?" Did He mean baptism? No, for He makes that clear in verse ten. It is simply a matter of feet. These words, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with Me," must have struck deeply into the heart of Peter. Peter must have reflected a moment and in that moment there might have passed in quick review the experiences Peter had had with the Lord the past three years. Peter had had part in that marvelous ministry Had he not helped to distribute those loaves and fishes to hungry multitudes on several occasions? Had he not witnessed lame limbs gain full strength, blind eyes made to see, deaf ears to hear, and even the dead brought back to life? Why he had even walked upon the sea! Peter believed that Jesus was the Messiah and had hoped for a seat near His throne but now, now, "If I wash thee not thou hast no part with Me!" No part with Jesus? After these three exciting years, after leaving family ties and deserting his occupation all to follow this Jesus of Nazareth and just because Peter objected to having his feet washed by his Master, he hears striking to the very depths of his soul, "If I wash thee not . . . no part with Me." And then, with the impetuosity that was Peter's he implores his Lord, "Not my feet only, but also my hands and my head."

Why was it so important that Peter allow Jesus to wash his feet? Why did Jesus tell all of His disciples that night, "If I then, your Lord and Master have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them. (John 13:14,15:17). He sought to impress upon them the working principles of certain truths relative to growth in grace which they were to afterwards understand.

God's saints are saved by faith in the atoning death of His Only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ. It is not God's will that the moment we are born in His household of faith we should be translated out of this present evil world. He has a ministry for us to perform. Each and every child of God has a specific task which no one else can do. In this ministry, no matter how careful a Christian may live, he is bound to see and hear things which defile. The Lord can have no fellowship with a defiled saint, but He can and will cleanse him. This we know He does by our confessing of sins and by His forgiveness (I John 1:9).

It is interesting to note that our Lord on several occasions referred to His Word as having cleansing power. "Now are ye clean through the word which I have spoken unto you" (John 15:3). "Sanctify them through Thy truth; Thy word is truth" (John 17:17). The apostle Paul in writing to the Ephesian Christians (Eph. 5:26) says, "That He might sanctify and cleanse it (that is, the church) with the washing of water by the word."

How did I know that I was sinner bound for eternal death? By the Word! How did I know that after my confession of Christ as Savior I ought to be baptized by water? By the Word! How do I know I ought to wash my fellow saints' feet? By the Word! Certainly there is no promise of salvation in the mere exercise of water baptism but we submit because it is the testimony to our willingness to yield in burying "the old nature" with all its failings and fruitlessness and to rise up in "the new creation" with all its eternal possibilities and fruitfulness. Even so, in obedience to the washing of the saints' feet, there is no salvation in the mere performance of it but it is our testimony to the present ministry of our Lord in His continual intercession on our behalf. The Word not only shows us how dirty and defiled we may get in our sojourn in this God-defying world order but by the exercise of His Word we may be kept cleansed and in unbroken fellowship.

God desires all His children to be fruitful. He has made it possible that it can be so and He has given these three conditions for fruit bearing: 1. Cleansing. 2. Abiding. 3. Obedience. And here are the Lord's own words: "Every branch in Me that beareth not fruit He taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit He purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit. Now are ye clean through the word that I have spoken unto you. Abide in Me and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in Me. If ye keep My commandments, ye shall abide in My love This is My commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you" (John 15:2-12).

"Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only who so looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed" (Jas. 1:22,25).

WHAT A CHRISTIAN HOME MEANS

Facts prove that in the homes where both parents are Christians and members of the church, 66% of the children become Christians, too. Where one parent only is Christian and a member of the church, 33% of the children become Christians. Where neither of the parents is a Christian, only 10% become Christians.—Ch. School Promoter.

LISTEN, SPLINTER HUNTING CH...

Did you ever read this? "Why beholdest the mote (Gr. SPLINTER) that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam (Gr. RAFTER) that is in thine own eye? Or how will thou say to thy brother, let me pull the splinter out of thine eye, and behold, a rafter is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast the rafter out of thine own eye; and then thou shalt see clearly to cast the splinter out of thy brother's eye." (Matt. 7:3-5). Some things made even the Lord of glory grow bitterly sarcastic.—(Calendar Second Brethren Church, Los Angeles.)

White Harvest Fields

Senoras and Senoritas

OF ARGENTINA

By Mrs. LOREE SICKEL

The women of South America, our continental Siamese twin, are as little understood as her country is unknown. Very little has been written about her and though a product like ourselves of the great European melting pot she is less known to us than many who are racially much more different from ourselves.

The Argentine woman is very like us in manner of life, customs and dress, and if a group of these women were to enter your church service you would probably see them only as strangers and not foreigners.

She is lovable, impulsive, a lover of home and children, eager, ardent, patriotic and courteous. I have never found more wonderful hospitality anywhere than in some very poor homes of this land. On the other hand we find a lack of depth of character, characteristic of a land without the light of the gospel, an aversion to honest toil and too much love for the glittering show of life. Many mothers center their entire thought on having the home and family appear well.

I would take you with me today for a glimpse of these Argentine women at home, with her problems, and at worship. We are so glad to be back with them and would that you might know them a bit better and see them as we do here on the field today, just as needy and precious in His sight as we found them when we first came to the field twenty-three years ago.

At Home

It is said, and rightly so, that to know a person one must meet him in his own home life and environment. Let us take a peep into the homes. In every city there are beautiful modern homes where the most expensive furnishings are not too good even for the families who can ill afford them. Many times the finery goes into the parlor where it will be seen while the rest of the house is shockingly meager in its furnishings and cleanliness. A few doors away may be another of quite a different appearance. There may be found dirt floors with mud walls covered with cobwebs, perhaps one or two chairs and just the barest necessities of furniture for the bedroom and kitchen if there be one. Very often only one room is occupied by a whole family. Probably it would be quite true to say that one third of the people in Argentina live in homes poorer than the huts of the mountaineers of the United States. The horses and cows in our own country have better living quarters than several thousand of the people right here in Rio Cuarto.

However, these can not be considered as average. There is a home between the extremes of poverty and wealth that very closely corresponds to our own middle class. These together with the poorer homes are those into which your missionaries have access. The houses are of one story and of brick, built for the most part flush with the sidewalk. Some are cemented on the outside or plastered and others have the rough brick exposed. Frequently these are built on the dividing line between properties and can not, therefore, legally have any windows in the wall on the neighbor's side. A high brick wall completely encloses the yard with bits of glass cemented into the top as a reminder to intruders. The rooms are generally built in a row without connecting doors but with doors opening on to a patio. The kitchen is frequently a small room built away from the rest of the house. The average home has but one or two rooms.

The patio is the family living-room in both summer and winter if it be protected from the wind in winter and the sun in summer. Generally the only other place for entertaining the guest is the bedroom. The homes are not heated and a bit of charcoal fire placed in an old washbasin or other utensil, must keep shivering folks warm in the colder weather.

Frequently the finest furniture in the home is the bedroom suite. Mattresses and comforters are made from the crude wool as it comes from the sheep. The springs are of the flat variety, hard enough to suit the Argentine's taste who does not like our coil springs. The homes are not screened so protection from mosquitos is provided by equipping each bed with a huge mosquito net suspended by a collapsible wire frame from the ceiling.

It is surprising to a North American woman accustomed to the many Kress and Woolworth kitchen conveniences how anyone can possibly cook with the meagerness of equipment in the average Argentine kitchen. A kettle or two, a butcher knife, a fork and tablespoons make up the sum total. A cloth serves for a colander, a fork for an egg beater, a kettle for mixing bowl, a bottle for rolling pin; knife for peeler, spatula, pancake turner, fork for potato masher, an empty kerosene can for an oven, etc.

Charcoal is the fuel most used though a few homes have the luxury of a wood or kerosene stove and oven. Electrical appliances are little used with the exception of the iron which is gradually replacing the old, heavy, charcoal iron.

The women are good cooks though there is not a great variety of dishes. The most common are the national dish, puchero (a boiled dinner) tallarines (a meat and noodle dish, seasoned with onion, tomato and garlic) ravioles, which you at home can buy in cans if you like, and empanadas, (a small meat pie, quite highly seasoned). A meal is not complete without fresh fruit and soup made with some form of macaroni. They are very fond of fresh bread and in many homes the bread man delivers twice daily.

Breakfast consists of coffee and bread with butter and some kind of jam. Dinner is served at 11:30 and the evening meal very late so it is customary to serve afternoon tea. Mate, the national drink, is ready for serving at any hour if guests arrive or the family desires it. Frequently one person is kept busy most of the day serving mate to the different members of the family at their respective tasks.

Her Problems

The Argentine woman's problems are many, therefore we cannot touch on more than a few of them. Some of them might seem to be outside the scope of missionary concern, but they are not in fact. The one who brings the Christian message can not remain blind and unsympathetic to his people's problems and must work in a practical way to solve them.

Educational—Though it is claimed that Argentina has the best system of schools to be found in South America, nevertheless, there are not enough free schools to meet the need and thousands of children are turned away annually because there is not enough room for them. There seems to be little opportunity for the children of the country communities to get an education of the simplest kind. Comparatively few children finish all of the common grades and the number of girls who reach even secondary schools is small indeed. Only a very small percentage finish what corresponds to our high school course. An education has not, in the past, been considered necessary for a girl. As soon as she had reached the third or fourth grade it was considered more important that she be sent to sewing school. But that is changing and women are now demanding an education and leaders are realizing that opportunities for training that will fit the young woman to take her place in the world must be given. The influence of the gospel is shown in this field, especially where mission schools have been established. Parents who are not Protestant send their girls to missionary schools because of the kind of ideals that these schools are known to represent and many a girl has been reached for Christ. The great pity is that in many of these schools spiritual things have not always been given first place. We also are finding increasing interest in a better education for their children, among the converts, this is true for the girls as well as for the boys.

Social—Men rule supreme in the social life of Argentina. The world, including woman, was built for man if one were to judge from the customs. Men are the masters of all of life. Whenever a woman has ventured out from behind the hedges of convention to assert her rights she has had to face the ridicule and persecution of those who believe in the maintenance of a permanent male supremacy. We North American women can hardly realize just how difficult it has been for the Argentine woman to break through the walls that centuries of custom have built about her binding her to the home. But it has been accomplished and women are entering the teaching profession in large numbers. They are also going into other fields: medicine, law, pharmacy and science, in spite of prejudice and sentiment against it. Women clerks are replacing men in the stores, though a woman is still obliged in many places to buy such things as lingerie, hose, etc from a man.

Morals—The women of Argentina face a very serious problem. The womanhood of Argentine has her great realm within the home. The mother is expected to be the embodiment of all the high virtues associated with family life, but there are few, indeed, who dare question the man of the household regarding the virtues he embodies. Unfortunately there is widespread licentiousness and loose-living. Men who isolate their wives and daughters from all free contact with the world do not deny their own immorality nor do they consider their moral lapses as of any consequence.

The result of all of this has been accentuated by the fact, that in many places the Roman Catholic Church puts almost impossible economic barriers in the way of those among the poorer classes who would marry. Marriage by the priest is frequently made almost prohibitively expensive. Consequently many of those whose incomes are limited make no pretense about marriage at all. Under these conditions illegitimate children are born; little responsibility is felt for their care, the fundamental ideals of the home are shaken, and the social diseases take their toll of suffering and sorrow.

Religious—It would be impossible here to enter into this problem, the solution of which will affect all of her other problems. It is true that she has the symbols of the gospel. They are everywhere in evidence, along the roads, in the homes, in countless shrines and churches and cathedrals. But converts testify that they never caught the faintest ray of gospel light from the system to which they had adhered. The Bible is a closed book and Christ, the Life, the only hope for the women in any part of this world is unknown.

Only as the Argentine woman comes to know the truth as it is in Christ Jesus can she be free from her many ills—only as she knows the message of sin and redemption, of hope, joy, peace, victory and life abundant, eternal, triumphant.

At Worship

Go with me in thought today to a meeting held recently in the little branch mission here in Rio Cuarto. Here we find a group of women and girls to many of whom the gospel message is comparatively new, for work in this part of Rio Cuarto was opened only a short time ago. This is a special meeting; there are a number of women who have been attending the other services with great interest, and who have been contacted in their homes and the workers' wife felt that the time was ripe to gather them together as a group of women and girls and give them more of the gospel message. As usual a number of the children of the neighborhood came pouring in for they love to sing the gospel songs and choruses. With them came a group of twenty-seven women and girls. A few of them were women from the church here in the center but the majority were from the immediate neighborhood. It was the writer's privilege to give the message. What a privilege to stand with the Bible in hand before a group of mothers who have no conception of the meaning of a home with the Lord Jesus Christ in it (though saints they may have a-plenty) and girls so apt to go astray with nothing by which to steer their course, and have the high honor of interpreting the message of life, abundant-life, which comes with the possession of Christ! I wouldn't trade this great privilege with anyone or for anything that could be offered me. What a joy-surpassing all others with the knowledge that God has let me lead one of these dear ones to where He might be found. When the invitation was given five women responded—one little washerwoman, who just two weeks before had buried her little daughter, a victim of tuberculosis and two weeks before that the husband and father; two young girls from the neighborhood, one living in the house where the hall is located and who has never missed a service since its opening; a girl from a neighboring town and another mother.

The opportunity for testimonies is given and a dear Swiss lady whose growth in grace during the five years since she yielded to the Lord has been wonderful to see, testified in such a marvellous way to what the Lord had done for her. Would that you might have heard her grateful thanks for what the gospel has done in her life. There was scarcely a dry eye when she had finished. Another woman who had remained rather indifferent to the message asked that we come to her home and explain the gospel more fully, she was so impressed by the testimony that had been given. Another mother whose privilege it had been to know the Lord from her girlhood in another of our mission stations thanked God for what the coming of the gospel had meant in her life. And so one after another, freed from the darkness of superstition and ignorance they rejoice in the light as it is in Christ. Even as the little washlady testified a few days ago, "Praise God for the peace in my heart. I don't understand how it can be when I have just buried my loved ones but the Lord has taken the burden away and I am so happy in Him."

Many of these women, with such a small percentage of our privilege, would put us to shame by the length to which they go in Christian experience, devotion and sacrifice.

Surely you will agree with me that a blessed privilege is ours, not only for those who go, but for those who stay and make it possible for others to go, as we labor together fulfilling our Lord's command.

Don't forget that the present moment is the only one in which you have any promise from God that you may be saved.

Brethren Mission Station

By MRS. HERMAN KOONTZ

Introduction—Knocking at the Door of Oubangui-Chari

(Materials used found in "Undaunted Hope." Chapters 11-17.)

Flying two slogans, "First the pagans, then the Mohammedans," and "Oubangui-Chari for Christ," the pioneer missionary party of the Brethren Church reached Africa, determined to besiege the authorities until permission was given to take the gospel to this darkest section of a dark land.

Mrs. Koontz

Long before the leader of the party, James S. Gribble, had felt led to this section. He was fond of quoting a paragraph he had once read to the effect that Oubangui-Chari was of strategic importance in sending the gospel along its water ways and also in providing a barrier to the southward advance of Islam. He once said in a message to a church in the homeland, "To preach the gospel in Oubangui-Chari is a privilege angels would leave heaven to enter into—if they had a chance."

Many times this first party consisting of Mr. Gribble, Dr. Gribble, his wife, Miss Estella Myers, and Miss Myrtle Snyder, found the Lord able; in gathering equipment, in the long voyage in war infested waters, and finally across to Brazzaville.

In this city great kindness was shown them by the Swedish Mission. When Brother Gribble, who had remained behind solving baggage and other problems, reached them he found their first problem to be a housing one. After two places they pitched their tents on government camping ground. This so aroused public opinion that a house of sorts was found for them.

Then followed negotiations for permission to proceed into the interior, there to set up the Brethren Mission to the natives. They discovered they must apply to the Governor-General at Bangui. A time for the interview was arranged. The official made many inquiries into the business, plans and purposes of the missionaries. He finally said that he must write to Paris and endeavor to get them a special permission. In the meantime they could remain at Brazzaville although not allowed to do missionary work.

During the wait at Brazzaville Miss Snyder took up work with the Wescott Brothers' Mission, expecting to return to the Brethren work when the doors were opened. However, the Lord took her to Himself before the mission was opened.

At one time a wave of influenza engulfed Brazzaville and the nurse and doctor threw themselves into helping the sick and dying until they too contracted the disease.

With the coming of the year 1919 came news of reinforcements. The Rolliers, with their two little daughters, joined the waiting party. Mr. Rollier, with his knowledge of the French language, was invaluable in their communication with the French officials.

Here occurred another move to their tents because of the destruction of the house in which they had been living. Their time was taken up with studying the French language, with occasional nursing, with correspondence, and above all, with prayer.

At last the whole party received permission to take another step toward Oubangui-Chari, this time to Carnot, Moyen-Congo. They travelled on a little river boat called the Djah. While still travelling, Mrs. Rollier came down with fever, an attack which took her life, leaving two little girls motherless. She had offered up her life for Africa's evangelization. The remnant of the party, three of whom were children, went on still believing in the faithfulness of God.

Through a mistake they were delayed at Nola for six weeks; then they continued their journey to Carnot, passing through tribe after tribe who had never heard the gospel. Though they had difficulty in cashing checks they were provided with necessary things through the Lord's graciousness.

At Carnot they remained while the year 1920 was ushered in. Many were their difficulties. Funds were depleted; the house at their disposal was much too small; the new language was difficult to master, and they were surrounded by the two death bearing insects of the tropics, the mosquito and the tsetse fly. The general health of the party suffered much because of the climate; they were harrassed by maneating tigers; they had to live in tents with insufficient protection from the sun. They took as their verse, "It is good that a man both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord."

In the midst of trials there was one bright spot. Marguerite Gribble and the Rollier children were baptized.

On September 30, Mr. Rollier left for the states with his motherless children, leaving sorrow in the hearts that remained. It seemed that trial after trial was coming upon them for soon after Dr. Gribble became ill with an illness serious and long continued. Also for sixty-five days no mail was received. In the midst of all these testings came the long-desired permission to enter Oubangui-Chari with the gospel. In conversation the official mentioned the very place to which James Gribble's thoughts had so often strayed, the territory around Bozoum.

(This material is to be used as an outline for research in "Undaunted Hope.")

IS UNCLE SAM MORE LIBERAL THAN CHRISTIANS?

The government allows a deduction of 15% of one's gross income for gifts, yet how many of the Lord's people take advantage of that provision? It is estimated that the giving of the average Christian would be closer to 3%. Is it any wonder that the work of the Lord is suffering at this crisis time because necessary funds are lacking with which to prosecute the commission of our Risen Lord, to evangelize the world quickly in view of His coming soon. More is said in Paul's first Corinthian letter about giving than in any other book of the New Testament. He devotes two whole chapters of this letter to giving; as much space as he gives to the rapture of the church, and more than to many other subjects to which the Lord's people seem to attach great importance.

May We Introduce - - -

NEW VICE PRESIDENT

We are happy to present our new National Vice President, Mrs. Melvin Fisher of Flora, Indiana. She succeeds Mrs. W. A. Ogden of Los Angeles, whose ministry has been greatly appreciated by the Women's Missionary Council from its very beginning—Ed.

* * *

"Grace be to you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."

Mrs. Fisher

God has certainly opened doors unto "White Harvest Fields" to us. May we be faithful to our part of the great work He is giving us—trusting wholly in our Lord, who alone can give the needed strength, wisdom and grace for each new task.

Will you pray with us and for us, that we may be used mightily of Him in this coming year. Pray that great glory may come to His precious name through the work of the W.M.C.

Yours in His Name,

—Mrs. Melvin Fisher.

OUR FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Not by works of righteousness which I have done, but according to His mercy He saved me (Titus 3:5). How I do praise Him for His love that brought Him to the cross of Calvary to save me, even though I deserved the very opposite! "God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Mrs. Nickel

The Lord has been very good to me. I was brought up in a Christian home, a minister's home, where I early learned to love God and His Bible. Since finishing high school, I have attended and graduated from a Bible school. At present, my husband and I are students at Grace Theological Seminary preparing for service in Africa, D.V.

He gives strength to do each duty, and I praise Him for His grace. I know He will continue to lead in each step of the way.

—Mrs. Arthur Nickel.

Mrs. Jobson Writes - - -

Bozoum, par Bangui

September 10de, 1942

W.M.C. members:

You, of course, have heard of our safe arrival on the field and how marvelously the Lord delivered over many miles of infested waters. To Him be all the glory.

We are now at Bozoum and the Central Bible school is again in session (or rather the Bozoum seminary as so many of our dear sisters call it). There are thirty of our Christian workers enrolled and it proves to be the largest class we have ever had. We know you are remembering these servants of the Lord at the Throne of Grace.

Mr. Dunning from Yaloke Station is doing the teaching in the Bible School this month, while Mr. Jobson is visiting the different chapels and villages in Karre and Kabba lands.

Classes are being held daily for the women also. Quite a number of our Christian wives of workers are not able to read. This is to be regretted. Our hope and desire is that all who marry Christian workers should at least be able to read the Bible and hold classes for the women and girls who have not had the privilege of being in a reading class on the different stations. Won't you please remember the women and girls in prayer that they too, may have a desire and determination to learn to read God's Word. In that way they will not only be a real helpmeet to their husbands but a great blessing in His service.

Alice, one of our faithful women who learned to read when just a young girl, and who married one of our Christian workers has been a real blessing to many other women at one of our posts. Her husband is now in the Seminary, and she is one of the teachers in the women's classes here and proves to be a real servant of the Lord. May the Holy Spirit put in each woman's heart a real hunger to know His Word and hide it in her heart. (Col. 3:16) "Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly." Continue to pray for your black sisters across the sea. I am so glad to have Marguerite Dunning with us for the month. She, too, is helping in our women's classes.

Mr. Jobson has taken our typewriter along with him, I trust you will be able to read my writing. Am sending same via air, so it will arrive a bit sooner. At least we hope so.

We just received air letters from our dear children and do praise the Lord for the good news from them.

Sunday a large cement bridge that covers the Ouham river near here, and that we always must cross to go to Bassai Station, will be inaugurated. We expect the Governor and other officials to be here. It surely will make Bassai seem a bit nearer when we won't need to cross on the barge.

May you all have a most blessed Christmas and New Year is our prayer.

Lovingly in Him,

Isaiah 26:3 and Luke 2.

—Charlotte Jobson.

"He who points the clouds their course,
Whom winds and seas obey,
He shall direct thy wandering feet;
He shall prepare thy way."

BENEDICTION

Christ the Victory In Temptation

"I dare not be defeated
Since Christ my conquering King,
Has called me to the battle
Which He did surely win.
Come, Lord, and give me courage,
Thy conquering Spirit give,
Make me an overcomer,
In power within me live.

I dare not be defeated,
Just at the set of sun,
When Jesus waits to whisper,
'Well done, beloved, well done'!
Come, Lord, bend from the Glory,
On me Thy Spirit cast,
Make me an overcomer,
A victor to the last.

—The Verses of a Pilgrim (Springs in the Valley).

Let us imagine that we are soldiers fighting in a fierce battle. The enemy is Satan and his hosts. He uses as his weapons "fiery darts" in the form of temptations. His purpose is to cause Christians to stumble, and falter, and fail to do the will of God. The battle is one that is life-long, but not eternal. Will he, Satan, be the victor in the battle? No! "Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

We desire to show how Christ is our victory in temptation by the use of the following questions and Scriptural answers.

1. What is the source of the "fiery darts" of temptation?

The "fiery darts" or temptations, do not come from God. James 1:13.

Temptations come from lusts (desires). James 1:14.
Satan is the author of temptation. I Thess. 3:5.
Evil associates are the instruments. Proverbs 1:10.

2. Why does God permit our enemy to strike at us?
Temptations are permitted as a trial of faith. I Pet. 1:7.
Temptations are permitted to purify us. James 1:2,3,4.

3. What should Christians do in this battle?
Resist in the faith. Eph. 6:16.
Watch against temptations. I Pet. 5:8.
Pray to be kept from temptation. Matt. 6:13.
Restore those overcome by temptation. Gal. 6:1.
Avoid the way of temptation. Prov. 4:14,15.

4. How did our Captain meet the enemy?
Resisted by the Word of God. Matt. 4:4,7,10.
Overcame. Matt. 4:11.

5. How does our Captain give us the victory?
Christ knows how to deliver saints out of temptation. 2 Pet. 2:19.

Christ keeps faithful saints from the hour of temptation. Rev. 3:10.

Christ is able to succor those under temptation. Heb. 2:18.

Christ intercedes for His people under temptation. John 17:15.

Christ will not suffer saints to be exposed to temptations beyond their powers to bear. I Cor. 10:13.

Christ makes a way for saints to escape out of temptation. I Cor. 10:13.

Christ gives us grace to help in time of need. Heb. 4:16.

The story is told of the American Indians who believed that every foe tomahawked sent fresh strength into the warrior's arm. It was but a mere belief, yet how true the lesson for us—for we know that "temptation victoriously met increases our spiritual strength" (from Springs in the Valley).

As the soldiers go to the battle front, their captain instills within each man a feeling that he will be a victor in the battle. The capain urges his men to be victorious, yet he cannot promise them victory. But our Captain not only promises us victory, but something more, for "in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us" (Romans 8:37). Yes, even in temptation we can be more than conquerors through Jesus Christ Who loved us and gave Himself for us.

—Mrs. Phillip J. Simmons,
Listie, Pennsylvania.

HAPPY NEW YEAR, JUNIORS

We rejoiced many times during 1942 over the progress the Junior work has made. Just last month we had word of a new Junior Sisterhood at South Gate, California, and a new group at Berne, Indiana, who realized they were big enough to tackle their own job without the Seniors. We praise the Lord for these new groups, and we are looking forward to many more in 1943, especially in our new Home Mission churches.

But, we who are older cannot afford to curl up and sleep this year. We must keep on our toes so these new societies will not pass us on the road of success for Sisterhood and our Master. Now is the time to check your goals and to get an offering in for general Sisterhood work. Ask your officers to take some time during the January meeting to very definitely name and check all goals.

Then we should make a few resolutions. It is the customary thing to do and we dare not be different. So here goes:—

1. We will strive to be a banner and honor society.
2. Each member of our group will win the award for the merit system.
3. We will strive to interest more girls in Sisterhood.
4. We will do all we can in benevolent work to make someone else happy.
5. We will send in some news of our society, and share our ideas with others.
6. We will each strive to live closer to the Lord and be more willing to be used of Him.

Now, with those six we can start the New Year and give attention to a different resolution each month. When Conference time comes we may check our record and determine whether or not we are very pleased with ourselves.

Remember, our New Year will be just as happy as we make it. Keep smiling; keep trusting; keep looking-up; keep sweet!

With love,

—Aunt Mabel.

Holy-Smoke

By R. I. HUMBERD, Martinsburg, Pa.

"Holy-Smoke"—

These words were flung into my ears from the radio. A short time before I had spoken on "The Tabernacle in the Wilderness" and was thinking of the marvelous types set forth in its construction and ceremonies.

There was the golden altar which speaks of prayer. And there was the incense that speaks of the merits of Christ. No prayer can reach heaven that is not sweetened by the incense of the merit of Christ—Whatsoever ye shall ask "in my name." It is the smoke of the incense that wafts our prayers into heaven and makes them acceptable to a holy God.

"Holy-Smoke"??? There is but one thing these words can refer to and that is the smoke of the incense, and that smoke means the merits of Christ. Thus the radio speaker was taking the most precious thing in all the world and dragging it in the very dust.

"Judah's-Priest"—

A few days later my ears were again greeted with a mysterious word, "Judah's-Priest." What could they mean? Judah had only one priest. The priesthood belonged to Levi, and it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Judah. However, there was a proclamation that made Him a "priest forever after the order of Melchisedec." Thus Judah had only one priest, and He was none other than our Lord Himself.

I was puzzled. How did people come to use those words? Why do they not say "Joseph's-Priest" or "Blue-Smoke" or "Black"? Why do they say something that refers to Christ? Probably not one person in five hundred thousand really knows what those words mean, and yet they are in constant use about us.

The Mystery Explained

It all remained a mystery until a few days ago when the answer flashed into my mind. "Let your speech be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: and whatsoever is more than these is of THE EVIL ONE" (Matt. 5:37 R.V.).

And so it is that just behind the scene there dwells an enemy of our Lord, an enemy in whose heart there burns an unrelenting hatred toward that Name which is above every name. It was Satanic hatred that invented those words; it is Satan himself who now whispers into the ears of those who are too "refined" to openly blaspheme our Lord.

Verily, let mortal man beware, for "every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give an account thereof in the day of judgment" (Matt. 12:36).

Pondo Sees the Light

CHAPTER 13

A Continued Story Written for Our Boys and Girls By MISS MARY EMMERT, Missionary in Africa

SYNOPSIS

Pondo came home one day and told his father that he had found the girl he wanted for his wife. He courted her in the accustomed African style, and the dowery was discussed by their fathers. On the way home Pondo and his father considered the problem regarding which school, the bush or the white man's, Pondo should attend. Pondo preferred the white man's school.

PONDO GOES TO SCHOOL

Pondo found the mission school to be quite different than what he knew of the old men's school for boys. Six months had passed, and he felt that he had learned quite a bit. It had surprised him and his friends greatly to see that the school was not over in one month. The affair of learning the white man's writing was much more difficult than they had thought. In fact, many of the boys, who had come from distant villages, had run away and gone back home. The few girls who had ventured to come had all disappeared after the first week. In most cases their fiances, who were not of the fortunate number that had been selected for the school, had objected to their future wives knowing more than they did.

Pondo

"The 'road' to learning the white man's writing is a very long one," Pondo told his parents.

"What else do they show you?" asked Koly.

"They tell us that sickness and disease come from dirt for the most part, and not because of evil spirits."

"What?" ejaculated Koly. "Say that again."

"They showed us pictures of tiny, little animals that like to hide in dirt. They are seeds of different diseases. When we eat food with dirt in it we are swallowing those seeds," Pondo explained importantly.

"Did you ever see them with your own eyes?" Koly demanded.

"Yes, we looked in a machine and saw something queer. We were all scared to think of all those tiny things being in our blood."

"I should think so," agreed Koly. "It is much worse than evil spirits! What else do they teach you?"

"They talk a great deal about God," Pondo said. "It is a much bigger affair than we first thought. They say that God had a Son whom He sent to this earth to show people the way to heaven."

"Can people go to heaven?" asked Koly.

"When they die their spirits go there, if they are children of God."

"Our forefathers always taught us that the spirit leaves the body after death," remarked Koly. "That is why we build altars and offer sacrifices, in order to beseech our fathers' spirits to intercede for us with Bizon, the great spirit."

"They talk about Bizon, too," said Pondo. "They say that he is very bad and that we should not sacrifice to him."

"Yes, he is bad all right. But if one does not appease him, he will send great misfortune upon us. What is one to do?"

"I don't know," replied Pondo, as it was all very new to him. He knew that there were spirits everywhere. There might be one in the spring, another in the big tree, others roaming around loose. It took strong medicine to protect one from all these spirits and to keep on the good side of them.

"It will soon be hunting season," Koly was saying. "Did you see how they have prepared the village altar? They carried new ant hills to build the altar, and Gafo made new idols to put in front of them." The ant hills were a special kind of mushroom-shaped formation, hardened by a sort of cement excreted by the ants. They were about the size of a man's head and were substituted for rocks whenever possible. The white man, too, had found a use for them. He was making mortar from them for his new brick house, by pulverizing and sifting the dirt, then adding water to it.

"Yes, I saw the altar," said Pondo. "It is very good looking, indeed."

"Our people know how to make things nice," Koly said proudly. "I am going to arrange some sticks here today so we shall get good hunting this year." Koly had a small sacred grove of cactus trees by his house. A few bleaching bones hanging in the grove bore witness to his success as a hunter in past years.

That evening when Pondo returned from school, he noticed with satisfaction that his father had cut some short pieces of wood, about elbow length, and had stacked them up evenly, fastening them to several upright sticks. He was very proud of his work.

"See," he said to his son, "now we shall have good luck. We shall add this egg and some food, then pour out a drink offering to our fathers' spirits."

"What is the purpose of it?" asked Pondo.

"Why, the spirits of our ancestors will come and taste the beer and eat the food. They will be pleased that we remember them, and so they will speak to Bizon in our behalf, so we shall find many animals when we go hunting," explained Koly. "You saw the village altar yesterday," he continued. "You should have seen them add the sacrifice. In the old days it was death for any woman or child that dared to come out of the hut to look on during the ceremony. If a stranger came by that day they always caught him and killed him. His blood was then added to the sacrifice."

"That reminds me," said Pondo. "The missionaries say that God's Son gave His blood to wash our sins away."

"I don't understand," said Koly.

"They say our hearts are very black because of all the bad things we have done. I guess the blood is a sort of medicine to wash our hearts just like the white man's soap which washes his clothing," Pondo tried to explain.

"The white man has strong medicine," admitted Koly. "But I doubt if he could change the heart of a thief and keep him from stealing. Where is this medicine? Did you see it?"

"No," said Pondo, "I shall have to ask about it. Nearly all of us school children have taken the new affair, but we have not been put in the water yet."

"So you have taken the affair of the white man?" asked Koly.

"Yes, of course," answered Pondo. "Why not? They say that everyone who becomes a child of God goes to heaven when he dies, but everyone who remains a child of the devil goes to a very bad place where the devil will go, too, some day."

"But you went to the dance last night as usual," said Koly. "I heard that the children of God were not to go to the dance."

"The white man does not know what we do in the village at nights," said Pondo. "As long as he does not know, there is no affair."

"The ways of my fathers are good enough for me," decided Koly. "When I die I want to go where they have gone."

Questions

1. What are some difficulties of school work in Africa?
2. What did you learn about the religious beliefs of the Africans?
3. Did Pondo rightly understand the Christian religeon at this time?

NEWS BRIEFS From Our Workers

Brother J. P. Hollopeter has started a Bible Class in DuBois, Pa., which is not far from the Kittanning Brethren Church, and would greatly appreciate the cooperation of other Brethren in obtaining members. If you have any friends or relatives in that vicinity, please notify him at Rockton, Pa., so that he can contact them. Remember this ministry in prayer; perhaps, out of it may come another Home Mission church.

The following article was found in the Whittier, Calif. bulletin, which will interest the entire brotherhood:

"The pastor, Rev. Charles Ashman, sends this article taken from the August Ladies' Home Journal. QUESTION TO MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT. 'How do you think our boys who have gone to war, and risked their lives should treat conscientious objectors after the war?' ANSWER: 'I should think that the boys who go through the war, and who believe in what they are doing, would have a respect for a conscientious objector who had an equally strong belief that he should not kill other people.

We have put these conscientious objectors to work in this war. They are clamoring for more dangerous work which requires great courage, but not the taking of another man's life. It would certainly seem a curious thing to me if a boy were not able to understand, having had deep convictions himself, that other people have a right to equally deep convictions and that they should be respected'."

Please take notice of this important change of address. Dr. V. C. Kelford no longer resides in Waterloo, Iowa. Please address all correspondence to him at 165 E. Alvarado, Pomona, Calif. or Sunrise Gospel Hour, Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

When thou hast thanked thy God for every blessing sent,
What time will then remain for murmurs or lament?—

Houdini's Toes

EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER SHOULD READ THIS

Houdini, you may have heard, was a great magician; in fact, they say, about the best his profession ever turned out. It was never said of Houdini that he grabbed a set of "Rules for Budding Magicians," read them over and rushed before great audiences to do his stuff. Not Houdini. Take just one phase of his preparation for the stunts that made people catch their breath and marvel. Four hours he sat quietly at home training his toes (mind you) to tie and untie knots in a string or rope. Day after day of this and his feet could substitute for his hands, just in case his hands were tied up, as they were in many of his tricks; sometimes while he was in a straitjacket on the bottom of a frozen-over river.

Maybe it sounds beside the point to bring Houdini's toes into a lesson manual, but the story holds a tremendous moral for every Sunday School teacher; is it any less important that we as teachers properly prepare ourselves to stand before young lives whose eternal destiny transcends the amusement of many audiences? The answer unquestionably is "no."

HOW TO COMPARE!

Aunt Mary says—"It tickles me to see some old unbeliever pull out an old, lame, dwarfed member of the church, lay him down, measure by him, and say, 'Look here boys, I am as long, as broad, as thick, and as good as this church member.' Why doesn't the unbeliever pick out one of the grand and faithful believers? Because he would look like a rat terrier beside an elephant."—Sel.

When lepers touched other people, they became unclean. When Jesus touched lepers, even the lepers became clean.

"Let Us Go" - - -

By ARNOLD R. KRIEGBAUM, Pastor
FILLMORE, CALIF.

Rev. Kriegbaum

Certain of the Turks have been known to pluck out their eyes when once they have seen the Tomb of Mohammed, because they would not defile them by again regarding any common object. Does superstition move them to so admire the grave of a wicked imposter? Come now, let us hasten from the sight of mere vanity, foolishness, and turn to truth, which the ravages of time and the onslaught of men have not been able to conquer. Come now, let us turn from those who would steal from us the most precious thing in all the world, truth; let us turn from those who kill, merely to satisfy a passionate desire to slaughter that which is the ultimate victor, truth; and let us turn from those who would destroy, were it possible, the very faith that is as a fountain springing forth within us.

God help us to turn, and looking into God's word, read in Jn. 10:10, "The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

They were shepherds; industrious men; but so far as worldly goods were concerned, they were poor, and by the worldly populace they were forgotten; but God remembered them. We read in Lk. 2:8, "And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And lo, the angel (an angel) of the Lord came unto them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, let us go even to Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste—."

Let us go to that spot, as recorded in the Word of God, and we read in our text where Jesus said, "I am come." In the Greek we have ego elthon, which reads, "I came," which is an aorist Greek tense implying an action completed at a definite time in the past. In Jn. 6:51, Jesus said, "I am the living Bread which came down from heaven—." The first thing we see is that the Word of God teaches the diety of Christ. Through the eyes of the Word of the living God, we can see, even as did the disciples, that for which we can glorify and praise God. We see Him Who, "being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: But made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men" (Phil. 2:6-7).

We see the truth, that His mother, Mary, was the channel or the door which was chosen of God to reveal His Son to the world. He was "made" (ginomai) of woman (Gal. 4:4) and thus was "God manifest to the world. We read in I Tim. 3:16, "And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels,—."

Thus we see that the Jesus which the shepherds beheld in the manger in Bethlehem, was the manifestation of God in the flesh. From eternity past, he had been with the Father. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God" (Jn. 1:1-2). And that same Word, "came" and "was made flesh, and dwelt amongst us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth" (Jn. 1:14). And then there is that precious verse in Jn. 1:18, "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son (theos), which is in the bosom of the Father, He hath declared him."

God tabernacled with Israel, and revealed unto them the Word of His power, but they failed to comprehend. Not until that Word became flesh, and tabernacled in human form, did man begin to understand that which God had tried for centuries to teach His children. Believing that the Bible is the infallible Word of God, pure logic demands that one dare not confuse the diety of Christ and the incarnation of Christ. To divide them is impossible. One who accepts the incarnation of the eternal "Logos," must of necessity also accept the diety of that eternal "Logos." And too, one cannot claim the diety of Christ, and then question the manner in which that revelation of Him was given, for He declares openly His attitude toward the Word of God.

Praise God, for we see through the Word of the eternal God, a picture, which the shepherds saw in visible reality, the revelation of the Son of God, who being on an "equality with God," yet, humbled himself and came in the likeness of man.

God gives us revelation to put us into action for Him. Revealed to man that night was the Son of God, Who made for the turning point in the history of the world. O deep humiliation of the Son of God, the great Creator of the universe! And yet, behold the glory! When the shepherds were told of the event which had happened, and where it had taken place, they said, "Let us go!" Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judaea in the days of Herod the king, behold there were wise men, who seeing the star, said, "Let us go!" and they followed and came to the place where they found their Savior. Undoubtedly, we could say, as well, that the angelic host said, "Come, let us go," for suddenly "there was with the angel a multitude of heavenly host praising God."

Let us suppose that when the shepherds had heard of the birth of our Lord, they had said, "What at midnight! It is an unreasonable hour." If covetous, they would have said, "What would become of our flocks?" But no, these men who had left their beds to attend to flocks, left their flocks to inquire after the Savior. "Let us go," and find Him Who is the source of our Hope and Faith. "Let us go" and find Him Who came to seek and to save them which are lost, and take Him as our Lord and Savior, rather than go after this amusement, or that public meeting or that celebration, or that business meeting, or that personal interest, and let us go and see Him Who came and dwelt amongst us.

SOULS ARE IN THE BALANCE!

Saints who "Travail" for souls will "Travel" far for souls. Pray for them on your knees. Walk to them on your feet. Talk to them with your tongue. Show them Christ by your life.

Christian Endeavor Department

Dear Rev. Uphouse:

We greet you in the name of Jesus, our Lord and Savior.

As you know we are almost ready to move to our new lot here at Modesto and we are praising the Lord for the way he has and is leading us in our building program. And now since we are about ready to move, the Young People's C.E. society has a great yearning to see young people especially come to know the Lord out in our new vicinity. With the Lord's help, our society is going to do its best to bring the young people in so that they might hear the gospel.

We have a fine group of young people here at Modesto, and although because of war conditions some of our boys have been taken away, there are others rising up who will take their places. Some of them are just young ones in the Lord, but the Lord is helping them in a very special way and it makes us so happy to see young folks grow in the Lord.

For our devotional program at our C.E. meetings we are beginning to study "Bible Truths" by Alva J. McClain and I know we are going to enjoy it very much. There is so much to learn in that book that we are going to find out we didn't know.

We truly praise the Lord for all He has done for us this far and we are praying that as we go into our new vicinity we may be a blessing to those who will come to hear God's Word. Pray for us, won't you?

Yours in His service,

—Louise Cover,
President of the Y.P.C.E. at Modesto, Calif.

WAR DELAYS SOME SHIPMENTS

Dear Brethren In Christ:

Seasons Greetings!

We know that the delivery of many of your orders has been delayed, so we wish at this time to explain these circumstances which are beyond our control and earnestly pray that you will bear with us.

Because of the war, materials necessary for many of our supplies, especially Bibles, are limited, therefore many articles are now out of print, or temporarily out of stock until sometime next year. May we suggest that in ordering Bibles you also suggest a substitute or allow us to substitute one most nearly like the one ordered.

Also, please bear in mind that transportation facilities have been greatly curtailed, and that the mails are especially heavy now that the Christmas season is here, and that packages and letters are continually being sent to the boys in camp.

If after a reasonable time you do not receive your orders please notify this office.

Yours in His Service,

The Brethren Missionary Herald Co.

The Church and Revival

It has never been by learning, by philosophy, by science, by scholarship, that the church has been revived and saved in eras of great religious laxity and abounding infidelity. When Jesus introduced His religion into the world, He did not choose "scholars," but humble, simple-minded men, attached to Himself by a living faith, and endued with power from on high, to do it, as witnesses to His words, works, and resurrection.

So when we come to the later age of the Reformation, what brought the remedy for the unbelief and spiritual evils under which that age groaned? Not scholarship nor science, but the discovery in Scripture and faithful proclamation of the living gospel of the grace of God by Luther and his fellow reformers, men who had felt its power in their souls.

And once more, what rescued the church from the torpor and death of the negation of the eighteenth century? The deliverance came, not from philosophy nor learnings, not even from the works of able apologists, but from the tides of the spiritual revival that swept over Britain and were felt in other lands under the preaching of such men as Whitefield and the Wesleys. This it was which gave evangelism the victory once more over indifference and unbelief, and breathed the new breath of life into society which introduced the era of missions to the heathen, Bible diffusion, home evangelism, and the innumerable social reforms of the last century. It is to be like outpouring of the Spirit of God upon His church, and to the same divine energy manifesting itself in holy lives and practical work, far more than to learned confutations, however valuable these may be in their place, that we must look for the overthrow of the forms of unbelief that lift up their heads among us today.—James Orr.

The Seventh Man

One of the most touching incidents ever written regarding the former Prince of Wales, appeared in the "Library" magazine.

Frazier Hunt, the famous foreign correspondent relates the incident. The gist of the story is that the Prince recently visited a small private hospital where 36 hopelessly injured and disfigured veterans of the World War were kept.

He stopped at each cot and shook hands with the veterans and spoke words of encouragement. After he had spent an hour in this manner, the head nurse led him to the exit. Before leaving he said to the nurse: "I understood you had 36 patients here—but I've seen only 29."

The nurse explained that the others were so hideously disfigured that he was not taken into their ward. The Prince learning that it was in consideration of his feelings that he was not taken into the ward, insisted on being taken in.

He was led into the room. He stopped long enough to thank each soldier for the sacrifice he had made and to assure each man that neither he nor England would ever forget it.

When he had finished, he again turned to the nurse and said: "But I've only seen six men. Where is the seventh?"

He was informed that no one was permitted to see him. Blind, maimed, the most hideously disfigured of all, he was alone in a room which he would never leave alive. "Please do not ask to see him, sir," she pleaded. But the Prince insisted on seeing him.

Reluctantly the nurse turned and led the way to the darkened room. The Prince walked firmly to the bed. His face was white and his lips were drawn. In the dim light he looked down on what had once been a man but was now a horror.

Tears came to his eyes. Then impulsively he bent down and kissed the cheeks of the broken hero.

It was this tribute not only to this individual but to the Empire's 900.000 dead and to her million disabled men. Never was he to forget his comrades in arms. Never was he to desert or betray them. What grace on the part of the Prince to stoop and kiss what had once been a man but was now a horror!

Yet how much greater was divine grace on the part of the Prince of princes. the Lord Jesus Christ to stoop so low as to die upon the Cross for man who had been made in the image and likeness of God. but who by his sin became a physical. moral and spiritual wreck. The Prince of Wales couldn't change the "horror's" condition. but the Lord Jesus can completely change the condition of the helpless sinner, for He forgives, cleanses and saves.

He imparts divine life with its new nature, desires and power. The believer becomes "a new creation" in Christ Jesus (II Corinthians 5:17).

—Tom M. Olson.

Take your Bible to church with you. It identifies you, and always gives a testimony for Christ.

WHILE YOU ARE REMEMBERING PEARL HARBOR, DON'T FORGET JESUS CHRIST!

IF YOU KNEW — — ?

If you knew this was your last week on earth, how would you spend it? Where would you be on Sunday? How many people would you talk to about Christ? Would you want to spend your last week on earth as a tither? Do you know as much about the Bible as you would want to know, to go into His presence? Are there any "pet" sins you would want to be done with? Any envy or any jealousy?

How do you know this is not your last week? It will be the last to tens of thousands souls! And, you and I may be among that number!

ASLEEP IN THE LORD

MRS. FRANK A. (EMMA) GARBER passed away at her home near LEON, IOWA, Nov. 19, 1942, just two days after her 74th birthday. She and her husband celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Sept. 7 of this year.

She united with the Brethren church at Crown Chapel in the fall of 1894, and she remained an efficient, humble worker in the church until she became an invalid in March, 1933.

Merely to mention the names of her nine children impresses one with the great contribution she has made to the work of Christ, and especially to the Brethren Church. They are Mrs. George Cone, Belleville, Ohio; May Ruth who died in infancy; George, who was killed in an accident a few years ago; Elmer, and Mrs. Raymond Gingrich, twins, of Ohio; Samuel, of Grand Island, Nebr.; Mrs. Earl Peer, of Cleveland, Ohio; her twin sister, Angie, and Esther, at home.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, Sunday afternoon, Nov. 22, 1942, in Leon, Iowa, and burial was in the Leon cemetery.

—Miles Taber.

COW WANTS DRINK; GOES AND PUMPS IT

From Conneaut, Ohio, comes the following via United Press:

"Ona, a practical minded Jersey, 'uses her head' when she's thirsty, by pumping her own drinking water.

"With expert nods of the head, Ona can supply water, not only for herself but enough for the herd, and can even flood the barn.

"Stationed next to the pump, Ona, with the blunt end of her nose, can raise the pump handle and bring it down under her throat. Using these motions she has filled her bucket and repeated the process until she was full."

The thirsty sinner has NO pumping to do to secure the water of life, for the Lord Himself says: "I will give unto him that is athrist of the fountain of the water of life freely," (Rev. 21:6).

Will you use your head and take advantage of this opportunity of drinking living water freely?—Now.

WARTIME PRAYER

While war its wounds on Time's sad brow is branding,
 And earth-born peace from earth departs;
Thy peace, O God, which passeth understanding,
 Alone can garrison our hearts.

Only in Thee, our Rock and our Salvation,
 Anxiety allays in rest;
Only in Thee our Hope and Consolation,
 The living and the dead are blest.

Then keep us, Father, in these days of sadness,
 Quiet and confident in Thee;
Save us from fear amid the awful madness
 Of ruthless war o'er land and sea.

"FROM BALLROOM TO HELL"

A dancing master by the name of T. H. Faulkner, who ran a dancing school of his own for a time in Los Angeles a number of years ago, and who, through the death of his sister who had been blighted in the ballroom, was led to renounce his business and confess his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, wrote a book on the subject "From Ballroom to Hell." The following are a few quotations from his book: "It is a startling fact, but a fact nevertheless, that two-thirds of the girls who enter dancing schools are ruined before the year is out! Mark my words: I know this to be true."

"The following 200 were cases of girls who are today inmates of houses of ill-repute, and whom I talked with personally. They were frank in answering my questions in regard to their downfall, and gathered that they were ruined by:

Dancing school and ballrooms	163
Drink given by parents	20
Willful choice	10
Poverty and abuse	7
	200

I know of a select dancing school where in a course of three months eleven of its victims were ruined." —Exchange.

ONE MORE CHANCE

A man named Peter stumbled bad,
Lost all the love he ever had,
Fouled his own soul's divinest spring,
Cursed, swore, and all that sort of thing.
He got another chance, and then
Reached the far goal of Godlike men.

Your boy goes wrong, the same as he
Who fed swine in the far country;
He seems beyond the utmost reach
Of hearts that pray, of lips that preach.
Give him another chance and see
How beautiful his life may be.

Far-fallen souls, rise up, advance:
Ours is the God of one more chance.

"So does your Maker," was the reply.

A Christmas Message

This Christmas we know that in many homes there will be a touch of sadness because of the absence of so many sons and fathers who have been called into the service of our country. These men and boys have left their homes with all of its love and warmth and gone out to defend our country, homes, faith—our freedom to worship God according to the dictates of our conscience.

On a Christmas Day almost two thousand years ago another home felt the absence of an only son who, too, had left all the riches and glory of that home to give freedom unto men. Yes, God and all those who dwelt in heaven must have been sad on that day when the beloved Son left to dwell in the cold, dark world, for they knew what he was to endure and suffer. Yet, He, the Son of God, came willingly that day in the form of man, so that they might have freedom from the bonds of sin.

That same babe of the manger, Whose birthday we celebrate on December 25th, lives today to offer to men everywhere this eternal freedom.

"Peace on earth, good will toward men" was the heralding of the angels as they told of His birth. Although peace to the world seems to be a thing of the past, yet we who know Him have within our hearts peace, "His peace, which passeth all understanding."

This is our hope and our joy that should our loved ones in Christ be taken from us we shall see them again when He comes in all His glory to establish His kingdom. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

Cradle of Bethlehem - - STORM-CENTER OF FAITH AND UNBELIEF

By HERMAN A. HOYT, Professor, Grace Theological Seminary

Few men enjoying mental health and intellectual breadth would dare to fly in the face of the facts of history. And the cradle of Bethlehem is one of them, for the procession of years from this event stretches out in unbroken line of research, establishing and reestablishing this fact beyond all fear of contradiction. So sensible men must face the inevitable conclusion that there was a birth in Bethlehem of Judea some 1900 years ago, which was of such unusual significance that it has affected the course of history as no other event since the dawn of time.

It follows logically, then, that an event of such import could scarcely escape the mental fog that generally gathers about important events. Nor has the manger-cradle escaped, for the fog has descended upon the scene with such darkening effect that it has left men in a state of confusion, groping their way along, endeavoring to feel the touch of reality somewhere in the deep night. Some are voicing one opinion, and others another, and still others are expressing yet other opinions in the effort to explain this event. The confusion grows more pronounced. Nor do the unaided efforts of men to solve this problem meet with any success. Confusion, only confusion, is enveloping the minds of men.

Yet the faith that centers in and rises out of this cradle to march across the centuries in a continuous train of triumph is the faith of the gospel with power to deliver from the penalty, the pollution, and the presence of sin. But only an opinion taught of God arrives at this conclusion, and such an opinion alone is sufficient to explain fully and adequately the otherwise inexplicable mysteries of the cradle of Bethlehem. Nevertheless, reason teaches either the Babe in the manger was very God as He said He was, and we who now believe are not in our sins, or else this Babe was what men say He was and we are still in our sins, groping our way through the night of despair.

1. Certain events surrounding the cradle-event of Bethlehem cry out for some satisfactory explanation.

The universal element enters the picture in the prophecy uttered by Micah, and transports the reader into the heights of heaven from which vantage point one surveys time and space from the perspective of God. "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting" (Mic. 5:2). In this word we hear the Sovereign of the universe decreeing a time and a place when His ruler shall come forth.

The imperial element touching upon this event is the decree for taxation that goes forth from the city of Rome. "And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed" (Luke 2:1). And history reveals that this decree was first issued in 8 B.C. when Cyrenius was governor of Syria (Luke 2:2). But for some reason there was a belated execution of the decree, and not until several years later was it finally carried out. Thus this decree was perfectly timed so that the birth of Jesus and the execution of the decree would be at the same time.

The national element is evident in this picture when we note that the Roman government granted to the Jewish people the right to comply with the imperial decree according to their own customs. "And all went to be taxed, everyone into his own city" (Luke 2:3). This meant that, even though Mary and Joseph lived in Nazareth in the province of Galilee, they were both descendants of King David whose city was Bethlehem in the province of Judea far to the south. And since ancient Jewish custom recognized them as being of the city of David, the Roman decree actually sent them to Bethlehem to fulfill the royal law of Caesar.

The marital touch in this great picture is supplied in the persons of Mary and Joseph. For the future king of Israel during the millennium must be of the family of David in the line of the kings and there must also be flowing in his veins the blood of David. But to be the Son of God and at the same time the Son of David according to the flesh, with right to the throne of David, would have been impossible outside of the marital union of Joseph and Mary, for Joseph was the son of David through the legal line of Solomon, while Mary was the descendant of David through the line of Nathan. So in the virgin Mary, Christ was conceived of the Holy Spirit and thus had the blood of David coursing through his veins, while through Joseph's marriage with Mary he received royal right to the throne (Luke 1:32; 2:4).

And the personal element is added to the picture in the words of Luke: "And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her first born son" (Luke 2:6-7). The natural period of gestation in the bringing of a child from the point of conception to birth was fulfilled in the case of Mary and Jesus, just as in the case of the hundreds of thousands of babes that had previously come to birth in the natural way. The time of birth synchronized exactly with the decree for taxation in the place decreed of God for the birth of His Son. Unless a supernatural person made his appearance in Bethlehem there is no sufficient and satisfactory answer to these things.

Moreover,

2. All events issuing from the cradle in Bethlehem demand a sensible explanation of the cradle. For instance, no man lived like Christ lived, for His was a sinless life among sinful men. Now that in itself is sufficient reason to look for a sufficient explanation in the cradle. As Christ lived and moved among men, when all about Him was the sin of the race to which He belonged according to the flesh, He challenged the keenest minds among them to convict Him of any sin (John 8:46). And if His enemies could have found the slightest taint they would have done so.

Then too, no one ever spoke as Christ spoke. This was the testimony of the officers who returned to their superiors without the Victim for whom they had been sent (John 7:46). As He taught, "the people were astonished at his doctrine: for He taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes" (Matt. 7:28-29). His claims for Himself were of such character that they were either startlingly true, or else He was the wildest fanatic that ever walked; but the most popular teacher in Israel affirmed of Him: "We know that Thou art a Teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that Thou doest, except God be with him" (John 3:2).

And it was also true that no one ever died as Christ died, for He died like God. Many have been the brave and the true who, in the hour of death have displayed courage and virtue; but the death of Christ was all that and more. Heaven and earth seemed to bend low to witness this scene, and the sun hid its fact at the horror. But with all the horror attending his scene, the One Who died on the central tree died like a Victor, as though through this experience He was accomplishing some great task, for He cried out "It is finished," and a centurion standing by remarked, "Truly this man was the Son of God" (Mark 15:39).

Furthermore, no one ever rose as Christ arose from the dead. Throughout the Old Testament period there were those who were raised from the dead by the power of God applied through the channel of His prophets, but they were raised to live again in bodies that were unchanged, and later they died a natural death. Others, too, of the period of His own ministry, experienced the same resurrection only to die again. This was not true of our Lord. He died once, and rose once, never to die again, and according to His own words he confirms this: "I am He that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive forevermore" (Rev. 1:18).

To climax His ministry among men, He ascended as no one ever ascended. Enoch was caught into glory by the Lord; Elijah was swept away in a whirlwind; but Christ's ascension was different. At His resurrection He entered into His glory (Luke 24:26). This glory into which He entered was the cloud of glory which surrounds deity, in which cloud He was swept away into the heavens (Acts 1:9). It is Paul who declares that He was "received up in (not "into") glory" (I Tim. 3:16 R.V.). No other ever went away that way, which means that some explanation must be sought in the cradle of Bethlehem to satisfy reasoning minds.

33. Finally, note that a careful scrutiny of the cradle itself provides the only explanation. There was upon that occasion the visitation of an angelic messenger (Luke 2:9). As in the past, so now, God sends one of His ministering spirits to perform a special work of His on the earth. Some special act of judgment, of mercy, or of message, was usually conveyed by one or many of the angelic hosts, and inasmuch as every announcement of the coming Christ to Mary and Joseph was conveyed by an angel, it is not surprising that an angel announced His birth.

Humble shepherds were the recipients of this angelic announcement, which fact has produced much speculation among men since that day. Some have suggested that this was true because the common people had largely been deprived of religious privilege by the apostate leaders in Israel. Others think that this was ordered so because the leaders in Israel were corrupted and the faith was held in a good conscience only among the common people. These reasons are doubtless true, but events in recent centuries have revealed that these shepherds on the mountain side that night were temple shepherds, tending sheep destined for sacrifice in the temple. With the announcement of the angel was the good news that the Lamb of God, fulfilling all the types, was now born, and their task was finished forever.

The supernatural person was announced by the angel thus: "For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2:11). Reading the names literally they appear as Savior, Christ, Lord! Savior, the One Who came to meet all the sin of all the ages and deal with it; Christ, the One Who came as the divine Servant of the Lord to bring order out of chaos; Lord, the One Who stands as the Sovereign in time and eternity, and before Whom all intelligences must bow. This is the One Who lies in the cradle of Bethlehem and constitutes the only sufficient answer to the unusual events which gather about His birth, and which will explain adequately the life He lived, the words He spoke, the death He died, the resurrection He experienced, and the ascension that took Him away.

In this One alone resides the potentialities to reveal God, for in Him dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. In this One alone was there enough goodness to ransom mankind so that His work on the cross was sufficient for all, deficient for none, and efficient for those who believe. In Him alone is there the promise that the moral, political, economic, and spiritual chaos of earth will finally be done away and supplanted by order, and goodness, and plenty. Well did the poet write:

> "Oh little town of Bethlehem,
> How still we see thee lie;
> Above thy deep and dreamless sleep,
> The silent stars go by.
> Yet in the dark street shineth
> The everlasting Light;
> The hopes and fears of all the years,
> Are met in thee tonight."

THINK IT OVER

Two minister's wives were sitting on the veranda of a Canadian house chatting to each other as they mended their husband's trousers. "I can't understand," said one of them, "why your church is always prosperous, while ours is not." "Well," said the other wife, "if you were an observant person, you would have noticed that I am patching these trousers on the knees while you are putting patches on the seat!" The rest was understood!

AIM FOR A PERFECT RECORD DURING 1943

One of the conditions of membership in this church is: To support the work of this church by our presence at its regular services. No person should expect to be a member in good standing in this church, who is not sufficiently interested to attend its services, unless sickness, distance, or some such reason makes his presence impossible.

The above is from the church calendar of our Cleveland church. What is good for Cleveland is good for us also.

Talking about New Year's resolutions! If you are in the mood for them here are a few good suggestions:

1. Resolved, That we will start a family altar in our home this year.

2. Resolved, That I will be more faithful to the Lord this year and be present at the services in His house whenever I can.

3. Resolved, That I will not sit in the rear of the church when there is room farther up in front.

4. Resolved, That I will be more attentive to God's will for me and try to win at least one soul for Christ during the year through my prayers, and testimony, and personal contact.

5. Resolved, That I start the Biblical way of giving and give a tithe of my income to the Lord's work this year.—Wash., D.C.

REPORT ON

Home Mission Offering

First, we want to tell of Bethel Church at Berne, Indiana. This little country church laid $2400.00 on the altar for Home Missions in the Thanksgiving Offering and there is more coming. This makes a per capita offering of about $16.00 per member. We dare say that this will be a mark that other churches will have a difficult time to equal. This Berne Church is certainly a joy to the heart of God and an inspiration to scores of other congregations. God bless them!

Reports have reached us that Dayton, 1st Church, has $3000.00 in their offering; that our new North Riverdale Church not yet two years old has $650.00 with more coming; Flora Church, 3½ years old, has $700.00 of their goal of $1000.00; but the real thrill of large offerings comes from Dr. Bauman's church in Long Beach where they already have $4500 and expect to reach $5000.00. These are all the reports we have to date but they indicate an increase in the Thanksgiving Offering this year. We praise God for it as we have our greatest opportunities to spread the gospel in America.

When we refer to the above as "reports," we speak the truth for at this writing no offerings have as yet arrived. We hope that soon some shall come for mission points are waiting for their appropriations. And we are waiting for the offerings to come in!

P.S.—As we write this, word has just come that Conemaugh has $1 000 in their offering, Allentown, $500.00, and Meyersdale and Summit Mills, $650.00.

THERE IS A PEACE

There is a peace, though kingdoms fall and crumble,
A peace amid this hurricane of war,
A quiet peace that "passeth understanding,"
While chaos rages at our very door.

There is a piece, not bought by worldly honor,
Nor at the price of many millions slain.
But by the blood of One, God's Son, Who suffered.
And even now, He did not die in vain!

There is a peace deep down within the Christian,
A rock on which to lean in time of storm,
A lasting peace that will outlive the ages,
In spite of those who ridicule and scorn.

There is a peace! Let's cling to it and hold it,
In life or death, in days of peace or war—
That quiet peace which "passeth understanding,"
Though chaos rages at our very door.

—Alice Hansche Mortenson.

ISN'T IT TRUE

Too many people observed Xmas this year. They left Christ out of Christmas.

Brrrrrrrrrr but it's cold!! Say, are you the fellow who complained about it being too hot last summer to go to church and now it's too cold? Now just where were you between those "hot" and "cold" days?

PEACE FOR THIS WORLD—

We are told that when a certain disease takes hold of a wolf that it sets him mad and he starts fighting and snarling at all his fellows. As they fight, the disease spreads and the whole pack becomes a fighting, dying horde. What an illustration this is of this stricken world taken with the disease of sin, and death. Sin makes men fight each other, and die in ripping each other's throats. Sin makes them fight, brother against brother. The maddening, terrifying power of sin within them blinds them to what they are doing. For 6,000 years they have been killing each other in order to get the peace their hearts cry out for, all in vain.

Long years ago our Father God in great love and grace sent a peace commission from heaven to Bethlehem's plain. To all the world that heavenly host heralded the glad message,

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

That peace commission from heaven pointed the shepherds who heard the message to the place where they would find the greatest "peace emissary" ever known. They found Him in a manger—a strange place for a "peace envoy!" Yes, earthly peace representatives are generally housed in palaces, yet in that manger God had sent the only peace that men could ever know between themselves and Him, and between each other. For God knew that men's warfares were not due to something outside of them, but inside them. All the storms and troubles of the human life spring from the disease of sin that is eating out the heart and life of man continuously. So God sent His only Son to conquer the disease of sin for man, that through that glorious victory they could not only be at peace with Him, but dwell in peace with each other in love. And to think that after nearly 2,000 years, still this world of men is sin-diseased, warring, and fighting each other. God help us to tell this world today as never before that there is peace for the taking. Brother, the despairing hearts all about you need to know, no matter how bad things are in the world about them, that they can have peace—sweet, settled, eternal, inner peace—through Jesus Christ, the Prince of peace. So many don't know it at all!

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you; let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid" (John 14:27).

Thank God for His wonderful peace!

CHRIST THE DIVIDER OF MEN—

Thomas F. Woodlock, retired editor of The Wall Street Journal, recently wrote of world affairs stating that after all is considered, there is but one question which separates men into two camps in the world. That question is:

"Who was Jesus Christ? What do you think of Him: Was He the Divine Messiah promised as the Redeemer of the human race and as such part of the Godhead itself, or was He just another holy man, little different from any of the Prophets?"

No truer word was ever written. We do not know Mr. Woodlock's personal attitude toward Christ, but his keen mind has certainly discerned the real cause of the world's trouble. He has seen that which all the world's reformers, social planners, liberalists and modernists have failed to realize.

The basic cause of division within Christianity is now and always has been the estimate of the Deity of Jesus Christ, held by those involved. The basic cause of this present world catastrophe is the attitude of men toward Jesus Christ, the Son of God. The distinction has always been clear. Those who have held to the belief in Him as very God of very God have always been in the minority and the ratio is smaller today than ever. Thank God that in heaven those who worship Jesus Christ as God will not be in the minority. The other crowd just won't be there! The question that towers over the world of men today is,

"What think ye of Christ, whose Son is He?" (Matt. 22:42). The question that will settle the destiny of men at God's judgment bar will be,

"What did you do with Jesus which is called Christ?" Amen. Woodlock is right.

DEMOCRACY DYING—STATE CAPITALISM DOOMED—THEN WHAT?—

In a recent address give in Fort Wayne, Indiana, Will Durant, perhaps our most celebrated modern philosopher, spoke on the five revolutions now going on in the world. They are aviation, economic, political, moral and oriental. He remarked that "he feels in the air the dying of democracy due largely to the centralized authority of state capitalism. He said democracy began to fall in the U.S. in 1933. State capitalism began its rise then and has been increasing to the measure of providing for the present war effort.

He emphasized that state capitalism would increase in the days ahead, but would die by consuming itself. State capitalism demands a tremendous bureaucracy to enforce its system. This bureaucracy requires more state servants to collect more taxes to support the bureaucracy. Then it will demand millions more of servants to enforce fixed prices and wages. This new group require more taxes to support them and so on till the state has become so large that it has eaten up the country in order to live. He cited a Roman Emperor who tried this idea centuries ago, but who realized after four years of trial that it would ruin his country and so abandoned the scheme. Durant predicted that it would take 20 years for the U.S. to throw off the system of state capitalism that is now firmly established here.

So far so good as human philosophers go. But after state capitalism, then what? What will develop while it is still with us? In the nations where it has already been established it has been accompanied by severe persecution of the Christian Church. Just what it may do in this land is yet to be seen. But when a state capitalism goes, will America return to democracy? From the way power is being centralized into the hands of dictators and presidents and prime ministers, it would not be difficult to believe that after state capitalism will follow a greater centralization of power in Anti-christ. Certainly the stage is set for him as Rev. 13 describes his day. But the Christian is not worried about these things. He knows that first comes Anti-christ and then Jesus Christ. First the darkness and then the dawn. The world is getting darker, but morning light will soon be breaking when the "Sun of Righteousness" will rise with healing in His wings for a hell-torn world. Let us look up and rejoice!

CAN CHIANG KAI SHEK STAND THE PRESSURE?—

A late news dispatch declares that Chiang Kai-Shek, head of independent China, is now being subjected to tremendous pressure to forsake the Allies and join the Axis.

It is being insisted that he is standing with those nations such as Britain and the United States who let China sink and refused to supply the aid promised under the League of Nations when China, as a member nation was unjustly attacked. It is insisted that even now the aid she is receiving from the U.S. is just to keep her from going to the Axis and not to actually help her to independence. The contention is that the orientals have for centuries been dominated by the white race and that China can only expect the same in the future. The claim is that she is merely putting her neck back into the noose by helping to maintain those who have kept her in subjection.

Much of this is unquestionably true. Britain has exploited China and many other oriental peoples for centuries. The black pages of abuse and exploiting for gain in China, Malay, Sumatra, Burma and India are many. The U.S. has had little part in this aside from asking territorial rights and taking advantage in the trade of a backward people.

On the other hand Japan has little to support her attitude of friendliness and good will. Her record of conquest and subjection of China is fresh in Chinese minds. The awful crimes against the innocent people under guise of war are indelibly imprinted on the Chinese, but the call of race and blood are strong. The Chinese and Japs have a common blood and a common language, they have a common outlook on the world. Their geographical location makes their interests largely one. The challenge to unite all oriental races and seize world control has a powerful appeal. Undoubtedly these appeals will ultimately move China away from the Allies and into union with Japan and perhaps India. If Ezekiel's reference to "tidings from the east," and John the revelator's reference in Rev. 9 and 16 to the rise and sway of the "Kings of the east," are understood by us, the peoples of the east will yet unite in one great cause and bring about the most tremendous army ever assembled for the last great struggle with Anti-christ before the Battle of Armageddon is fought.

Some of these apparently unimportant news despatches may carry significant and far-reaching reports that indicate important events that will mark the end of this age of grace. Surely the signs are multiplying that make the heart of faith look up knowing that Our Lord draweth nigh!

THE CURSE OF CURSING!—

If there is one noticeable and characteristic sin on the increase today, it is that of cursing. When the writer was young swearing was confined largely to filthy phrases. Only the most reckless would use the name of God or Christ in their curses, but today the use of the names of the Godhead are prevalent. The tragic thing now is the way girls and women are using God's name in vain. It is bad enough for men to swear but when our women have so lost their respect for God that they use His name in cursing, to whom can men look for finer things? How could the memory of a cursing mother or sister inspire a chap to getting right with God and to forsake a sinful life?

Remember! He who bows lowest in the presence of God stands straightest in the presence of sin.

It is a significant fact that Hebrew is undoubtedly the original language. At least it is the oldest of all known languages. It is the language that God used to record the Old Testament. It is His language. Hebrew is the only language in which there are no words of profanity. This is most significant. The language God made has no capacity for cursing its creator. The other languages of the world are evidently prostituted to allow cursing. Cursing had to be injected into human languages by sinful man. It is the worst of practices; it reveals a heart that is a stranger to the love and grace of God. No Christian will practice it, for "from the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." If the heart of one who uses God's name in cursing bears the picture of the words the lips speak, what an awful picture that heart must be in God's sight. How is yours?

UNREPENTANT AGE OF MEN—

There has been for some years a movement abroad to promote a great revival. Some of our sincerest and most spiritual Christian leaders and laymen have devoted themselves to the idea. It is certainly a high and noble quest.

But, however our hearts long to see a great tide of conviction sweep over the souls of men in these dark and Christless days, the stern facts of world conditions seem to indicate just the opposite. Instead of wars and troubles and tragedies turning men's hearts to God, they seem to turn the other way. Men seem to be criticizing the church and mocking at Christianity as a failure. Young people with pockets full of money to spend are pouring into places of sin and fleshly indulgence. Even older people seem to have been caught in the wave of abandon and are going the way of Nineveh. Mothers are deserting their families and working in defense factories while the home and children run wild. Whole families by the thousands have been moved to new defense communities, away from all spiritual connections, with the result that they are drifting from God. Caught in a wave of recklessness along with countless others in the same situation, they plunge on, forgetting God. We have talked to these people by the hundreds and find them utterly indifferent to God and eternity. One pastor recently said of such in his community, "You simply cannot phase them. The just won't listen to you."

It is out of such a background that the spirit of resentment comes when tragedy stalks the land. That is the harvest of unbelief that is shown in Rev. 16:8-11.21 when, in spite of all their buring agonies men will blaspheme God instead of repenting. It is no light thing when men reject Jesus Christ!

PAYING OUR DEBTS

"I saw a man go about in broad daylight with a lighted lantern. 'Is Sing, the fish dealer, crazy?' I asked a friend. 'Oh, that is only a custom,' was the reply. 'It means that he has not been able to pay his debts, and must carry a lighted lantern everywhere until he has done so. Chinese New Year began yesterday; but for him the New Year has not dawned—and it is still midnight of the old year. He may exchange no New Year greetings until he has settled up his old accounts; nor can his friends greet him'." Suppose it were necessary in the Lord's work to carry a lantern until we could render unto the Lord what we know down deep in our hearts is His due! How many of us would have to remain in 1942 overtime?—(Phila. Bulletin.)

Founder's Week Conference Schedule

High-ranking spiritual advisers to the United States Army and Navy, as well as internationally prominent evangelical leaders, will discuss the part Christians play in time of war, at the thirty-seventh annual Founder's Week Conference to be held February 1 to 7 at Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Thirty speakers will address the conference, held each year in celebration of D. L. Moody's birthday. Those on the program are Capt. R. D. Workman, chief of chaplains, U. S. Navy; Col. Alva J. Brasted, former chief of chaplains, U. S. Army; G. Ritchie Rice, British Ministry of Supply; H. A. Ironside, Litt.D., internationally famous Bible expositor; the Rev. William Culbertson, D.D., Institute dean, formerly bishop, Reformed Episcopal Church; the Rev. Philip H. Clifford, S.T.D., noted pulpiteer.

D., internationally known Bible teacher; the Rev. James McGinlay, Scotch-Canadian evangelist; the Rev. Louis T. Talbot, D.D., Los Angeles; the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith, member of the Institute faculty and editor of Peloubet's Notes on the Sunday School Lessons; the Rev. Reuben A. Torrey, missionary to China; Mrs. Arthur F. Tylee, former missionary to Brazil, whose husband and child were slain by South American Indians.

The Rev. Vance Havner, Bible teacher and author; the Rev. Robert T. Ketcham, Waterloo, Iowa; Max I. Reich, D.D., director of the Institute's Jewish Missions Course; the Rev. E. C. Sheridan, D.D., Augusta, Ga.; the Rev. Clarence M. Keen, Toronto; the Rev. Howard E. Hansen, D.D., Colorado Springs; the Rev. W. W. Shannon and the Rev. M. A. Guido, evangelists; the Rev. Robert Cook, LaSalle, Ill., and others.

The Rev. Will H. Houghton, D.D., president of Moody Bible Institute, will preside.

In issuing his call to Founder's Week Conference, Dr. Houghton says: "All through the years pastors, evangelists, missionaries, and laymen have found new vision and new power out of these gatherings. Vision and power are needed today as never before. Churches and pastors are facing problems they never dreamed of a year ago. There will be some special sessions of ministers for the discussion of these practical things, as well as sessions for inspiration and instruction."

The Lord I love went on ahead
To make a home for me, He said,
He would come back again, and He,
O gracious love, He wrote to me!
He knew I was so weak and blind
And foolish that I could not find
The road alone, He told me things
That all earth's wise men and its kings
Have never guessed, Yet I foreknow
If I but read His word. And O,
Such depths of love on every sheet!
My soul is trembling at His feet.

What would He think of me
If, when I saw Him, I should say,
"I was too busy every day
To read what Thou didst write to me;
I really hadn't time for Thee!"

Across the Nation

WITH OUR SECRETARY

After the dedication of the beautiful new building at North Riverdale in Dayton on November 1st, we returned to the office to assemble and mail out the Thanksgiving offering literature. This would not have been anything unusual, except for the fact that Miss Kimmel, our office secretary, sustained a broken jaw in the process of a dental operation to remove a wisdom tooth. This laid her up completely. As a result the secretary had all the work to do alone. Not being so expert at the task, we spent a solid week and sometimes late into the night to get it all out to the churches in time for the offering. Miss Kimmel is getting better and in spite of a heavy bandage on her head, is carrying on her work in the office.

Revival At Waterloo—

(See page 15 for pictures)

After the Thanksgiving offering material was mailed, we left at once for Waterloo, Iowa. We were scheduled to start Sunday morning November 8th, but we missed that service and started with the evening service.

This was the first time we had ever experienced a campaign with the Eureka Jubilee Singers doing the singing. To say that we enjoyed the experience puts it mildly. We shall never forget it. They can lift the dullest audience into a spirit of ecstacy. They broke down prejudice and made it easy to preach.

The members of the cast are all pleasant and sweet spirited and are a benediction to any church. Miss Gaskin, the conductor, has built a really wonderful musical organization for the singing of the gospel in their own characteristic way. We hope to have them with us in a campaign again soon.

Our Waterloo Church could hardly have a better location. On a fine avenue, across from a new school building in a new community of hundreds of newly built homes, it is right where good judgment would place it.

But location is not all. Given all the proper conditions, yet it may be hard to really win a community's interest. Satan is ever at work to hinder and hurt the work of the gospel and he has been busy in Waterloo. But prejudice, opposition, and indifference are being broken down and real progress is just ahead.

There are some of God's finest people in our Waterloo Church and God can use them for a great testimony. They were mighty loyal during the meetings in attendance, in giving, and in prayer.

Dr. J. C. Beal has been pastor of this young congregation for the past year and has done an excellent work of harmonizing the people and in laying a spiritual foundation for their faith. Many were the expressions of appreciation and esteem that we heard regarding his excellent work as a Bible teacher. We are glad that these people have been privileged to share his deep ministry of the Word. It was a real pleasure to fellowship with him again in a campaign. It has been quite some years since we were together in a meeting in Canton when he was pastor there.

The Waterloo Church has a real field, and a spirit to reach it for Christ. We enjoyed our meeting there and the pleasant stay we had with Brother and Sister Ed Schrock. There is a real future ahead in Waterloo.

With the Motion Pictures—

After closing the meeting at Waterloo, we visited the churches at Leon, Dallas Center, and Pleasant Grove, showing our new Home Mission motion pictures. It was the first time they had been shown, and the effect was wonderfully favorable. We have received more praise for these than any we have shown. They seem to show the progress in the establishment of a new church better than any others.

After returning to Berne, we showed the pictures at Dayton, (1st Church), at North Riverdale, and also at Bethel Church at Berne. If gas allowance will permit it we plan to visit all of our eastern churches with the pictures this winter.

Fremont Is Building—

Word has just come that permission has been granted by the W.P.B. for our Fremont congregation to go ahead with their building. This is cause for great rejoicing for answered prayer. But much of the credit goes to Brother Bob Culver for his tireless efforts to this end. Denied permission by the local board, yet believing his cause just, he turned to the national headquarters in New York City. He even made a trip to New York to present his case. Prayer and work made a fine combination. In spite of war and restrictions God turns public servants to work in His favor. Let us all rejoice and take courage. God is at work in Home Missions today.

Grace Seminary Next—

On Tuesday, December 2, we drove to Winona Lake to care for a number of matters relating to the contest over the will of our late Brother William Johanson. While there we showed the new Home Mission pictures on Tuesday evening. On Wednesday morning we spoke to the student body. It is a real joy to speak to them now when there is such a fine large group. Surely God's hand is upon the school.

Many of our readers will be glad to learn that we found Dr. McClain much better. He is up and around the house and shows much improvement, but he has not yet been able to return to work at the Seminary. A good rest after he is completely recovered is essential as we see it.

One Priest alone can pardon me
Or bid me, "Go in peace,"
Can breathe that word "Absolvo te,"
And make these heart throbs cease;
My soul has heard His priestly voice;
It said, "I bore thy sins, Rejoice!"

Around the Council Table

COMPTON, CALIF.

There has been a hum of real activity about the Compton Church for the last few months that is making the Community sit up and take notice. New lawn has taken the place of weed patches, a fine bulletin board has been erected, and other exterior improvements made. Classrooms have been finished, and larger rooms subdivided for more rooms. Outstanding speakers have appeared on the program, among whom were Dr. R. E. Neighbor, Dr. Kenneth Monroe, Dr. John C. Page, and Dr. Harry Vom Bruch. The church has been host to the Brethren Young People's Convention, and the district Brotherhood meeting, and other profitable events. Things are going on. Now within the next few weeks, cement sidewalks are to be laid around the church and the Sunday School bus is to be painted, and more classrooms are to be begun. We are paving all our bills as we go. Finances have never been better, and the greatest Home Missions offering ever is in prospect.

But, you say, these are external things; what are the spiritual accomplishments? There have been real decisions for Christ, and real victories won. They have not been as numerous as we would like, but God has given tokens for good, and has placed his divine seal of approval upon the work. The prospects are better than ever before. There are still many obstacles, and much prayer is needed, but there is still a great God able to meet every need and solve every problem. We at Compton praise Him for His blessings, past, present, and future.

—Ralph J. Colburn, pastor.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

"Blessed be the Lord who daily loadeth us with benefits," is our testimony from the First Brethren Church in Cleveland. This verse we quote is found in Psalm 68:19 and reads thus in the Revised Version. Surely we can say that we have a great God Who hath wrought some wonderful works. But another thought suggests itself when we read this verse in the original, namely, "Blessed be the Lord Who daily beareth our burden, or is burdened for us." What a wonderful blessing it is to know that in this needy city of Cleveland, largely Catholic and Jewish, with all but a few Protestant Churches denying the Faith Once For All Delivered to the Saints, our God is burdened for us. We know that He is more interested and concerned about this work than we could ever be, and with His promise, "Lo, I am with you always," we are going ahead, with the Captain of our salvation leading us.

The effects, of the revival meeting we enjoyed with Dr. V. C. Kelford and son, Rev. Trevor C. Kelford in the month of July are by no means over. Our church experienced a real heaven sent revival, not one that was worked up, but one that was prayed down. Over 450 visitors were in attendance at the meetings during the two weeks of services. A number of young people accepted Christ, also 2 adults. Dr. Kelford and son were greatly impressed with the fine group of young people we have, and encouraged us to make this a real young people's Church. We are rightly proud of our young people here, for never have we seen a more loyal and zealous group of young people for the Lord. They attended the services regularly, many having a perfect record for the two weeks.

Since these services, we have organized a young people's meeting called, "Crusaders for Christ." What a joy it is for the pastor to have been invited to be the advisor for this group, and share the blessings these young people enjoy in their meeting every Sunday evening, preceding the Evangelistic Service. They are now taking up a series of studies on, "How We Got Our Bible." They are anxious to be thoroughly equipped in order that they "might be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh them for a reason of the hope that is in them with meekness and fear." Two weeks ago, 18 of these fine young people were present, among whom were several who were unsaved, and all stayed for the evening service too. Most of these young people go out every Saturday night and pass out tracts, and invitations to our services. That is proving to be a worthy ministry, it makes our testimony known, and above all the Word of God is gotten out.

The Lord is sending us much-needed workers, for that has been our greatest need here. Several are now attending, and are planning to come into our church who love to work with children and young people. They are very efficient workers, one a returned missionary from China. Shortly we are expecting to have a good number of Child Evangelism classes started, both in the church and also in homes near the church. These will act as a feeder for our Bible School and will lead up to our Daily Vacation Bible School the next summer, the Lord willing. The people in the community were so impressed with the school last summer that they are still talking about it and are already asking about the next one. We had over 100 people for the closing program who had never been inside this church, and most of them live very near. All this has us convinced that a little child shall lead the adults, and therefore we are concentrating on the younger ones.

The future is bright, and even the dreaded "gas rationing" is not worrying us at all. This is only awaking us to the fact that we too long have scattered our interests and energy away from the church, rather than doing a thorough work with people who live right at our very door steps who are hungry for the gospel of Jesus Christ.

The challenge to the Brethren Church in Cleveland is a great one. In the Heights, where we are located, a population of 50,000 people, ours is the only fundamental church, and hence also the only one whose light shines on Sunday evening. Pray for us, that in the power and strength of our great Saiour, we might earnestly contend for the Faith, and that a strong testimony to the glory of God may be erected in this needy city.

Yours Because of Calvary,

—Walter A. Lepp.

DAYTON, OHIO

NORTH RIVERDALE BRETHREN

We have completed a very busy and profitable chapter in our history. Dedication is full of meaning as well as hard work. We found hundreds of things to do before the glad day of Nov. 1, 1942. Our many friends made possible a happy time throughout the day. There were over 300 persons present in the afternoon and nearly $2,000 raised for the building fund.

On Sunday evening of Nov. 1, Brother Charles W. Mayes started a two weeks' series of meetings. It was a blessing to have had him here. His messages were clear and beneficial. His faithful emphasis upon the precious doctrine of salvation and victorious living shall never be forgotten. There were seventeen decisions for the Lord, eight being baptized in our new pool during the meetings.

The ministry of Brother Mayes was also appreciated because he was tireless in visitation. He was always ready to go into homes and present the plan of salvation. I was impressed at his constant use of the Bible in personal work.

The members of the First Brethren together with their pastor, Brother R. D. Barnard, helped us generously. They maintained interest all along and gave of their money that we could have these blessings.

Our opportunities here are many. Sympathetic friends are coming our way. We have no unsavory past to live down. Certain brethren crept into the community to make false statements about us. They accused us of secession, while it was true of themselves. As a result and to clarify the relationship, the First Church graciously allowed an article to be circulated in a newspaper. We had 2,500 reprints made and passed through the community.

Dayton is a boom city now. People are here within reach. I share the opinion of Brother Barnard that we need at least two more Brethren Churches in the city. Our next move ought to be in the East or South as the Lord leads. Pray for us.

We have a growing Bible School under the direction of Brother Roy Kinsey. Last Sunday we had 106 present for Bible School. We plan for two C.E. Societies this week. When you come to North Riverdale, stop to visit us. The church is located at 4101 N. Main St., and the parsonage at 61 Cliff St. Your interest in prayer and finance have aided greatly. We tried to spend money wisely and conservatively, all for the glory of the Lord.

Yours in Christ,

—Norman H. Uphouse.

NORTH RIVERDALE, DAYTON

It was my privilege to be present at the new North Riverdale Brethren Church for a two weeks' meeting. The special series of meetings began Nov. 1, after a great dedication service in the afternoon. We are thanking the Lord for the many evidences of His presence.

It was a pleasure to work with the pastor, Brother Norman Uphouse, and the splendid people. They had done fine work in preparation.

The new North Riverdale church building is an outstanding example of how beauty and efficiency can be combined. Much of this is due to the labors and wisdom of some of the men of the congregation. We will leave the description of the building to others.

The opportunities before this new congregation are unlimited. There are thousands of homes near in a section which is in no wise overchurched. The people of the congregation are of a mind to work, many of them having come from the First Church where they have held places of responsibility.

The pastor knows his community well, having in his possession a great volume of information concerning a great number of homes in his section. Mrs. Uphouse is most faithful in carrying her part in the work. She shares the burden of the work of the congregation with her husband besides assisting in the music both in playing the piano and in singing. It was a pleasure to be entertained in the Uphouse home for two weeks.

Since Brother Uphouse has a systematic understanding of the Word of God and has ability to present it to others, we feel that the congregation is getting a reputation for a Bible teaching ministry. Such is the only type of ministry which can meet the need of a post-war period if our Lord leaves us here that long.

We are glad to note the splendid cooperation between this new church and the First Church. Some from the latter were present at practically every service. We are glad that the First Church and her pastor, Brother R. D. Barnard, have a real program of extension on the move.

The writer is grateful to the Lord for the fellowship of this faithful company of believers. We look forward to the glory.

In the blessed hope,

—Charles W. Mayes.

HE IS COUNTING ON YOU

He is counting on you!
On a love that will share
In His burden of prayer
For the souls He has bought
With His life-blood, and sought
Through His sorrow and pain
To win "home" yet again.
He is counting on you;
If you fail Him—
What then?

He is counting on you!
Oh, the wonder and grace
To look Christ in the face
And not be ashamed,
For you gave what He claimed,
And you laid down your all
For His sake—at His call.
He is counting on you;
And you failed not.
What then?

A hundred years ago Daniel Webster uttered this solemn warning:

"If religious books are not widely circulated among the masses of the country . . . I do not know what is to become of us as a nation. And the thought is one to cause solemn reflection on the part of every patriot and Christian.

"If truth be not diffused error will be.

"If God and His Word are not known and received, the devil and his works will gain ascendancy.

"If the evangelical volume does not reach every hamlet, the pages of a corrupt and licentious literature will.

"If the power of the gospel is not felt through the length and breadth of the land, anarchy and misrule, degradation, and misery, corruption and darkness, will reign without mitigation or end."

How Radio Ministry Helps My Work

By LEW L. GRUBB, Pastor, Hagerstown, Md.

"Wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience." We believe that Satan is the "prince of the power of the air" according to the Word of God, but we are also mightily convinced that there is One Who is greater and wields enough power through His Word to break that Satanic control under any circumstance. As the fabled knight turned his enemy's sword to the death of its wielder, shall we not fight the "prince of the power of the air" with his own weapon? Satan has used the air waves to consistently publicize his wares, and to lead countless thousands into deeper lives of sin. Why have we sat idly by for all these years and allowed Satan to use the greatest single weapon God has given us for the preaching of the gospel? We hesitate not to say that not only ever Brethren Church, but every other church with a gospel message, should be on the air with that message, if at all possible. The following statements will produce some undeniable proof of the truth of this statement from my own experience.

Rev. Grubb

First; as our basic purpose in the ministry is to claim the blessing accruing to those of whom it is said, "He that winneth souls is wise," we have reached in Hagerstown and vicinity, throughout the entire station coverage, thousands of souls with the message of the gospel who otherwise would not hear it. Time after time letters have been received indicating that the gospel had made an impact upon a heart which had been stony before. Men who would fight to the death to keep from being dragged into a church will sit in their own home and listen to a gospel broadcast. Especially in this day those who have no means of transportation to and from the Lord's house can still receive spiritual food through the radio ministry. Frequently we have been called to minister as a pastor in the homes of those who had no connection with the church.

Backslidden Christians who are many times ashamed to return to the church where their sins are best known, will hear the restorative call of the Spirit of God through the radio. In other words, broadcasting the gospel is a greater obedience to the command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

Second; the radio ministry is the finest method of publicizing the work of any local church. What that church stands for will be inevitably reflected in that broadcast. This is especially helpful in Home Mission work where the baby mission is struggling for its existence, and needs most help when the least is available. Men and women who love the gospel will flock to such a church and lend a helping hand by their dedicated efforts and gifts. Literally scores of men and women have attended our services as a direct result of hearing the radio broadcasts. We know this to be a fact by their actual statement. While men were sitting back and doubting our ability to live as a church, at the same time they were being convinced by the radio ministry that we were very much alive.

There is no finer method of advertising special meetings. During special services we have asked for evidence of those present because of hearing a radio announcement. Always there has been a substantial response. The whole dedicatory service of our Home Mission church, one hour in length, was placed on the air and broadcasted over a hundred miles of territory. Subjects for regular stated services are always broadcast with the result that many come to hear special themes who may not come otherwise. Radio advertising is of the best.

Third; any church will grow far more rapidly by the radio ministry. By actual facts we know that much of the marvelous growth of the Lord's work here must be attributed to this factor. One of the finest investments the Home Missions Council ever made was in partial support of a radio program for this Home Mission point. For two years the "Heralds of Grace" broadcast has sent out the gospel message. That work has so expanded that today there is a daily broadcast of fifteen minutes, two and sometime three on Friday, which go forth on their errand for Christ direct from the beautiful auditorium of the Grace Brethren Church, which is a perfect radio studio. The radio ministry grows ahead of the church, and continually provides raw material for the expansion of the wor. Broadcasting direct from the church carries an important psychology with it by connecting the church inseparably with the broadcast, and providing a delightful and appropriate environment for the message. Broadcasting will never lose its mysterious power over the average mind, and thus is a novel ministry for any congregation which does not wear out. If you want your church to grow faster, do a little sacrificing, step out on faith, and go on the air for Christ!

Fourth; an added benefit of the radio effort has been the increase and training in sacrificial giving among the members of the church and the friends of the broadcast. God has blessed us with a singular group of givers here in Hagerstown, and a group of men and women with the vision of faith. Those sterling qualities have only been increased and amplified by the heavier responsibility of radio work. We pay almost a regular, commercial price for each broadcast.

Fifth; preacher, if you want a keen edge on your ministry, go into the business of broadcasting on a full scale, and God will bless you with a greatly expanded ministry, a mind which realizes that there is something which must be done, and ON TIME, and a new vision of the lost and dying by the thousands all about you.

Broadcasting the gospel pays; we have proved it, especially in respect to a Home Mission church. Brethren, let us get into this ministry of preaching the gospel over the air while there is yet the opportunity!

Manlike it is, to fall into sin;
Fiendlike it is to dwell therein;
Christlike it is for sin to grieve;
Godlike it is all sin to leave.

—Longfellow.

Jesus Christ never turns a deaf ear to any sincere prayer from one of His children.

Christian's Relation to Human Government

Address Delivered at National Conference

By CHARLES A. ASHMAN

BASIC PRINCIPLES

There are certain basic principles of human government declared in the Word of God which should guide the Christian in determining relationship to government. Human Government, as an institution, is divine in origin. "The powers that be are ordained of God (Rom. 13:1). Not the forms of government or the actual government itself, but the institution of government is divine in origin. All forms of government, but a theocracy are doomed to judgment.

AUTHORITY

Human government, as an institution, has authority over personal and public property. It has authority over physical life, and can imprison or put to death. It has punitive authority according to I Peter 2:13-14. It has the right to determine what constitutes crime as set forth in Romans 13:3-4. It has authority over national and international relations involving the right to declare and prosecute war for national and international protection. The Brethren Church has no criticism of our government for declaring or prosecuting war.

NON-COMBATANTS vs. PACIFIST

The Brethren Church is Non-Combatant, not Pacifist in its belief. A pacifist is against war as such, all war, anytime, anywhere, under any condition. There are political pacifists, social pacifists, communistic pacifists. We are not pacifists! We are Non-Combatants! A combatant is one disposed to engage in combat, in military warfare, in bearing of arms. We are not even to be classed with the "religious pacifists." We cannot conscientiously engage in the bearing of arms, but we recognize that the governments of this world, a world that is unregenerate, have the right to use the sword in defense of a free people.

CONSCIENCE

Human government has no authority over conscience. One of the basic principles of the totalitarian philosophy of government is that the state owns your conscience. It teaches that human personality and consience must, in all things, be subversive to the state. Nazism, Fascism, Communism, and all other forms of totalitarianism are founded on this principle. But in a Democracy, government has no authority over conscience. Only God has this authority! I Pet. 2:19 and I Pet. 3:21 speak of "conscience toward God."

U.S.A. AND CONSCIENCE

The U.S.A. recognizes this right of conscience, and in the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 provides consideration for those conscientiously unable to perform combat and military service, and also for those conscientiously unable to perform any type of military service. This provision is new in American law in some of its aspects. Under its terms the individual conscience alone is judged and is the judge. Officials of the Selective Service System have expressed their concern that it should be interpreted with sympathy even though members of the local boards do not agree with the position taken.

HIGHER AND LOWER LAWS

There is a law of God's universe that is recognized in this. God has decreed that the higher law always is to supercede the lower. The supernatural law is to supercede the natural law. All attempts to seek an explanation for the miracles of the Bible on naturalistic grounds are out and out repudiation of the supernatural. In harmony with this law, the spiritual supercedes the natural. Now the Bible teaches that the law of God supercedes the law of man. Acts 5:17-42 is a case in question. The apostles had been arrested, imprisoned in the common jail. The angel of the Lord delivered them, thus defying and superceding the law of man. The angel commanded them to disobey the governmental decree. They were re-arrested and reminded of the law of man. Peter said in defence. "We ought to obey God rather than man." They were forbidden to preach upon being given their liberty. But they "ceased not to teach and preach," rejoicing, "that they were accounted worthy to suffer shame for his name." Here the scriptures clearly set forth the divine principle that should guide all Christians in their relationship to human government.

BIBLICAL RELATION TO GOVERNMENT

What ought a Christian's Biblical Relation to Human Government be? It ought to be the same in time of war as in time of peace. In a time of storm is no time to remodel the ship, but to "stick to the ship." The Brethren Church has spoken many times in times of peace upon her non-resistant, non-combatant principles, and that after most prayerful study by her ablest students. Now, amid the war hysteria, war madness with which we are surrounded, is no time to alter one single word of her belief and practise. If we have been right all these years, and we have, we are right now! If we have not been right (and this is most inconceivable), then let us wait until a time of peace to make any changes in our pronouncements when we can do so in an atmosphere of greater spiritual sanity.

THE CHRISTIAN'S CHOICE

The Christian ought to be "subject unto the higher powers" (Rom. 13:1 and Titus 3:1), but when "rendering unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" conflicts with "rendering unto God the things which are God's" then what? Then our heavenly citizenship (Phil. 3:20) supercedes our earthly. Then our ambassadorship for Christ (2 Cor. 5:20) supercedes that of human government. Acts 4:1-31 is a case in question. The apostles had performed a miracle of healing and had exercised the divine right of preaching the gospel. They were arrested and threatened with dire penalties if they continued to preach and heal. The law of man was in direct conflict with the law of God. They appealed with these words, "Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye."

How About It?

There are 365 "Fear Nots" in the Bible, or one for every day of the year.

NON-COMBATANT SCRIPTURES

"What saith the scriptures?" The New Testament scriptures? We are not under law but under grace, remember. Matthew 5:9-12 and 43-45 pronounces a blessing upon the peacemakers ,enjoins love for our enemies, forbids retaliation for wrongs, commands good for evil. Surely these passages forbid a Christian to kill. Roman 12:17-21 prohibits revenge (vengeance) and places responsibility upon us of feeding and giving drink to our enemies instead of killing them. "Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace." (Rom. 14:19). War never engenders peace! Peter presents Christ as our example when he writes, "when he was reviled, he reviled not again, when he suffered, he threatened not." (I Pet. 2:23). If ever there was a time when a follower of Christ would have been justified in using the sword, it would have been amid the circumstances recorded in Matt. 26:51-52. The grossest and basest of injustices was being done to the Son of God. Peter did the natural thing, he wielded the sword. Christ commanded him to do the Christian thing, "Put up thy sword." Christ had provided the sword for the purpose of teaching the non-combatant principle in an object lesson. We cannot conceive of any circumstance under which a Christian is Biblically justified in wielding the sword. There are many other non-combatant scriptures in addition to these.

NON-COMBATANT PROVISIONS

Under the present provisions of the Selective Service Act (1940) the U.S.A. has graciously provided types of service, acceptable to the government, which a Christian can conscientiously render and still be true to the scriptures. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Executive Order No. 8606 has decreed: "I hereby declare that the following military service is noncombatant service:

(1) Service in any unit which is unarmed at all times.

(2) Service in the medical department wherever performed.

(3) Service in any unit or installation, the primary function of which does not require the use of arms in combat, provided the individual's assignment within such unit or installation does not require him to bear arms or to be trained in their use.

I further declare that non-combatant training consists of training in all military subjects except marksmanship, combat firing, target practices, and those subjects relating to the employment of weapons."

For those conscientiously opposed to participation in such non-combatant service under military supervision, provision has been made for assignment in the C. O. Camps to work of national importance under civilian direction. Thus the U.S.A. has made ample provision for faithful adherence to our non-combatant beliefs and at the same time to be patriotic and loyal to our government.

INDIVIDUAL CONSCIENCE

The Brethren Church has drawn the line "short of actual combat service" and has left all questions below that line for individual conscience. However, we would warn against entering wedges. There is an Arabian parable which tells of an Arab and his camel. The night was cold. The Arab was within the tent and the camel without. The camel begged for the privilege of "just sticking" his nose inside the tent. His nose was so cold! The Arab at last consented. Ere morning the camel was within the tent and the Arab had been kicked out. The camel of militarism is begging for the privilege of just sticking his nose into the tent of Brethren Biblical belief concerning war. He begs, "Just a little compromising, a little loosening up, a little weakening of the historic Brethren Biblical belief." He pleads the coldness of the night, the atmosphere of this war. Beware, Brethren! Let this camel's nose in and soon Brethren belief will be out! Let the camel stay outside in the cold world where he belongs. Be true to Brethren Biblical belief concerning war.

Christmas Hope

'Tis Christmas, and by faith I see
A manger clothed in mystery,
A virgin with her newborn son,
The God of heaven—and man in One.

And in the stillness of the night
Judea's hills are bathed in light
As shepherds hear the angels sing,
Then go to seek the welcomed King.

A star arises, clear and bold,
Which wise men in the East behold,
And start their journey to the place
Where they shall see their Saviour's face.

But, after Bethlehem I see
The cruel cross of Calvary,
And after that the empty tomb,
Then Olivet, and Heaven, and Home.

O what a night, and what a birth,
That brought salvation to this earth!
In hope, once more we scan the skies
For soon our Morning Star shall rise.

—Angie Garber.

LEAVING GOD OUT

In the glare of earthly pleasure,
In the fight for earthly treasure,
'Mid your blessings without measure—
HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN GOD? ?

While His daily grace receiving,
Are you still His Spirit grieving
By a heart that's unbelieving?
HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN GOD? ?

While His bounty you're accepting
Are you His commands neglecting
And His call to you rejecting—
HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN GOD? ?

Just Think!

Lost opportunities — A minister, passing a big department store, followed a sudden impulse to go in and talk to the proprietor on the subject of salvation. Finding him, he said, "Mr. T., I've talked beds and carpets and book-cases with you, but I've never talked my business with you. Would you give me a few minutes to do so?" Being led to the private office, the minister took out his New Testament and "preached unto him Jesus." After some conversation the storekeeper said to the minister, "I'm seventy years of age. I was born in this city, and more than five hundred church officers have known me as you have, but in all these years you are the only one who has talked to me about my soul." —Moody Monthly.

News from Brethren CHURCHES

WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA

Shortly after coming to Winchester, the pastor was called to hold his own Evangelistic meeting at such a time as he saw fit. After much prayer and consideration the dates, Oct. 17-Nov. 1, were chosen. Plans were made and much prayer went up to God in behalf of our meetings.

The devil seemingly tried his best to interfere with the meetings. The week before the meeting opened, Mrs. Dick was taken to the hospital for several days; the rains came along for three days and three nights and filled the cellar of our home with about three and a half feet of water and the church basement with ten inches. However, with these as well as other obstacles to overcome we started the meetings. The attendance was fine throughout the two weeks and a fine spirit of cooperation was shown by everyone. Thirteen first time confessions for Christ were recorded with thirty reconsecrations. Five of these new converts have been baptised with several of the others to follow. Recognition and awards were given for perfect attendance, largest family present, oldest and youngest persons, and the greatest number of chapters in the Bible read during the two weeks. Several thousand chapters were read, which stimulated a real interest in Bible reading.

The church at Winchester has a real field in which to work for Christ. Pray for us that we may meet the challenge that is offered.

Monday night, November 23 in our Winchester School Of The Bible we were privileged to have Dr. L. S. Bauman for a one night service. A fine audience was on hand to hear the message. After driving to Waynesboro the next day, Dr. Bauman told Rev. Crees he preached the longest sermon ever in Winchester, Va., the night before. You guess how long it was. Nevertheless we all enjoyed every word.

We enjoy two radio broadcasts here each week over WINC. Pray for us as we labor in this field.

In His Name,

—Paul E. Dick.

CARLTON BRETHREN CHURCH

This begins our sixth year at Garwin, Iowa. In the last five years much has been accomplished for our Lord and Savior. We thank Him for all things. Much has been done for the outward appearance of our church: outside painted, basement redecorated, upstairs remodeled, new steps in the front, a new air conditioned furnace installed, and the parsonage painted.

Our Home Missions offering has increased from about $17.00 to over $100; Foreign Missions from $35.00 to more than $100. The pastor's salary has also been raised considerably, and our church is now 100% receiving the Herald.

Our attendance has held well. There have been 50 outward confessions for Christ in the church, 100 in the district school, 70 in the high schools, 62 in the W.M.C.A., and many others in homes not belonging to our church.

News has just been received that Chaplain Orville Lorenz is on his way across the water to an unknown destination. His wife is now working in Washington, D. C.

"A man should never be ashamed to say he has been in the wrong; which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser today than he was yesterday" (Alexander Pope). We wish to acknowledge an error made in a previous issue by printing the following statement from San Diego, Calif.:

The statement has been made in the Missionary Herald and restated in church bulletins everywhere, that the First Brethren Church of San Diego is now self supporting. We wish that the statement were true, but the fact of the matter is, the San Diego Church is still quite dependent. The help needed, however, has been reduced to the extent that the local Southern California District Mission Board has been able to take care of all our needs, and we no longer need help from the National Home Missions Council and will receive none for the current year. This explains why the San Diego Church is not represented on the Home Mission Council Prayer Calendar. We are now independent of the National Home Missions Council but still dependent on the District Board to the tune of $700.00 for the year 1942-43.

We no longer consider ourselves a baby mission church, in fact, we now feel quite grown up, but we still have to go to dad for help. Dad has been mighty good to us, and we don't want him to get any wrong ideas about our being self supporting; we may have to ask him for a little for the year 1943-44.

The San Diego Church will always be grateful for the help of the National Council and the District Board both of which represent help from Brethren people in America. Our mission offerings through the years, we believe, will confirm the soundness of the investment that Brethren have made here.

Our people are striving toward the goal that has been announced as completed, namely, that of being absolutely self supporting. When we reach that place, we will announce it with rejoicing.

MODERATOR'S ADDRESS

Delivered By LOUIS S. BAUMAN, September 1, 1942

At Winona Lake, Indiana

Probably no national conference of Brethren Churches has ever assembled under similar conditions to those under which we are meeting today. We are living in a world wherein the peoples that once knew God seem to have utterly forgotten Him —a world that in exceeding great wickedness has literally gone mad. This planet is nothing short of a madhouse, wherein the comparatively few souls that are still sane are wrestling like mad with the mad. And, were it not for our firm belief in a God, Who is watching overhead, and Who is assuredly overruling and directing all the conflicting forces of heaven and earth for the working out of His eternal purpose in Christ, we could utterly despair of the human race.

It is perfectly possible for a race of man, gone mad, to destroy itself, sinking down into the hell of its own depravities. It has so happened before. Unless we mistake the scriptures, a race of pre-Adamic beings once thus destroyed itself. And again, in the days of Noah, the present race of men came within just eight souls of utter destruction through its awful corruption of mind and body, and deeds of violence.

If ever, since the days of Noah, men and women separated unto God for service in righteousness were needed, that hour is NOW! And, again, as it was in the days of Lot, unless enough salt can be found to forestall the utter moral corruption and spiritual gangrene that has embedded itself in the hearts of men, the fires of the wrath of God must fall upon the nations as the fire and brimstone of His wrath fell out of the heavens upon Sodom and Gomorrah.

Supermen are not enough. Super-scientists, super-statesmen, super-financiers, super-educators, super-industrialists, super-religionists, super-everything we have had in super-abundance, and yet the world is crashing pell-mell downward, ever downward into a hell of its own creation. It was even so in the days of Noah:

"There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown" (Gen. 6:4).

And yet, in spite of these "giants," these "mighty men," those "men of renown,"

"God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart" (Gen. 6:5-6).

In those days, the only hope of saving mankind from absolute extinction laid in the family of an old-fashioned preacher of righteousness who "walked with God." Men and women of the Church of the Living God, you in whose bosoms throbs the Spirit of the Christ, the Son of God, the world may know you not, even as it knew Him not; but, yours is the task, under God, of again building the ark, and taking into it a remnant, who, saved from the judgment of God, shall, in Him, prepare a new race, a regenerated race, for a new earth, wherein shall dwell righteousness and from which sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

Men and women of the Church of the Living God, in a world wherein there is tremendous "distress of nations, with perplexity, the sea and the waves roaring, men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth," it is not yours to sink down into the slough of despond—it is yours to do your work, in the strength of the Spirit of God, to the best of your ability, in harmony with the revealed purposes of God; and then, to "lift up your heads," knowing that "the kingdom of God is nigh at hand."

What a privilege it is in an hour like this, to be "workers together" with God; and, under Him, to be "workers together" with a band of men and women, no matter how small or how insignificant that band may seem to the world, who are utterly free to do God's work in God's way—men and women who are not shackled in their work by religious regimentation, are not driven hither and thither by the caprices of ecclesiastical overlords—men and women who are enthralled by none save our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ! Such a privilege it is to be a member of, and a worker within, a real Brethren Church today.

But, it becomes a sad, but certain, duty to say in connection with that statement that they are not all Brethren Churches today which call themselves such. The story has been told so often that it need not be retold here, that over two hundred years ago, at Schwarzenau, Germany, the men who, under God, gave outward organization to the denomination of Christian men and women known as The Brethren Church, were men who were firm in their determination to organize groups of believers into local congregations, or Churches, that would be subservient to no master save the one Master, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. This they did!

But, (it is an old story), no sooner do freemen proclaim themselves free than the tyrant head of the forces of hell begins to attack,—at first subtly then more and more boldly. Freedom is a Christian inheritance. "If the Son of man shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." Only the Devil is the author of slavery—the inventor of chains. And what he has sown, thank God, some day he will reap. Men who would be free must make everlasting warfare upon the forces that seek to enslave. This is true in the church, even as it is true in the state.

Gradually, almost imperceptibly, the little congregationally governed churches known as "The Brethren," lost their original liberty as sovereign churches. Annual meeting after annual meeting piled law upon law, regimenting the local churches and their members, until in the latter part of the nineteenth century they found them lorded over by one of the most complete tyrannies that ever throttled a Protestant evangelical body. Men were "put on the carpet," and expelled from the fellowship and communion of the Church for allowing musical instruments in their homes, for shaving off their beards and leaving their mustaches grow, for parting their hair on the side, for wearing collars and neckties, for carrying life insurance, and for forty and one other reasons. Women were excommunicated for failure to wear a bobinet prayer-covering; for wearing "peek-a-boo waists," or hoops; for wearing gold breast-pins or finger rings; for wearing even simple seventy-five cent sailor hats. They were cast forth from the "synagogue" for having their pictures taken, for hanging lace curtains at their windows, and for scores of other failures to comply with the rules laid down by the elders, who loved authority. No state evermore thoroughly regimented its citizens than did the church its members. Thus, the elders went far astray from the apostolic injunction against "being lords over God's heritage" (I Pet. 5:3).

The natural result of such over-lordship, in the church as in the state, was rebellion. Hundreds upon hundreds were "cast out of the synagogue." (The main break came in 1882, and the story need not be repeated here.) However, as they went they took with them the real Brethren faith—absolute faith in the Holy Scriptures, and all that they contain, as being the sole rule for the faith and practice of any and all born-again children of God. They eschewed all laws and by-laws, made and abetted by men, that had fettered them, and made them slaves of ecclesiastical overlords.

Then, these unfettered souls, only with the memory of the feel of the chains, met together once again, to restore the church of their fathers. Need we wonder that they literally leaned over backward in their determination to build again congregations of believers in the Biblical Brethren faith and practice, that would be sovereign—utterly free from the ecclesiastical overlordship that had been so galling to them.

I shall never forget an experience I had forty years ago. I was then the national statistician, elected by the National Conference of The Brethren Church. I sent a blank to Elder Jonathan Swihart of Indiana, one of the organizers of the new movement to be known as the Brethren Church. He was one of the worthies of sacred memory at the Dayton Convention of 1883. He organized probably more Brethren Churches than any other elder of his day. When he received the blank from me, he immediately returned it, asking who possessed the authority to pry into the private affairs of sovereign Brethren Churches. He answered each question by giving me to understand that it was none of my business, even though a national conference did try to make it my business.

The men who founded the Brethren Church were certainly congregational with a vengeance; and, knowing the things they had suffered under a former tyrannical ecclesiastical system we can understand WHY they were so jealous of their newly found freedom. God grant that we of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, their sons and their successors, shall ever jealously guard and maintain the precious inheritance of the freedom from spiritual oppression which they left us. The centralization of government, both of state and of church, into the hands of would-be masters of all, is the spirit of the times. It is not of God.

This spirit lifted its head even in the apostolic churches. Especially was it manifest in the Church at Pergamos. To this Church it was written:

> "So hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes, which thing I hate" (Rev. 2:15).

Now, the Greek word "NIKAO" means to "Lord it over" or "to conquer." "Laos" refers to the LAITY." Nicolaitanism therefore means "LORDING IT OVER THE LAITY." Of this thing, God has expressed His thought in a very decided manner: "WHICH THING I HATE"! Therefore, we must it is the essence of the spirit of the Antichrist, o, in the time of the end will seek to utterly de- by all who do not accept his "mark," his author- and worship in the way he shall dictate.

Therefore, in zealously and jealously guarding ir freedom from man made laws and regulations, olution after resolution was passed by the Breth- Churches for more than fifty years,—whenever y met in voluntary assemblage,— affirming the solute freedom of the local congregations from ecclesiastical lordship on the part of any Con- ence, or officers thereof. The utmost any such nference could do was to deny a local Church right to be represented therein. But to deny any al congregation the right to be a Brethren Church long as it clung to the certain well-defined arti- s of faith and practice set forth in the Scriptures NEVER!

Once again, in the late nineteen-thirties, the rit of regimentation crept into the National Con- ence of Brethren Churches, as well as into many the District Conferences. Once again the battle l to be fought to maintain congregational gov- ment within Brethren Churches. Once again, ec- siastical overlords, by fair means or foul, grasped control of the National Conference and of Dis- t Conferences. Once again, the old sentences of communication began to be passed, not by local rches, but within and by these conferences.

However, the situation was a bit different in 1939 n what it was in 1882. The annual meeting in 2 had before placed charges and granted trials, ore passing the supreme sentence of the Church. 1939, the National Conference presented no rges and granted no trials. The ecclesiastical rlords who maneuvered themselves by very ques- nable means, into the saddle at that, and subse- nt conferences, simply passed sentence, and those y named were out—SUPPOSEDLY!

Again different from the days of 1882, those who e counted "out" refused to be "out." They con- ded that the case was indeed quite different n that of 1882—that the Brethren Church from very beginning was made up of local congrega- s that had never in any wise surrendered their ereignty, and that Brethren Churches which still ntained the Brethren faith and practice were still thren Churches in spite of the sentence of ex- mmunication of a national conference, even were t conference legitimately organized, which the ference of 1939 was not!

The entire matter was finally taken by the would- overlords into court at Dayton, Ohio, in which y attempted to dispossess the First Brethren urch of Dayton, Ohio, of its property on the und that, because it was not subservient to the rict and national conferences, it therefore was longer a Brethren Church. It is scarcely neces- y to say that in a court of justice the overlords their battle, and that even "Caesar" has pro- med that sovereign Brethren Churches, true to Word of God in all their faith and practice, still Brethren Churches.

As that decision stands, it can only mean one thing: A BRETHREN CHURCH IS A CHURCH WITH A CERTAIN WELL-DEFINED FAITH AND PRACTICE, PROCLAIMED TO THE WORLD SINCE THE DAYS OF ALEXANDER MACK, OVER 200 YEARS AGO; AND REAFFIRMED BY OUR CHURCH FATHERS IN 1883, AND IS A CHURCH RIGIDLY CONGREGATIONAL IN ITS FORM OF GOVERNMENT. Therefore, if a Brethren Church ceases to be CONGREGATIONAL in its form of government, it, of its own volition departs from the well-defined practice of the Brethren Church, and by that act automatically ceases to be a Brethren Church. It has ex-communicated itself, whether it realizes it or not. Logically and reasonably, such a Brethren Church should join forces with the Church of The Brethren; for, departing from congregational government, what possible reason can it have for remaining aloof? They twain — the Church of the Brethren and the group of uncongregational Brethren Churches are Siamese twins.

Doubtless, there are those who are now asking us: "Why call attention to these church difficulties? Why open up old 'sores'?" We have no desire to open up "old sores." God knows we have grown weary of battle. But so long as the enemies of our spiritual freedom stand battering at the gates, we must carry on the battle, no matter how much we may desire peace.

During the past year, two wills, leaving certain sums of money to missions unquestionably belonging to us, have been attacked, thus giving clear evidence that our right to continue in the inheritance our fathers left us has been definitely challenged. We believe the hour has come when we must defend our title to the inheritance that is surely under God, our own.

We feel that we, of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, have literally and conscientiously followed the instructions given us by our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. In our relation to a certain group of Brethren Churches which has openly repudiated before the courts of men, the congregational form of Church government, we have not forgotten that we are Christians and are bound by the faith and practice of the Brethren Church, as proclaimed in the unchangeable Word of God:

> "Dare any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints? Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters? Know ye not that we shall judge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?
> "I speak to your shame. Is it so, that there is not a wise man among you? no, not one that shall be able to judge between his brethren? But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers. Now, therefore, there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather take wrong? why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded? Nay, ye do wrong, and defraud, and that your brethren" (I Cor. 6:1-3, 5-8).

Mindful of this our duty, this National Fellowship of Brethren Churches has plead for hearing, trial, and decision before an unprejudiced judge and jury. We have followed the rule laid down by our Lord:

"Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established. And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church: but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man and a publican" (Matt. 18:15-17).

Not only has the moderator of this National Fellowship personally appealed time and time again to the leaders of that group of Brethren Churches, known as the Ashland College Group, but he has been accompanied assuredly by the necessary "one or two more"—yes, by the entire National Fellowship of Brethren Churches—only to have our pleas fall upon deaf ears. Then we have pleaded that it should be told "unto the Church." Our "Fellowship of Brethren Churches" has had a standing Committee ever ready since the days of our supposed "ex-communication," to meet with ten men appointed by the Ashland College group; or, we have offered to lay our case for decision in the hands of the Christian Church at large in the selection of ten recognized and outstanding leaders of other Christian denominations—all without avail. Those supposed to be our "brethren" have utterly refused to "tell it unto the Church" in any way it can be told. What can we do more? It appears to your moderator that we can only continue by following the instruction of our Lord:

"If he neglect to hear the Church, let him be unto thee as a heathen man and a publican."

Assuredly, the words of the Apostle Paul in I Corinthians Six, apply only to those who are still "brethren," and not to those who must,—not by any desire of ours—be reckoned "as an heathen and a publican." We believe we have been driven, as against our wills, to defend our title—THE BRETHREN CHURCH. We must appeal to the courts of men as to whether or not, property standing in the name of The Brethren,—or, property devised by will to the institutions of the Brethren Church—is to be pre-empted by so-called "Brethren Churches" that have repudiated that which made us "Brethren,"—that is, a strictly congregational form of government.

We believe it to be the duty of this National Fellowship of Brethren Churches to take every step necessary to protect our interest in any and all prop erty that is registered in the name of The Brethre Churches, and to such organizations as are auxi laries of any legally organized conference or fe lowship of Brethren Churches. Otherwise, there not a single church affiliated with this Nationc Fellowship of Brethren Churches, nor a single organ ization within this national fellowship that is goin to be safe from attack upon its property rights.

It is inevitable that, if our Lord shall tarry, must someday be determined in these United State of America as to just who is meant by, and what a "Brethren Church." Let us hope this can be don by submitting the case for judgment unto "th Church." On our part, we should strive to tha end, and thus fulfil the Word of God. If it canno be so done, then, let not the failure be ours whe we must deal with those who should be brethren a we would deal with one who is "an heathen and publican," and do, as did the Apostle Paul, "appeo unto Caesar." It is our conviction that eve "Caesar" is usually just, and will understand tho a Brethren Church is assuredly a church that strictly congregational in its form of governmen Once that decision is made, it will not be hard fo any court of justice, when the facts are laid befor it, to distinguish between us and those who say the are "Brethren," but are not.

Since some action is inevitable, we believe thi National Fellowship of Brethren Churches should au thorize some committee to act for it and for us al at any and all times, in case property rights ar called in question.

It is understood, of course, that such a com mittee will be without authority to impose any o its decisions upon our sovereign local congregation nor can it place upon them any binding financic obligations. However, it should be understood tha such a committee will have back of it the stron moral support of this National Fellowship of Breth ren Churches; and through it, will receive the vol untary support of all our churches. It should b made very plain that their battle will be a batt for the sovereign rights of us all!

We would impress, at this time, upon all ou churches the importance of all possible unity i matters of faith and practice, if we are to go for ward, build Brethren Churches, and fulfil our mis sion as a part of the body of Christ. As we view i under our strictly congregational form of govern ment, wherein the opinions of none can be impose upon all, unity cannot be preserved by any man dates of men, or of councils of men.

Since this is true, and such liberty is ours, the such unity can be maintained only by constant re course to the Word of God, and by constant re search in the matter of a correct interpretation an understanding of the Word of God. It is our be lief that the Word of God is not a Book of hidde meanings. In his first letter to the brethren at Cor inth, the apostle Paul wrote:

"Now, brethren, if I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you, except I shall speak to you either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophesying, or by doctrine? And even things without life giving sound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped? For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle? So likewise ye, except ye utter by the tongue words easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye shall speak into the air" (I Cor. 14:6-9).

Assuredly, the Holy Spirit would not be guilty of doing the very thing He so emphatically condemns—"speaking into the air" by inspiring the writers of Holy Writ to write in words hard to be understood. Rather, here it is set forth that the utterances of the Holy Ghost are "easy to be understood." Only men make them otherwise.

For many years your moderator has declared himself to be a member of the Brethren Church because he takes the entire Bible to be the very Word of the very God, and therefore must take it all seriously. We dare not take a single word of it lightly. We sometimes fear that some who call themselves Brethren do so. For instance, when the Word of God expresses itself in no uncertain way on the subject of long-haired men and short-haired women, how many preachers among us take that message seriously, and preach that also as the message of God to men. The true Brethren preacher stands to preach the whole Word of God, even though he may have to put on armor plate when he sallies forth to battle with irate ladies who have permitted their crown of glory to be shown from their heads. My message to you all this morning is again the message of Paul to Timothy:

> "I charge thee before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine: but after their own lusts shall they heep to themselves teachers, having itching ears; And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables. But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry" (II Tim. 4:1-5).

We have in mind not merely the matter of long or short hair. That may be a lesser evil. We have in mind the matter of divorce, of the obedience of wives to their husbands, of the husbands' love and devotion to their wives, of the taking of oaths, of brethren going to law with brethren, and in this present hour especially the proper attitude of the Christian in the matter of war.

This is no hour for weak-voiced preachers, if God's truth is to be preached in this generation. The Brethren Church should possess a ministry of such fundamental unity that when, in a Church, a group of weak-kneed men or sob sisters become grieved with the preacher for preaching the truth, they will find themselves unable to find among us a preacher who will not thunder forth the same message even in his trial sermon.

Brethren, God is again calling for men of dauntless courage to "Preach the Word," even if it is "sharper than a two-edged sword, dividing asunder the joints and the marrow." The Word of God is a life-giving message—the only hope of a perishing world today. Preaching it and teaching it in all its fulness—everlastingly teaching it and preaching it "whether men will hear or forbear" has changed more maps through the centuries than all the Hitlers have ever done—has overthrown more of the citadels of wickedness than all the prowess of well-intentioned men without the gospel have ever overthrown. "Preach the Word"—don't apologize for it—don't fear the results—preach it!

But as we have said, there should be the utmost of unity among us, which unity should be born of the Word of God alone. We therefore suggest that we shall immediately consider those certain doctrines or practices upon which there is a divergence of opinion and which might create schisms amongst us. We believe that we are heartily at one so far as the great fundamental truths are concerned. They are the lesser things that threaten out unity. We do not hesitate to mention the proper ministry of women in the churches, the prayer covering, the matter of brethren going to law, the relation of the Christian to the state, the proper attitude of the Christian in time of war, the essential qualifications scripturally demanded for ordination to eldership; the qualifications, work, and term of office for deacons, and the ever-growing-more-difficult subject of divorce, and especially as that subject may involve the ministry. We suggest that this conference shall, in any way it seems best, appoint committees of three, on at least some of these subjects, one subject to a committee, whose duty shall be to immediately begin the careful study and preparation of a paper to present to this conference one year hence, for discussion and possible approval—to be published in book form as an addition to our Brethren literature. Such a book should prove to be of great value to us today, and to our children after us. All this, of course, would be done with the distinct understanding that no formation of any part of a creed is involved, but that it is offered to our sovereign local congregations as advisory,—a help to understanding and unity on difficult subjects among the brethren.

Unity of faith and practice among us, of course, demands certain other organized efforts. When the "Word of Truth" has been rightly divided by those to whom the church, under God, has delegated this business, there must be some medium, or mediums, through which this truth can be kept before our people. This demands publications, without which our entire mission, as a church, would soon run aground. We certainly need to congratulate the Business Manager of our publishing house at Ft. Wayne for one of the most successful years, as his report will show, in our history. Our thanks are not only due to him, but also due to Mr. Foye Miller of Cleveland, Ohio, for many sacrifices about which the church, in general, knows nothing. Brother Miller, who does the actual printing for our publishing house, is giving the Church wider advertisement than most of us realize, through the exceptionally fine and artistic work he is doing on the Brethren Missionary Herald. A tremendous forward step has been taken toward the unifying of our Church in its faith and practice, through getting the voice of the Church into hundreds upon hundreds of homes into which it never went before, through the Brethren Missionary Herald. Brother Polman should have the earnest support of every loyal member of the Brethren Church in his determniation to get the Brethren Missionary Herald with the Brethren message into every Brethren home.

Not less important to the mission of our Church is that fine institution known as Grace Theological Seminary. Without it, or a similar institution, the mission of The Brethren Church in these days would be exceedingly short lived. If our Church is to go forward and do its work in these tremendous times, we must build churches at home and beyond the seas. If we are to build Brethren Churches at home and beyond the seas, we must train young men and women for these tasks. If we train young men and women for these tasks, we must have a school in which to train them—a school manned by able, consecrated teachers, who shall enable our preachers and missionaries to "rightly divide the word of truth."

Knowing the difficulties encountered in these days in the matter of travel, we came to this National Fellowship with considerable fear and trembling, for more reasons than one. We all realize how important the annual Seminary offering lifted at this gathering has been to the furtherance of the work of Grace Theological Seminary. We have been wondering what effect the reduced attendance would have upon that offering, which is absolutely essential to our forward work. We trust that we shall rejoice again, even as we have in the past at the special response. It may be possible that during this coming year there will have to be a special campaign within our churches to bring this offering up to meet our necessities, but we believe that it will be done.

Again, upon our arrival at Winona Lake we learned of the serious illness of Dr. Alva J. McClain. With all that is due to others who, by gifts or otherwise, have made our Seminary an institution that has already attracted the attention of the leading fundamental churches of America, it must be said that this work has thus far largely centered around one man, even our beloved Brother Alva J. McClain. The loss of Brother McClain to this work, it seems to us now, would be an injury to our work beyond repair. We are not believing that God is going to permit us to lose him in a perilous time like this. We need to earnestly pray for his recovery. It seems that no price would be too great, could any price we could pay preserve him to our work. However, we don't believe the success of the Brethren Church depends upon any one man, no matter how important that man may be. God buries His workmen, but He carries on His work. If the Brethren Church stands for the faith of God, doing God's work in God's way, it will succeed. If it isn't a movement born of the Spirit of God, set to do God's work in God's way, then the sooner it is removed as belonging to the Babylonian confusion of these days, the better.

Some simple minds are just so simple that they are led to believe that an apostolic church does not call for educational institutions whose peculiar business it is to train men and women for the gospel ministry. However, the Word of God itself gives the lie to any such teaching as that. Listen to this instruction by the great Apostle Paul to that fine young preacher, Timothy:

> "Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also > Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (II Tim. 2:1-2, 15).

Yes, this National Fellowship can and will see to it that neither the present world conditions that have cut down our attendance, nor the illness of the beloved president of Grace Theological Seminary shall be allowed to interrupt the onward movement of that institution. We have men who are able to carry on until the restoration of our Brother McClain to health; and, carry on we will!

We have spoken of our Church Seminary. This raises another problem—the problem of the necessary collegiate training demanded by our Seminary for graduation therefrom. Your present moderator has never been able to satisfy his own mind in determining just how far our Lord would have the Church go in providing funds from its treasury—funds given primarily for the purpose of spreading the gospel—to be used in imparting the so-called "higher learning" to young men and women. We join with an ever growing company who doubt that the use of those funds is proper for the impartation to young men and women of a knowledge of geology, zoology, histology, mythology, or any other "ology" that does not have Christ as its center.

There are a lot of things that are useful, and really ought to be done in this world, that still do not form a part of the mission of the Christian church. Assuredly, it is our business to bury our dead but our Lord said to His disciples: "Let the dead bury their dead, but go thou and preach the kingdom of God."

There is a growing conviction among many that the Christian church would be infinitely better off in America today had she never engaged in the business of imparting secular knowledge to young men and women, leaving that to the State; but, instead had spent the money she has spent upon schools of "higher learning" in the work of making young men and women definitely the children of God before entering any institutions of higher learning—ves, had the church done that, we would be better off today. But the church built the college, and the college became a door for practically every heresy that has ever entered into and blighted the Christian church. It cannot be successfully denied that Modernism found its way into the Christian church through the colleges the church built.

We certainly do not want to take the extreme position and say that it isn't the business of the Christian church, under any circumstances, to spend the Lord's money in the education of her youth. On the other hand, the degeneration of the public school compels us to believe that we are already in a day when the parochial school may yet prove to be a very necessary and legitimate expenditure of Brethren money if we are to guard the faith of our children from being destroyed.

The fact remains, however, that nowhere in the New Testament, do we have a command to build or read of the apostles concerning themselves with the establishment of schools of higher learning. However, the Bible does confirm that the prophets of old conducted schools which were of the order and nature of our Seminary. Nevertheless, in a day when our own Seminary is demanding college degrees before granting its own degrees, we are faced with the problem of doing something to guide our young men and women safely through the college years necessary to secure these pre-Seminary degrees.

Since we do not have a college at present at our command whereto send our boys and girls for their pre-Seminary training, we are happy to know that there are institutions that will welcome our Brethren boys and girls and wherein no injury will be done to their faith—not even to their Brethren faith. We are glad to be able to command to our Brethren boys and girls such colleges as Bryan University, Bob Jones College, Wheaton College; and, on the Pacific Coast, Westmont College in Los Angeles. As Christian men and women, we can and should give a reasonable support to colleges such as these, since they are doors that the Lord has provided through which our young men and women can receive such training as will best fit them for Grace Seminary. To accept the splendid services that these institutions stand ready to render unto us, and then not remember them in our offerings unto the Lord, would seem to your moderator as being very ungracious, indeed.

We were very happy last night when our vice moderator made "The Reach of The Brethren Church" his subject, and pressed upon us the foremost duty of the Christian church, namely, to make Christ known, beginning at Jerusalem, and thence into Judea, and Samaria, and to the uttermost parts of the world. We have always contended that, for the individual Christian, as well as the church itself, the supreme duty under God is to know Christ personally and experimentally as Savior and Lord, and then to make the Christ, "Who to know is life eternal," known to others, even unto the ends of the earth.

We shall not repeat here what was said so splendidly last night; but, we do urge upon this conference to strike the missionary note as the supreme business of the conference and of our churches. It is our conviction that on our conference program, we give too much time to dealing with home themes and home subjects in proportion to the time we give to the foreign end of the work of the church. It seems to us to be a great mistake to have our missionaries travel homeward for a year of furlough, at heavy expense, and then to fail to have them appear in a prominent place with the appeal that only THEY can make, for us to arouse to the duty of making Christ known to every creature. We believe that this National Fellowship of Brethren Churches should request of its Executive Committee to give our foreign missionaries and our foreign missionary work greater prominence on our programs.

God has blessed in a marvelous way the missionary efforts of our church during the past year. The largest offerings, home and foreign, ever given in the history of our denomination came into our missionary coffers last year. Certainly this is a clear indication that the Lord has smiled with approval upon our entire movement as a denomination.

We would call special attention to the work of our Home Missions Council. They have nothing whereof to be ashamed. They have not only been building churches, but they have been building churches that BUILD churches. This evidence is to be had in the fine home and foreign missionary offerings that have come in to our mission treasurers from these churches. While we do not have the figures to give you here, yet we are persuaded that the Home Missions Council would rejoice to have you know what special offerings have been given to Home Missions by the churches that are still regarded as mission churches under the care of the Home Missions Council.

As treasurer of the Foreign Missionary Society, we can furnish you here with some figures that may surprise you. For instance, glancing down the list of the annual foreign missionary offerings of the individual churches, we note the home missions churches and their offerings for the fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1941 and ending July 1, 1942. Here are some of them:—Cleveland, Ohio, $742.25, an offering that far surpasses the offerings of many of our larger, older and better established churches; Wooster, Ohio, a mere babe, as a home mission yet their offering to carry the gospel to those perishing in heathen and pagan darkness amounts to $378.09. Flora, Indiana, a church hardly out of its cradle, sent us an offering of $661.58. Ft Wayne, but several years ago one of our home mission babes, now stands as a full-fledged church with a foreign missionary offering during the past year amounting to $1,505.83. Peru, Indiana, struggling against adverse forces that would destroy her, yet laying at the feet of our Lord an offering for foreign missions amounting to $604.76. Mansfield, Ohio, an infant church living not too far outside an unfriendly atmosphere, yet presents $227.28 unto the Lord that the story may be told to others. Juniata, Pennsylvania, another of our small home missions, brought $221.52; and that little Brethren infant at Leamersville, Pennsylvania, astonished the treasurer by sending a check for $345.25. Hagerstown, Maryland, not quite old enough to walk alone, yet manages to present unto the Lord an offering of $514.00. Winchester, Virginia, a church located in a district where but a few years ago a $300 offering from any Church would have astonished the natives in that part of the Brethren world, gave an offering amounting to $474.72. Modesto, California, not yet having reached the age when an infant is supposed to walk alone, breathing through its first year in a part of the country where Brethren infants usually have had to struggle for existence, yet comes along with its offering of $561.33. Glendale, California, a church that but several years ago sustained no existence, during this past year proclaimed its independence of any further support from our Home Mission Board and presented to foreign missions a check for $887.02. San Diego, California—it seems only yesterday that we were down there looking for a location where we might gather the few Brethren of that city together to worship God according to their conscientious convictions—now only several years of age, and yet gave your foreign missionary treasurer a check for $721.27.

These figures tell the story more eloquently than any other words possibly could as to whether or not it pays to support Home Missions. People who insist on foreign mission work, declaring that they are not so favorable to Home Missions, need to meditate upon these figures. Our entire foreign missionary offering, of which we are justly proud this year, amounting as it does to $19,000 more than any offering that has preceded it in the entire history of our society, would be definitely reduced were it not for the offerings that have come from our home mission churches.

God bless our home missionary pastors. A finer, more devout and consecrated group of men neve were called of God to the mission of building churches. We repeat once again, with all the em phasis at our command, if you want to carry th gospel to the ends of the earth, build more Brethre Churches in the homeland!

In the building of Brethren Churches, we woul advise, from past experience, extreme care agains putting too much money into the first building t be erected. We believe that mistakes have bee made along this line, against which we need t guard in the future. This is not to say that some times a situation does not warrant the erection o a large building in the beginning. But we shoul not forget the apostolic method of establishin churches, even in the homes of Christian families "The church that is in thy house" is a familiar ex pression to all New Testament readers. Let us en courage even laymen in the business of establish ing Brethren organizations where Sunday Schools ar conducted, and Bible classes are carried on, even i there cannot always be regular preaching. Suc efforts beget churches.

We pray that God will set us more and more o fire with the zeal that will carry the distinct mes sage that God has given us to proclaim into ever state in the union and into every country on th face of the earth, if our Lord shall tarry.

You may believe your moderator to be a bit visionary. We will confess that since the recent purgin within the Brethren Church of forces that wer legalistic, and at the fountain head modernistic an anti-missionary, we do possess a vision. We are un ashamed of that vision. "Where there is no visio the people perish." We have a conviction that Go has called a church, such as our little babe now i to grow into a giant in service for Christ if ou Lord shall tarry. Why not? Anyhow, God give vision and faith to believe in our mission.

THE WORK OF THE CHAPLAIN

Chaplain Ernest F. Pine, 417th Infantry, 76th Division, Fort Geo. C. Meade, Md.

Delivered at 1942 Conference (Published by request of Conference)

We are very thankful for the opportunity of addressing this Conference to tell you about the work of the chaplain. May we express our thanks to the Executive Committee for their kindness in granting me this special time.

We are serving in the world's fastest growing congregation and as such we feel that we have a great responsibility and opportunity. The American army alone has reached the staggering number of 10,000,000 boys coming from your homes all over America. Each day we witness hundreds of new recruits entering our camp, and this scene can be duplicated hundreds of times over throughout our land. The personnel with which the chaplain is assigned is increasing moment by moment. Never in our history has there been such a concentrating of human life in strategic centers where the gospel could be preached.

The conviction has also come to me that here is a very definite opportunity to help carry out a commission given by the Captain of our salvation, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The war is not alone responsible for the missionary movement of Christendom failing to carry out this commission. Oftimes failure of sufficient funds caused the inability of mission boards to send out missionaries to places of need, and the liberal and modernistic problem within the church itself stifled many a missionary desire. Now at government expense, the chaplain is being sent to all portions of the globe where they might preach the unsearchable riches of Christ. We have seen our American forces sent to the Far East, to Ireland and England, to India, to North Africa and many other places. Wherever these forces have gone, chaplains have likewise gone. In many of these places the privilege of giving out the gospel is made possible to civilians as well as the soldiers.

The privilege of speaking to this Conference is deeply appreciated by the speaker for the reason that there are many erroneous evaluations of the chaplain and his work. Let me say that I am not here in defense of my work, for I feel perfectly satisfied that I was led into this work by the Holy Spirit. But the office has come in for a great amount of criticism, some of which has been perfectly justified. There are all kinds of chaplains just as there are all kinds of preachers in civilian life, the good, bad, and indifferent, but because the office is abused by some does not mean that the opportunity for the good chaplain is lessened.

The foresight of the United States Government, in providing chapels and chaplains for the spiritual welfare of your boys, ought to be a matter of unceasing praise to God. The fact that an attempt is made to prepare them for eternity while there is yet time, deserves commendation and not criticism. No other country in the world has done what our country has in this respect. There are but few homes in America that have not been touched in the calling of men for some part of the armed service, and it is comforting for mothers and wives to know that their boys and husbands are not left to this distasteful task without some spiritual guidance and help.

Some mistaken notions still prevail about definite tasks that the chaplain performs, and we will attempt a further clarification here. Certain statements have been made in this Conference that need correcting and we humbly seek to make them. The first is that of our distinctive Church Ordinances. But first, let me say that we feel our first and primary concern is to help men find Christ as their Saviour, and if there is time and opportunity to teach them the Biblical methods practiced by our Church. But in the fast moving training given in our camps today there is very little time for indoctrinating men in church ordinances. Our emphasis is that men should come to know Christ before eternity overtakes them on the battlefield and they leave this world.

We have been laboring in the very shadow of the Nation's Capitol where military duties must be accomplished with accuracy and surety. Therefore, we may speak with a little authority on our chosen subject. It will then be a delight to the people of the Brethren Church to know that we can conduct a Brethren Communion service for our Brethren boys when and where we find them. The Chief of Chaplains urges a man to be loyal to his denominational body and belief. (Quoted from Circular Letter No. 260, Oct. 1, 1942, received since returning from Winona Lake. "Church rules. Chaplains are reminded that they should be bound in their conscience by the same church rules regarding sacramental functions as they were in their civilian parishes.") There is nothing, save time and lack of personnel, to restrain us from giving to our Brethren boys just the same type of service they have been accustomed to in their own local church. Other churches when they find sufficient numbers of their boys hold such a service in their own de- of other boys that must be cared for in what might be called a "general" communion service, usually just the Bread and the Wine. This service may be conducted by the chaplain himself, or, if he does not care to do so, he may call in another chaplain nominational method. Of course, there are groups of a denomination that practices communion in that manner.

The same truth prevails in the rite of baptism. The convert requests the mode of baptism that he would like to have, and if we feel we can administer to him, we do, if not we again call in a chaplain that practices baptism in the manner desired.

The problem has been very easily solved and no sacrifice of conscience has been necessary. The one principle laid down by the government is that men must be permitted the privilege of worshipping their God in the way they choose. This is a great privilege to the Brethren as to all others. It may be of further interest to our people to know that there have been some men brought to the Lord and baptised by triune immersion by the chaplains serving our Church during the past few months.

When chaplains accompany their men on the field of battle they expect some casualties to occur. As they do, it is the spiritual duty and privilege of the chaplain to minister to these men. For some reason there exists the idea that the chaplains must then perform the type of service which represents that man's particular faith. I am sure you can see how impossible this would be for me, a Protestant, to perform a Jewish or Catholic ceremony for a dying boy of that faith. What happens, then? Every effort is made to find a chaplain of his faith and have him minister to the soldier. But I am sure if such is not to be found that we will not allow him to suffer and die without some spiritual aid and we will minister as we have been taught and believe.

The army pulpit is one of great freedom, even to the point of preaching the follies of war! In the civilian pulpit a minister is branded "pacifist," "traitor," or one of many other terms applied in the heat of patriotic fervancy, but in the army pulpit we escape this and can preach with perfect freedom. There is one point of expediency to be observed, and that is to realize that we are the shepherd of sheep from many different pastures and that we must not seek to interpose purely denominational matters. But there are so many things of the gospel that are so necessary to give the boy that we can easily observe this request without violating our conscience before the Lord. We need to get them to see their need of Christ while there yet an opportunity for them to receive Him. Pra for us that we may succeed in this undertaking

In closing let me say that we sincerely appreciat the volume of prayer that is daily ascending fr particularly Chaplain Lorenz and myself. I hav never been so thrilled, as to find how many peop at this Conference have voluntarily suggested the they daily remember us in prayer and that the church is doing the same. With such backing prayer, we feel confident to face the difficult tas before us even though it calls for much person sacrifice. Such work calls for separation from love ones, much the same as our beloved missionarie But every sacrifice made for the Lord is a joy, rea izing that we are in a small way following the patl way of sacrifice that He blazed. Brethren, pra for us!

(P. S.—Not Delivered at Conference: At ot time in the work of the chaplaincy, his time wa occupied with the social and recreational duti necessary in a camp. These have now been forbi den by army regulations and the chaplain cann be assigned to such duties without serious cons quences resulting. A special branch of the servi has been created for this purpose, the "Speci Service Officer." It is his duty on these shores an abroad to furnish the entertainment for the soldier Some chaplains have assisted in this work, but h been on a voluntary basis, not because they ha been required to do so. Just the other day a lar contingent of such officers arrived in England take charge of that work among the A. E. F. Europe.)

MINUTES OF THE 53RD NATIONAL FELLOWSHIP OF BRETHREN CHURCHES

Monday Evening—August 31, 1942

An inspiring song service conducted by song director, Henry Rempel announced the opening session of the 53rd National Fellowship of Brethren Churches at Winona Lake, Ind. Devotions were conducted by Arnold Kreighbaum who read the second chapter of First Corinthians and invoked Divine guidance upon the Fellowship in session. Assembled delegates enjoyed hearing Mrs. Ralph Rambo sing, "Chiefest of Ten Thousand".

The keynote message was delivered by Vice Moderator Roy Patterson who emphasized, "The Reach of the Brethren Church." The first session closed with singing, "I Am Happy in the Service of the King," and the benediction by Moderator L. S. Bauman.

Tuesday Morning—September 1

Tuesday morning business session assembled with singing, "Lead Me To Calvary." Morning devotions, consisting of the reading of 2 Tim. 2:1-16 and prayer, were conducted by R. E. Gingrich. Vice Moderator Roy Patterson officially declared the 53rd National Fellowship of Brethren Churches in session. The membership committee reported the presence of six licensed, 61 ordained elders and 161 lay credentials for a sum total of 228 delegates as compared with 210 for the same period last year. The above report was duly adopted. The following brethren were asked to assist in conference organization, viz., John Squires, Glen O'Neal, Robert Culver, Earl Reed, Albert Lantz and Don Bartley. Conference moved to receive the report of the election after the moderator's address. The Fellowship proceeded to elect the new Executive Committee which resulted as follows:—Illiokota—J. C. Beal, Indiana—Robert Ashman, John Aeby; Mid-West—Ernest Meyers; N. Calif.—Ralph Rambo; North West—Earl Reed; Ohio—R. E. Gingrich, Chas. Mayes; Penna.—A. L. Lynn, J. L. Gingrich; S. East—Herman Koontz, Ed. Bowman; S. Calif—L. S. Bauman, A. J. McClain.

Moderator L. S. Bauman read the address which was prayerfully received. In the absence of the entire committee on the moderator's address the chair ruled that the address be referred to the new committee to be elected by this Conference.

The following brethren were elected to the officiary of the Fellowship: Moderator, Roy Patterson; Vice Moderator, Herman Hoyt; Secretary, J. L. Gingrich; Asst. Sec., L. L. Grubb; Treasurer, Ralph Rambo; Statistician, Robert Crees. Committee on Committees, R. D. Barnard, Wm. Clough, L. L. Grubb.

First business session closed with benediction by Sylvester Lowman.

Tuesday Afternoon

"Wonderful Words of Life" were sung as the afternoon business session convened. Prayer was offered by Herman Hoyt. The report of the membership committee reported the presence of seven licensed, sixty-two ordained elders and 164 lay credentials for a sum total of 233 delegates. This report was adopted. Minutes of the former business session were read and approved. The retiring moderator, Dr. L. S. Bauman, presented and inducted into office the newly elected officers. The statistician, Rev. R. D. Crees, read the report which was enthusiastically received and adopted with the thanks of the Conference and with the proviso that it should be published as soon as possible.

The following resolution was read and referred to the Committee on Committees, namely, "Whereas, most every denomination has seen the need of a Board of Christian Education and the training of Sunday School Teachers as well as building them up to an efficiency as high as possible in teaching the Bible, and

WHEREAS, our Fellowship of Brethren Churches has no such training outlined and no heading up of this kind of work, and

WHEREAS, we feel the need at this time of a definite work, we therefore RESOLVE: That we petition our Fellowship of Brethren Churches assembled at Winona Lake, August 31st to September 6th, 1942, to establish a Board of Education centered at Winona Lake or near and that a Training Program be set up as soon as possible.

That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to every one of our delegates and ask them to present it."

The National Civilian Service Committee reported as follows and said report was adopted, "Several members attended a National Conference of all C. O. groups here at Winona last year. The Committee gave advice to several Brethren boys on the C. O. camps via mail during the year. We recognize the various proposals and recommendations as worthy for further consideration, and therefore, recommend to this Conference that the Committee on Committees be instructed to appoint a committee to be organized to protect property interest registered in the name of the Brethren Church, wherever threatened by litigation. It is understood the committee will be without authority to impose decisions upon our sovereign congregations or place any binding financial obligation upon them. It shall act in an advisory capacity only and receive the voluntary support of all the churches of the National Fellowship.

Inasmuch as the delegates to this Conference seem to be always looking for additional information on the subject of missions, and that missionaries frequently return fresh from the field, and that their messages are most timely in giving out information and in inspiring the gift of life and money to this important work, we recommend to the Executive Committee to provide a more prominent place on next year's program for the messages from our furloughed missionaries.

Inasmuch as we feel the need for committees to be at work in studying certain existing problems related to us, namely:

1. The Church and State in time of war.
2. Brethren going to law.
3. The ministry of women in the church and the place of the prayer covering.
4. The qualifications for and the ordination of elders.
5. The term and office of deacons.
6. Marriage and divorce.

We recommend that these matters be referred to the Ministerial Association of Brethren Churches and that a report be made one year hence.

Your Committee,
A. V. Kimmell,
R. H. Kettel,
Norman Uphouse.

The Committee on Committees reported the following which was adopted,—Committee to formulate resolutions on the change of the name of conference: Roy Patterson, Ch., L. S. Bauman, C. H. Ashman. Committee on Special Financial Appeal: L. S. Bauman, Ch., V. C. Kelford, Bernard Schneider, J. C. Beal, C. W. Mayes.

The following report was read and adopted from the Committee on the Brethren Hand Book, "We, the undersigned, submit the following partial report of work done on the Brethren Minister's Handbook. All the material dealing with the practices and ordinances of the church has been prepared and mimeographed and submitted to the ministers in conference for the purpose of study through the coming year.

The material dealing with Brethren Church policy, consisting of the manual of procedure, conduct of business meetings, and formation of a new church, has not been touched as we feel the section of the old handbook meets our need for the present.

We, therefore, submit this partial report and recommend that a committee be continued and be further instructed as to its duties for the coming year."

Herman A. Hoyt, Ch.,

Resolutions Committee reported the following, which report was adopted:

RESOLUTIONS FOR 1942 NATIONAL FELLOWSHIP

Whereas, our Lord has permitted us to come together in this 53rd National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, and

Whereas, the blessings of God have been with us in guiding and rewarding our efforts with a harvest of souls, and spiritual and temporal blessings, and

Whereas, we begin another year resting on the promises and assurances of continued blessings in His Name;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

1. That this Conference go on record again, in this year of our Lord 1942, as we have gone on record from year to year from the beginning of our denominational work, as being unalterably opposed to the liquor traffic. One of the greatest foes this nation faces today is this traffic which is so destructive to the spiritual, moral and physical well being of our youth. We believe that the greatest hindrance to the success of our nation's warfare against the aggressors she seeks to overthrow is nothing more nor less than the intoxicating cup. The warning of Almighty God against this sin is as necessary today as it was in the days when the Holy Spirit inspired Isaiah, the prophet, to thunder forth:

> "Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink: Which justify the wicked for reward, and take away the righteousness of the righteous from him! Therefore, as the fire devoureth the stubble, and the flame consumeth the chaff, so their root shall be as rottenness, and their blossom shall go up as dust; because they have cast away the law of the Lord of hosts, and despised the word of the Holy One of Israel" (Isa. 5:22-24).

We call upon our President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, as Commander-in-Chief of the American Armies, to at least take such steps as may be necessary to keep alcohol in any form as a beverage, from the reach of our boys in the army, whose minds need to be kept clear and their bodies strong.

2. RESOLVED THAT we shall give to our nation in this hour of its trial, our deepest sympathy and our earnest prayers as she contends against the forces that would destroy the freedom that our fathers left us; and, especially since the forces against which we battle are set to tear down the altars at which we are privileged to worship without let or hindrance. We affirm that it is our duty as Christian believers to go along with our country in her present warfare against the would-be destroyer of God, and home, and human freedom, just as far as we can without violating the expressed will of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ concerning us. At the same time, we would solemnly warn all our brethren that "in all things," Christ must have the preeminence. The Christian must never forget that it is written that Christ "is the head of the body, the church"; and, "that in all things He" must "have the preeminence" (Col. 1:18.

3. That we reaffirm the stand that our church has taken in previous conferences in the matter of a Christian and his relation to war; namely that The Brethren Church from her origin has been utterly opposed to the use of violence or any physical force as a means to an end, on the part of the children of God. We regard the governments of this world system as being yet unregenerate, and their methods of violence contrary to the methods God has authorized His children in the present age to use. We reaffirm that while war, as a possible method for the attainment of justice or the securing and maintenance of human liberty, may at times be deemed necessary among the unregenerate of this world system, yet, according to the teaching of our common Lord and Master, we, as His disciples, do not belong to this world's system and its methods are not our own. We are in this world and not of it, as our Master taught (John 17:14), and must maintain our pilgrim character (Heb. 11: 8-16), our citizenship already being in heaven (Phil. 3:20-21). We recognize and appreciate the protection of the United States; and to the nation that God has ordained (Rom. 13:1-7) to afford us protection, we gladly offer our service, time, money, and life itself if necessary, to bind up it wounds, or to heal its sorrows, by any means or methods our Lord Jesus Christ has approved for the use of those who follow Him, and we pledge ourselves to pray for those in authority according to Rom. 13:1-7.

4. RESOLVED that we commend the United States Chief of Chaplains in the American Army for giving the chaplains the liberty to proclaim the gospel of salvation to the young men within the army camps. We commend the work of the chaplains as the highest form of non-combatant work. We earnestly request the prayers of the members of the church in behalf of the chaplains who have been chosen from our own denomination as they fulfil the mission that has been given them to carry the gospel of hope and salvation to the boys who have been taken far from home, and church, and mother, to the fields from which many thousands of them may pass into Eternity.

5. RESOLVED that this Conference shall extend an expression of gratitude to the First Brethren Church of Dayton, Ohio, for standing in battle, as it has done, against those who would wrongfully take away from our churches their properties and property rights. Moreover, we express our gratitude in particular to attorney Roy A. Patterson, and to his able associate, Judge Carroll Sprigg, for their enthusiastic and untiring efforts in defending our God-given inheritance as a church, wherein congregational government still lives untrammeled and unenthralled.

6. That we earnestly request all Brethren churches who appreciate that which has been done for us by the First Brethren Church of Dayton, to show such appreciation by sending a contribution to care for the expenses of the battle to maintain the inheritance that our fathers left us. Especially do we urge this upon them since the threat to carry the matter into higher courts still stands, and our defense must continue until the battle is won.

7. That we also pledge our prayers and support to all other Brethren churches in which similar legal action is now pending or may arise in the future.

8. That this National Fellowship of Brethren churches hereby goes on record as being utterly opposed to the spirit of racial prejudice that is abroad in these United States—States that were born through the shed blood of men who would be free.

We hold that there is no place in this country for the racial prejudice that has set the world seething as a cauldron. "God hath made of one blood all the nations that dwell beneath the whole heavens" is that correct and emphatic statement of the inspired apostle; and, as men and women of one blood, we must dwell together in peace, recognizing the freedom of all to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience, and leave the beliefs wherein we differ to God for final judgment.

While we regret that the vast majority of the Jewish people are as yet unable to see in Jesus Christ, the true Messiah, yet on the other hand we must condemn anti-Semitism as being without reason and inspired of Satan himself.

9. THAT INASMUCH AS the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America presumes to be the voice of Protestantism in the United States; and,

INASMUCH AS this organization does not represent the position of a large number of Protestant churches and a vast number of Christians who believe in the absolute inspiration of the Bible as the authoritative voice of God,

BE IT RESOLVED that we, the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, ask the Federal Communications Commission to recognize as our Protestant voice the American Council of Christian Churches,

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this National Fellowship appoint a man to represent us on the American Council of Christian Churches.

Resolutions Committee,
L. S. Bauman,
H. A. Kent,
R. A. Ashman.

The following report from the Fellowship of Brethren Laymen was read and accepted: "The National Fellowship of Brethren Laymen in business session, after much consideration, passed a resolution requesting that laymen be recognized by the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches by the appointment of at least one layman on each Committee except those Committees which relate entirely to Pastoral matters. Signed Roy Kinsey, Wesley Miller, and Charles Agler." A resolution was adopted, namely, that the generally accepted resolution be left to be interpreted by Conference next year. Motion carried to reconsider the last point of the Resolutions Committee report. A motion to amend resolution No. 9 prevailed to read that we should send a representative to attend the National Convention of the National Association for United Action among the Evangelicals.

"Greetings in the Blessed Name of Our Lord:

I am sending this note by the hand of Mrs. McClain to express to the many friends of the conference and the local community my deep gratitude for your Christian friendship, your innumerable kindnesses and unceasing prayer in my behalf. May the Lord reward you richly as I can not.

If the valley through which I have been passing has been somewhat dark, the Lord has made good the promise of His unfailing Presence. The mystery of His Sovereign Will may be beyond our finite understanding but His Grace is sufficient and we know that our God is too wise to make any mistakes and too loving ever to be unkind.

May the God of all Grace and Peace go with you as you return to your homes and churches. From what I have heard you have had a good conference and I was particularly gratified to God for the wonderful Seminary offering.

Mrs. McClain is writing this for me but I am signing it with my own hand."

signed ALVA J. McCLAIN.

NATIONAL STATISTICAN'S SUMMARY REPORT

To the Fifty-Third Annual Conference of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches at Winona Lake, Indiana, Sept. 2, 1942

This year we have a 100% report, with seventy-seven Churches reporting to our Fellowship. This includes eight districts, as hereby listed, with the number of churches in each:—CENTRAL (Ind., Mich., S. Ohio, Ky.)—12; EAST (Pa., W. Va., N. J.)—19; EAST CENTRAL (N. Ohio)—13; MIDWEST (Ia., Ill., Nebr., Kans.)—6; NORTHERN CALIFORNIA—2; NORTHWEST (Wash.)—3; SOUTHEAST (Va., Md., Tenn.)—9; SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA—13.

These seventy-seven Churches reported a gain in membership of 382 for the year, bringing their total membership up to 15,757 persons. These figures do NOT include the membership of the Brethren Church in Argentina and in French Equatorial Africa.

Each Sunday morning an average of 8,042 Brethren attend church services, or about one-half of our membership. Sunday evenings an average of 5,707 Brethren are at the church service, or more than one-third our total membership. An average of 2,384 attend the mid-week prayer meeting in our churches, or a little more than one-seventh of the members.

Almost all of our churches held evangelistic services during the year, the total average attendance being 6,607, or two-fifths of our members attending. About half our churches held Bible conferences last year, the total average attendance being 5,258, or one-third of our membership. Most churches held communion services twice a year, with 6,092 sitting down to the Lord's Table, or less than two-fifths of our membership.

The total Sunday School enrollment of our seventy-seven Churches was 15,970 or only 213 larger than our church membership. Of this number, 10,941 attended each Sunday, or two-thirds of the enrollment. About one-third of our Churches conducted Daily Vacation Bible Schools, with 2,983 children attending the sessions daily.

The reports showed a weekly attendance of 2,464 at Christian Endeavor; a monthly attendance of 1,260 at the Women's Missionary Council meetings, a monthly attendance of 401 at Senior Sisterhood sessions, and a monthly attendance of 207 at Junior Sisterhood services

All financial reports were very good this past year. Our sixty-nine church buildings owned were valued at $1,178,894. The twenty-four parsonages owned were listed at $69,400. Other property possessed was put at $73,650. That makes the total value of our property owned in the United States $1,321,944. All this property is owned by congregations, not by our conference.

Money expended through the treasuries of our seventy-seven churches was as follows:

Pastor's Salaries	$112,250

Paid on Building Fund or Church Debt	93,077

PUBLICATIONS REPORT

Annual Meeting of the members of the Brethren Missionary Herald Company, Inc. was held Wednesday, Sept. 2, at 10:15 A. M., in the Auditorium, Winona Lake, Ind., with Herman A. Hoyt, the President of the Board of Trustees, presiding. The Scripture was read by Homer A. Kent, and prayer offered by Bernard N. Schneider. Brother L. L. Grubb presented to those present mimeographed copies of the names of contributors of $5.00 or more to the Company during the year. A motion prevailed that these contributors be accepted as members of the company. The minutes of last year's meeting were read and accepted.

Brother R. E. Gingrich reported the ballot election by mail this summer of three trustees to serve for three years, namely, Herman A. Hoyt, R. D. Crees, Tom Hammers. On June 22, 1942 a total of 269 ballots were mailed out; by August 22, 1942 just 129 had been returned, resulting in the above election.

The secretary read the minutes of the Board of Trustees, offering two names for nomination as members of the Board for 1943; namely, Rev. R. E. Gingrich of Ellet, Ohio, and Mr. S. W. Link, a layman from Ambridge, Pa., who is a member of our Cleveland Church. President Hoyt asked for additional nominations. After a period of waiting a motion prevailed that nominations be closed.

The secretary called the roll of all the trustees and employees of the company, and in turn each one present signed a statement reaffirming their belief in the "Message of the Brethren Ministry."

Both President Hoyt and Brother Polman expressed their appreciation for the services of the Editorial Office Secretary, Miss Grace Allshouse, who has just resigned her position to enter missionary work in Montana.

The annual report of the company was presented by Leo Polman, our Secretary of Publications, showing a large increase in the business of the company, substantial financial gains, and a greatly increased list of subscribers to the Brethren Missionary Herald Magazine. A motion prevailed the report of Bro. Polman be accepted. Meeting adjourned.

R. D. CREES,
Secretary of the Board of Trustees.

THE MESSAGE OF THE BRETHREN MINISTRY

1. Our Motto: The Bible, the whole Bible and nothing but the Bible.

2. The Authority and Integrity of the Holy Scriptures. The Ministry of the Brethren Church desires to bear testimony to the belief that God's supreme revelation has been made through Jesus Christ, a complete and authentic record of which revelation is the New Testament; and, to the belief that the Holy Scripture of the Old and New Testaments, as originally given, are the infallible record of the perfect, final and authoritative revelation of God's will, altogether sufficient in themselves as a rule of faith and practice.

3. We Understand the Basic Content of Our Doctrinal Preaching and Teaching to Be—

(1) The Pre-Existence, Deity and Incarnation by Virgin Birth of Jesus Christ, the Son of God;

(2) The fall of Man, his consequent spiritual death and utter sinfulness, and the necessity of his New Birth;

(3) The Vicarious Atonement of the Lord Jesus Christ through the shedding of His Own Blood;

(4) The Resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ in the body in which He suffered and died and His subsequent Glorification at the Right Hand of God;

(5) Justification by personal faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, of which obedience to the will of God and works of righteousness are the evidence and result; the resurrection of the dead, the judgment of the world, and the life everlasting of the just;

(6) The Personality and Deity of the Holy Spirit who indwells the Christian and is his Comforter and Guide;

(7) The Personal and Visible Return of our Lord Jesus Christ from Heaven as King of Kings and Lord of Lords, the glorious goal for which we are taught to watch, wait and pray;

(8) The Christian should "be not conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of the mind"; should not engage in carnal strife and should "swear not at all";

(9) The Christian should observe, as his duty and privilege, the ordinances of our Lord Jesus Christ, among which are (a) baptism of believers by Trine Immersion; (b) confirmation; (c) the Lord's Supper; (d) the Communion of the Bread and Wine; (e) the washing of the saints' feet; and (f) the anointing of the sick with oil.
